Vol. 45 BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1911. No. 180

MOONSHINE WHISKEY STILL CAPTURED AT MONTREAL

The Establishment was Discovered and Two of the Alleged Operators were Arrested—It was Barricaded and Guarded by a Blind Door and a Pit-Fall 3o Feet Deep.

MONTREAL, Nov. 30—An illicit whiskey still which is supposed to have been producing thirty gallons a day, was discovered Tuesday night by the Westmount police of a thriving "moonshiner's" den and plant situated on Hillside Avenue, near the M.A.A.A. grounds and Mount Royal Riding School, and the raid was followed yesterday morning by the arrest of two men who gave their names, address, and occupations respectively as follows: Eugene Charbonneau, plumber, 452 Letourneaux avenue; and Arthur Laflamme, plumbing contractor, 97 Lasalle avenue. The latter, however, confessed that his real name was Arthur Bourassa, whose address is given in the directory as 97 Boyer street. This is the same man, it is said, who was arrested last June in connection with a similar raid at 48 St. Urban street.

When the Westmount police entered the still on Tuesday night they were at once confronted with a cunningly devised trap. Over a large hole, directly in front of the entrance, sacking had been placed so that anyone stepping on it would fall through to a cellar, thirty feet below. The whole building was kept in inky darkness, while all doors were padlocked and barricaded. Nothing was found on the ground floor, but on the first, was the old kiln used in the sash and door manufacturing days for drying wood; this was protected by a strong double door, and inside were four large tuns, or vats, two of them ten feet long, eight feet high and six feet wide, and the other two were of the same height and width but slightly shorter. All were connected with pipes and the two larger ones were brim-full of fermenting mash; the others being only three parts full. In the corner a rickety wooden ladder let down to the still itself, which was made of thin copper and was heated by eight gasoline jets. There was also in the cellar a large gavalnized iron barrel, set up on a wooden trestle, and a bucket full of the only manufactured spirit that was found; a glass instrument set up in the liquid showed it to be 40 per cent. over proof. All the windows on this floor were stuffed with straw and covered with shutters so as to keep in the smell of the fermenting mash, as well as to keep out all light.

On the third, or top floor, as well as in the rear of the building, was a ten-gallon tank of gasoline, and a thirty-gallon galvanized iron cylinder likewise full of gasolene and connected with the jets under the still that were kept burning all the time. Here all the windows were kept open, so that the fumes of the gasolene might escape over the neighboring houses.

Connected with the factory was a small cottage, rendered notorious several years ago as the scene of the Marotte murder, which Mr. Neville used as an office. In it the moonshiners evidently lived in a state of siege, as it contained a double and a single bed fastened to the wall, one over the other like a ship's bunks. In the middle of the room was a Quebec heater, from which the ashes were taken out onto the floor, and the police are surprised that that place was not burned to the ground in consequence of this practice. Clothes enough for six men were found strewn about; also provisions, including condensed milk, sugar, meat, sausages, fresh bread and tinned goods, sufficient to last for several weeks. It was further evident that the inmates must have made an extremely hurried departure as a pipe was found lying on the double bed and another pipe and a package of tobacco beside the still.

The police state that no one was seen to leave the place during the whole time that it was under surveillance, and the only way in which they can account for the escape of the inmates is that they took a long chance and got away under cover of the night. There are front and back entrances to the cottage as well as direct communication with the main building, which is provided with two front entrances and three or four rear ones. The situation is said to have been an ideal one for carrying on such a trade, particularly as the law breakers probably thought the police would be unsuspicious in Westmount, where strict prohibition is in force. Although only such a small quantity of whiskey was found and the plant could not have been long in operation, it is impossible to tell how much liquor had been manufactured, as it is disposed of as soon as it is made, generally to saloon keepers. The authorities are convinced that this the only illicit stil in Westmount.

The capacity of the plant is estimated at about 30 gallons a day of very strong white whiskey. The still is self-feeding, and turns out a clear, sparkling spirit of good quality, made from raw sugar. The mash, or fermenting mixture from which the spirit is made by the addition of 100 pounds of raisins to every five bags of sugar. One thousand gallons of mash only makes 100 gallons of whiskey, which is then diluted with water in the proportion of 2 to 1. This brew is still double the strength of pure gin, and contains a certain amount of fusil oil that illicit distillers never remove. Moreover, no time is allowed for the spirit to mature, although at least two years should elapse after manufacture before it can be considered ready for consumption. It is said that such a plant would take at least a month to assemble and would cost $1,500, so that as work can only be carried on spasmodically and for brief intervals, the output during the past three months cannot have been very great.

DISCOUNT ON AMERICAN BILLS

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—In order to discourage the circulation of American Natioanl Bank bills and silver certificates in eastern Ontario, the Postoffice Department has issued an order to postmasters instructing them to charge a discount of one-half per cetn. on all such money presented at their offices. The action is due to the refusal of the Bank of Montreal to accept large deposits of American bills from the department.

DENVER JURY FREES MRS. PATTERSON

Mother of Slain Husband Returns to Chicago Deriding Colorado Justice

DENVER, Col., November 30.—The jury in the Patterson murder case, brought in a verdict of not guilty late yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Gertrude Gibson Patterson, the defendant, was overcome with emotion as the foreman of the jury pronounced the words freeing her on the charge, and was only saved from falling to the floor by a court attendant. She recovered quickly, however and insisted on thanking the jurors personally and then, shaking hands with her attorney, left the court room with the jail matron to get her personal effects.

The chief figures in this sensational case were Emil Strouss, a Chicago millionaire, Frank Patterson, and the defendant. Mrs. Patterson told a terrible story of having been taken up by the millionaire, who, she claims after tiring of her, induced Patterson to become her husband, paying him $1,500 for this. Soon after the marriage, she declared her husband began a series of demands upon Strouss, and when these failed he forced her to aid him in efforts to obtain money. The slaying of Patterson, she declared in court came after he had abused her and knocked her down, whereupon she fired in self-defence.

To-day, Mrs. Mary K. Patterson, mother of Charles A. Patterson, is travelling eastward to her home in Chicago, a disappointed woman; Mrs. Gertrude Gibson Patterson, to-day in Denver is happy—happy in the freedom, which until yesterday, she had been denied since she shot her husband on September 25 last.

It was in bitter, contemptuous tones that the mother of the slain man spoke of the jury's verdict that freed Mrs. Gertrude Gibson Patterson.

"I did not come here for revenge," she said at the depot, just before her train started for the east. "I came to see justice done, but this brand of justice is a disgrace to Denver."

THAT BRITISH CLERCAL SCANDAL

The Wife of Rev. F. P. Farrar Will Return to her Home in United States

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Mr. Richard Harding Davis, with his sister, who a few months ago married the Rev. Frederick Percival Farrar, whose appointment as Chaplain to King George and Queen Alexandra was cancelled last week, is stopping here with friends.

Mr. Davis said to-day:

"My sister and I will return to the United States on Saturday. I am here because she cabled to me to come. I canont discuss the trouble, but sister is going home."

"I did not know the nature of the trouble which induced my sister to cable me until I received a wireless despatch from my brother in mid-ocean. But I took the first steamship. My sister met me at the pier."

DEATHS.

BOWLER—In Belleville, on Friday, December 1st, 1911, Grace Mildred, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bowler.

The funeral will take place from the residence of Mr. Fred Holmes, Canifton Road, at 2 o'clock, to-morrow, Saturday, afternoon.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

BALL TO-NIGHT.

At the Armories to-night an indoor baseball match will be played between the XVth Regt. and the Cement Company teams.

SEVERELY INJURED.

Mrs. Peter Sinclair, mother of Mr. D. V. Sinclair, of this city, suffered severe injury and shock this week by falling down a flight of stairs. When about to descend from the attic in her home she made a mis-step and fell.—Madoc Review.

SHOULD BE STOPPED.

Mr. Robt. Dunning reported to the police that while he was driving up Front Street yesterday his horse became frightened by two dogs which ran out and barked viciously at the horse. There are no doubt some canines on our main thoroughfare which should be kept in confinement, as they are a nuisance to parties driving.

VICTIM OF A DRUG.

A week ago a man named John Burns, who claims Pembroke as his home, was arrested here as a vagrant and was remanded to jail for a week. This morning the Magistrate allowed him to go upon entering into a bond in himself of $50 to appear at any time for sentence. Burns promised to leave the city. He admits having taken the gold cure three times, but appears from his manner to be the victim of some insidious drug.

DEPUTATION TO BUFFALO.

Yesterday afternoon in the Council Chamber a n[illegible]r of citizens gathered to discuss [illegible] matter of having a branch of the Augustine Automatic Rotary Engine Company established in this city. After some discussion it was decided to send a deputation to Buffalo to view the plant which is in operation in that city. The deputation will leave on Monday next and will be composed of Messrs. W. B. Deacon, C. W. Springer, Hy. Pringle, F. W. Chesher, H. Greenleaf and T. R. Dando.

GETS ANOTHER WEEK.

Jacob Ricketts, who has been convicted of stealing some brooms, a shovel and hay fork from the County building, was this morning up on remand for sentence by the Magistrate. The latter was inclined to send Ricketts for a term, but enlarged judgment for another week to see what can be done in the matter. Ricketts is desirous of leaving the city for St. Catharines, where he alleges he can pursue his occupation as a pattern maker.

BELLEVILLE BOY MAKES GOOD.

Mr. Harry Brusseau, a Belleville boy, has made good in the west. For the past year he had been mechanical superintendent of the University Press, Limited, at Regina, and on November 1st of this year he assumed the duties of manager of the same establishment and took a substantial interest in the business. The University Press is one of Regina's largest and best equipped job printing offices and has an established reputation throughout the district for high class work. Previous to going to the University Press he was foreman of the Leader Publishing Co.'s job department, the largest printing office between Winnipeg and the coast. Harry is one more of the many Belleville boys who put the finishing touches on their trade in The Intelligencer office, and are making a success of business in the great Canadian west.

A KINDLY WISH.

Those who are readers of the Belleville Intelligencer received along with the regular edition last Thursday a Greater Belleville edition. The supplement is splendidly gotten up. It contains several half-tone pictures of Belleville's foremost business men as well as pictures of the post office, armories, etc. It also has two three-column pictures of Front and Bridge Streets, which, with the numerous awnings and automobiles, convey a very flattering impression. Of course we wish our big neighbor all the prosperity that seems to be coming her way.—Deseronto Post.

CURRENT COMMENT

The furnace and the cold wind from the outside fight it out to-gether.

Chrysanthemums are not only stuck up but they have swelled heads besides.

Belleville's general hospital is now an institution worthy of the city. It still has a few needs for its well-wishers to supply.

"The note of victory" in the campaign of N. W. Rowell, K. C., is the sort of collateral that the Farmers Bank lent money on.—Toronto Telegram.

The first division of the session has been taken in the Commons, and the result was that the Government had a majority of 44, which was one more than the Laurier Government had when Parliament was dissolved.

The dismissal of J. B. Jackson, the South Oxford corruptionist, as Canadian trade agent at Leeds, is right and proper. The appointment of this man was disgraceful to the Laurier Government.—Hamilton Spectator.

If, as Sir Wilfrid says, a referendum on the navy question is unconstitutional, what about his plebiscite on the prohibition question? That was essentially a referendum. Was it also unconstitutional?—Hamilton Spectator.

Winnipeg wants a commission to mange its municipal affairs; also single tax. Belleville could stand something of the same kind, not only in its council, but in others of its public bodies.

A white man has been executed in Georgia for the murder of two negro women. It is the first time in the history of the state that the murder of a negro by a white has been so punished. The circumstances, were too exceptional however to have much effect in making negro life safer.

"Seven years without a scandal" is the most potent election cry this Province has heard in some time. The electors are concerned mainly for honest government. They have had it under Sir James Whitney, and they are not to be turned from their allegiance to him by brief essays or speeches on his manners.—Toronto News.

At one time seats on the New York Stock Exchange sold for $100,000. The latest sale was for $65,000 which goes to show that business is not what it used to be. The Sherman law in regard to the great trusts and the business depression are accountable for the falling off in speculation in stocks.—Kingston Standard.

A good deal has of late been made by newspaper writers of a negro who is gradually becoming white. There have been several cases of that kind but Belleville had, many years ago, a negro who was white and had never been black. His face, which was white, was heavily freckled and his "wool" was of a very light color. No doubt many of the old inhabitants will remember "white George" whose regular occupation was sawing cordwood.

Mr. George I. Thomas, having announced himself as a mayoralty candidate through these columns, we now await the names of other aspirants, of whom, it is said, there are several. There is some talk of a "dark horse," one who is connected with another civic body, and who is doing considerable talking and warming up, as the municipal pot commences to boil. Come, gentlemen, many can run, but only one can finish.

Lacking material for attacking the Whitney Government, Leader Rowell has abandoned the lady-like manner which distinguished his early campaign speeches, and now scolds in a manner which would create envy in Molly Moriarty, the Dublin applewoman who was the champion virago of her generation. Sir James may well exclaim, as did the Englishman, when his wife gave him a tongue-lashing: "It pleases 'er and it don't 'urt I."

Even the Ottawa Free Press, one of the most thorough-going supporters of the Ottawa Government, approves of the dismissal of Trade Commissioner Jackson. It says: "The Free Press protested at the time against the appointmetn of J. B. Jackson by the Department of Trade and Commerce and declared that under the circumstances it could not be defended. The Free Press is not surprised, therefore, that J. B. Jackson should be one of the first to feel the axe of the new Government." In face of this, Sir Richard Cartwright, who appointed Jackson to office, will no doubt continue to prate of political and electoral purity as being the distinguishing characteristic of the Grit party.

LITTLE CHILD WAS BURNED TO DEATH

Playing with Fire, its Dress Became Ignited with Fatal Results

The five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Sutherland, of Monteagle, was burned to death on Friday evening, Nov. 24th.

Mrs. Sutherland went out to the barn to milk and left the little girl with a younger brother alone in the house. The children got possession of a catalogue and commenced tearing the pages out and burning them in the stove. The child's dress became ignited, and when her mother returned almost every particle of her clothing was burned off her body, and her flesh was reduced to a crisp.

Dr. Embury was hastily summoned but he could do nothing, and death mercifully ended her sufferings in about five hours.

The bereaved parents have the sympathy of the community.

BALTIMORE BABY HAS FOUR EXTRA LIMBS

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 29.—A healthy thirteen months old girl, with four arms and four legs was exhibited before a clinic at the Johns Hopkins Hospital to-day.

The infant was brought to Baltimore by its mother, Mrs. Alvira McDonnel, of Lebanon Church, Va., with Dr. Samuel Snarr and Isaac Funkhouser. With the exception of its extraordinary members, there is nothing abnormal about the child, and since the day of its birth it has not suffered a single childish ill.

Little Virginia, named for her native state, has four brothers, all of whom are healthy and normal children. Virginia eats heartily of a light diet, but, unlike other babies, cannot drink milk. The mother and physician brought the child to the hospital with the hope that there might be an operation to do away with the extra limbs and arms.

Dr. Richard H. Follis, chief of the surgical clinic, who is an authority on this branch of surgery, has told the parents that an operation would be dangerous in the extreme. Dr. Follis will, however, make an X-ray photograph and then decide whether to operate.

The legs and arms branch out on a line with the child's hips, between the four normal limbs. The additional feet are somewhat smaller than the others, but are perfectly formed. The fingers on the extra hands cannot be moved.

COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

The Feminist Movement Is Making Great Strides In Germany.

An important event in the growth of the feminist movement in Germany, which in the last few years has made great strides, was the opening in Leipzig of the first University College for Women in Germany.

The new college will not confine its students to the ordinary curriculum, but has as its chief object the education of women in the performance of their duties as the mothers of the nation. At the same time, the school is by no means to be considered as a cooking and sewing class, but will train its students in all the ordinary university branches of learning.

The school owes its foundation entirely to the efforts of Frau Henrietta Goldschmidt, the widow of a Jewish Rabbi, and one of the most remarkable figures at the head of the German feminist movement. Frau Goldschmidt is now 86 years of age, and has worked nearly all her life for the advancement of her sex. The Women's University College has been one of her cherished aspirations, and for the last forty years she has worked unceasingly towards the realisation of her scheme. The institution is promised a great future, for over 500 students have registered themselves for the first year's courses.

MI-O-N A

AN EXCELLENT STOMACH REMEDY.

Mrs. J. R. White, Killarney, Man., who says: "I have found great comfort and relief from Mi-o-na. I had been greatly troubled for months with heartburn and a heavy burning feeling in my stomach. A fair meal would disturb me so much that I would have to sit up at night—the food would sour on my stomach and form a gas which would cause belching and dizzy spells. These distressing troubles disappered after using Mi-o-na and I shall always speak highly of this excellent stomach remedy."

Mi-o-na is the best prescription for stomach trouble ever written. It gives quick relief and cures permanently. Mi-o-na is put up in tablet form and is small and easy to swallow. Sold by leading druggists everywhere 50 cents, with a guarantee to cure or refund your money. Or postpaid from The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. You will search the world over and not find a stomach remedy half so good as Mi-o-na. Sold and guaranteed by J. V. Doyle.

KILLED THE LEPERS

Terrible Tragedy Reported Near the French Frontier in China.

The Mission to Lepers in India and the East is responsible for a tragic story of the massacre of a number of lepers in a district near the French frontier in China. According to this story a military commander of a district induced the lepers to assemble by the announcement that a distribution of rice would be made. A large number gathered, bringing with them many children. Arrived at the rendezvous, the lepers were surrounded by soldiers and shot down. Dead and wounded were then shovelled into a deep pit already prepared, and kerosene oil poured over them, the whole mass then being set on fire. A few who escaped were hunted down on the hills and killed.

CHAS. J. SYMONS

THE Paternoster Ruby

BY CHARLES EDMOND WALK

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press Limited, Toronto.

"Miss Cooper," said I at length, "assume for just a moment that Mr. Maillot is guilty: would you counsel me, for the reasons you have stated, to turn aside from my duty and permit him to go unpunished?"

She caught her breath sharply. Her lips went suddenly white, and her look became a trifle wild. I watched her keenly.

"Mr. Swift!" she presently whispered, in dismay. How unfair!"

"I do not mean to be unfair," I tried to make clear; but she cut me short.

"Are you trying to prepare me for—for the worst?"

"Gracious, no!" I expostulated, with an emphatic embarrassed laugh. "But I should like to have you answer my question."

"It is hideous even to assume such a thing," she very soberly made answer; "but if such were actually the case, I—I"

"Well?" I prompted curiously, when she paused and pressed a hand to her throat.

Of a sudden the lovely eyes were brimming with tears. She timidly laid a hand upon my arm.

"You don't think he's guilty, do you?" she murmured distressfully. It wrung my heart.

"Don't—please don't," I said hastily. "Here is my honest opinion, Miss Cooper: whatever that young man has done to involve himself in this affair, I am sure that he is no deliberate, cold-blooded assassin; my judgement of his character could not be so far at fault.

"For the same reason I am strongly inclined to believe his story, preposterous as it appears standing alone. I don't mind admitting—to you, Miss Cooper—that I'm looking beyond him for the guilty man."

She drew a long breath of relief and clasped her hands in her lap. But how little did either of us realize that we had disposed of one difficult situation only to turn round and find ourselves face to face with another. My candor, to which she had made such a powerful appeal, soon led to an impasse; one that neither of us was in the least prepared for.

"Of course," she said presently, in a low voice. "I would not utter a word or lift a finger to influence you from what you regard as your duty. If your assumption were true, why, I would be with Belle, doing all that lies within my humble power to comfort her."

She leaned toward me impulsively, her face all at once bright and animated.

"Mr. Swift," she began, and stopped amid sudden confusion.

"Tell me, Miss Cooper," I encouraged her.

"Oh, I can't—I should not," she said, blushing.

Her blushes signified a deal to me, for I harbored an idea that she was not given to betraying her feelings so vividly. I was curious.

"The first impulse was the best, I'm sure," I urged.

"It was merely a flitting thought," she responded, her repose still shaken; "it was purely out of absentmindedness that I came so near to voicing it. It was nothing, believe me. There—it is gone!"

"Which is to be deplored," I soberly returned. "I attach considerable importance to your thoughts. Besides, you opened this conversation with an assurance of frankness. Perhaps—so far—I have 'nt been as frank as I might; but it 's simply because I have not yet found words to tell you all you want to know."

At once she stripped the occasion of its seriousness.

"Dear me!" she laughed, "you are a diplomat, too; how alluringly you persuade one to talk! Very well. If the impertinence of my poor little idea will not drive you to changing your opinion, I will put it into words."

I waited.

"I wondered," she continued shyly, supposing I knew every detail of this that you know—if I could aid you any. Only in this one particular case," she made haste to add, "because it means so much to me."

My pulses leaped. The idea of having this lovely girl as a coadjutor, to give her sharp wits free play with the harrassing minutiae which had not only arisen but were bound to continue to arise as I went deeper into the mystery, was one that filled me with joy.

After all, doubtless I had been unnecessarily considerate of her feelings. Miss Cooper was a gentlewoman, to be sure; but it did not inevitably follow that she was too sensitive to hearken to a distasteful topic. I know that my features must have reflected my feelings at this moment, for the color began to grow deeper and deeper in her pretty face, and at last she sprang nervously to her feet.

"It was only a silly impulse," she deplored, in a flustered rejection of the scheme; "it was very stupid of me to express it. Pray forget it. . . . I—I must go." She darted an uncomfortable glance toward the door.

I did not stir. She was so lovely in her discomposure, so inexpressibly winning, that I sat there with my heart throbbing as it never throbbed before.

Make her my confidante? Every nerve of my body thrilled at the thought. And the incentive that had prompted the proposal left it shorn of all forwardness or presumption. I appreciated the cause of her agitation; and at last, with an effort, I hid my own emotions behind an appearance of calmness.

"Please sit down again," I entreated. "It is a bargain."

She stood irresolute, poised for flight, yet constrained by a desire to return again to the settle. Her color was still high, her eyes were sparkling, she was breathing fast.

"You would be an invaluable aid," I said simply. "The idea, instead of being impertinent, gratifies me more than I can express; I'm sometimes very blind, Miss Cooper. And think: you may be the instrument of freeing Mr. Maillot from all suspicion or blame."

Slowly, her eyes shining, she resumed her seat. It was manifest that my regarding the matter so favorably pleased her immensely—doubtless because the potentialities appealed strongly to her curiosity and imagination, aside from any faith she might have entertained in her ability really to assist me. She was collected once more, but alive with enthusiasm.

"Such an alliance," I went on, "will entail many demands upon your time; from now on I shall make no move that we have not threshed out together."

"How lovely!" she murmured, joyfully. "And you will always find me ready."

And then I told her everything there was to tell. I recounted every incident that had befallen me since coming to the house, every fragment of possible evidence that my search had brought to light; to all of which she listened with the closest attention, interrupting only occassionally to elicit more comprehensive information. Verily, how I had misjudged her!

Next I strove to prepare her against the inquest. "It will try your strength to the unmost," said I. "What with Mr. Maillot's injured eye, coupled with the struggle preceding the fight and Burke's inability to have delivered the death-blow himself, you must anticipate the worst."

"Royal may have to go to jail?" she interrupted, in a troubled voice.

"It 's not unlikely. If the coroner's jury fastens the crime upon him, the coroner will have no alternative except to hold him for the grand jury. If we could show that a third person was in the house last night, it would help him tremendously.

"But bear in mind, Miss Cooper," I strove earnestly to allay her fears, "that the inquest will be merely a preliminary hearing, of no consequence further than the extent to which it will excite comment and influence public opinion; that 's the worst feature of it for an innocent man. Whatever we may succeed in accomplishing will in all probability come after the inquest."

Last of all, I produced the small leather jewel-case, and the visiting card I had found lying before the concealed safe. She examined the card first, reading aloud the inscription thereon:

"'I pray that you be showered with all the blessings of the season. With love'—"

Her face went suddenly white. The hand holding the card dropped to her lap. She sat bolt-upright, and directed at me a look of surprised bewilderment.

"Clara!" she gasped. "Why that 's—"

We both started and looked at the front door.

"Listen!" Miss Cooper whispered.

Light, stealthy footsteps sounded upon the porch. Next instant the knob was being slowly turned by a cautious hand.

Sir William Grantham Dead.

London, Dec. 1.—Sir William Grantham, judge of the High Court of Justice, died yesterday of pneumonia. He was born in 1835, and after studying at King's College School, entered the legal profession. In 1874 he was returned to Parliament as Conservative member for the County of East Surrey which he represented until 1885. In the same year he was elected member for East Croydon, but was obliged to retire from political life in January, 1886, on his appointment as judge. He was then created a knight. Sir William visited Canada last year and delivered public addresses in several cities including Toronto.

Opium Conference.

The Hague, Dec. 1.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Twelve nations will be represented by delegates at the international opium conference, which meets here to-day. These are the United States, Great Britain, China, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Persia, Portugal, Russia and Siam.

Bishop Charles H. Brent of the Episcopal Church in the Philippine Islands will preside over the discussions.

The conference is an outcome of the opium commission which assembled at Shanghai in February, 1909.

Provinces Control Films.

Ottawa, Dec. 1.—The Dominion Government has refused to interfere in the censorship of motion pictures, now under the control of the various Provincial Governments of the country.

This was the reply made to the State Department of the United States, which through Hon. J. G. Foster, U. S. Consul-General here, asked that the recent drastic order of the Ontario board of censors with reference to the refusal to allow the exhibition of films showing the American flag, be reconsidered.

Educational Reform

The Whitney Government, on assuming office, was pledged to carry out educational reform with the following objects in view:

1—To secure the efficiency of the Public Schools, wherein 80 per cent. of the children get all their education. Some years ago about 95 per cent. were in the Public Schools. Since then the percentage has been reduced owing largly to the growth of the continuation and High Schools under the present administration.

2—To break up the school book monopoly which had exacted high prices for inferior books.

3—To place the Provincial University on a prosperous basis.

4—To secure the teachers higher salaries and better training and a right to be heard on educational subjects.

Every one of these promises have been kept.

The courses of study in both the High and Public Schools have been brought up-to-date and carefully adapted to the necessities of the different parts of the province.

The schools, both High and Public, have been greatly improved in efficiency and in accommodation and equipment.

The school book monopoly has been broken up and better books at much lower prices provided.

The Provincial University is prosperous to the highest degree.

The teachers are much better paid and better trained and are directly represented in an Advisory Council.

Liberal aid to both the Primary and Secondary Schools has re-invigorated the whole school system.

The legislative grant to Rural Schools was increased from $120,000 in 1905 to $380,000 in 1907, and to $488,690 in 1911.

For example, the amounts granted for Rural Schools in Hastings and Prince Edward under the Ross Government and under the Whitney Government have been as follows:

	Ross Gov.	Whitney Gov.	Increase.
Hastings	$4,046	$19,693	$15,647
Prince Edward	1,517	5,369	3,852

The total grant is now distributed with a view to ensuring a maximum of good results throughout the system. Dr. Pyne announced the abandonment of the old plan of paying on the basis of average attendance (whereby a premium was put on inequality of distribution) and substituted for it a basis designed to stimulate local effort, and to secure the following results:

1—Higher salaries for teachers.

2—Encouragement to employ teachers with the best grade of certificates.

3—Better equipment for the schools.

4—Healthier accommodation for the pupils.

The basis of distribution was therefore arranged in this manenr:

First, fixed grants of from $20 to $30 in all schools where the assessment falls below $50,000, the larger grants going to the poorer sections.

Second, 40 per cent. on all salaries up to $600, the computation beginning at $150 in the poorer sections and going to $300 in the richer ones.

Third, a grant based on the teacher's certificate and experience, ranging from $15 to $10.

Fourth, a grant upon the value of the school equipment, according to its value and suitability.

Fifth, a grant on school accommodations so graded, according to their suitability that inducements are offered to improve the health and comfort of the pupils.

This system of distribution has worked to great advantage. It has led to better accommodation and equipment and to better salaries for teachers.

A Leader Who is Led!

Mr. Rowell, the newly appointed leader of the Liberal party in Ontario, has, by his own confession, made in a campaign speech lately made in Guelph, proved himself to be of a putty character, ready at any time, when party exigencies demand it, to be moulded into any shape or form.

Though having, or thinking he has, opinions of his own upon certain questions of policy, he yields them and adopts others when forced upon him by his party. In fact, he becomes a mere automaton in their hands.

In discussing the different planks in what purports to be the Liberal platform, this leader of the party hesitates not to disclaim personal responsibility for them. That there may be no mistake, and that we may not truthfully be charged with misrepresenting this novice in political leadership, we quote his exact words. In speaking of the planks in the party platform, he said: "It happened that I was continuously in court while these committees were meeting and discussing the platform. I put myself in your judgment. If I had followed my own judgment, without opportunity of getting the benefit of the judgment of the men who must stand by my side in the Legislature, I should have committed the Liberal party to a policy on this question (temperance) that I conceive I should not have been warranted in doing."

With this declaration before him, is it any wonder that Sir James Whitney should have referred to him as "a man of wax and putty in the hands of a machine committee"?

Well may a contemporary ask:

> "Has this country ever before witnessed the spectacle of a political leader in the act of so deliberately effacing himself? Liberals who thought that Mr. Rowell was to be a real leader—a man of moral force and power, dominating his party for good—have thus far had grave cause for disappointment."

With such "innocence" do Liberals expect to be led back to the Treasury benches?

WELLAND LANDS BIG MANUFACTURING PLANT

WELLAND, Nov. 30.—Plans for the Canadian plant of the John Deere Manufacturing Company, to be located here, are now in the hands of contractors, and the building operations will be commenced as early as possible in the spring. The capital stock of the company has been increased from $50,000,000 to $55,000,000 and of this amount $1,000,000 has been appropriated for the initial expenditure at Welland, which means that the Welland plant will be a very expensive and costly one when completed. The plant will be one of the largest of its kind in Canada, and will manufacture everything in the line of farm implements. The Vehlie automobiles will also be made here, and their manufacture will form a large part of the new plant. About 500 hands will be employed in the new works here at the start.

More Trouble In Lisbon.

Lisbon, Nov. 30.—The opinion generally prevails that the disorders which occurred here on Nov. 23 were only a preliminary to more serious events.

The riot, it is said, was started by monarchists, who recently arrived at Oporto and other places. It is declared that they were bribing the anarchistic element and preparing for an uprising in Lisbon to coincide with the crossing of the frontier by the Royalists.

It is proposed to take the Macduff brass band under the wing of the Council.

SHOCKING TRAGEDY IN A THEATRE AT MONTREAL

Chief Usher of the Orpheum Dead from Bullet Fired by Charles J. Ross, Programme Man—Men Had a Quarrel Over Cards—Robt. Fitzsimmons, the Victim, Died in Hospital While Surgeons were Probing for the Bullet—Ross Arrested

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.—In a quarrel over cards last night, Robert Fitzsimmons, chief usher at the Orpheum Theatre, was shot and killed by Charles J. Ross, a solicitor for advertisements for the theatre programme. The shooting occurred in the check-room in the basement of the theatre.

According to the story of eye-witnesses, the two men with several others went down to the check room after the performance at the theatre had ended, to have a game of "Black Jack." They had been playing a short time for fairly high stakes, when a dispute broke out between Ross and Fitzsimmons as to the amount of the stakes, Ross claiming that Fitzsimmons was making them too high. After some violent language and hot temper, Ross suddenly reached backed and pulled a revolver out of his pocket, and while they were hiding Ross shot Fitzsimmons in the side.

Before anyone interfered with him he walked out of the place, leaving his victim on a chair. Fitzsimmons was then taken to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where he lingered a short time in severe pain, dying three-quarters of an hour after midnight.

In the meantime Ross had left the theatre and evidently walked around St. Catherine street some time before going to his room at Kastel's Hotel. It was an hour or more after the murder before the police station of the district was communicated with, but as soon as Manager Driscoll, of the theatre, who was at his home, was told of the tragedy, he telephoned headquarters to have Ross arrested and at half-past twelve, just about the time his victim died, he was arrested by Constable Marineau, who heard of the shooting while he was on his beat.

After the ambulance was called the watchman thought of calling for the police, when Constable Marineau was brought from the corner of Bleury and St. Catherine street. At this time Ross was walking around the theatre, but Marineau could find no one to tell him who had done the shooting, although at times he was actually talking to Ross.

Marineau then went back of the stage to make further enquiries, and while he was there Ross walked out of the theatre, apparently quite unconcerned. Later on Constable Marineau found out that it was Ross who had done the shooting, and started to hunt for him. He discovered that Ross had been stopping at Kastel's Hotel, and went for him there, getting there just in time to catch Ross coming out, evidently with the idea of making his escape.

"It all happened so suddenly that I hardly realized what was going on, and it was sometime before I could believe that murder had really been committed," said Mr. Harry Chapman, the Orpheum advertising agent, who was one of the five men sitting into the game which led to the fatal quarrel.

"Five of us went down after the show," he said, "to sit into a little game of Black Jack. It was the first time we had done such a thing for a long time, because we knew it was against the rules of the theatre, and we had to be careful, although once in a long time we took a chance on a little game. There were five of us sat in—Ross, Fitzsimmons, Fred Lee, and Herby Ware, and another man, Buddo Lapierre was looking on.

"We were playing with a $2 limit, and everything was going on smoothly until suddenly a dispute started between Ross and Fitzsimmons. Ross thought Fitzsimmons wanted to make the stake too high, and they started to use a lot of violent language at each other.

"Then, suddenly I saw Ross reach back and pull a revolver out of his hip pocket. As soon as he did this I and the others made a rush away from the table. I went behind a big cupboard, and a second or two later I heard a shot. I did not move for a few minutes. Then I heard Fitzsimmons get up, and he walked into the dressing room next to the room we were in.

"Then I came out, and so did the rest, and we saw Fitzsimmons, looking deathly pale. He said 'Well, boys, I guess I am gone now. He hit me that time.'

"We thought Fitzsimmons was fooling at first. Then we realized he was in terrible pain, and he dropped into a chair, groaning. Then we laid him on the floor and opened his clothes to find where he was hit, and found a bullet hole in his side with just a speck or two of blood around it. He seemed to be losing strength and suffering great pain, and one of the boys ran upstairs and telephoned for an ambulancee, which came shortly afterwards and took the wounded man away. We were all so excited at the time that none of us thought of looking for Ross, who had gone away immediately after the shooting."

Fitzsimmons died at the Royal Victoria Hospital at 12.45 while Doctor Keenan was trying to locate the bullet by probing. He had been taken there over an hour previously suffering from an abdominal wound and was conscious practically until the last moment. The end came peacefully and the unfortunate man received the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church from Father McCarthy, of Loyola College, who was hastily summoned. His step-brother, Thomas Conway, was present, while another step-brother, F. Conway, and a sister, Mrs. Montague, arrived only in time to meet the doctors as they were leaving the operating room after their hopeless fight. "O, Doctor, how is he?" gasped Mrs. Montague, only to be met by a sad shake of Dr. Keenan's head, as he gently told her: "It's all over, I'm afraid." Bursting into uncontrollable tears the bereaved sister sobbed out, "Poor Bob, O, poor fellow, he can't be dead," and had to be supported as she was led by her step-brother to a waiting room.

The only statements that the dead man is said to have made at the hospital are that Ross had committed the crime and to ask for forgiveness for him.

Ross was arrested as he came out of Kastel's hotel, by Constable Marineau, of the Chenneville street station, who had followed him there from the Orpheum Theatre. He was taken to the Chenneville street station, and when searched there a revolver with two bullets and an empty cartridge was found in his hip pocket. He was anxious to know about Fitzsimmons' condition, and asked Sergeant Fisher to telephone to the Royal Victoria Hospital. When asked what started the fight that led up to the shooting, Ross said they were playing a game of black jack after the show and that Fitzsimmons tried to cheat him out of $14 on an ace that he had picked up off the table, he refused to pay the amount as the limit was only two dollars. Then Fitzsimmons struck him, smashed his glasses and tried to break his back across a bench. "I lost my head, and in the excitement pulled the revolver from my pocket and fired," said Ross, as his head fell forward in his hands.

Besides the revolver found on him Ross had a lot of papers, mostly advertising contracts, and about a dozen letters.

When he had been locked in a cell, Ross asked the turnkey if he would telephone to Detective Dan McLaughlan, saying he was acquainted with him and that McLaughlan might do something to help him. He was not made aware that Fitzsimmons had died after his removavl to the hospital, and as he was arrested before his victim expired, he was locked up on a charge of attempted murder. When the inquest is held before the coroner into the death of Fitzsimmons the charge will be changed to murder.

Ross gave his age as 46 years, and said he had a wife and one child in Ottawa. He informed Lieut. Letourneau that he left Kastel's Hotel early last evening with the intention of going to Ottawa to join his wife, but owing to a mistake made by one of the hotel clerks he missed his train.

WALK OUT IN BODY.

Unionists Resent Government Methods of Closure.

London, Dec. 1.—There was a remarkable scene in the House of Commons last night, when the Government applied the guillotine to 470 amendments in the report stage of the insurance bill.

Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, heatedly accused the Ministers of acting in obedience to the Redmondites in thus flouting Parliament in order to clear the road for home rule for Ireland. David Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, as hotly replied that the Government was only following the example set by Unionist Governments.

The excitement was intense and the members faced the prospect of a division on each amendment when, on the Speaker putting the first amendment, the entire Opposition rose and made a dramatic exit from the chamber pursued by derisive Ministerial cheering. Then in a dreary montone the Speaker began formally putting the amendments and when he became fatigued the Deputy Speaker relieved him. The entire 470 amendments were adopted and in only a single case was the division challenged by the Laborites.

This concluded part one of the bill. The remaining parts will be guillotined to-day.

ROWELL AT WATERFORD.

Liberal Leader Discusses Power and 'Phones.

Waterford, Ont., Dec. 1.—At his meeting held in the Town Hall here last evening, N. W. Rowell devoted the greater portion of a long speech to the discussion of the public ownership of telephones. Evidently he had selected a subject which appealed most intimately to the farmers of North Norfolk, for his remarks were received with continued applause.

This was a progressive proposal, he said, a proposal in line with the general trend of progress on this matter throughout the world. Ontario, which once led all the other provinces, could not afford to come up at the end of the procession on a matter of such importance. It was time for her to take her old place in the van, and not permit every province in the Dominion to move ahead of her.

Already Alberta, Manitoba and Saskatchewan have proved the wisdom of such a policy. It is a policy which every European country of importance adopted long ago by taking over the trunk lines, and one which is giving the utmost satisfaction in Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

"Let me give you some figures from the western provinces which enjoy the operation of telephones under Government control." He said, "In 1905 there were in Manitoba 5,600 telephones, all bell instruments, in 1911, under Government control and at lessened cost to the subscribers there were 35,000 in use; in 1905, when Alberta decided to take over the management of her telephones, there were 850 in operation in the province. Today there are 12,000. Saskatchewan had only 350 in 1905, and 3,500 in 1908 when the change was made there. By 1911 she had 15,000. There should be no cost to the Government and the people of Ontario should save the big profits now being made by the Bell Co."

NEW ARCHBISHOP WAS CONSECRATED

Notable Ceremony at Kingston Attended by Immense Throng

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 30.—In St. Mary's Cathedral this morning his Excellency Mgr. Stagni, Papal Delegate, consecrated Rev. Michael Joseph Spratt, lately of Belleville, as Archbishop of Kingston. There was an immense congregation present.

His Excellency was assisted by Dean Murray of Brockville, and Rev. Thos. J. Spratt, of Wolfe Island, as deacons of honor, and Rev. Fathers J. T. Hogan, of Perth, and P. J. Hartigan, of Deseronto, as deacon and sub-deacon of Mass, respectively. Right Rev. Mgr. A. Sinnot, D.D., of Ottawa was the consecrator's notary, and Right Rev. Mgr. John Masterson, of Prescott, assistant priest.

The assistants to the Archbishop-elect were their Lordships Bishop O'Connor, of Peterboro, and Bishop Macdonnell, of Alexandria. Rev. Jas. O'Reilly acted as master of ceremonies, with Fathers J. McDonald and V. Meagher as assistants.

The consecration sermon was preached by Bishop Fallon, of London, and dealt with the spiritual authority of the Roman Catholic church. He referred to the fact that the See of Kingston was established in 1826, and that it had given to the church in Canada many great men. From Regiopolis College had gone forth many young men who now occupy prominent positions in the Roman Catholic Church.

After the consecration an address from the priests of the diocese was read to Archbishop Spratt by Vicar-General Masterson, of Prescott, and a purse of $2,000 presented to his Grace from the clergy. The Archbishop replied briefly. This afternoon his Grace received addresses from the A.O.H., and the Knights of Columbus. This evening the Archbishop presided at vespers in the cathedral.

WOMEN HURT THEIR OWN CAUSE

Sir Edward Grey on the Recent Antics of Militant Suffragettes

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Sir Edward Grey has written a letter to the Earl of Lytton, who is a prominent supporter of woman suffrage, strongly protesting against the recent violent demonstrations of the suffragettes. Sir Edward says in behalf of himself and his colleagues in the Cabinet, who are in favor of woman suffrage that this violence is not only repugnant, but that it is a sheer waste of time to actively support this cause while the disorders continue.

Some of the Unionist leaders, including Austen Chamberlain and Walter Long, who favor the Conciliation Bill, giving women the right to vote under certain circumstances, are urging the members of their party who favor woman suffrage to abandon the cause, claiming that the Government's promised Manhood Suffrage Bill will inevitably lead to adult woman suffrage, to which they are opposed.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

HOCKEY

The Toronto World says: "The Toronto Professional Hockey Club, with a full team already signed up, are very dubious as to where they will play their games. The arena prospects do not grow any brighter as time advances, and it would not be at all surprising if the team practice in the city but play their games out of town." Belleville, which has one of the largest rinks in Ontario and a large population who are enthusiastic in support of first-class hockey, would be an admirable location for the games between the Torontos and the eastern clubs which are scheduled for the Queen City. What say all concerned?

BOXING

NELSON OUTCLASSED SPERO.

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—George Spero, the New York lightweight, essayed to fight Battling Nelson at the Battler's own slam-bang style of milling at the National Sporting Club last night and found that it didn't pay. Spero went out in the sixth round.

Artie Edmunds regained his lost laurels by putting Harry Westerbee out in four rounds. The Nelson-Spero tilt was carded to go twenty rounds and the Westerbee-Edmunds affair was billed at ten rounds. The members of the club who like the constant exchange of wallops got what they wanted, but the advocates of the stand-off fancy sparring which sometimes goes with the clean-break rule, were disappointed. Last night's bouts were fought under straight rules, but the contestants were ordered to break at the command of the referee.

Spero started right in after Nelson. The Battler took the wallops and stood toe to toe with the New Yorker until the latter tired of punching the Dane's classic features. Then the durable one took the fight to Spero. He got as good as he gave for a round or two until Spero weakened. When he came up for the [illegible] round the beaten man was hardly able to defend himself and the inevitable happened. Nelson had worn him down just as he has worn down scores of other boys whom he has beaten.

Edmunds and Westerbee sailed into one another like a couple of wildcats. Their's was no boxing exhibition. The boys had an old score to settle and in their training at the Varsity "gym" they had threatened one another with all sorts of things. Westerbee had the speed and made it count as far as he went. Edmunds had the superior str tion and slowed Westerbee with ripping body punches. Artie did not land effectively on Harry's head, but right hand blows to the body winning the bout. One of these sent Westerbee through the ropes and paved the way for others which took the West Ender's strength and resulted in a couple of knock-downs. Westerbee carried the boxing to Edmunds and landed repeatedly on the head and face with both hands. The beaten boy was fighting his first bout under straight rules and with the small gloves. Under the circumstances his showing was not at all a discredit.

McFARLAND BEAT MURPHY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30.—Packey McFarland, the idol of the Chicago Stock Yards, won and lost to-day when he got the decision over "Harlem Tommy" Murphy at the end of 20 rounds of fighting before 6,000 critical spectators.

McFarland's victory over the New Yorker, whom 90 per cent. of those present expected him to knock out, was clean and left little room for an argument. But the rank and file of experts and fight followers seemed unanimous that as an opponent of Champion Wolgast the Chicagoan was an impossibility.

McFarland and his handlers said that he broke his right hand in the twelfth round. A cursory examination at the conclusion of the fight showed the hand to be much swollen, but of this the public were not aware until after it had left the arena.

THOS RYAN'S DIAMONDS ARE AS BIG AS PEAS

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The first fruits of Thomas Fortune Ryan's business partnership with the late King Leopold of Belgium have reached the New York customs house. They are a consignment of 240 uncut African diamonds. Some are as big as peas; a few are a quarter of an inch in diameter. What they are worth has not been determined.

Ryan was surprised to find himself a diamond king. In 1906 he became Leopold's chief business partner by putting up the greater part of $1,500,000 for the Congo Free State concessions. He is now principal owner of a diamond "farm" of 166,000 acres. Ryan had a force of 25 engineers and prospectors at work in the Congo for two years. To-day's shipment of diamonds was the first result of their work.

Increasing Britain's Navy.

London, Dec. 1.—The probability of a big naval loan in the near future is revived by The Pall Mall Gazette, which anticipates that $150,000,000, and possibly more, will be raised supplemental to the usual naval estimates. It is argued that in view of the campaign in Germany in favor of an increased navy for that country, it is necessary for Great Britain to show that she is determined to preserve the "2 to 1" standard. The provision of adequate docks for the dreadnought battleships also necessitates heavy expenditures.

ASKS BETTER HARBOR

Mr. B. R. Hepburn, M. P., Prince Edward County, President of the Lake Ontario & St. Lawrence Steamboat Company, has prepared a memorial for the consideration of the Dominion Governmetn on the improvement of the Toronto Harbor. Eighteen feet of water in the western channel all the time, a wider and deeper eastern channel, new ferry channels and the removal of sand shoals in the bay are among the proposed improvements.

WILL IMPROVE PORTS

Monk Says Canada Should Spend a Hundred Million.

Question of Harbor Facilities Must Be Approached From a National and Not a Local Standpoint, Says Hon. Mr. Hazen—Hon. Robert Rogers Announces a Vigorous Immigration Policy to Begin at Once.

Ottawa, Dec. 1.—That the country should be prepared to face the expenditure of at least $100,000,000 for the development and improvement of national free ports on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts and the great lakes, was the statement made by Hon. F. D. Monk to the House in committee of supply last evening. The whole question, he declared, should be considered in the light of the admirable report of the transportation commission of 1903.

Hon. J. D. Hazen declared that the question of harbor improvement should be approached from a broad and national and not any local standpoint. The money spent, whether in Montreal, St. John or elsewhere, was, while incidentally a benefit to those ports, far more to the general benefit of the people of Canada.

Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of the Interior, declared that the Government would immediately inaugurate a vigorous immigration policy, which would be in the interests, not of one part, but of all parts of the country, and regardless of race, creed and nationality.

"We have reached a period in the development of this country," said Mr. Rogers, "in which it is necessary to have co-operation between the Dominion and the provinces," and in this regard he paid a tribute to the qualifications of Arthur Hawkes, one of whose chief duties it would be to make a report on this phase of the question.

The House made considerable progress in passing the balance of the estimates for the fiscal year ending 1912, there being little cause for dissension, as they were practically the unvoted remainder of the estimates brought down by the late Government.

When the committee rose and reported at 10.35 p.m., estimates, aggregating nearly $40,000,000 had been voted, at the record rate of about $20,000,000 an hour.

In response to a question by Hon. Charles Murphy, the Premier stated that thirty employes had been dismissed and twenty-four engaged by the authority of the Speaker and the sergeant-at-arms in their departments since Sept. 22.

The Postmaster-General informed Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux that the parcel post convention between France and Canada had been signed by the French Government.

G. H. Boivin (Shefford) had a Ne Temere trap laid for the Government. He asked: "Has the Dominion Government power to legalize or validate every marriage solemnized anywhere in Canada?"

Mr. Borden declined to bite. The jurisdiction of the Dominion, he stated, was laid down in the B.N.A. Act, section 91, sub-section 26, and of the provinces in the same act, sec. 92, sub-section 12.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "That's safe."

Hon. R. L. Borden: "Not only safe, but accurate."

The Minister of Marine informed A. Lachance (Quebec Centre) that J. B. Laberte, R. Larue and G. Tanguay had been removed from the Quebec harbor commission in the interests of the public service. There was no intention to close the yards and workshops of the Marine Department at Quebec.

Mawson to Beautify Ottawa.

Ottawa, Dec. 1.—The Government has set itself to the task of beautifying the city of Ottawa. It is understood that the present improvement commission will be disbanded immediately. It is also understood that the Government has reached an agreement with Mr. Thomas Mawson, the well-known English authority on city planning and landscape gardening and lecturer on landscape design at the University of Liverpool, whereby Mr. Mawson will act in the capacity of a commissioner for the Government with the authority to organize and carry into effect a great scheme for the beautification of the capital.

Westfield Man the Victim.

Montreal, Dec. 1.—The mangled remains found near the Canadian Pacific Railway track at Bordeaux, Tuesday, are thought to be those of Arthur Jones, Westbury, Ont. Lieut. Tetreault, who is investigating the case, found part of the victim's coat torn from the body, in the pocket of which was found a note. The note read: "My name is Arthur Jones. In case of accident, notify Mrs. Lena Jones 119 Franklin avenue, Westfield, Mass."

Support Commission Plan.

Ottawa, Dec. 1.—At a meeting of Conservative members representing Farmers Bank ridings, held yesterday morning, it was unanimously decided to support the application of last week's delegation for the appointment of a royal commission, and for such relief as the findings of such a commission will warrant.

R. C. CLERGY AND CIVIL COURTS

Persons Summoning Ecclesiastics Liable to Excommunication

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—The last number of the "Acta Apostolica Sedis," just received here from Rome, contains an important "motu proprio" of the Pope, regarding the censure inflicted upon those who bring ecclesiastics before the civil courts.

The Pope's pronouncement reads as follows: "Since in these evil times it has been the custom to pay so little heed to ecclesiastic immunity that not only clerics and priests but even Bishops and Cardinals of the Holy Roman Church are brought before the lay tribunals, the situation requires us that we restrain by the severity of the penalty, those whom the gravity of the offence does not deter from this sacrilegious action. Wherefore we 'propria motu' lay down and decree that any private person, layman or cleric, male or female, who, without permission of the ecclesiastical authority, summon before a lay court any ecclesiastical person whomsoever, either in criminal or civil cases, and compels him to appear there publicly, will incur excommunication, "lattae sententiae," specially reserved by the Roman Pontiff. And what is laid down in these letters we will to be valid and ratified, all things to the contrary notwithstanding."

The new decree has a bearing of somewhat peculiar interest just now, coming as it does after the recent court case in which Bishop Fallon of London and a priest whom he had removed from his post, after an adverse finding by the ecclesiastical tribunal whom the Church has delegated to decide these matters, gave evidence. The priest declined to give up his position though ordered to do so and the case finally came before the civil courts.

Speaker Bans Liquors.

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—"For the first time in the history of the Canadian Parliament all wines and intoxicating liquors will be excluded from the dinners and all social receptions held in the Speaker's chambers," says yesterday's Journal. Then it adds:

"This significant decision has been arrived at as a direct result of the expressed desire of Mrs. Sproule, wife of the Speaker, who will be hostess. A similar order of things was observed in the Ontario Legislature under the late Speaker St John. Another famous example has been set by Lieutenant-Governor MacGregor of Nova Scotia, who issued a similar order upon his assumption to office."

Daniel McBeath has died at the age of 72 years, 63 of them being spent in the Deanston Mill.

CHINA GETS LOAN.

Thirty Million Dollars Forthcoming at Once.

Pekin, Dec. 1.—The National Assembly convened in secret session yesterday at the request of Yuan Shi Kai, the Premier. The number of members present has not been ascertained, but it is believed to be small. Most of those in attendance were Imperialists. The Franco-Belgian loan of $30,000,000 which was negotiated by the Japanese Baron Cottu, was approved, as also was the contract, in conjunction with the loan, for a bridge across the Yangtse River between Hankow and Wuchang. The sum of 14,000,000 taels to be delivered to the Government through the Russian and Belgian banks here will be forthcoming immediately.

There has been a significant movement of troops in and out of Pekin, Manchus departing and Chinese taking their places. It is reliably reported that by reason of these changes, the garrison is now almost equally balanced in Manchu and Chinese troops.

The action of the Regent in permitting the departure of the Manchus is believed to indicate his reliance in the loyalty of Yuan Shi Kai, but it is said to be likely that the real reason for it was that Yuan Shi Kai feared an outbreak among the troops, which would augment his difficulties and possibly result in anti-foreign disorders. Prominent Manchus, however, distrust Yuan Shi Kai and believe that his object was solely to obtain complete power.

Reports are seriously circulated here that Yuan Shi Kai intends to assume the regency, if not the throne. Friends of the Premier, fearing his assassination by either, Manchus or Chinese, recently solicited several of the foreign legations to take measures to protect him. The legations, through the dean of the diplomatic corps, intimated their willingness to acquiesce.

William J. Calhoun, the American Minister, is continuing his endeavors to induce Americans in the interior to come to places where foreign protection can be afforded them.

Most of the provinces have declined or ignored the Government's summons that they send representatives to Pekin to discuss the constitution, but it is said they are willing to meet delegates from the loyal provinces at Shanghai. Yuan Shi Kai has signified his willingness to accept the constitution if the provinces are agreeable to it.

BIG TRUST DISSOLVES.

Subsidiary Oil Firms Are Now Operating Singly.

New York, Dec. 1.—The career of the "oil trust" officially came to an end yesterday. The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, some times called the father of the trusts, and perhaps the most celebrated corporation in the world, will no longer control the affairs, as the holding company, of more than thirty corporations in various branches of the oil business.

Beginning this morning, these subsidiaries, which under the decree of the United States Supreme Court must conduct independently the various enterprises, will assume entire management of their own affairs.

The task of effecting dissolution was made less difficult by the fact that the subsidiary companies never lost their identity. They have retained their separate officers and board of directors, and to a large extent have conducted their own affairs from their home offices in whatever states they were. These companies, however, have had representation at 26 Broadway, the home of [illegible] New Jersey corporation, which ex[illegible]ed general direction over all t[illegible] affairs. It is this connection wh[illegible] will be severed. The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey will continue to exist as it owns several large plants.

To each stockholder will be forwarded to-day his proportionate share of stock in each of the subsidiaries, so that in place of one issue of stock, he will have more than thirty.

The subsidiaries will continue to exist as heretofore, except that in cases where the same men have acted as officers or directors of more than one company, changes will be made which will avoid such duplication.

STEAMER IS WRECKED

The Raleigh Is Ashore and Two Are Drowned.

Steward and Wife Perish When Ship Is Beached Near Port Colborne and Engineer Pritchard Is Believed to Have Lost His Life — Crew Taken Ashore and Cared For—Going to Pieces.

Port Colborne, Ont., Dec. 1.—The steamer Raleigh, loaded with pulpwood from Quebec to Erie, is ashore at Point Abeno, about seven miles east of here, and if fast going to pieces. Mr. Wise, of Cleveland, who was the steward, and his wife, who was the cook, were drowned in trying to make the shore in yawl boats. One of the boats capsized.

William Prtchard, of Cleveland, the engineer, would not leave the ship and when she was broken up he clung desperately to a few rafters and boards that were still joined together. The heavy seas made it impossible for lifeboats to put out to his rescue and at a late hour it was feared he would be drowned before help reached him.

Several men from Port Colborne, who were patroling the beach, waded out with lines and rescued the crew of twelve men. They are all being cared for at a farm house at Sherkston.

After battling with the terrific seas all night and all day, and sending out signals of distress, the Raleigh broke her rudder and was rendered helpless. She ran ashore opposite the Empire Limstone Co.'s works.

Pieces of cordwood are floating in towards the shore in hundreds, and the beach is already lined with them.

The steamer is owned by Henry Wiseman, jr., of Detroit, and was in charge of Captain H. L. Beauvais.

Anchors Didn't Hold.

Buffalo, Dec. 1.—The Raleigh left Port Colborne at six o'clock Wednesday night with a cargo of pulpwood for Erie, Pa. There was a high wind and a heavy sea when the steamer put out from the Canadian shore, and conditions grew worse during the night. Early yesterday morning the steamer's steering gear became disabled. Both anchors were lowered, but they failed to hold on the sandy bottom and the Raleigh was carried toward Point Abino by the stiff northwest wind.

Captain Beauvais and his crew fought desperately to keep the disabled steamer in midlake, but when the boiler room became flooded by the tons of water shipped in by the heavy seas, they were helpless. At dawn the Raleigh crashed on the rocks.

Nine members of the crew of twelve succeeded in getting ashore and were cared for in the huts at the Empire Limestone Co.'s quarries near Sherkston. Employes of the quarries and the survivors were unsuccessful in their efforts to rescue Engineer Pritchard, who at last reports, was still adrift.

MUST AID RUSSIA.

London Papers Agree That Shuster Showed Want of Tact.

London, Dec. 1.—The morning papers in their editorials on the Persia crisis, display a tone of great anxiety. A majority of them agree that Mr. Shuster, the Persian Treasurer-General, lacked tact and that Great Britain must support Russia, but several papers express misgivings over the outcome of Russia's action and what they term the administrative anarchy that is likely to result from Mr. Shuster's dismissal. By some it is feared that the success of Russian diplomacy will leave Persia little real independence.

The Daily News makes a serious attack on Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Minister, accusing him of constantly yielding to Russia in order to manoeuvre other powers against Germany. The paper asserts that Great Britain's support of Russia now will mean the annexation or partition of Persia entirely in Russian interests, leaving Russia and England with a long and bad conterminous frontier in Asia and committing England to the necessity of maintaining a costly army to guard it. Moreover, The Daily News adds, England's support of Russia is deadlier because it will probably prevent the United States moving in Mr. Shuster's behalf.

Waves Swept Queen's Cabin.

London, Dec. 1.—Reports reaching here from the steamship Medina, which is conveying King George and Queen Mary to the Indian Durbar, indicate that the distinguished passengers had an extremely rough passage through the Bay of Biscay.

The sea, which is usually rough in the bay, was uncommonly turbulent and a portion of the Queen's apartments was flooded. Queen Mary was forced to vacate hastily and take up her quarters in the special storm cabin with a swinging cot, but the King, who is a good sailor, continued to occupy his usual cabin.

The Medina, which proved herself a good sea vessel, suffered less than the convoying warships, which were severely buffeted by the gale. Several of them sustained damage to boats and railings and the King, appreciating the difficulties under which they were laboring, ordered them to steam ahead of the Medina.

Want Right to Strike.

Ottawa, Dec. 1.—Railway conductors will ask Parliament to amend the industrial disputes act by removing what the men regard as oppressive provisions, notably the clause which deprives the men of the right to strike where an investigation is in prospect.

The conductors also want legislation calling for better equipment of trains, and limiting the length of trains.

The Legislative Committee of the conductors' organization have elected J. Harvey Hall of Toronto as their legislative representative.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.—Altho this was a holiday in the United States there was no let-up in the demand from continental buyers for Manitoba spring wheat and at prices which were 1½c to 2c per bushel higher than the prices bid from the United Kingdom. Altho there is little or no ocean going grain to be had from Portland and West St. John, to the continent, exporters are working a fair amount of business and booking their freight from United States ports.

The local demand for American No. 3 yellow is fair and sales of carlots to arrive at 73½c per bushel, track. Demand for malting barley has fallen away and prices have declined. There is a good demand for oats from outside points. The local and outside trade in spring wheat flour is quieter, owing to the fact that buyers are now fairly well filled up for the present and millers claim there is no improvement in the export business. An active trade is being done in bran and shorts.

Cheese is quiet, but firm. Butter is strong under a good demand. Eggs fairly active. Potatoes strong under good demand at advance of 5c per bag. Provision trade fair.

Corn—American No. 2 yellow, 83½c.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 48c to 48½c; do., No. 3, 47c to 47½c; extra No. 1 feed, 46½c to 47c; No. 2 local white, 47½c; No. 3 local white, 46½c; No. 4 local white, 45½c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Nov. 30.—The railways reported 66 carloads of live stock at the city yards, comprising 693 cattle, 1474 hogs, 1038 sheep and lambs, and 23 calves.

Butchers.

Prime picked cattle, $5.80 to $6.10, but few at these prices; good, $5.50 to $5.75; medium, $5.15 to $5.40; common, $3.60 to $4.75; cows, $3 to $5.15; bulls, $2.90 to $4.75, and a few of export weights and quality at $5 to $5.25 to $5.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

There was a fair demand for good quality feeders, of which there was not enough to fill all orders. Steers, 900 to 1050 lbs., sold from $4.75 to $5.25; stockers, 800 lbs., $4.20 to $4.60; stockers, 350 to 600 lbs., at $3.25 to $3.75 per cwt.

Milkers and Springers.

Buyers have been alert all week for good to choice milkers and forward springers, paying prices equal to those of last week. High grade milkers and best heavy springers sold from $70 to $80 each, and medium cows at $50 to $65, with common at $40 to $45. Backward springers and thin cows are hard sellers.

Veal Calves.

Rough eastern horsey grass calves sold from $3 to $4 per cwt.; veal calves, $5 to $7.50, with a few good quality at $8 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The sheep and lamb market wa sa little firmer. Ewes sold at $3 to $4.00; rams at $3; lambs, $5 to $5.40, with a few selected lots of ewes and wethers at $5.50 and $5.60.

Hogs.

Ross a Cocaine Fiend.

Montreal, Dec. 1.—Charles J. Ross, who is held by the Montreal police for the killing of Robert Fitzsimmons, at the Orpheum Theatre Wednesday night, now seems to realize the enormity of the deed and is in a very nervous condition. He will come up for preliminary hearing to-day.

The men were playing "Black Jack" when the dispute arose which ended in the shooting. Ross is a cocaine fiend and has a violent temper. He is 46 years of age and has a wife and family in Ottawa. He was an inveterate gambler, but a poor loser.

There were four witnesses of the shooting which took place in the basement of the Orpheum Theatre, where both were employed.

Wire Used By State?

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 1.—A bit of twisted wire dangling from an upper window yesterday led to an investigation by counsel defending Jas. B. McNamara, and the attorneys became convinced that the walls of the Los Angeles county jails have ears which heard many confidential speeches.

The wire runs from a window in an unoccupied cell room on the third floor of the jail to another unoccupied room on the second floor.

Visitors to Ortie E. McManigal, one of the state's main witnesses, saw McManigal in an upper room from which the wire dangles.

A detective and perhaps a stenographer were in the lower room, but for all practical purposes, it is said, the wire placed them in hearing of persons who talked to McManigal while the grand jury was in session. This is the declaration of the defence, which has no documentary evidence except a piece of the wire.

Port Huron Y.M.C.A. Fired.

Port Huron, Mich., Dec. 1.—Geo. Walker, aged 26 years is under arrest here charged with attempted arson in connection with fires at the railroad Y.M.C.A. building here on Nov. 20. Six fires have been started at the Y.M.C.A. building since last May, and five have occurred at the Evanston (Ill.) Y.M.C.A. building during the same period.

The police claim that Walker, who is a Grand Trunk Railway fireman, running between this city and Chicago, and who resides in Battle Creek, was in the respective cities at the time of the several fires. He pleaded not guilty when arraigned in the police court, and was held for examination in $1,000 bonds.

Berlin's Big Metal Strike.

Berlin, Germany, Dec. 1.—A lockout of 70,000 workers in the metal trades became effective last night, ensuing on their refusal to accept an agreement drawn up by a joint committee of employers and trade unionists. The lockout is the outcome of the failure to settle a strike started in October last, by 4,000 metal workers.

From Islay the other day 100 casks of whiskey were exported from Cave Isla Distillery to Australia.

TOY - LAND

Opened With a Bang!

Santa Claus was at Stroud's Store yesterday and greeted hundreds of Boys and Girls who came to visit him.

He presented those who called on him with pretty Christmas Post Cards, on which to make their wants known to him.

Santa will rest up Saturday but will be on hand again Monday.

He thinks we have the greatest showing of Dolls, Toys, and Books ever; and this year he didn't bring everything with him because he knew he could get a whole lot at our Store.

Many of the Children asked Santa Claus "where the Teddy Bear was," and Santa told them Teddy wasn't feeling very well just now but would be along in a few days.

Come and see Santa on Monday.

SCOTSMEN HAD A FINE CELEBRATION

Music, Dancing and Other Amusements Peculiar to the "Land o' Cakes"

Yesterday was St. Andrew's Day, which day is dear to the hearts of Scotchmen and their descendants the world over. To commemorate the same, under the auspices of Camp Rob Roy, Sons of Scotland, a concert and assembly was held in Johnstone's assembly rooms, Alberta Block. A large number were present and, judging from the hearty applause accorded each number of the programme it certainly met with approval.

Col. Stewart, Chief of the Society, occupied the chair and in opening the proceedings gave a brief but appropriate address. He referred to the day and all who honor it. While pleased to see so many present there was a tinge of regret that some who a year ago were present at the gathering had passed away. He referred especially to the late Mr. H. Walker, who was a true Scotchman. The Colonel referred briefly to the important part Scotchmen had in the past played in the world's history. Scotchmen took no back seat from any person. In Canada a Scotchman was at the head of a great concern that had spanned the Dominion from east to west with a railway. They were always to be found in great enterprises. In many of the armies of the world Scotchmen were to be found at the head. They were to the front in military matters, and were ever ready to defend the flag of the Empire.

The following programme was then carried out:

Selection by the Pipe Band entitled "The Campbells Are Coming."

Mr. Harry McKay, in his usual fine voice, rendered two Scottish songs, which were highly appreciated. He was never heard to better advantage.

A Highland fling, participated in by Pipe Major Johnstone, Thos. Bowie, Willie Grant and Master John McIntosh was well given.

Master John Denmark gave a cornet solo in a manner that demonstrated that he is a musician. The accompaniment on the piano was played by his mother, Mrs. John Denmark. The young soloist was compelled to respond to an encore.

Mr. George Carruth sang two Scottish selections, which were highly entertaining and demonstrated his ability as a Scotch singer.

Pipe Major Johnstone, Wm. McIntosh and Willie Grant gave a bag pipe selection which pleased the audience.

Thomas Bowie, who is a favorite Scotch dancer, gave a clever demonstration of the Highland fling, the sailor's hornpipe and also an Irish jig.

Master John McIntosh, who is recognized as the cleverest Scottish dancer for his age, danced a sword dance and the Highland fling in a manner to enrapture the audience. After one of his performances Chief Stewart on behalf of Pipe Major Johnstone, presented Master John with a handsome medal given by the Pipe Major in recognition of the young dancer's ability. The presentation was evidently very popular judging from the hearty applause bestowed.

Mr. Frank Scriven rendered picolo and flute solos, which were fine, and demonstrated his abilities.

Pipe Major Johnstone gave a bagpipe selection of Scottish airs, which was much appreciated.

Thomas Bowie and Willie Grant, in an Irish jig, were exceedingly clever.

For the dances Pipe Major Johnstone furnished the music and Mrs. Dr. MacColl played the accompaniments for the songs sang by Mr. McKay.

The singing of the National Anthem closed this part of the entertainment. After refreshments had been served the floor was cleared and dancing was indulged in until an early hour this morning. Many indulged in this pastime and thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Pipe Major Johnstone and Mrs. Johnstone were untiring in their efforts to make the assembly the success it certainly was.

You may have your shoes look like new ones, if they are repaired by the experts at Gorman's. D1d2t

TRIP TO WEST INDIES BY CANADIAN LEAGUE

Space Reserved for 250 on the Laurentic for Trade League Cruise

A distinctly Canadian character is to be given to the cruise to the West Indies which is to be undertaken in January by the White Star liner Laurentic, one of the big boats which runs in summer between Liverpool and Montreal. The Canadian and West Indian League has arranged to take half the space in the vessel for its members and any other Canadians who may care to join. This means that there will be accommodation on the boat for 250 Canadians.

The League, which has its headquarters in the Lindsay building in Montreal, has as its honorary president Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, and as its president Mr. T. B. Macaulay, while its executive council is composed of leading Canadians who are interested in the development of trade between Canada and the West Indies.

The importance of the development of this trade has been recognized by various Canadian Boards of Trade and efforts have been made from time to time to organize an excursion of Canadian business men to the West Indies to study for themselves the possibilities of trade and commerce. These efforts, however, have always fallen through, owing to the lack of an organization like the Canadian and West Indian League to take hold of the project and carry it through.

The League has been hard at work for many months past getting Canadians and West Indians in touch with each other, and Mr. E. P. Mousir, the secretary, stated to-day that the efforts put forth were meeting with a gratifying response.

"Already," he said, "we are assured that the Canadian part in the Laurentic cruise will be a success, and that at last a representative body of Canadian business men will visit the West Indies to study the possibilities on the spot. The various Boards of Trade throughout the West Indies have arranged to entertain the Canadian members, and the numerous members of our League throughout the island will join in the welcome. There is no doubt that the West Indian people will do everything possible to make the trip an instructive and enjoyable one. The recommendations of the Royal Commission regarding the development of trade between Canada and the West Indies on a reciprocal basis will receive added emphasis from this trip.

"The Laurentic is to sail from New York in January, and the trip will occupy thirty-one days. Visits will be made to Kingston, in Jamaica; Port au Spain and La Brea in Trinidad; Bridgetown, the capital of Barbados; Nassau, the capital of the Bahamas; to Venezuela, to Panama and to Cuba; to Port au Prince in Haytii; to Cartagena, in Columbia; to the French island of Martinique; to the Danish island of St. Thomas; and to the United States island of Porto Rico."

IS WORKING HARD FOR HIS CONSTITUENTS

Mr. Porter has Secured Several Imporant Changes in the Public Service

Mr. E. Guss Porter, M.P., has been very busy in the interest of his constituents, as the following record of what he has done, ipaddition to what has previously been noted, will testify:

A new Postmaster has been appointed at Belleville station post office, namely Mr. John Hunter, a capable and worthy gentleman.

A new Postmaster at Minto P. O., Mr. Daniel Henderson, who is a son of a pioneer in the Township of Wollaston.

The Harbor Commissioners for Belleville harbor have been dismissed and Messrs, B. Levin Hyman, fur merchant, and A. Percy Allen, coal merchant, appointed Commissioners in their stead. Both are bright and successful men in their line of business and among the most popular young business men in the city. Good service may be expected of them and their appointment will meet with popular approval.

New post office, "Baptiste," for the northern constituents on the line of the Irondale, Bancroft and Ottawa Railway.

These results of Mr. Porter's activity in the interest of his constituents will be appreciated in all parts of West Hastings.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mrs. Pigden, who resides on Ann Street, is seriously ill.

Mr. Wm. Elder, of Kingston, is visiting in the city.

Mrs. W. A. Stevens, of Calgary, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. A. C. McFee, George St.

Mr. Arthur Naylor, of Belleville, was the guest of his parents over Sunday.—Madoc Review.

Mr. W. B. Northrup, M.P., has been appointed chairman of the Public Accounts Committee of the House of Commons.

Miss Pearl Turcott and Miss Lillian Lesarge, who have been visiting Miss Kathleen Donahue, have returned to their homes in Tweed.

BIRTH RATE IN GERMANY

Remarkable Decrease in the Past Three Years.

A declining birth-rate, so long a anxiety in France, is becoming a cause of concern in Germany also. The estimates just completed by the German Statistical Office and published in the "Imperial Gazette" fully bear out previous statements as to the reality of this menace.

The total number of births in the Empire has fallen from 2,076,660 in 1908 to 2,038,357 in 1909 and to 1,982,536 in 1910. For the first time in twenty-four years the number of births has again dropped below the 2,000,000 mark, while in proportion to total population it is lower than it has been at any time in sixty years.

With a declining death-rate, there is still an annual increase of about 880,000 in the population, but, if conditions continue as they are, this rate of growth obviously cannot be much longer maintained.

I can't think why women want their rights. Give me their privileges. What's the good of insisting on your rights with a man? It's much easier to ask him to do a thing to "please you."

PUNY LITTLE BOY

"NOW PICTURE OF HEALTH" HIS FATHER SAYS

The pale, wistful faces and thin spindling limbs of "delicate children" tell plainly enough the story of poorly nourished bodies.

We know just what ought to be done for such children. Here is a letter from Richard Rush, Columbus, Ind., saying: "I believe I am indebted to Vinol for the health of my little son. He had a severe attack of whooping cough and measles which affected his lungs and constitution.

"We tried several other remedies without any result, then commenced using Vinol and I take pleasure in saying that he is the picture of health now, due to the use of Vinol.'

Sickly children need the strengthening cod liver elements and the tonic iron that Vinol contains— that is why Vinol builds them up quickly and gives them a fine healthy color. It is pleasant to take and we guarantee that the results will satisfy you—money back if they do not.—Red Cross Drug Store.—J. S. McKeown, Belleville.

DESPERATE FIGHT OF THE MOSLEMS

The "Holy War" Calls Out All The Fighting Qualities of The Merciless Turk.

In conntection with the desperate fight of the Turks against the Italians Europeans cannot understand the the fervid fanaticism that impels men of the East to battle for their religion without thought of pay, or hardships, and that courts death as a welcome and honoured achievement. The Djihad, or Holy War, is the Moslem's most formidable tactic to crush the enemy. In the first centuries the Christian Orient experienced its terrible sway on more than one occasion, and the Crusaders learned to dread it more than hunger and thirst and the direst privations of desert life. The Holy War is a merciless campaign, not for worldly possessions, not for territory, not even for Fatherland, but for the Islam religion, for the faith of the Prophet. It is a fight to the last drop of blood, a fight whose limit is the tomb, a fight waged with that savage fierceness and vehemence which know no bounds, no control, no restraining influence. Its passion and its enthusiasm are the wildfire of blind fanaticism.

The impassioned, merciless assault upon the enemy is, however, not the only duty of the Moslem during the Djihad. The traditional sayings of the Prophet enjoin the fulfillment of a number of other obligations, not less sacred. One of these obligations is implicit obedience to the leader of the campaign, whoever he may be. All personal dislikes must cease, and complete harmony between the Emir or the Sheikh and the fighter must prevail. Another duty is patience and faithfulness, and the determination to remain at the post to be defended to the very last beat of the pulse—if need be night after night without food, without sleep.

One engaged in the Holy War must not think of his family left at home. A special "Hadisseh" provides that these are cared for and attended to in the most conscientious manner by the aged priests unable to join the warriors.

A saying of the Prophet, war can only be successful if the movements of the army are kept secret from the enemy, shows that during Djihad the Moslem does not neglect the ordinary stratagems and tactics of warfare. Those who read Byzantine history will find that the great leaders of Moslem armies could always cope, with admirable skill and efficiency, with the wiles and cunning of the early Roman warriors.

Everyone engaged in Holy War is called "Shehid" or martyr. To become a Shehid, however, the warrior must be fully conscious of the Djihid taking place for the benefit of the faith of Islam. A soldier fallen in a simple battle is not a martyr, however much he might have suffered for his country. A Shehid refuses to accept payment, and scorns every attempt of making his lot easy. To him alone complete forgiveness of sin is granted in the world of houris. The Shehids who lose their lives on the sea are also released by Allah from all worldly debts, obligations and promises.

A Moslem warrior can obtain the crown of glory in the other world and also during an honourable retreat, if the latter is accomplished according to the regulations of holy warfare. The most important of these regulations is: "Retreat in order to gather forces for a renewed and more formidable onslaught; never otherwise."

There exists a "Hadisseh" which enjoins upon every tribe adhering to the tenets of Islam the necessity to always have a special, well-trained body of fighters ready at a moment's notice to follow the war-cry of Djihad. This accounts for the fact of the Italians in Tripoli having to meet such formidable masses of warriors almost immediately after invasion. It almost looked as if these masses were just waiting for the enemy to come in.

A shehid who is prompted to war not by personal interests, but solely for the purpose of defending Allah and the faith of Islam, is promised that the eternal fire of hell will never reach his feet. He who shows unbending patience, integrity and aquanimity of mind during Holy War will have respite from the tortures of the tomb.

To stimulate the Shehid in his sacred duties of sacrificing his life for his religion there exists a "Hadisseh" with a somewhat paradoxical meaning. It is to the following effect: "Thine enemy, O Faithful, during the Djihad is not thine enemy at all; he is thy friend, the best of thy benefactors, since it is he most of all who is helping thee to experience the ecstasies of martyrdom and the bliss of eternal life."

Terrible Night on Mountain.

A young farm servant, Thomas Owen, of Caegias, Merioneth, went up Moelwyn Mountain to look round the sheep. As he did not return it was thought he had stayed with some relations at Croesor Village for the night. A party went in search, and found the young man in a sad plight. It appears that he tried to climb a wall, which fell upon him, and he passed the night imprisoned in the debris.

Do You Feel This Way?

Do you feel all tired out? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your profession or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at nights unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and your stomach too? Has ambition to forge ahead in the world left you? If so, you might as well put a stop to your misery. You can do it if you will. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your lazy liver to work. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. It will purify your blood. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. Even after consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a lingering cough, bronchitis, or bleeding at the lungs, it will bring about a cure in 98 per cent. of all cases. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose advice is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice.

Don't be wheedled by a penny-grabbing dealer into taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Pierce's medicines, recommended to be "just as good." Dr. Pierce's medicines are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. Their every ingredient printed on their wrappers. Made from roots without alcohol. Contain no habit-forming drugs. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

WOMEN TO BECOME CIVIL ENGINEERS

Two Girls Have Made Application for Entrance to the Famous Parisian School

Two girls at the Lycee Buffon, Paris are preparing for the entrance examination to the famous school, the Polytechnique, which is the "alma mater" of the leading civil and military engineers. If they are admitted it will be one more triumph for Feminism and a considerable source of embarrasment to the school itself. Obviously the easier way would be to refuse the ladies on some technical pretext; this, however, would not be what is termed "an elegant solution." It would smack of masculine prejudice and egotism. The founders of the school which played its part in Revolutionary times and was always flattered by Napoleon who was a little afraid of its independent spirit, of the bread-and-butter miss to its courtyards and class-rooms. This is obvious from the gay military uniform worn by the students and from the circumstance that military discipline rules in the school itself. The young men turn out of bed to a roll of drums; a bugle summons them to meals or precedes an important announcement by the general in command.

If the young ladies succeed in becoming "Polytechniciennes," something like a revolution in the habits and customs of this centre will result. The school songs, which are not always intended for delicate ears, and have a bluff and martial tone, will have to be suppressed and others, innocuous in character, put in their place. Again, the female applicants cannot obviously, be called upon to perform military service and in consequence, the regulations must be changed to meet the case.

Just as the admission of women to the Prix de Rome caused perturbation amongst the students in the Eternal City, so this proposal to give the highest technical training to women mathematicians is accompanied by fear for old traditions and of complications with the particularly masculine environment of the school

One does not forget, in this connection, that students from the Polytechnique fought in the trenches in the siege of Paris, and when officers were shot down they led the citizens in resistance. Yet their history has had the democratic touch that renders the institution particularly popular to the Parisian crowd. For, notwithstanding the roll of drums and other Napoleonic signs of militarism, the school heart has beaten with the people rather than with their governors, and, in the various changes of regime, during the past hundred years, it has shown a tendency towards street adventure and the barricade. To-day almost every engineer of mark comes from this school, and the excessively theoretical character of its teaching is reproached for many brilliant failures. Cynics declare that the Liberte explosion and other disasters of the sort are due to the impracticable formulae adopted by Polytechnicians.

TWO AND TWO.

Tommy's mother had married again, and, though Tommy didn't in the least object to his new father, he was somewhat puzzled as to their relationship.

"Mamma," he said, "is this man my step-papa?"

"Yes, dear, he is your step-papa."

"Well, mamma," pursued thoughtful Thomas, "you call me your little lad, don't you?"

"Yes, dearie, you are mamma's little lad!"

"Then, mamma," concluded Tommy, "I suppose I must be my step-papa's little step-ladder."

BACK FULL OF ACHES HEADACHES AND DEPRESSION

MUCH OF WOMAN'S SUFFERING IS NEEDLESS AND CAN BE PREVENTED BY THE USE OF DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS.

THAT STAB-LIKE PAIN IN THE BACK IS A SURE SIGN OF KIDNEY TROUBLE.

Mrs. Anna Rodriguez writes as follows from her home in Valencia:—"For a long time I suffered with failing strength and nagging headaches. My condition grew steadily worse, my limbs became bloated and shaky. I was sallow, thin, felt rheumatic pains, dizziness and chills. I unfortunately didn't suspect my kidneys, and was nearly dead when I discovered the true cause of my sufferings. I read so much about the wonderful health and strength that comes to all who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills that I felt sure they would help me. Such blessings of health and comfort I got from Dr. Hamilton's Pills I can't describe. They speedily put me right, and their steady use keeps me active, energetic, storng and hapme active, energetic, strong and haplate and tone their system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut."

No greater medicine exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills for the cure of indigestion, constipation, flatulence, liver bladder and kidney trouble. Refuse substitutes for Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00 at all dealers or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

LIBERALS WANTED AN ALLIANCE CANDIDATE

Rev. Ben Spence Replied that none was Available in Grit Interest

The following was published in The Globe to-day: The Liberals of West Hastings have written to Rev. Ben. H. Spence, Secretary of the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Alliance, asking that the alliance enter a candidate in the riding in the Provincial elections and promising the endorsement of the Liberal convention and also the financing of the campaign. Mr. Spence declined to admit that such an offer had been made or to say whether it would be accepted.

The riding of West Hastings is said to contain a strong local option sentiment and the Liberals decided upon their invitation when Mr. Spence issued his letter, criticising the stand of Mr. N. W. Rowell, Liberal leader, on the temperance question. Repeated efforts have been made since to induce the Alliance to name a candidate, but Mr. Spence is said to have written that there was none available.

ILLICIT STILLS IN DRY STATES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Illicit distilling is steadily increasing in the United States, "especially in those States in which prohibitory laws have been enacted," according to Commissioner Cabell of the Internal Revenue Bureau. In the last fiscal year 2,483 illicit distilleries, were seized and destroyed by the internal revenue agents as compared with 1,911 for the previous year.

"The prevalence of this practice will be better understood," declares Mr. Cabell, "when it is recalled that there were operated last year only 923 registered distilleries in the entire United States."

INQUEST IN TRAGEDY AT ORPHEUM THEATRE IN MONTREAL

Ross Held Gun When Victim First Struck at Him is Witness' Testimony—Murderer Breaks Down and Weeps—Is Arraigned on Charge of Murder and Enters a Plea of Not Guilty

MONTREAL, Dec. 1.—"We, the undersigned jurors, after, having heard the proof, declare that Robert Fitzsimmons died in Montreal on November 30, 1911, as a result of a hemmorhage following a revolver shot, fired by John Charles Ross, whose arrest we demand."—Verdict of the coroner's jury.

Fainting in the Coroner's courtroom this morning, John Charles Ross accused of murdering Robert Fitzsimmons, in the Orpheum Theatre, had to be held up by Detective Cowans during the inquest into the case today and was then practically carried out of the room.

He was in such a state of collapse that he was unable to return to the Courtroom where the jury finally rendered a verdict holding him for the murder of Ftizsimmons. It was while Herbert Weir, one of the witnesses of the fatal card game, was describing the scene of the shooting, that Ross was seen to sway on his seat.

Realizing that Ross was faniting, Detective Cowans reached over, caught him and supported him out of the room. When he revived the accused man was still trembling so violently that he could not raise a glass of water to his lips. Detective Cowans had to pour it down his throat.

After the verdict had been rendered, Ross was still visibly affected, when one of his intimate friends walked up to him in the Coroner's ante-room and said:

"You won't get the rope, Charlie, that's a cinch."

The accused man smiled feebly, then he buried his head in his hands and moaned: "My God, but its terrible, though."

Immediately after the inquest Ross was conducted by Detective Cowans and Constable Marineau before Judge Bazin at noon, when he pleaded "Not Guilty" to the charge of murder. He was accompanied by his lawyer, Mr. F. Callaghan, of the firm of Laflamme Mitchell and Callaghan.

At the very moment that Ross was being led into the Court House to be arraigned, John Cummings, accused of murdering his wife on Chateauguay street last week, was being led out by a couple of detectives. The two accused murderers looked at each other and passed on—one back to the jail and the other to face the murder charge.

Five witnesses of the fatal shooting in the basement of the theatre all agreed on one point at the inquest this morning—that Ross pulled his revolver before Fitzsimmons walked around the table and struck Ross. One witness, however, said he thought Ross was replacing the revolver in his posket when Fitzsimmons struck him and that the shot was fired just as Ross fell back against the railing.

Remarking on this point in the evidence, Coroner McMahon said that while Ross had a right to defend himself with equal arms—that is, that he had the right to strike back—the blow which Fitzsimmons gave him did not endanger Ross' life, and that firing a revolver was not a defence against a slap in the face. On this point, Coroner McMahon concluded that there was sufficient evidence to hold Ross.

One thing certain is that Ross wants the agony of delay to be concluded as quickly as possible, because he asked his lawyer this morning how soon he could possibly be tried, and was told that he would come up during the March term of the Court of King's Bench.

SAVES FAMILY HONOR IN JAIL

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 1.—The son of a German official, who ranks high in the Government service at Berlin, has been released after serving three years of a ten-year sentence for burglary at Tacoma. He calls himself Henry Miller, admitting that it is not his name.

"With the express understanding that the German Consul shall see that he takes passage on the first German vessel sailing from Puget Sound" is written across the face of Miller's release. He served three years before his family found out he was in trouble and will be held in jail until the first outgoing German vessel sails. The officials refuse to disclose Miller's identity, but say he is of prominent German family. Miller says he would have died in jail rather than tell his name.

M'BRIDE CONGRATULATES

(Intelligencer Special)

WINNIPEG, Dec. 2.—On receipt of the news of the completion of the laying of steel on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway across the "Great Divide" between Alberta and British Columba last week, the Hon. Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia, sent the folowng telegram to Mr. M. J. Chamberlain, Vice-President and General Manager of the road at Winnipeg:—

"I received your teleg[illegible]n my return. My best congratulations on accomplishment of laying main line steel across Great Divide uniting provinces of British Columbia and Alberta with the band that soon will span the continent and give another great artery of transportation that will add volume to Canada's carrying trade, assist wonderfully in developing the richest northern country of this province, and unite us still closer to our sister provinces in the Dominion."

CAMPAIGN IN LENNOX.

A splendid meeting was held last night at Switezrville, in the County of Lennox, on behalf of T. G. Carscallen, the Conservative candidate. Addresses were delivered by Messrs. Uriah Wilson, ex-M.P., and W. C. Mikel, K.C.

HORSE THIEF BUSY.

Mr. Sidmore Parks, who resides in the village of Cannifton, reports to the police that some time during last night a broncho horse was stolen from his stables. The animal is light brown in color and has on the left shoulder the brand A with a dash beneath it. The horse weighs about 1,200 pounds.

TO STOP CROWDING.

Complaint, and not without cause, having been made to Alderman Parks, chairman of the Market, that on Saturday much unnecessary crowding not only by men and boys but women, took place in the market building by parties who are not buyers, he asked Chief Newton to place an officer on duty there to prevent as much as possible this nuisance. An officer was on duty there to-day and did good service.

"THE MODERN DRAMA."

Such was the subject of a most able and interesting lecture delivered by Prof. McNeil, of Queen's University, in the hall of St. Agnes School last evening. The rise of the English drama in the Elizabethan period was taken as a starting point, and the development of tragedy and comedy through successive periods was outlined up to the present day—the romantic period of Elizabeth, the satirical of the restoration, the sentimental period of the 18th century, and the modern phases of the drama, with the revival by Robertson in 1850 to 1860 of the democratic school dealing with the everyday subjects of life. The work of Henry Arthur Jones was outlined at some length, and the teaching value of his plays dwelt on with illustrations. Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's contribution to modern drama, with his masterly power in creating and sustaining situations, was admirably set forth, and made evident by quotations from his plays. Bernard Shaw, the philistine of modern dramatists, was given his place and value in modern drama. Altogether the lecture was admirable and a rare treat.

CASE FOR DAMAGES.

At about 1.30 this morning the police received a call to a livery stable in the city. It appears a party hired a rig and when he returned to the stables the vehicle was considerably damaged. The police were unable to interfere in the matter, it being purely a case for damages.

STRUCK BY A ROCK.

William Coleman, aged 63 years, an employee of the C.N.O.R., while working in a rock cut at Perth Road, sustained a severe injury on Nov. 30 by a large rock falling from the back and striking him on the head. Semi-concussion of the brain has set in and the patient now lies in a serious condition. After the accident he was brought to Kingston on the Bay of Quinte train and was removed to the General Hospital.

THE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.

The regular meeting of the Womens' Institute will be held in the High School on Monday, Dec. 4th, at 4 p.m. Miss Mackay will speak on "Some Things I See Among the Children," and a very interesting feature of the programme will be "Making Wholesome Christmas Goodies for the Children," by Miss McGie. "What Twenty Thousand Home-Makers Are Doing in Ontario" will be briefly recounted by the delegate to the Provincial Convention held under the auspices of the Ontario Government at Toronto. All interested are cordially invited to be present.

AT HOLLOWAY ST.

The entertainment given in Holloway St. Church last evening was a great success. The Sunday School rooms were well filled by an enthusiastic audience, who apparently enjoyed every number on the programme. The Rev. Mr. Sa[illegible]on occupied the chairman's p[illegible]n in his usual finished manner. The following ladies and gentlemen kindly helped to make this concert one of the best the Holloway St. Church ever held, viz., Mrs. A. P. Allen, Mrs. E. A. Edwards, Mrs. (Rev.) A. R. Sanderson, Mr. James Dyer, Mr. Ernest Mouck, Mr. Dingman, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., the church choir male quartette composed of Messrs. Dr. Duprau, T. Taylor, J. Boyd and G. Dulmage; Miss McLean and Prof. Ivor Thomas, accompanists.

CURRENT COMMENT

Nomination on Monday for the Legislature at the city hall.

It seems that at the battle of Wu Chow, the Chinese ate the hearts of their enemies. Here's a fine little conceit!

A Yankee woman and her husband have just finished a walk of eight thousand miles, which lasted for thirteen months. Considering the facility and cheapness of railway travel the performance seems a senseless one.

It looks as if Germany butted into the Morocco business for the sole purpose of testing how much Great Britain would stand for. It was a sort of diplomatic reconnaisance in force, and was successful in securing the desired information, even though it was not very satisfactory.

Christmas Day will be "dry" in Ontario this year. Visitors from across the border and from other provinces will be surprised to learn that all hotels will remain closed from December 23 to December 26. The amended law prohibiting the sale of liquor on Christmas Day, goes into effect this year for the first time.

A yearly advertisement of one column in the Chicago Tribune costs $26,000; in the New York Tribune, $29,000 for the lowest rates; in the New York Herald the cost of the lowest rate is $349,000 and $962,203 for the highest priced column. Yet one can see that these papers are always full of advertising matter, even at these enormous prices.

The Palmer Government in Prince Edward Island, which was defeated in the late bye-elections, it is announced, will accept the situation and resign. It is some twenty years since there was in Prince Edward Island a change of government that also meant a change of party control. The next change will hardly come before it is time.—Montreal Gazette.

Mr. Northrup certainly got in a blow on Sir Wilfrid when he pointed out that the late Premier refused to vote for the resolution of Dr. Smartt at the Imperial conference in 1907, which said that each Dominion "should make such a contribution to the upkeep of the Imperial navy as may be determined by their local legislatures, to take the form of a grant of money or of local naval defence or otherwise, as is considered most suitable by the local government."—Kingston Stnadard.

The St. Thomas Journal, a Grit newspaper, urges that the Conservative Government of Ontario be turned out of office because they have held the reins of power for seven years. Yet the same newspaper was strongly opposed to turning out of office the Liberal party who had been in power in Ontario for thirty-three years, and for a long period of that time by means of the rankest kind of corruption. It makes all the difference, in the opinion of the Journal, and other Grit sheets, whose ox is gored.

The Anglican Bishop of Montreal publishes some severely critical comments on Archbishop Bruchesi's manifesto on the Ne Temere decree. In the course of his remarks Bishop Farthing protests against the course of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada because it will tend to the introduction of the civil marriage—something which is desired by none of the churches. But the opinion is growing that a general law making civil marriage compulsory is the true remedy for the trouble arising out of the Ne Temere decree.—Hamilton Herald.

Under the heading "Candidates Neded" The Globe published the following in its issue of yesterday:—"Where Liberal candidates are needed:—Addington, Carleton, Dufferin, Dundas, East Durham, Grenville, East Hastings, North Hastings, West Hastings, Kingston, North Lanark, South Lanark, Lincoln, London, Muskoka, East Northumberland, South Renfrew, Sudbury, East Victoria, South Waterloo." Twenty in all, to which should be added eight, namely, seven in Toronto and one in Hamilton. And yet there are Grit newspapers that talk seriously of defeating the Whitney Government in the election which is only ten days away.

TWO COMMISSIONS ARM THEMSELVES TO GUARD THE ST. LAWRENCE

New Government Taking no Chances with Canada's National Waterway—Searchto be Made for Cause of Low Water in Channel—Long Pending Questions Now Stand Chance of Being Sealed—Move to Make City Cleanest in the World

(From our own correspondent.)

MONTREAL, Dec. 1.—Two commissions will next week commence a systematic study of conditions along the St. Lawrence with a view to preserving Canada's great waterway first and foremost in the interests of navigation.

The most important of these is the newly appointed International Waterways Commission of which Messrs. C. A. Magrath, H. A. Powell and T. C. Casgrain are members. These gentlemen will go over much ground already well ploughed up by previous commissions and will endeavor to reach conclusions which, although much time and study have been devoted to them, so far stand in the same position of doubt as they did many years ago. Most important of these is the damming of the St. Lawrence at the Long Sault Rapids, near Cornwall. Permission to undertake this work has been sought for the past four years by the Long Sault Development Company and the St. Lawrence Power Company, but, for one reason or another, no authoritative body has as yet lasted long enough to go fully into the matter and judge with finality upon it. Two years ago the companies came very close to obtaining the much desired recommendation from the International Waterways Commission then presided over by Sir George Gibbons in Toronto. Consent was held over, however, and although government engineers on both sides of the line have reported favorably on the project the necessary permission to start the work has not yet been obtained. Mr. Magrath, who is the only member of the new commission who may be regarded as anything of a water power expert, has studied this long pending question very closely and it is considered likely that it will not be long before the new body has cleaned up this most important matter. A work of stupendous proportions will, of course, call for careful supervision and the Government is attending to this by the appointment of the new commission.

Two other questions of great importance which the Commission will be called upon to deal with are the division of the waters at Niagara between this country and the United States, and the diversion of waters from the St. Mary's River in Alberta for irrigation purposes. This river is an international stream, and a rather peculiar situation has developed. It rises in British Columbia, flows into the United States, and then returns to Canada. Settlers in the districts on both sides of the boundary line are at war as to whom the water belongs.

Another Commission's Work.

Then there is another commission—the St. Lawrence River Commission of which Prof. C. H. McLeod of Montreal, is the chairman. This body was brought into being by complaints made to the Government that the depth of water in the river channel was becoming less instead of deeper as the years go by—a most surprising state of aairs since thousands of dollars are being spent annually in dredging. Several reasons are given for this phenomenon. Mr. Francis King, of the Dominion Marine Association, says there is no doubt that a certain amount of water instead of coming down the St. Lawrence now passes down the Mississippi out of Lake Michigan by way of the Chicago Drainage Canal. There is no doubt also that deforestration of the country has had marked results upon water levels. The supply of moisture has rapidly dispersed down the stream in the early season instead of being preserved and slowly fed into the rivers during the course of the whole year. There is another reason, however, which inland navigation men look upon as being the most plausible. This is the diverting of waters from the main channel of the river by the various water power development companies. On Lake St. Francis the Canadian Light and Power Company are robbing the river of 20,000 second feet to turn the wheels of their plant at St. Timothee. They, as well as other companies, have recently made application to the Government for further concessions, but the Hon. F. D. Monk, Minister of Public Works is understood to have held up these applications until the commission has had an opportunity to look into conditions as they actually exist. Navigation of the river is paramount, a fact admitted by everybody—even the power companies.

To Make City Cleanest in World.

The most radical, most complete and most effective health by-law in the world will be that of the city of Montreal, the first draft of which has just been completed. It has been in preparation for three years and if it is passed as it now stands, and its provisions enforced, Montreal will undergo such a transsformation that ten years from now she will not be recognizable. Although the by-law is voluminous, full of technical expressions and very dry reading it has a few amusing paragraphs. For instance, no pet hogs are allowed and, much to the chagrin of the small boy, no tame rabbits, trained sheep or live calves may be kept in any dwelling house. In every industrial establishment where the employees are liable to be soiled by smoke, soot or dust, hot and cold baths must be provided. The by-law does not state whether the health inspector or the owner of the factory shall give the bath. In other shops where finely pulverized or vaporized metals are treated, employees shall be provided with muzzles, in order to prevent the inhalation of dust. Even at the present moment Montreal is considered a fairly healthy city, and a city with a continental record for longevity. After the new by-law has been in force for a few years every citiezn may expect to attain the century mark.

ENFORCEMENT OF THE NE TEMERE

Another Mixed Marriage Case in the County Tyrone, Ireland

Another incident in connection with the enforcement of the Ne Temere decree is reported as having occurred recently in the townland of Feddom, South Tyrone. The facts have been put into a sworn statement, and are attested by responsible people. From these it is learned that a Mrs. Mary Moore, a Roman Catholic, married at the Protestant Cathedral, in Belfast, in February last, Nasson Moore, a Protestant. Mrs. Moore is expecting shortly to become a mother. On the 3dr of November, while her husband was at work, a Roman Catholic curate, accompanied by a missionary, entered her home. Mrs. Moore, in a sworn statement says: "The missionary asked me, 'Where did you get married?' and I replied that I got married in St. Anne's Cathedral, in the city of Belfast. He then said, 'You might as well not have got married at all. You are not married. You are living in sin. You are as bad as those who are on the streets.' I replied that I believed I was married all right, and that my marriage would stand as it is. My father, James McAnepsie, then came in, and heard part of his conversation. He agreed with what the missionary had said, and in his presence remarked, 'We will not leave this house until you go with us.' At this time I was crying at the idea of being talked to in such a way, and because of the threat to take me away from my husband and my home. My father took no notice of this and said, 'You must leave the house with us.' The curate did not talk so much as the missionary, but he also urged upon me to go. Through their influence over me when I was alone I was compelled to go out and leave the house in their company. They wanted to lock the door but I locked the door myself, and proceeded down the road toward Mr. Wray's, which is less than a quarter of a mile away. I ran, after locking the door, and my father followed, demanding the key. He overtook me and got possession of the key by force. He then shouted back to the two clergymen, 'I've got it.' The clergymen next got into a trap which was driven by a third person, apparently a servant. They walked the horse past my father and me and then went on in front. It looked as if they were under the impression that I was going with them. All this time I was endeavoring to make for Mr. Wray's, where my husband was at work. My husband, however, had heard of what was going on at our home and met us on the road, close to Mr. Wray's. He said, 'James, what is this that you have got up to now?' My father answered, 'It is not my fault. I have nothing to do with it.' He then ran away. I told my husband that my father had the key, and asked him to get it. My husband on hearing this, followed him and took the key from him.'

Eye-witnesses of the struggle on the road state that Mrs. Moore made a plucky fight for liberty. The husband stated that a neighboring farmer told him that priests were at his house, and that he had better go and see what they were up to.

CANADIAN OSTRICH FARM

Wardner, British Columbia, has been selected as the site of the first Canadian ostrich farm. The experiment will be watched with much interest. Success has attended similar efforts not only in South Africa but also in some parts of the States as well, and it is believed that the peculiar climatic conditions required for success in such farming are to be found in the neighborhood of Wardner.

FORESTRY IN SOUTH AFRICA

Conservation is spreading in South Africa, and tree planting is to be commenced ahround Bloemfontein. The Council of that city recommends all other councils and village management boards to follow their example. It is believed that all South Africa was formerly covered with forests, and the renudation of the forest area was contemporaneous with the appearance of the Bantu races from the north of the Zambesi. A forestry department of the Union Government has now been organized, and it is hoped to carry out extensive work of afforestation in the immediate future.

SHOT A LARGE BIRD

A large bird, supposed to be an eagle, was shot by James Ferguson on his farm near Plattsville, Ontario. The bird, which measured seven feet one inch from tip to tip, was shot while carrying off a goose. The beak of the bird shot was found to be more like that of a falcon, a still rarer bird in the neighborhood.

Bear Near Ottawa

Bears have been troubling the nerves of the people of Chelsea, near Ottawa, and talks of organizing a hunting posse have been heard. Mr. A. Thibeault stated that he saw four in the vicinity of the Canadian Pacific Railway station on one day.

MIXED MARRIAGES WERE NUMEROUS

Surprising Statistics for the Past Year---Some Curious Matches

The report of the Registrar-General for Ontario for the past year shows, among other interesting facts, that inter-marriage between persons of different religions is very much more frequent than is popularly supposed. Methodists married Roman Catholics, Jews married Gentiles, and Church of England adherents allied themselves in matrimony with persons of Salvation Army persuasion.

Last year there were 7,351 Roman Catholics married in Ontario. Of these 1,509 married out of their own denomination. Of these, again, 665 Roman Catholic grooms married Protestant brides, and 844 Roman Catholic women became wives of non-Catholic men. The greater number of these marriages were between Roman Catholics and members of the Anglican Church. The next denominations with which most Roman Catholic persons allied themselves were the Presbyterians, the Baptists and the Lutherans, in the order named. It is remarkable to observe that there were no marriages between Roman Catholics and members of the Salvation Army, while on the other hand two Roman Catholic grooms took unto themselves Hebrew brides, and five Roman Catholic girls threw in their lot with Jewish young men.

How the Hebrews Married.

Two Jews married Anglicans; two, Presbyterians; six, Methodists; two, Baptists; one, a Congregationalist, and four married persons who are described as having no particular religious convictions. Hebrew women, apparently, had a tendency to fall in love with Anglicans, for of the seven Jewesses married out of their faith five went to Anglicans and two to Roman Catholics.

Upon further investigation of the blue book it appears that 631 Presbyterian women married Anglicans, 841 married Methodists, 126 married Roman Catholics, 41 married Congregationalists, 55 married Lutherans and seventy-four married persons whose religious beliefs were not set down.

Of the Methodist brides 678 took Anglican husbands, 910 took Presbyterians, 157 accepted Roman Catholics, 290 favored Baptists, 67 fell to Congregationalists, 83 picked Lutherans, six consented to cook for Salvation Army members and 98 took husbands whose faith was not classified. Of these, it is said, 25 had no religion. Among the Baptist women 200 chose mates from the Anglican Church, 219 from the Presbyterians 362 from the Methodists, 68 from Roman Catholics, 21 from Congregationalists, 26 from the Lutherans, 28 from untabulated worshippers and six from the denominationally unattached. Fifty-seven Lutherans secured Anglican husbands, 71 Presbyterians, 78 Methodists, 85 Roman Catholics, one a Hebrew and one a Salvationist. Of the Salvation Army lassies 87 found affinities in the "Army"; three married Anglicans; one, a Presbyterian; seven, Methodists; five, Baptists, and one an unclassified.

Ages of the Couples.

It is of interest to observe that, so far as Ontario is concerned, men do not to any great extent marry later than women, although it is popularly thought otherwise. Last year 8,168 grooms, or about one-third of the total number (24,036), married between the ages of twenty and twenty-four. Forty-seven per cent. of the brides were between those ages. In the case of both sexes the next greatest number married between the ages of twenty-five and twenty-nine, and after that the large classifications are between thirty and thirty-four for grooms and between fifteen and nineteen for brides.

Just [illegible] were married under the age of twenty. One of these took a 32-year-old bride; another took a 38-year-old; two men between twenty and twenty-four married brides of between forty and forty-four; one married a lady of the discreet age of 70, while two grooms of forty and forty-four married women of the same ages. Fifteen women between the ages of fifteen and nineteen married men between forty and forty-four; two married men between forty-five and forty-nine; one took a man over 55, and one a man over 60. Three women between twenty and twenty-four married men over 55, two married men over sixty and one a man over 70. One woman of twenty-seven married a man of 70.

June is still the month for brides. There were 3,555 out of the 24,036 marriages celebrated in June. September and December folowed with 2,653 and 2,304 marriages respectively.

WANTS US TO ANNEX STATES

Comparison Between the Countries is Much in Canada's Favor

Financial Editor, Montreal Star:

Sir,—Passing through St. Louis, I noticed an advertisement of N. & W. Harris offering the Montreal tramway bonds. I telephoned to Mr. Ewing to see if any of the bonds remained. "No," he answered, "they all sold at once. Were over-subscribed. The price advanced above par. That shows what we think of Canadian securities over here. They are very popular just now—on account of the attitude of the Dominion Government. It does all possible to keep things on a sound basis. Canadian Pacific is quoted at 2.40—over 50 points better than the Union Pacific, which would be just as good as C. P. R. if the Government and public attitude was settled."

As this country is now chaotic, with no constructive policy advocated by any party, and no party in responsible control, emphatic comparison in favor of Canada is opportune.

I also enclose a clipping from the St. Louis Republic of recent date:

AN ADMIRER OF CANADA.

To the Editor of The Republic:

Dear Sir,—In my opinion, it would be a good thing for us if Canada would annex this alleged Republic, because Canada is a more intelligent sane, free, progressive nation, far ahead of the United States in everything, having a transcontinental railroad and two more building, while we have none; an international branch banking system that serves big and little perfectly, distributing prosperity everywhere equitably, while we have no banking system at all, only isolated banks, incapable of adequately serving their own patrons, much less preserving national financial stability; and Canada has a really representative, responsible form of Government that ensures co-operation between all sections and all interests for the common good.

As a descendant of a revolutionary general, who fought under Washington for American Independence and a member of an American family that has served this country for generations, my views are certainly not biased.

DEER IN NEW ZEALAND

Mr. F. W. Godsal, one of the Provincial Fire Guardians stationed at Cowley, Alta., has a photograph of the head and antlers of a red deer stag the interest being greatly heightened by the fact that this particular stag was sent from Windsor Park to New Zealand in 1867 by the late Prince Consort. At this time the stag was three years old and ten years later was shot, by request, by Major Campbell, as he was becoming dangerous. It will interest Canadian readers to know that in 1908 no less than 2,000 deer were killed at one station in order to reduce their numbers. The deer indeed have increased in New Zealand until they have become a nuisance and their horns grow to a size unknown in Great Britain. A further item of interest is found in the fact that trout introduced from England grow to an enormous size and increase rapidly in the virgin streams of New Zealand.

CUNNING JAPANSESE

Disguised as Women to Smuggle Cigars and Tobacco.

When an express from Germany reached the frontier station two Japanese, one attired in feminine garments, were searched by the Customs House Officers. The supposed women proved to be a man and the clothes worn by the individual had been adapted to conceal a quantity of cigars and cigarettes. The smuggler was not released until a fine of $40 had been paid.

BEAVER IN THE ADIRONDACKS

Reports from the Adirondacks are to the effect that under preservation the beaver has increased so rapidly as to threaten serious danger to the poplar timber. The busy little fellows are cutting too much down for their dams and supplies. The remedy surely is to thin out the numbers by the officials, as has been done in Algonquin National Park. This is better than declaring an open season and will go some way towards reimbursing the State for its expenditures upon preservation.

Are at Odds

A great deal of vapid talk has been indulged in by the motley following of Sir Wilfrid Laurier as to alleged differences of opinion between certain members of the Borden Government on matters of public policy, to which the vote in Parliament on Sir Wilfrid's amendment has given its quietus.

But how is it in their own ranks? Mr. Guthrie, a gentleman of Cabinet rank, and Mr. German have declared reciprocity—which is certainly a most important matter of public policy—to be dead, while Sir Wilfrid, Hon. Frank Oliver and others hold strongly to the contrary. Hence it would be more fitting for them to settle their own domestic differences before commenting on those of others.

But the differences which exist in the Grit party are not confined to Dominion issues. Mr. Rowell, the titular leader in Ontario, who is attacking the Government for the alleged existence of bilingual schools—for the establishment of which, by the way, if any exist, his own party when in power were responsible—and Senator Belcourt, a former Speaker of the House of Commons and a highly prominent man among the French-Canadians in Ontario, is, although diametrically opposed to Mr. Rowell in that regard, lending his aid to the leader of his party in opposition to the Whitney Government. Mr. Belcourt, who spoke from the same platform as did Mr. Rowell in Ottawa, also read a letter of apology for the also read a letter of apology from Sir Wilfrid Laurier for his absence. Mr. Belcourt, it may be added, has long been one of his party's leaders in this province, and is, moreover, the President of the French-Canadian Educational Association of Ontario, as to which the Toronto News informs us that the objects of this organization were freely set out in a series of resolutions unanimously adopted by a congress of French-Canadians assembled at Ottawa. The twelve hundred delegates in attendance claimed to represent upwards of 200,000 French-speaking citizens of Ontario, so that the Liberal leader of the movement, Mr. Belcourt, has quite a force behind him.

In unequivocal terms these resolutions asserted that Canada is a bilingual country, that the British North America Act sanctions the use throughout Confederation of French as well as English for legislative, administrative and judicial purposes in Dominion matters and that the several Provincial Governments are in duty bound to educate French-Canadians in their mother tongue so that they may be in a position to effectively exercise their rights under the constitution. The resolutions further declared that the French language is the only language, aside from English, which has a constitutional status in Ontario or any other Province. It was further maintained that "the use in teaching of any other language than the pupils' mother tongue considerably increases for them the difficulty of acquiring the elements of indispensable knowledge and dooms the pupils to ignorance and inferiority."

A long series of complaints were voiced by the Association, and it was asked: (1) that a school or class in which the majority of pupils are of French origin should be declared bilingual, (2) that in a school or class where even 25 per cent. of the pupils are of French origin instruction should be given these pupils in French spelling, reading grammar, composition and literature, (3) that French readers and text books should be supplied to this end, and a list of supplementary French books of reference should be recommended for the school libraries, (4) that pupils of these bilingual schools should be examined in the above-named French subjects at the High School entrance and other departmental examinations, (5) that bilingual inspectors should be appointed to inspect all schools and classes where French is taught and (6) that Quebec school teachers' certificates should be recognized in Ontario.

This was not all. The association of which Mr. Rowell's colleague, Senator Belcourt, is the head, demanded (1) that the primary bilingual course here indicated should be followed by a secondary bilingual course with suitable authorized books, (2) that where there are no High Schools or where the High Schools do not provide advanced bilingual instruction, fifth classes or continuation classes of the bilingual type should be established with financial support from the Provincial Government, and (3) that a bilingual Normal School should be established to train teachers for the proposed bilingual High Schools. Within the past few days this French-Canadian Educational Association, of which Mr. Rowell's supporter is president, has publicly rebuked Mr. Foy for declaring that bilingual schools have no legal status in Ontario, and for adding that if they do exist they must cease to exist.

Such is the Rowell-Belcourt alliance—the one party attacking the Government for the alleged existence of bilingual schools, and the other denouncing them because there are no schools of that character in Ontario. And thus the assertions of the English party to the compact are confuted by this statement of the French member of the alliance.

A more satisfactory demonstration of the truth of the old saying as to what happens when rogues—in this case political—fall out could hardly be imagined than will be the result of the polling on the 11th inst.

Weights and Measures

The report for 1910-11 of the Department of Inland Revenue dealing with the inspection of weights and measures is interesting. The officials during the twelve months tested some 340,000 weights, measures and weighing machines, with the following results:—

THE REV. IRL R. HICKS 1912 ALMANAC.

Before the great drouth of 1901, the Hicks Almanac gave timely warning. For over two years prior to 1911, the Hicks Almanac again sounded warning of drouth danger. And so for forty years, this same friend of all the people has steafastly refused the offers of speculators and continued to warn the public of the coming dangers of storm and weather. As they should have done, the people have nobly stood by Professor Hicks, their faithful public servant, who has grown old in their service. Send only one dollar to Word and Works Publishing Company, 3401 Franklin Avenue, St. Louis, Missouri, and get his magazine and Almanac both for one year. The Almanac alone, a fine book of 150 pages, is only 35c. by mail. Let everybody respond and receive warnings of our National Seer for the coming year.

Work on the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, the new $2,000,000 hotel, constructed by the Grand Trunk System, is progressing very favorably, and there remains only to be done the lobby, bar and grill room ceiling. Most of the marble floors of the dining room corridor are laid, and after the plaster work of the lobby is completed, work will be started on the marble work of that floor. Heat and light have been in the building for the last two months, and when the plaster is sufficiently dry in the various public rooms, the decorators will be able to commence the interior decorations. Some of the wood work for the big rooms is in the hotel, and the erection of this iis going on. The general appearance of the various rooms is beyond expectation, and when completed will be of the richest effect, artistic in design, and wonderfully beautiful.

ONTARIO LADIES' COLLEGE

The annual meeting of shareholders and directors of the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, took place last week in the College board-room, and was largely attended. The reports from the Executive Committee, the Faculty Committee, and from Dr. Hare, Principal, clearly indicated that the past year was the most successful in the history of the College in attendance, income and educational results. The greatest enthusiasm prevailed throughout the meeting, and reached its culmination when Dr. Hare outlined what had been accomplished in thirty-seven years of patient and well-directed effort, and what greater things were yet in store for the college. All present rose to their feet to signify their hearty appreciation and approval. At the present time every room in the College is occupied and four are on the waiting list, to enter immediatley after the Xmas holidays, when some vacancies will occur.

It was unanimously decided that when the gymnasium, reading-room and hospital, which are now in process of erection, are completed, steps will be taken to extend Ryerson Hall to the north, to provide additional accommodation for boarders.

The following were elected officers of the Board: Hon. Senator Cox, Hon. President; Rev. Dr. Graham, and Rev. J. J. Redditt, Hon. Vice Presidents; Mr. R. C. Hamilton, President; Mr. R. J. Score, 1st Vice President; Mr. D. F. Barclay, 2nd Vice-President; Mr. John Rice, Sec-Treasurer. 1td&w

Lady Teacher Goes to Jail.

Brockville, Dec. 2.—Weeping bitterly, Miss Nora McCrea, a young school teacher, whose home is in Merrickville, yesterday afternoon received a sentence of one week in the local jail, from Judge McDonald, senior judge of Leeds and Grenville, for having last October unlawfully punished Helen McCoubrie, one of her pupils, in the school which she taught near Frankville.

The child was in the first instance severely punished for dropping a water bottle and when subsequently she brought to school a note of protest from her father by adoption, the school teacher punished her again. Mr. McCoubrie was subsequently paid $500 by Miss McCrea in settlement of the case and to avoid parental prosecution, but Mr. Trail, agent of the local Children's Aid Society, brought the matter to trial.

Miss McCrea testified that the child was unruly. Judge McDonald, however, found the defendant guilty.

Miss McCrea, who comes of a highly respected family, feels her position very keenly.

There isn't much hope for the man who has no self-respect.

THE M'NAMARA TRIAL ENDED UNEXPECTEDLY

James Pleads Guilty to Dynamiting Times Building.

Sensational Denouement of Case Occurs in Los Angeles Court When Labor Officials Says He Committed Outrage—Will Probably Escape the Gallows and Brother John Will Get a Light Term.

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.—James B. McNamara pleaded guilty last evening of murder in the first degree in connection with the death of Charles J. Haggerty, a victim of The Los Angeles Times' explosion and fire.

His brother, John J. McNamara, jointly indicted with him, pleaded guilty to dynamiting the Llewellyn Iron Works.

They will be sentenced next Tuesday, Dec. 5.

James B. McNamara probably will get life imprisonment. John J. McNamara, it was rumored, will get 14 years. Each pleaded guilty of the charge on which he was extradited from Indianapolis.

Within 15 minutes after court opened yesterday afternoon one of the greatest criminal trials of modern times had ended so abruptly that many of those supposedly in the heart of the matter did not know it was going to happen.

The prisoners were taken back to jail, Judge Walter Bordwell retired to his chambers and opposing counsel went to their rooms.

"The McNamaras have pleaded guilty because they are guilty," was District Attorney John D. Fredericks' crisp comment.

"If I had seen any way out of it, we would not have done it," said Attorney Clarence S. Darrow after court. "We have had it under consideration since a week ago Monday."

So far as has been learned less than a dozen men knew when court opened what was going to happen.

Judge Bordwell did not betray his information, but chatted with the reporters about the possibility of night sessions. Malcolm McLaren, representative of the detective agency which brought about the arrests, was denying a report that McManigal had refused to confess.

Fredericks brought his wife to court, and G. Ray Horton, W. Joseph Ford and S. L. Vermilya, his deputies, knew what was coming, as did counsel for the defence and for the prisoners. Samuel L. Brown, chief of the investigation for the state, and Larry M. Sullivan, an investigator for the defence. The jury was discharged at 3.10 p.m.

The eight sworn jurors and two talesmen passed for cause were brought to the courtroom at 3.05 to be discharged.

"The case," said Judge Bordwell, addressing them, "which you will not try, has come to an end. The defendant has pleaded guilty, so your valuable services will not be required."

The judge smiled, and some members of the jury applauded.

"I want to tell you that I am absolutely confident that you men would have given this man a fair and impartial trial."

John J. McNamara entered court unhandcuffed and took a seat a few feet away from his brother. Attorney James Scott sat with his arms around the prisoner. John J. was smiling and chewing gum.

Attorney Davis of the defence began: "After long consideration, your honor, we have concluded to withdraw the plea of guilty against James B. and would like to have John J. tried."

District Attorney Fredericks rose and the prisoner did likewise.

"You have been arraigned, Mr. Jas. B. McNamara," said Fredericks, "and have heretofore entered a plea of not guilty."

"Did you answer guilty?"

"Yes," answered James B. McNamara.

"Do you wish now to plead against this indictment charging you with murder?"

"Yes."

"Guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty."

"Does the court now take up the other case against John J."

"Yes," replied the court.

The date for John J. McNamara's trial was placed at Dec. 5, and District Attorney Fredericks asked John J. to plead.

He did not plead with reference to the indictment against him in connection with The Los Angeles Times' explosion, but pleaded guilty to the indictment charging him with the explosion of the Llewellyn Iron Works.

Attorney Darrow stood around the room after court adjourned and newspapermen crowded around him.

"I am glad it's over with," said Darrow with a sigh. "We have been working on this for two weeks, and it has been the greatest strain of my life."

"The Times building was blown up by James B. McNamara with nitroglycerine to be sure, but the bomb touched off the gas, and gas really did it," said Mr. Darrow.

"Did you have to wrestle hard with the McNamara brothers to get that admission?" he was asked.

"Somewhat, but the facts have been overwhelming. Every loophole was gathered in by the state. As far as I am concerned, I felt that sooner or later it had to come. Things were happening in which big people were interested. The movement was impelling. They wanted the matter cleared up and feared further bloodshed unless we obliterated the incident from Los Angeles at once.

"Of course, I feel I have helped the McNamaras by getting them to plead in so far as they probably will not be sentenced to death. Life imprisonment will be meted out to James B., and John J. will get off with a light sentence."

A Personal Vindication.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—"I consider the outcome a great personal vindication for me," said Wm. J. Burns here yesterday when told by The Associated Press of the sensational developments in the McNamara case at Los Angeles. "Especially," he added, "after men occupying such exalted positions as Samuel Gompers and others have repeatedly charged me with 'planting' the dynamite at Los Angeles. Following them every Socialist paper in the country and every labor paper have so often printed stories of 'frame-ups' in the case that some good people were beginning to think that the prosecution was not 'on the square'."

Mother's Faith Unshaken.

Cincinnati, Dec. 2.—Had a bolt descended from a clear sky it could not have cast a greater shadow of gloom over the home of John J. and James B. McNamara in Cincinnati, than did the news of their pleas of guilty yesterday.

"I know my boys are innocent," wailed Mrs. Mary McNamara, their grief-stricken mother. "I am forced to believe that they have pleaded, but I know they are innocent."

HAS ATTAINED TO AGE OF 105

Alexander Renau, of Haileybury, was Born During the Reign of King George III.

Erect, hale and hearty, Alexander Renau, of Haileybury, is a living advertisement of the virtues that exist in the non-observance of the maxims of our grandfathers. He celebrates his 106th birthday in December, and has made a constant use of tobacco, both smoking and chewing it since he was 11 years old. He also was a moderate drinker of alcoholic beverages until within seven years or so ago when he was seized with the idea that as he had come to live in close proximity to places where liquor could be obtained with ease, he had better cut it out as a too great facility for obtaining beverages might lead him to over-indulge in them. Alexander was born in St. Paul, Quebec, Dec. 10, 1805, when Napoleon was the dic. and when George the third was on the throne of the only country in Europe that was able to offer any serious opposition to Napoleon's conquering march.

From his earliest youth, Alexander Renau was habituated to a life of rough work and as he himself states, was almost born with an axe in his hand. Lumbering was the one industry apart from trapping and the small amount of elementary farming that was pursued in those remote days in Quebec. Lumbering and farming have been the chief occupations of his life, and yet the feel of an axe is pleasant to his hands and his great age does not prevent him from wishing to be out again at the timber. Schooling of a formal nature never came his way, but the deeper schooling that comes of a lifetime of shrewd observation of his fellow men carried on for over a century, has made a thoroughly educated man of Alexander Renau, who is able to relate endless strings of entertaining reminiscences, although he was never taught to convey them to paper.

After the manner of his countrymen he married young, and was blessed with 12 children, who in turn have brought him nearly 40 grandchildren and already there are half a score of great grand children who can claim a living ancestor in Alexander Renau. Mr. Renau is still in perfect health and has all his faculties, his eyesight and hearing being unimpared.

MONEY IN MANNERS

The Remarkable Cash and Success Value of "Personality."

Brains count for a good deal in this world, but appearance, bearing, and voice count for more. A good personality can double your income. A bad one can halve it.

I am myself a fairly intelligent man, says a writer in Answers, though I candidly admit that, if I had to rely upon my brains alone, I should never have been able to keep up my 500-a-year house and three servants. My intelligence told me, while I was still at school, that it needed something additional to bolster it up, and by keeping my eyes well open, I soon found out what that particular something was.

In a word, it was manner—or personality, which is the same thing. For a whole year, I devoted myself mainly to steadying and deepening my voice, improving my outward appearance, and learning to look people straight in the face. They would do well, in many cases, to copy my methods, however, for I count that year as the most important in my life.

I shall never forget my instantaneous success. My first job, as a traveller, brought me up against a peppery gentleman whose very face was enough to keep travellers out of his shop. The goods I was showing, moreover, were really quite poor, and I could think of very few arguments in their favour. But I went into that shop with such a confident air, and addressed its owner in such a deep and pleasant voice, that I had his order neatly and clearly transcribed in my book within three minutes.

I can't say who was the more surprised on thinking the matter over afterwards—he or I!

One man, who confessed to me that he was very familiar with the dunce's cap when a scholar, said that he owed his entire success to the way he could ward off the single word "No."

"I make it difficult for those I am with to say 'No,'" he told me. "That is my one burning object. They realise that I don't expect them to say 'No,' and that they'll have to go into reasons if they do. In personal interviews, commissions and favours go thickest to those whom it is most unpleasant to refuse. Make it unpleasant and exceedingly difficult to refuse you—and the game's yours."

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion lands Agency or Sub-Agent for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.--Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties--Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties--Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.09.

W. W. CORY
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

N. B.--Unauthorized publication of this advertisement wil not be paid for.

In order to do all these things, it is necessary to make the most of your appearance. Not only does this create a good impression at the outset, but it actually lends confidence to your subsequent voice and manner. Many people, in various branches of life, work best when they are best clad, while in slovenly attirt their brains move slowly and sluggishly. This is a matter, indeed, that is often neglected.

The general effect of personality is seen in the simple daily occurrences around us. The man with "the firm manner" is served respectfully by the paper-boy, who has just checked a more wavering customer. He is also the first to be served in the crowded restaurant he visits, or in the shop. His orders are carried out as though they were favours, while in street rows or drawing-room disputes the majority blindly take his side, as though he were a leader. He gets the best and the most of everything.

Mr. John McCrea held the record for Lindsay waters during the past season, capturing a maskinonge forty-one inches long and weighing fourteen pounds.

KILLED THE LEPERS

Terrible Tragedy Reported Near the French Frontier in China.

The Mission to Lepers in India and the East is responsible for a tragic story of the massacre of a number of lepers in a district near the French frontier in China. According to this story a military commander of a district induced the lepers to assemble by the announcement that a distribution of rice would be made. A large number gathered, bringing with them many children. Arrived at the rendezvous, the lepers were surrounded by soldiers and shot down. Dead and wounded were then shovelled into a deep pit already prepared, and kerosene oil poured over them, the whole mass then being set on fire. A few who escaped were hunted down on the hills and killed.

BY-LAW NO.

A BY-LAW RESPECTING THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE.

Passed the day of 1911.

WHEREAS by Sub-Sec. 3 of Sec. 71a of The Consolidated Municipal Act of 1903 the Council of any City having a population of 15,000 or less may by By-Laws provide that the Council of such City shall be composed of a Mayor and one Alderman for each 1,000 of population, to be elected by general vote, the population to be determined by the last census of the Dominion of Canada,

AND WHEREAS, by said last census of the Domiinon of Canada taken in the year 1911 the population of the City of Belleville was determined at the number of 9,850,

IT IS THEREFORE ENACTED by the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville:—

1.—THAT the Council of the City of Belleville shall be composed of a Mayor and one Alderman for each 1,000 of the population of the said City as determined by the last census of the Dominion of Canada to be elected by general vote.

2.—THAT the first nominations to be held under the provisions of this By-Law shall be the last Monday of December, A. D., 1912, and the first elections the first Monday of January, A. D., 1913.

3.—This By-Law shall come into force and effect immediately on and after the final passing thereof.

4.—THAT the votes of the qualified electors of the Municipality of the City of Belleville shall be taken (in accordance with the Statute in that behalf made and provided) upon this By-Law on the same day, at the same hour and at the same places at which and by the same Deputy Returning Officers, by whom the next Municipal Elections for said Municipality are held.

5.—THAT the Clerk of the Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville shall attend at his office in the City Hall in the City of Belleville on Tuesday the 2nd day of January A. D. 1912 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon to proceed to sum up the number of votes given for and against this By-Law in accordance with the provisions of the Statute in that behalf.

6.—THAT the Mayor of the Corporation of the City of Belleville shall attend at the City Hall in the said City on Tuesday, the 26th day of December 1911, at the hour of 2 o'clock in the afternoon for the purpose of appointing and shall appoint in writing signed by him two persons to attend the final summing up of the votes given for and against this By-Law and for the purpose of appointing one person to attend at each polling place upon the day of polling of the said votes, on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of promoting the passing of this By-Law and a like number on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of opposing the passing of this By-Law which place and hour are hereby fixed for said purpose.

Clerk. Mayor

NOTICE.

To the Municipal Electors of the City of Belleville:

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of the proposed By-Law which has been taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville which will be finally pased by said Council (in the event of the assent of the electors being obtained thereto) after one month from the first publication in the Daily Intelligencer and Daily Ontario Newspapers of Belleville, the date of which first pub. was 2nd day of December 1911 and that the votes of the electors of the said Municipality will be taken thereon and at the hour, day and place therein fixed for taking the votes of the Electors the Polls will be held.

INDOOR BALL HAS BECOME POPULAR

Large Crowd saw Regiment Defeat Cement Company Last Night

At the Armories last night before a large number of spectators an indoor league baseball match was played between the Fifteenth Regiment and Cement Company teams. The interest in these games is growing and the sport promises to be a great attraction. The game last night resulted in a rather decisive victory for the redcoats, the score being 31 to 20 in their favor. In the third innings the regimental team took a long lead by scoring no less than 14 runs. Although the Cement Company team made a determined effort to overcome this lead they were unable to do so. At times both teams played good ball. Mr. Wm. Cochrane was umpire and performed his duties in a manner that was satisfactory to both players and spectators. The line-up of the teams was as follows:

Regiment—	Cement Co.—
Mills, c.	Thompson, c.
Sharpe, p.	Croft, 3b.
Moore, 2b.	M. Reddick, 2b.
Minorgan, ss.	E. Reddick, lf.

AMUSEMENTS

THE GREAT McEWEN COMING.

The cheering announcement that Mr. Jas. Malone has secured for an engagement the King of Entertainers the Great McEwen, who has delighted New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Toronto and Montreal audiences who crowded the theatres at each of his remarkable performances and will be seen here for all next week commencing Monday, Dec. 4th. tI is seldom that a magician, mind reader or hypnotist has so many distinct qualities as Great McEwen. His performances are charming, real, clever and the situation in which he places his subject an innovation. There is a spirit of comedy of the effervescent type that keeps on bubbling and sparkling as long as the show lasts. Miss Florence Hartly, the famous Prima Donna, will be heard in operatic selections. The entire performance will be changed every night. Prices during this engagement are 15, 25 and 35c.

DEATH LIST

MRS. PHOEBE PECK.

Mrs. Phoebe Ann Peck, wife of Mr Samuel G. Peck, died this morning rather suddenly from heart trouble. Although the deceased had been unwell, her death was by no means anticipated. Mrs. Peck, who was 7[illegible] years of age, was a daughter of the late Mr. Reuben Kelly, of Sidney, where she was born and lived all her life. She was a member of the Methodist Church and a lady who had many friends. Surviving is an aged husband and an adopted son named Samuel.

NOMINATIONS FOR THE LEGISLATURE

They will be Held on Monday—No Opposition Candidate has as Yet Appeared

From the hour of noon until 2 o'clock on Monday in the City Hall in this city, nomination of candidates for the Legislature of Ontario will take place. At the present there is but one candidate in the field, namely, Mr. J. W. Johnson, ex-M.P.P. The Returning Officer is Mr. W. P. Hudson, ex-M.P.P. of this city.

In East Hastings the nominations will be held at the village of Tweed, and for North Hastings in the village of Madoc. In these ridings there will probably be no contest, as only one candidate has thus far been named in each riding, namely, Mr. Robt. Cook, for the riding of North Hastings, and Mr. Sandy Grant for East Hastings.

BUT FEW CHANGES IN MARKET PRICES

Hogs and Butter Lower, but Potatoes Have Taken [illegible] a Jump

The near approach of the Christmas holidays has a tendency to increase the attendance upon the market and especially on Saturdays. To-day's market was the largest attended seen here for some time. Although much produce was offered for sale by our country friends, prices as usual, were good for all produce offered.

While butter was quite plentiful, the average price paid was good. This article sold from 25c. to 28c. per pound, according to quality.

Fresh eggs are a scarce commodity, in fact, they are becoming a luxury. They sold at 35c. and 36c. to-day by basket lots, and at 38c. per single dozen.

Dressed poultry was plentiful and brought a fairly good price, as will be seen by our quotations.

Potatoes are still advancing in price being in a few cases sold as high as $1.70 and $1.75 per bag. In a few cases loads were sold at $1.60 per bag.

In the grain and hide market there are no changes to note in prices.

During the week there has been a further decline in the hog market. Live porkers brought only $5.90 per cwt. Dressed pork also dropped in price, being sold at $8 per cwt.

Our quotations are as follows:
Fall wheat—75c. to 80c.
Spring wheat—80c. to 85c.
Oats—38c. to 40c.

THROAT BECOMES DISEASED FROM NEGLECTING COLDS

THEN CATARRH SETS IN, MUCOUS DROPS INTO THE THROAT xzfiflfffi xzfiflfffi xzfiflff ACHES AND DEBILITY FOLLOW.

That the best method of curing catarrhal disease consists in using Catarrhozone, is now freely admitted. Catarrhozone is infinitely superior to cough medicines, tablets, sprays and emulsions, which for the most part are of no practical value except to ease the cough for the time being. Often liquid cough remedies contain opium, morphine and cocaine. With Catarrhozone you take no drugs—you employ Nature's way—just inhale Catarrhozone's soothing healing vapor and relief and cure follow promptly.

WEAK THROAT, RACKING COUGH CURED.

"For five years I suffered from a severe bronchitis. A harsh, dry racking cough kept my throat in a raw condition from one year's end to another. Before going to sleep at night I always had a bad attack, and in the morning before each breakfast I suffered greatly. My voice was harsh and raspy, and sometimes I found it difficult to make myself understood. Catarrhozone seemed to soothe and heal form the first day. It cured me, and now I wouldn't think of being without a Catarrhozone Inhaler—it means life to me."

The above experience is related by Mr. Alexander P. Savary of Hamilton, Pa., and proves the effectiveness of Catarrhozone, which will cure every cough, cold, bronchial or catarrhal attack. The dollar size of Catarrhozone contains two months' treatment and is guaranteed. Smaller size 50c., sample size, 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company5, Buffalo, N. LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

MACLEAN ON WARPATH

He Tells Parliament What This Country Needs.

Member for South York Assails Railway and Express, Cable and Telegraph Companies and Urges Action—Joseph Armstrong Gives Notice of Resolution to Investigate the Nationalization of Public Utilities.

Ottawa, Dec. 2.—"It is the grievances of the people and the rectification of those grievances within the limitations of the powers of this Parliament to which we should be directing our attention."

In these words W. F. Maclean (South York) criticized the debate on the address.

The great grievances of east as well as west, he said, were the excessive express rates, freight and passenger rates to which the people of Canada were subjected, as well as the urgent need of lower cable and telegraph rates and the control of the capitalization of companies.

The remedy for excessive express charges was the establishment of a parcel post system by the Postmaster-General following the lead set by the most progressive European countries.

State competition, he declared, was the only way to give relief where great private corporations exercised public functions.

Canada, he argued, should establish a state-owned cable to England. It was sound Imperial policy and would bring the cable monopoly to its knees and cut rates in two. Control of land telegraph lines by the Postoffice Department would follow as a necessary completion of the system.

Quite a brisk discussion took place on the announcement of the intention of the Government to transfer the annuities service to the Postoffice Department and dispense with lecturers. Hon. Geo. E. Foster argued that it would mean a more widespread and efficient service at a minimum of cost.

The House passed the remaining estimates for 1911-12, and a supply bill was put through, all three readings, and passed.

Announcement was made that the House would adjourn on Dec. 7 (Thursday), and meet again on Jan. 9, but Mr. Borden agreed to consider the request of several members to postpone the latter date to Jan. 10.

Joseph Armstrong of East Lambton has given notice of a resolution calling for the appointment of a commission "to investigate the systems of national telegraphs and telephones, wireless telegraphs and cable, also postal conditions, laws and regulations, parcel post, means of collecting and distributing mails, with a view to submitting such data and information to the Postoffice Department as would help to improve existing conditions in all the above, and to further enquire into postal facilities in rural districts in other countries, in order that a better system of free rural mail delivery may be inaugurated."

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

An order-in-council has been issued abolishing the close season for white fish in that part of Lake Erie opposite the County of Welland.

The Hamilton, Waterloo and Guelph Railway is coming back to Parliament for legislation. This time the company asks for an extension of time and for power to increase its capital to nine millions.

Mr. Richard Clement, an elderly resident of Chesterville, died very suddenly Thursday. While at dinner, a piece of food lodged in his windpipe and be fore medical aid could reach him he choked to death.

Ultimatum Rejected.

Teheran, Persia, Dec. 2.—The National Council has rejected the Russian ultimatum by a big majority. The Foreign Minister has resigned.

A cablegram from British Foreign Minister, Sir Edward Grey, was presented to the Assembly, urgently advising compliance with the Russian demands, but some of the members pointed out that England's advice had hitherto only led to Persian humiliation. They believed that Sir Edward had been misinformed, and emphatically asserted that Russian injustice had become intolerable.

Huge Loss of Fuel.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—American railroads lose $50,000,000 worth of fuel a year and consume $200,000,000 worth of coal to obtain $80,000,000 worth of efficiency, according to figures prepared by Chief Engineer E. C. Fitch, of the Chicago Great Western Railroad.

In ten years, says the report, American railroads have increased the cost of their fuel supply from $104,926,000 to $213,828,000.

Pritchard Also Drowned.

Port Colborne, Dec. 2.—The body of Wm. Pritichard of Cleveland, engineer of the Raleigh, was washed ashore a short distance from where the steamer was wrecked. He was last seen on the stern of the boat and at intervals gave signals to the watchers on shore, when the stern disappeared he was lost in the heavy seas. The shore in and around Abino Point is strewn with the wreckage and the cargo of pulpwood.

SPEAKS VERY PLAINLY

Sir James Whitney Deals Forcibly With His Critics.

At a Rousing Meeting In Lindsay the Premier Says a Public Man Who Has Nothing to Say on Public Questions Is a Public Fool—Rowell a Good Man But He Has a Lot of Things to Learn.

Lindsay, Dec. 2.—Sir James Whitney struck out right and left at his political opponents last night with sarcasm, and incidentally reviewed the Government's record, and its attitude on the present political issues.

"I have come to the conclusion definitely," said Sir James, "that a public man who hesitates to give his opinion on public questions in a public fool. A man who attempts to hoodwnk the people of Ontario to-day will not succeed, and he ought not to succeed."

The chair was occupied by Wm. Shannon, president of the West Victoria Liberal-Conservative Association. Dr. A. E. Vrooman, the candidate from West Victoria for the Legislature, was one of the speakers.

Sir James, in his opening remarks referred to the loss the whole province has sustained in the death of the late member for West Victoria, S. J. Fox.

With regard to the attitude of his opponents the Premier said: "I'll say something about the Opposition and will say it sympathetically." (Laughter.) Charging Mr. Rowell with having supported iniquities backed by the Ross Government Sir James said:

"Why did he do it? The good outstanding citizen that he is. If he does not answer that, I guarantee I'll ask it of him anyhow. Even now I am prepared to answer it for him, but I say 'sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof'."

As to Mr. Rowell's suggestion that the Dominion and Provincial Governments should not be of the same political party, he said: "The present Government has had a wonderful record, and the Government at Ottawa has not had time yet to have any record, so there's no harm done."

"The leader of the Opposition is a good citizen, there is no doubt of that, but he has a lot to learn."

Dr. Vrooman said he was proud to be a supporter of the present Government. The reason Sir James Whitney had such a big majority was because his Government was a good Government.

Test For Orientals.

Ottawa, Dec. 2.—The British Columbia members are advocating that the Government adopt the Natal act as the best method of handling the Oriental problem. The Natal act provides for an educational test; and calls for the immigrant to be able to read or write in any European language. The act was passed once by British Columbia Legislature, but was disallowed as outside of its province.

The deputation of Hindus who are in Ottawa asking that their wives be admitted to Canada and that the present restrictions be abolished, will hold their final conference with the Minister of Interior to-day. It is understood that the Minister of the Interior takes the stand that it is only human they should be allowed to have their wives and children enter. Particularly as the Sikhs are British subjects and old British soldiers. They will be permitted to enter under strict regulations. The present restrictions as to immigration, however, will not be changed. The Government will likely take the whole question up with the Imperial authorities.

U. S. Tariff Changes.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 2.—Representative Underwood, chairman of the Ways and Means committee, announced yesterday that he would call a meeting of the committee as soon as Congress convened to sound the sentiments of the members as to the tariff revisions program.

"The President," said Mr. Underwood, "will be given a reasonable time in which to submit the reports of the tariff board. If these are withheld too long, the committee will proceed without them. We are certain to submit bills on wool, cotton and iron and steel. The sugar schedule may come later."

Lieut. Montagu "Cashiered."

London, Dec. 2.—The commission of Herbert Montagu as a second lieutenant of the Fifth Battalion of the Royal Fusiliers, was cancelled in last night's issue of The London Gazette, his action in joining the Turkish forces in Tripoli being adjudged a breach of neutrality.

Lieut. Montagu sent a report to the English newspapers that the Italian soldiers had been guilty of horrible atrocities toward native women and children, of whom he declared many hundreds had been mutilated beyond recognition.

Maine Explosion External.

Havana, Dec. 2.—The board of survey which has been engaged with the raising of the battleship Maine has finished its inspection of the ill-fated vessel.

There is scant doubt that the results of the investigation will prove fully corroborative of the finding of the Sampson board of [illegible]iry that the destruction of the Ma[illegible] was due primarily to an extraneo[illegible]plosion, succeeded by partial explosions of the forward magazine.

Tried to Emulate Wallingford.

Lindsay, Dec. 2.—Harry Malcolm Graham, the promoter of a fake electric trolley line from Port Hope to Orillia, who secured the earnings of several of the young men under his employ and married a young lady here was yesterday morning sentenced to Kingston Penitentiary by Magistrate Jackson for a term of three years.

DUKE AT HAMILTON.

Governor-General Welcomed With Great Enthusiasm.

Hamilton, Dec. 2—The visit of Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught was brought to a brilliant close last evening by the public reception at the court house.

About 1,500 invitations had been issued for the function, and the large court room was completely filled by Hamilton citizens. Only about 500 people chose to be presented to the royal couple, however, and these made their bows and curtesies in 57 varieties in less than half an hour.

Her Royal Highness was evidently fatigued by the day's activities, but the duke bowed and smiled, while the presentations were being made as if he enjoyed the proceedings.

The military formed a large portion of the assemblage, and the reception was largely a dress affair. All classes were present, however, and it may be said those who were presented to the royal couple were representative people. The civic banquet at the Royal Hotel early in the evening was attended by 200 guests, and was a brilliant success.

The various functions in connection with the visit of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught were carried off smoothly, and no trouble of any kind was experienced. The police under the direction of Chief Smith and Deputy Chief Whatley handled the crowd in a most satisfactory manner.

Ald. Dr. Davey and the reception committee carried out the program, which had been arranged for the entertainment of the royal visitors, without a hitch, and deserve a great deal of credit for the thorough manner in which the details of the entertainment were looked after. The royal couple left the city at 11.30 last night on their return trip to Ottawa.

Princess Pat Sails.

London, Dec. 2.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—An interested crowd, mostly of ladies, witnessed the departure of Princess Patricia of Connaught at Euston station yesterday. Prince Arthur and Princess Marie Louise, Earl Grey and the Hon. Dudley Ward, representing the Colonial Office, Lord Strathcona Countess Wemyess and Lady Muriel Page were there.

The princess is taking many Christmas presents and a bob sleigh for her own use.

Liverpool, Dec. 2.—Countess Derby and the Lady Mayoress met the Princess Patricia here and conducted her to the boat.

ROWELL AT STRATFORD.

He Quotes Ottawa Citizen Against Sir James.

Stratford, Dec. 2.—Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., spoke here last night in exposition of his platform, and in the interests of the Liberal candidate in this riding of North Perth, Mayor John Brown of Stratford. His address aroused great enthusiasm, and the hall was crowded.

"Do you want an ostrich for your Prime Minister?" asked Mr. Rowell, after quoting the editorial comment of The Ottawa Citizen, "the most influential Conservatve paper in eastern Ontario," on Sir James Whitney's attitude on tax reform. He asked whether they did not think it time to turn out the "ostrich," as Sir James had shown himself, on not only tax reform, but on education, the development of New Ontario, and other matters affecting the welfare of the province, and to put in somebody who would walk with head erect, and eyes open to see what the people want and give it to them. He earnestly urged the electors to place Ontario alongside the progressive western provinces, which had stopped, the iniquitous taxation system that discouraged the improvement of property.

Mr. Rowell declared strongly for freeing the liquor license administration from political interference. The audience cheered when he claimed he was not side-stepping any of these issues, as a local paper charged.

Alluding to Hon. Mr. Hanna's intended visit here to-night, Mr. Rowell referred to articles in The Toronto News and The Mail and Empire about the time his policy for a Central Licensing Board was announced, saying the Government was going shortly to do that very thing, and then told how Sir James had said he did not authorize any such statement.

"Sir James is catering to two extremes," declared Mr. Rowell, with reference to the bilingual school question and the divergent views expressed by his Cabinet. Sir James is seeking to secure the votes of both, and he dare not make a clean-cut statement on the questions I have asked."

Lords Will Obstruct.

London, Dec. 2.—According to The Daily Telegraph the Unionist leaders in the House of Lords have decided to move no amendments to the insurance bill, but to pass it as it stands. The House of Lords, however, will reject the naval prize bill in order to prevent the Government from ratifying the Declaration of London, the international agreement governing prizes in naval warfare, which was approved by the Imperial Conference last June.

This procedure, according to The Daily Telegraph, will delay the passage of the prize bill for two years and the Declaration of London cannot be ratified until the prize bill has received the royal assent.

Germany's Big Naval Plans.

Berlin, Dec. 2.—A news agency, which is sometimes well informed, states that an increase of the German navy has been decided upon.

It says that the Government is determined to spend $90,000,000 on the augmentation of its fleet, which will be spread over six years.

Official circles maintain silence.

Russia Advancing.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 2.—In consequence of the rejection by the Persian National Council of the Russian demands, Russia has ordered the Russian troops now concentrated at Resht, capital of the Persian Province of Ghilan, 16 miles from Enzeli, on the Caspian Sea, to advance on Teheran, a march of about 150 miles.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Dec. 1.—There continues to be a good demand from the continent for all grades of Manitoba spring wheat and the prices bid in some instances showed a further advance of 1½d per quarter. There was also an improved demand from the United Kingdom and bids from London for No. 2 northern showed a profit of 1c per bushel. The volume of business done was fair.

The local market for coarse grains was without any change, prices being steady with a fair trade passing. There was some enquiry from European sources for spring wheat flour, but as the prices bid in some cases were 6d per sack lower, no business was done. A fair local trade is being done at steady prices. Mill feed is active.

Demand for cheese from English buyers is increasing and the tone of the market is firm. Butter is strong and fairly active. Stocks on spot are estimated at 50,000 to 60,000 packages, as against 90,000 to 100,000 a year ago. Eggs, stronger and prices ½c to 1c higher under a good demand. Demand for potatoes good. Canada to "Stagger Germany."

London, Dec. 2.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Express, alluding to the rumor that Winston Churchill, as Lord of the Admiralty, is to raise a new huge navy loan, says: "Undoubtedly Canada means to contribute in kind [illegible] in cash. The [illegible] may [illegible] operation such as will stagger Germany."

REBELS AT GATES.

Imperial Tenure on Nanking Is Becoming Uncertain.

Shanghai, Dec. 2.—While Nanking early this morning still remains in the possession of the Imperial forces under command of Lieut.-Gen. Feng Kwoh Chang, the revolutionists are engaged in bombarding the city and knocking at its four gates, demanding admission. It is believed that much damage to the city has resulted from the bombardment. Large forces of rebel infantry are held in readiness to rush into the city if the guns make breaches in the walls.

Late Friday afternoon a delegation came outside the city and the firing ceased. It is reported that they carried a proposition of surrender, the necessity for which is now believed to be inevitable.

Gen. Feng, notwithstanding the willingness of the viceroy, Chang Jen Chun, and the tartar general to capitulate continues to hold out against such action and practically has made prisoners of them and established a complete military dictatorship.

For the last two weeks Gen. Feng has defied the efforts of the revolutionaries to take the city. The circumference of the walled city is 22 miles. The wall at various places is ninety feet high. It is built of solid masonry and is thirty feet thick. The four main gates to the city are at the principal points of the compass. Tai Ping Mon, the north gate, and Caho Yong Mon, the east gate, are commanded by Purple Hill on the northeast. Purple Hill is fortified and overlooks the entire city.

Gen. Feng inside the city commands 4,000 trained and loyal Shantung troops and some 2,000 old style Imperial troops.

A few foreigners still remain inside Nanking, including members of the Red Cross and the Japanese consul and his guards.

The revolutionaries are continually being reinforced with men and guns. At present their force approximates 15,000 men and there is among them every evidence of an animated determination to take Nanking.

Pukow, across the Yangtse River from Nanking, is garrisoned with 15,000 of Feng's troops.

Wingham Was Flooded.

Londin, Dec. 2.—Must damage to property was caused at Wingham yesterday morning when tons of ice, jamming at the gateway that had been closed in the race-way and electric light station, made a dam, flooding the lower part of the town.

The first intimation the citizens had that anything was wrong came about three o'clock, when the lights went out. A general alarm was given and people got up to find water pouring into their cellars. The streets were filled with chickens and vegetables from the fields and all sorts of produce.

As soon as possible the ice was freed and the water diverted into the river again. Many actions for damages are threatened against the town.

Strikebreakers Poisoned?

New York, Dec. 2.—Rumors that striking garbage men from the New York street cleaning department are attempting to poison the food served to strikebreakers by the city, started a panic among the men employed in one of theup-town stations yesterday. The rumors found some foundation in the sudden death, at Bellevue hospital, of one of the strikebreakers.

Several other strikebreakers are said to be suffering from stomach trouble of unusual character.

CHAPTER XII.

The Cipher

We sat rigid and breathless, with our eyes glued to the slowly revolving door-knob. At last a faint click announced that the latch was released. Then the door opened a few inches, to reveal the slender figure of Alexander Burke.

Manifestly he was ignorant of our presence. Neither I nor Miss Cooper stirred, and Burke was for the time being blinded by having come so abruptly from the snow glare into the comparative dimness of the hall.

I regretted that we were not in a position to follow his movements unobserved, for of course he must be attracted to us the instant either of us stirred. I was exceedingly curious to learn what had brought him back to his employer's house.

And now he did a singular thing. His hand was still on the knob, and only his head and the upper part of his body projected through the doorway. His attitude was that of a strained listener; and had I not been there to testify to the contrary, one might have sworn that he received a warning not to enter. The silence, however, remained absolutely unbroken.

All at once a shudder convulsed his frame. He slowly withdrew his head, as if fearful of disturbing the house's lifeless occupant. Next he deliberately closed the door, without entering at all.

Miss Cooper turned to me in blank amazement, and for a moment I confess that I was nonplussed myself by such singular conduct. But in a second I comprehended: the fellow was afraid.

I laughed quietly, and explained to my companion:

"He expected to find the house thronged with people, and the undisturbed stillness dismayed him. . . Careful! He's still on the porch, hesitating between desire to enter and fear to make the attempt. Slip quietly into the library; I mean to find out what he's after, if I can. He doesn't need to know of your being here."

She colored, and nodded in comprehension, and at once tripped across the hall, carrying with her the card and jewel-box.

"Mind, I shall be close at hand," I whispered after her; which she acknowledged, before the door hid her from me, with one of her bright, friendly smiles.

I then went and threw the front door wide open. Burke jumped as if I had unexpectedly fired a shot at him.

"Come in," said I, dryly.

He stared unblinkingly at me for a moment, but during that moment he recovered his equanimity, and became his customary inscrutable self. It would perhaps be too much to say that the color returned to his face, for it was colorless at all times. However, I knew that for once I had caught the man off his guard.

I surveyed him with derisive contempt.

"I didn't expect to find you here," he said at length.

"And all whom you did expect to find have gone," returned I. "But that's no reason why we should stand holding the door open and filling the house with cold. Come in."

"I don't understand you," said he, hesitating a second longer; "I was looking for no one."

I glanced out for some sign of Stodger, but saw nothing of him. Then I closed the door and placed my back against it.

"Perhaps no one in particular," I observed. "Neither did you anticipate such a forbiddingly empty house. Look here, Burke, what did you come back for?

His eyes might have been actually sightless, his pallid features a lifeless mask, for all the expression they conveyed; there was absolutely no facial sign by which I could even determine whether I commanded his attention; but his hands were never quiet, the slender, nervous fingers twitched unceasingly.

Was his mind occupied by the crack in the library door? For an instant I imagined that he detected Miss Cooper's presence, and my look hardened with a sudden gust of anger; but he immediately answered my question.

"I came for the papers I brought here last evening; they should be returned to the file-case."

"Is Mr. Page wanting them?" I inquired ironically.

"It's not a joking matter, Mr. Swift; it would be decidedly awkward for me to have them misplaced."

"Then I can set your mind at ease: I gave them to Mr. Ulysses White"—naming Mr. Page's lawyer.

Burke elevated the blank expanse where his eyebrows should have been.

"Don't you think," said he, in a tone of hurt surprise, "that you might properly have consulted me before making any disposition of them? I feel, in a way, responsible for all the business affairs which Mr. Page ordinarily entrusted to me."

"I daresay I might have done so," returned I, indifferently. "If you had been present when I handed them to Mr. White. Don't you regard them as being safe with him?

"To be sure—they could'nt be in safer hands. But it is the implication that I no longer command or deserve the confidence—"

"Pooh!" I unceremoniously cut in. "Burke, if I were you, I'd be a little careful how I emphasized an attitude of innocence toward this affair. There's no implication or innuendo about; I'm only too willing to tell you frankly that I am something more than suspicious of you. I know that you haven't told everything you might about this murder. You're lucky that I haven't run you in before this. Is that plain enough?

He recoiled a step, with a queer, hissing intake of breath.

"Swift, he muttered, "I have half a mind to make you prove your words."

"Do," said I, grimly. "I would like nothing better."

He stared at me so long that it gave me an uncanny feeling. I broke the silence with a blunt demand.

"Burke, where's that ruby?"

"Don't try to browbeat me," he said through his teeth. "Please understand that you are not dealing with a criminal, and I don't propose to be bulldozed by any fat-witted sleuths."

I laughed in his face.

"Maybe it will interest you to know that I have wit enough to contrast your secretive manner with Maillot's willingness to talk, and to draw the one consistent inference therefrom."

The Paternoster Ruby—3.

There is a nervous affliction of the eyes, called by pathologists nystagmus, which is charaterized by a perpetual weaving to and fro of the eyeballs; it is impossible for the unfortunate victim to fix his look upon a given point without the greatest effort. When the attention of such a one is not centred the swaying of his eyes goes on incessantly.

So it was now with Burke's pale orbs and his lean death's head. He seemed to be searching, forever feverishly searching, for something that he could not find. There was something positively repulsive about the man in this new guise, although the change was so subtle that I was unable to define it. At last he spoke.

"Swift," he said, scarcely above a whisper, "I'm a peaceable man; nevertheless I resent your aspersions. I can't do it openly in the circumstances; this murder ties my hands; but—damn you!" he suddenly spat at me, "if my silence would hang Royal Maillot, I'd bite my tongue out before I'd ever utter another word. There you have it."

I stared at him in astonishment. Was it possible that this cold-blooded creature could harbor an emotion as fiery as hatred.

"What have you against Maillot?" I sternly asked, after a pause.

His bloodless upper lip, thin and flexible, curled in a smile; there was a momentary flash of his teeth.

"You're a detective," he said; "find out."

I pondered, still regarding him.

"So," said I at last, "it's to be warfare between you and me, is it? Very well. Take care, Burke, for I do mean to find out. And I promise you that when I do you'll get all you have coming to you."

He knew that I was more or less at sea; he had divined that in my own mind I had already cleared him of the actual murder.

"Thank you," he now had the impudence to say suavely. "Forewarned is forearmed, you know."

"You get out of here, Burke," I said, without heat, eyeing him steadily.

"Do you mean," he asked quickly, "that I'm not to have an opportunity to ascertain whether I left any of my possessions here?" I fancied that he was disconcerted.

"I mean that I haven't any time to waste on you," I replied, evenly. "I'm busy now; but I'll take care of you when the time comes. If you want to go to any other part of the house, be quick about it."

Again his voice dropped.

"You intend to go with me—I see. I'm not to be trusted. I'll submit to no such indignity."

"Just as you choose."

He moved over to the door. There was no use questioning him further, because all his defences were up. But I watched him steadily—as I would have watched any other dangerous animal that I was not at liberty to crush.

At the door he paused and looked back; for the briefest instant his restless glance lingered upon an indefinable point up the stair-well. So thereabouts lay the centre of interest, did it?

The door was open; he turned again to me.

"I'll go," he said, "and—"

"And you need not come back," I broke in curtly. "This house will not be unguarded for one second until the ruby is found."

I felt, rather than saw, that the blank eyes flashed venomously.

"You devil!" he hissed, slipping hastily through the narrow aperture—"you devil!"

Next instant he was gone. And I drew a great brea[illegible] relief.

When I turned [illegible] Miss Cooper was advancing from the library, her eyes bright with suppressed excitement.

"What a horrid creature!" exclaimed she. "I heard all, Mr. Swift; no wonder Uncle Alfred despises the man."

I looked sharply at her: what earthly reason should Alfred Fluette have for despising Felix Page's private secretary? But of this later. If I was not much mistaken, Miss Cooper held in her hand the cause of her present pleased agitation.

"What have you discovered?"

"This." She handed me a small slip of paper. "I found it inside the lining of the little leather box."

"A cipher!" I cried, sharing some

The bit of paper, perhaps three inches long by an inch wide, was of almost parchment-like fineness and bore a number of peculiar characters written in black ink. At the first glance it suggested a safe combination; but after a minute's intent examination, during which the girl could scarcely restrain her eager impatience, I was obliged to forego that idea.

"Good for you!" was my admiring tribute. The color heightened in her cheeks. "I wonder, now, since you were keen enough to find it, whether you can make anything of it? Honestly—do you know—when I examined that box I never thought to look under the lining."

With her head on one side, she stared regretfully at the bit of paper.

"It's Greek to me," she said.

"To me, too. I'd give a good deal to know what those hieroglyphs mean."

She clapped her hands with sudden delight.

"My!" she exclaimed, "it's just like a story! Isn't this what you call a cryptograph? It tells where a hidden treasure is, does it not?"

Glancing at her beautiful, animated countenance, I answered truthfully, "Yes'; but added, "It at least points me to a treasure that is unattainable."

For an instant she was puzzled, then she bent suddenly over the cipher and asked no more questions.

We had gone in to the big library table, where, with heads pleasantly close together, we studied in silence the seemingly meaningless characters. But after some minutes devoted to this exercise, we were constrained to give it up as hopeless. This is what the paper bore:

"I'm afraid I shall prove to be a very indifferent assistant," she lamented, with a rueful little laugh. "I didn't deserve your commendation even for finding the cipher, because, while I was examining the box I was too intent on listening to you and that dreadful Burk creature to heed what I was doing. I felt the paper crackle, and then saw a corner of it through one of the rents in the faded blue satin."

"Never mind now. Maybe we shall understand it later. Some ciphers, you know, are to be read only in connection with something else; I think this is such a one. Let's put it away and take up something that I know you can help me with.

"That faded card"—I pointed to it lying upon the table, and noted that her face instantly grew grave—"why did you start so when you first looked at it—just as we heard Burke on the porch?"

She regarded me steadily.

"Mr. Swift, that is my aunt's handwriting—her name."

"Do you mean Mrs. Fluette?" I was in truth unprepared for this blunt announcement.

"Yes," she replied simply.

I believe the first effect of this disclosure was no more than an uneasy, apprehensive feeling; but in a flash the possibilities entailed began to occur to me, and I was left groping for words.

During the silence that followed I vainly tried to arrange my thoughts; the color slowly faded from Miss Cooper's face, and by and by she averted it from mine. I knew that our minds were working in parallel currents; I knew without looking at her that she was anxious and trembling.

At last I secured a grip upon myself, and I addressed her with decision.

"You believe I will do what is right, do you not?"

"Yes," she murmured, without looking up.

"Then I fear that our pact is to be short-lived, after all. This cursed tragedy is twining its tentacles nearer home than either of us dreamt of."

What, in the bitterness of my own reflections, was I allowing myself to say! I silently cursed myself for a blundering fool. The girl's gray face, the pinched look of it, frightened me. I started from my chair.

"Miss Cooper!"

For her head had dropped forward upon one curved arm, and she was shaken by a storm of tears.

CHAPTER III.

Disclosures

After some minutes of miserable waiting on my part, the storm spent itself; she sat upright again, dried her eyes upon a bit of handkerchief, and spoke—quite calmly, but terribly in earnest.

"Mr. Swift, I know what your inference is—that Uncle Alfred must be in some way involved—but you don't know all the significance of the flash of understanding that so overwhelmed me. The idea that there could ever have been a love affair between Aunt Clara and Mr. Page is astounding enough"—she glanced at the card—"eighteen fifty-seven: why, she was only a mere slip of a girl then; much younger than I am now!"

It was patent that the revelation had startled and thrilled her; however, there was a more insistent, underlying trouble struggling for expression.

"But—Mr. Swift—do you think that this wheat deal has hurt Uncle Alfred financially?"

Poor child! One could not smile at the simplicity of such a question. I now thought I knew the foundation of this new fear that was gripping at her heart. But I didn't—not entirely; there was another surprise in store for me.

"It is very likely," I soberly made answer.

For all I knew to the contrary, his entire fortune might have been wiped out in the crash; he might have been beggared, stripped utterly; although, since he had not engineered the corner single-handed, he would be obliged to meet only his proportion of the total loss, whatever that might be. An outsider might only guess.

"It is not charitable to think or speak ill of the dead," she was saying, "but, oh! what a cruel, pitiless man Mr. Page was. Think of the long years of persecution Uncle Alfred has had to endure."

But I was regarding the matter from quite a different point of view. I was thinking rather of that broken wheat corner as the culminating stroke of an implacable enemy; of the probability that the rifled safe contained more love-tokens similar to the card—many more, in fact, that the thief did not miss the one he had lost. I was thinking that the warfare between the two men had its inception much further back in the past than anybody had ever imagined, and that it was no longer strange why Page had wrested the ruby from his rival. One must consider Fluette's passion for collecting rare gems to appreciate to the full the consummate malice of that coup.

This disturbed pondering, however, carried me round in a circle. If there had been love-tokens in the safe from Clara Cooper, Alfred Fluette was the only man living who would have any interest in getting them from Page. Again, if Page's hatred of Fluette was so intense that he would part with a fortune merely to deprive his rival of a coveted jewel, would he give this same jewel to a nephew for whom he entertained no liking, knowing that the jewel was destined for his enemy, simply upon that nephew's demand? Why, the bare grouping of the facts discredited Maillot's story; he was left in a worse plight than before.

I trust it is at least clear how heterogeneous were the elements of this crime.

And then—to start swinging round the circle once more—if Alfred Fluette was entirely blameless of Felix Page's murder, the tragedy could not have occurred at a more unfortunate time for him. Considering all the circumstances, it would be no great strain upon the credulity to picture Fluette, driven to desperation, ridding himself of the foe that had hounded him to ruin.

There was nothing else for me to do except follow these avenues to the end; but whichever was the right one, that end must be bitter. I met the piteous look in Genevieve Cooper's eyes, and my heart sank.

I have often been told that when I want it to be my countenance is illegible; assuredly, at this moment it was not my desire that she should glimpse the tumult of thought and emotion to which I was a prey; but I have reasons, numberless as the sands of the sea, for knowing that it never was indecipherable to the bright blue eyes now searching it so earnestly.

All at once Miss Cooper was on her feet, the shadow of a great dread darkening her countenance; her voice trembled like the voice of a little child that is afraid. Her next words supplied more definite knowledge respecting her uncle's financial condition.

"I told you that both my parents died when I was an infant, Mr. Swift; they did not leave me entirely penniless. Uncle Alfred is the guardian of my estate—my personal guardian, too—and he—my God, I can't say it!"

"Perhaps," said I, gently, "I can surmise what you can't bring yourself to put into words: is it that he may be unable to strictly account for his trust?"

She winced at the question, and sank back into her chair.

"No—that's not it—not exactly," she said, with manifest effort. "But it is almost as bad.

"I was of age the fifth of last month—December—and on that day Uncle Alfred came to me in great distress. He told me that he was expecting any day—almost any hour—that a demand would be made upon him for an enormous sum of money; a demand that he would have to meet promptly or go down in utter ruin. He told me that his own affairs were in such shape that he couldn't raise near the amount of the demand, and that he would be obliged to eke it out with my patrimony.

"I don't know whether or not the demand has ever been made; I don't know whether or not he has used any of my fortune—it isn't much; but he is welcome to every penny of it, for he has always been good and kind and generous. I have never asked him for an accounting, nor has he volunteered one. I simply don't know what to think. If he is in such desperate straits it is inevitable that his name will be linked with this crime. Poor Belle! Poor Aunt Clara!"

I could not dispute the reasonableness of her conclusion; her own mind had already linked the man with the crime. But what was the nature of the demand he was expecting? Her disclosure was mystifying. It was not probable that he had anticipated failure for his Board of Trade operations at such an early date.

"It was a foolish step, my coming here to see you," Miss Cooper complained heartbrokenly; "it places me in a bitterly cruel position. Knowing what I do now, if I remain silent I may be to blame for Belle suffering through Royal's unjust accusation; if I speak I will be treacherous to the very heart that has fostered me."

I am glad that my chief's cold, unfeeling eye did not rest upon me at that moment. Her distress was mine. And I could not turn aside from the way which was opening so plainly before me.

Here, now, I had two motives for the murder: Fluette's mad desire for the ruby and, since the ashes of old romance had been so ruthlessly stirred, the most powerful of all human motives—jealousy.

It was possible, too, that a third person had been in the house last night; but if so, one of the two men had lied. The bit of candle found by me on the rear stairs had adhered to somebody's shoe while still plastic; if either Burke or Maillot had used these stairs at or about the time of the murder, then both had studiously kept the fact from me. It was possible that one of the two could have made fast the front door behind a fugitive, without the other's knowledge; Burke, for example, before he summoned Maillot.

But my chief concern now was for this sorely distressed girl. She had told but the bare truth; her position could scarcely be more cruel. Her eyes followed me with an expression of such tragic helplessness that I knew the issue was left for me to decide. I sprang up and commenced walking the floor. It was a long time before I could make up my mind just what to say, and during my troubled cogitation there was not an interruption, not a sound, from her.

By and by I paused, and stood looking down into the wistful face.

"Miss Cooper," I began, "it seems that you trust me, and, believe me, I'm keenly sensible of the responsibility. I shall ask nothing of you which I think you can't freely perform; nothing that is not for the best interests of all concerned—all for whom you care, I mean."

She interrupted me.

"Sit down—here where you were before; it will not seem so much like your talking to me from a distance."

I obeyed. The chairs were quite close together.

"It seems to me," I went on, "that we should continue in the direction that has been pointed out for us; follow the light, however dim. There is a mystery here, and we are just now only skimming the surface of it; let's plunge below and see if we can't bring up at least part of the truth.

"It is hard to believe that Alfred Fluette has been instrumental in Felix Page's death, even indirectly, but harder, more unjust to him, to pause without dissipating the cloud we have unexpectedly cast over him. The temptation to scrutinize his conduct and bearing is irresistible. Is it not better to lay bare all the facts, than to leave matters in the equivocal condition they now are?"

"You mean," she murmured brokenly, "you mean that—now—after what has happened between us—the duty of pressing forward at whatever cost is far more imperative than any other obligation that I may be under; that the innocent must not be sacrificed to shield the guilty."

That was precisely what I meant, but I lacked the courage to tell her.

"My dear Miss Cooper!" I said, in a voice as tremulous with emotion as her own.

"I trust you," she said simply.

I knew not what to say; her faith in me was manifestly so boundless that I was humbled to the earth. And yesterday we were ignorant of each other's very existence! Stressful circumstance can level the conventions with amazing swiftness.

"You are trembling," she whispered presently. "I am making what would be a commonplace matter very difficult for you."

"No—no!" I protested. "I feel for you; I can't tell you how much."

"Don't think of me," she again whispered, her look averted.

"I can think of nothing else," said I. My teeth suddenly clenched, and I bent toward her.

"I'll not allow this thing!" I undertoned in a savage outburst, recognizing the futility of my anger even as I spoke. "I shall not allow you to become further involved in this thing. Whatever the cost, I shall shield you."

A pitiful smile stirred her lips.

"You have shown me my duty," she said, with gentle firmness; "you can't dissuade me now."

What do words avail at such a time! I loved this splendid girl, and my heart ached for her. I was almost swept from my balance by a sudden mad yearning to take her in my arms and try to comfort her.

Yes, I loved her; there is no use in holding back the confession; else where would be my great personal interest and concern in the death of Felix Page?

Yet I did not protest further; remonstrance would avail me nothing. Gently as she had spoken, it was driven home to me that she had expressed a determination which no power in heaven or on earth below could change.

Another long silence followed, during which I as well as she was stirred by the most conflicting emotions. At last, though, I too began to see my way clear. Matters could not be helped any by either of us shirking the least part of a responsibility which had, within the last few minutes, become sweetly mutual. How anxious I was to spare her!

The silence was broken by Genevieve abruptly rising.

"I must really go," she announced, hurriedly. She was the least bit flurried, and there was a wonderful soft light in their handsome eyes that had not been there when she came. As she passed me she lightly brushed my shoulder with the gloved tips of her one hand.

"I am no longer cast-down," I heard her murmur; "I know you will do—what is right."

I caught the fingers, detaining her. "Don't go—not yet."

She lingered, expectant and more cheerful.

"I can't let you go like this"—I was steady enough now. She moved again to the chair she had just vacated, and I released the slim, soft fingers.

"There is one thing we haven't considered," I pursued, "and that is Mr. Alexander Burke. You say Mr. Fluette despises him: if he does, it is not without warrant, I'd be willing to swear. What that fellow's game is I can't just at this time conceive, but I'm confident that he's playing one of some kind—a deep one, too. If he is, the potentialities are endless with such a cunning, unscrupulous rascal.

"I'm satisfied, moreover, that he has lied to me. According to his statement, no one was in this house last night besides himself, Mr. Page, and Royal Maillot. Between him and Maillot I give the latter the preference, for, if the stories of both are true on any one point, it is that Burke was up and about before and during the time the murder was committed. Burke is consequently in the best position to know who was or was not in the house.

"Now I have a particular reason for thinking that this is one phase of the matter about which he has lied. Should it be that some one else was here—some one that we knew nothing about—why, that would put an entirely different complexion upon the affair."

"Suppose," she propounded evenly, "that it was Uncle Alfred?"

I looked at her earnestly.

"You don't know that he was here," was my sober comment.

"No."

"Well, then, what's the use of borrowing trouble?"

"It's very silly—especially as I have trouble enough as it is."

With an impulsive movement, she thrust one little gloved hand into mine.

"I am still your assistant," she affirmed, striving hard to be gay, "if you will have me now. Together we will drive the trouble away."

I caught the other hand, and held the two of them together. She permitted the caress for a moment—for caress it was—then drew her hands away.

"Good-bye," she said faintly, without looking up.

But I got my hat and coat and walked down to the gate with her. Of a sudden, after we reached the walk, she moved a pace or two away from me and halted. Her pretty face dimpled in a smile, and there was a gleam of mischief in the blue eyes. One can't be always melancholy.

"I suppose I'm a big goose," she said, "to have any faith in you; I'm thinking it's a case of misplaced confidence."

She waved a hand, gathered her skirts closely about her slender figure and tripped away through the snow.

I could not realize any portion of the past when she had not been near and dear to me.

CHAPTER XIV.

Riddles

I returned to the library and heaped the fireplace with coal. For an hour after Genevieve's departure I was utterly unable to concentrate my mind upon any congeries of fact that might be of the least possible use in unraveling the badly tangled skein presented by Felix Page's death; I could see nothing but the fine blue eyes clouded with trouble, and the sweet face under the shadow of her gnawing anxiety.

I fished up the cipher, flattened it upon the library table, and strove manfully to hold my vagrant attention to the task of interpreting its secret message. My thoughts straightway wandered back to Genevieve again.

Now that I was alone, it was inevitable that I should sum up the results of our conference. I did not blink the truth; the facts were plain, not susceptible of argument.

No matter what the future might have in store for Genevieve and me, whether it was replete with delicious promise, or whether the useless iron gate marked the parting of our ways, her intrusion must ever remain a cherished memory. But it would have been better for her peace of mind not to have sought me out. If she had not, she would have remained ignorant of the circumstance that she possessed any knowledge hurtful to her uncle; if she had remained away, the accusation that he had come to harm through her could never reproach her in after years.

Her errand had been impelled by a conviction that I would appreciate her more intimate knowledge of her cousin's lover. She knew that she could lay before me no tangible testimony in his behalf, but hoped that I could be made to sympathize with her estimate of his character.

During her first visit to the house, with Belle, she had clearly recognized the seriousness of the young man's predicament, and that I would be governed only by the facts as I read them. Notwithstanding he was somewhat fiery and headstrong, if she could influence me to see that he was honest, sincere and straightforward, she felt hopeful that I would continue my investigation with a strong leaning in his favor.

Was ever a cipher so empty of all meaning! What addle-pate had conceived it? Why should he want to perpetrate anything so idiotic?

By her simplicity and singleness of purpose, however, she had innocently drawn my attention to her uncle; then, in a measure, she had verified my awakened suspicions. While Maillot and Felix Page were in the library, engrossed in their own affairs, could Alfred Fluette have been in the house?

Highly improbable as such a contingency might appear, still it was by no means impossible. "Suppose," Genevieve had asked me, "that it was Uncle Alfred?" Never, unless she herself had some reason to doubt and mistrust, would she have propounded that question. Had he been absent from home until an unwontedly late hour last night? Was his manner in the morning of a nature to draw attention to himself, so that, in the light of later developments, it had provoked her suspicions? I had purposely refrained from asking her any questions touching upon this possibility.

ANIMAL AND RACIAL ODOURS.

How Nationalities Can be Scented

That every human being and every animal possesses an individual odour we know, although generally our own sense of smell cannot distinguish one from another, for the more sensitive scent of the dog does this with ease from the slightest traces. That the personal odour of an entire race has a character of its own we also know. In most cases this odour is displeasing to members of different races. The odour of the negro is often spoken of by white races as offensive, but it will be news to most of us that the odour of Europeans is quite as objectionable to the Japanese. A Japanese physician, Dr. Burtaro Adacki, has recently published some remarkable observations on this subject, from which we quote the following paragraphs:

"This physician states that 'it is certain that the Western peoples possess a natural odour which is not perceived by them, but which is clearly perceptible to the yellow race.' After a certain length of time, however, both Japanese and Chinese who have taken up their residence in Europe become habituated to this odour, it being the experience of these European residents that the odour of Europeans, which at first was intolerable, after several weeks' residence becomes supportable.

"Every living animal possesses in general a characteristic odour — horses, dogs, cats, etc., man himself having an emanation which is a part of the race and which may be individual and variable with age and condition of health. The sudoriferous glands produce the emanation perceived by the sense of smell, although it is true that the Chinese and Japanese have little or no odorous emanation. When these races perspire, their perspiration has no odour, a fact which is doubtless chiefly a question of race, although also probably one of alimentary regime. In the white races observers who possess an acute sense of smell can distinguish solely by this means those persons who follow a vegetarian regime and those who eat meat, at times the difference between these two classes of persons being very pronounced. The individuals who nourish themselves on meat exhale, under the influence of the fermentation of cutaneous secretions, a much stronger odour than vegetarians. Experimenters in ethnography know that there exist provincial odours, the odour of Brunswick being different from that of Bavaria, that of Savoy different from that of Normandy.

"The Japanese are chiefly vegetarians, and for this reason their skin exhales odours which are scarcely perceptible; but here clothing plays its role, for if we superimpose many layers of tissue closely around the body, perspiration is produced, and with it the odour of disassimilation.

THE ORIGIN OF MAN

Recent Research is Held to Support Theory that the Human Race had Tail-Less Ape Ancestors.

Since Darwin first suggested the theory of evolution, scientists galore have been studying along the same lines, and man's origin is being gradually pushed further and further into the remote ages. Reviewing the remarkable discoveries of the last ten years in Western Europe, Professor McCurdy shows that it is being gradually proved that the human race is as old as any of the tailless apes, and probably had the same ancestors. The oldest undisputed flint implements date from the Upper Miocene period of geology; the oldest human bone, the jaw of "Homo heidelbergensis, from near the beginning of the Quarternary. Primitive man, therefore, must have lived in Western Europe during the entire Glacial period, and developed into "Homo primigenius," low in stature and robust, with short, stout arms and legs — much like the Eskimo of today. A more intellectual race, probably from the East, appeared in the Upper Quarternary, or at least 30,000 years ago. This people, "Homo aurignacensis," sculptured and frescoed the walls of the caverns and their own implements, and their descendants, who must have flourished more than 10,000 years ago, introduced the rudiments of writing. The negroid people probably came into Western Europe soon after. Professor Klaatsch finds "Home primigenius" to be closely related to the gorilla of Africa, and "Homo aurignacensis" to resemble more nearly the chimpanzee of Asia.

The Manchurian Bean.

The "Japan Herald" has drawn attention to the fact that Manchurian beans were formerly used only to make tofu, miso, and soy. About fifty years ago Chinese near Tiehling and Kaiyuan first produced oil from them by a process similar to that employed for sesame and linseed. This oil was used for fuel and for cooking, and the residual for bean-cake fodder. In the winter of 1908 it began to be exported into Europe, where it was found to be better than cotton-seed for fuel, soap-making, and feeding cattle. This success has marvellously increased the area devoted to the growing of the beans, and has caused the farmers in the north of Manchuria to give up wheat-raising. The Shantung farmers discovered that bean-cake was a first-rate fertiliser, and after the war with China this bean-cake was largely exported to Japan. The oil is used in Manchuria for lighting, lubricating, and cooking, and in south China in making waterproof cloth, paper umbrellas, and lanterns, and is often mixed with lacquer for making varnish and printing-ink. The Chinese hit upon the principle of rotation of leguminous with cereal crops quite accidentally, without knowing anything of the scientific explanation.

THOUGHT IT WAS CANCER

"Fruit-a-tives" completely restored me

SYDNEY MINES, N.S., Jan. 25th. 1910.

"For many years, I suffered tortures from Indigestion and Dyspepsia. Two years ago, I was so bad that I vomited my food constantly. I also suffered with Constipation. I consulted physicians, as I was afraid the disease was cancer, but medicine gave only temporary relief.

I read in the 'Maritime Baptist' about 'Fruit-a-tives' and the cures this medicine was making and I decided to try it. After taking three boxes, I found a great change for the better and now I can say 'Fruit-a-tives' has entirely cured me when every other treatment failed, and I reverently say "Thank God for 'Fruit-a-tives'."

EDWIN ORAM, Sr.

"Fruit-a-tives" sweetens the stomach, increases the actual quantity of gastric juice in the stomach and ensures complete digestion of all sensible food. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Gradually Growing

$3.50 Recipe Free For Weak Kidneys

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forhead and the back-of-the-head-aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing mucle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a QUICK RECOVERY, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this Dr. A. E. Robinson, K1793 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope, as you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free--you can use it and cure yourself at home.

A good deal has of late been made by newspaper writers of a negro who is gradually becoming white. There have been several cases of that kind but Belleville had, many years ago, a negro who was white and had never been black. His face, which was white, was heavily freckled and his "wool" was of a very light-color. No doubt many of the old inhabitants will remember "white George" whose regular occupation was sawing cordwood.

READ this OPINION Of the Largest Jack Manufacturer in the Whole World About Zutoo Tablets

"I have been a sufferer from headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all, of the so-called "cures" on the market. Some months since my attention was called to your Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a "sick" or "nervous" headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effect. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I find them a good remedy for "sour" stomach as well as headache. I always carry them in my grip on the road and would not be without them at any cost."

Canadian Women and their Work

The work of the Canadian nurse may take her as far east and north as Dr. Grenfell's mission to the fishing people of Labrador. She may care for well-to-do, and sometimes for very wealthy patients in cities like Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. She does district nursing among the poor in the same prosperous cities. She may organize new hospitals in hastily-built shacks. These shacks are succeeded quickly by permanent hospital buildings and the nurse, working single-handed one month, may find herself by the next with four or five probationers and an improvised training school for nurses. The Victorian Order of Nurses was first instituted in Canada by Lady Aberdeen. The cottage hospitals of the Order were inaugurated by Lady Minto. The Lady Grey Country District Nursing Association is a further scheme of the same character designed to serve a new and widespread country with trained nursing aid. Victorian Order nurses are to be found in every part of Canada. The head office of the Order is at Ottawa. These nurses often help to man — or rather to woman — the staff of a small hospital in a new town where a short time before there had been no means of affording skilled attention to the sick. Further west still, Canadian nurse will be found at work in some little logging hospital where lumber-jacks and prospectors come to be nursed back to health. Thus a study of nursing in Canada reveals more intimately perhaps than an account of any other occupation for women in this country the conditions likely to be experienced by self-supporting women in Canada.

Conditions for trained nurses in Canadian cities are fairly represented by the fortunes of a typical nurse at work in Toronto. There are five training schools for nurses in Toronto, one in each of the large hospitals. No difficulty is experienced in securing good material for probationers, a significant fact considering that from twenty to twenty-five thousand young women are employed in the factories of Toronto, while permanen advertisements on factory walls, calling for workers, show that manufacturers need more women helpers than they are able to attract.

Many nurses after graduating from one of the Toronto training schools remain to nurse in the city. Others return to their homes or enter professional life in the United States. Besides nurses in hospitals and other institutions, there are over five hundred trained women in private nursing in Toronto. The largest registry for trained nurses has more than three hundred and fifty names on its books. A subordinate hospital position for a nurse in Canada carries with it a salary of from twenty-five to forty dollars a month. The superintendent of nurses in a small hospital sometimes receives four hundred dollars a year. From five to six hundred dollars is a usual salary for a superintendent of nurses who is head of a training school. A salary of twelve hundred dollars is a prize in Canadian hospital work. In private nursing, a trained nurse with ability and good connections is likely to make six or seven hundred dollars a year in Toronto. An exceptional nurse may make as much as nine hundred dollars, but this is doubtful. Should the Canadian nurse go to the States, as many of them do, she makes more money, and her expenses are correspondingly greater. The cost of living in Canada, however, is tending to approximate to that in the United States. Any difference between the two countries in the social position of the trained nurse is slight, but it is in favor of the nurse in Canada. The professional standing of the Canadian nurse is so good that there is no discrimination against her employment in the United States. There may even be said to be a prejudice in her favor.

LADY TAYLOR, (HAMILTON)

Takes a warm active interest in all branches of Women's Work

The more adventurous and exceptional work of the trained nurse in Canada is outside the cities. The life of such a nurse is also exceptionally exacting. The trained nurse of the Victorian Order with Dr. Grenfell in Labrador is a typical instance of exceptional experience in work. Working under a physician who has four hundred miles of coast under his care, the nurse sometimes is compelled to assume great and varied responsibility. In one of her letters to the Chief Superintendent of the Order she writes that there are two things which make the Labrador people easy to deal with, their faith in the power and knowledge of the nurse, and the absence of liquor. It is not only nursing care which is required from the nurse in the Canadian Labrador. She teaches the young girls of the settlement to cook, to nurse and to sew. Two years ago, she instituted a flower show and offered prizes for vegetables, flowers, bread, cake, pies, and the more strictly Labradorean requirements, hooked mats, skin boots, models of komatik and dogs, model of boat with sails, and litter of puppies with their mother. Much of the philosophy of life for a woman in a new country is contained in this list of prizes offered by a Canadian nurse in Labrador.

The greatest need for trained nursing in Canada is among the settlers' wives in the West. Hundreds of Canadian young women go to be trained in the hospitals of the States and remain in that country. One of the leading New York hospitals has in a training-school of one hundred and over no less than thirty-six Canadian born women. One hundred and ninety of the graduates of the same hospital are Canadians. A training-school in a Boston hospital has thirty-four Canadian girls in a school of about one hundred nurses in training. Out of a staff of twenty-three graduate nurses in this hospital no less than eleven are Canadians. Even with this great drain on the nursing resources of the country, the majority of trained nurses in western Canada are still Canadian women. So far there is but one Lady Grey Country District Nursing Association in Southern Alberta. The nurse makes one ranch where she is needed her head-quarters and rides on horseback to make calls on her patients within riding distance. The scheme offers great possibilities. Many districts are so sparsely settled that a nurse would find difficulty in obtaining enough employment for support. A trained nurse would need at the least an income of five hundred dollars. The Country District Nursing Association is one way in which this difficulty will be overcome. A woman journalist in Winnipeg made the suggestion last year that the women in town and country should form clubs and employ a trained nurse to care for the members of the club. Conditions in the West are changing steadily. But trained nursing aid has still to be brought within reach of many of the women of western Canada.

MISS GEORGIE M. MOLONY
Lady Supt. Hales Hospital, Quebec.

There is no keen demand for additional trained nurses in cities like Toronto and Montreal. Yet it is true that there is no place in Canada where a competent, well-trained, able nurse will not find it possible to make her way. In the large cities especially, she will need some little capital until she gets an opporunity to show that she can do good work. But if she is an excellent nurse she is certain of employment. Trained nurses are needed in the West. But patients are widely scattered and government aid, a women's club, or some nursing order like the Victorian Order of Nurses is required to organize a system of country nursing. To those who have worked for some solution of the nursing problem in the West of Canada, it is good to recognize in the trained nurse of the Country District Nursing Association, riding across the dipping and rising prairie with her supplies on the saddle-bow, a new and fit disciple of the Lady of the Lamp. In the prairie country the advent of the trained nurse on horseback brings with it a promise of better conditions for the women on farms and ranches

Mere Man and the Hat Pin

"The hat pin," remarked a magistrate lately, "is dangerous, superfluous, and ought to be abolished."

Quite so. And he might have added that it is neither so efficacious for the purpose it is intended to serve as was the old-fashioned elastic, nor becoming, as were the "strings" our grandmothers wore.

Change is not necessarily progress, and many modern so-called "improvements" are not really improvements at all.

Every woman knows, for instance, how the newfangled curling tongs crack and destroy the hair, unless skilfully used by an expert.

Nor do any of the many patent wire "curlers" give the soft waviness obtainable by the use of the time-honoured tag of soft rag, or the wisp of tissue paper.

TRY OUR BINDERY FOR PAMPHLET WORK

There are a number of women practising medicine in Western Canada. Dr Mary Crawford of Winnipeg, who is at present abroad, is one of the best known of these. She is a medical inspector of schools in Winnipeg. No account of Canadian women in medicine would be complete without a notice of a typical woman physician who is in country practice. Such a practioner is Dr. Annie Backus of Aylmer. She was born near Port Rowan and is of United Empire stock. She went to school in Port Huron and later attended Bishop's Strachan's School in Toronto. Dr. Backus did not begin to study medicine until after her marriage to her cousin, A. H. Backus. She took her medical degree at Ann Arbor. Afterwards she studied diseases of women in Chicago. She followed general practice in the States, then studied in Great Britain, practised in the States again, and finally returned to Canada where she is in general practice at Aylmer.

These are some typical instances of the work is being done by Canadian the work which is being done by Canadian women in medicine. The present account does not aim to be anything but an indication of how naturally and effectively such medical work may be done by women in Canada. It is not at all unlikely that when Canadian women as a whole begin an active part in civic improvement, on school boards, and in work for public health, much of the impulse will come from leading women in medicine. Dr. Augusta Stowe Gullen was for several years a member of the Public School Board of Toronto. Canada is a country in which development is taking place on essentially normal lines and those of its women who are physicians follow their calling from much the same motives which influence Canadian men who become doctors. They like medical work, and they believe that there is work in medicine which they can do effectively.

THE CANADIAN NURSE

By Marjory MacMurchy

New types emerge more rapidly in new countries than they do in old. The population of the Dominion of Canada at Confederation was a little over three millions, and Confederation took place only forty-five years ago. Yet already in one professional calling Canadian women have made so distinctive a position that the Canadian nurse is generally accepted as a national type. Her Canadian accent is sometimes called "American" by her friends from overseas and "English" by Americans. The color in her cheeks is apt to be brighter than if she had been born south of the line. Her eyes are likely to be blue or grey rather than black or brown. Her hair is generally yellow-brown, dark brown or auburn. Altogether her type is a trifle more northern and less nervous than that of the young women of the United States.

It is reckoned by historians that the first nurses came to Quebec in 1639. They were Sisters of St. Augustin. Mademoiselle Jeanne Mance arrived at Montreal in 1641. These are the beginnings of the famous history of nursing in Canada. It is a notable fact that Canadian women make remarkably fine nurses and that a fairly large proportion of the women of Canada who engage in profitable occupations enter the nursing profession. The names of many Canadian nurses may be given who are regarded as leaders in their calling. Such a list must include the names of Canadian nurses in the United States as well as in Canada since very many Canadian born women are among the leaders of the nursing profession in the United States. Mrs. Hampton Robb whose lamented death took place not very many months ago was a Canadian nurse. Her work will always be remembered in nursing annals. Miss Snively who was for more than twenty-five years at the head of the Training School for Nurses in the Toronto General Hospital and who has recently retired is another Canadian women who is regarded as a leader among nurses. Miss Nutting, joint author of the well-known "History of Nursing", is a native of Newfoundland. All through the various States of the Union Canadian nurses are to be found at the head of training schools and hospitals. Miss Lauder Sutherland, a native of Coburg is in charge of the hospital at Hartford, Conn. Miss Mary Smith is at the head of The Babies' Hospital, New York. Miss Samuel once the head of the Roosevelt Training School is now head of the Lakeside Hospital, Cleveland. These are but representatives of a large number of Canadian nurses whose work has taken them to the United States.

Among the most widely known names of nurses eminent in Canada are these of Miss Georgina Pope who went out charge of the nursing sisters with the First Contingent to South Africa in 1899. She remained in South Africa fifteen months, and went out again in January, 1902, remaining till peace was declared. Miss Pope received the Royal Red Cross given among King Edward's first Birthday honors. Miss Pope is Matron of the Military Hospital at Halifax. Miss MacKenzie, head of the Victorian Order of Nurses in Canada, is a university graduate and has had much experience in nursing in the United States. From Prince Edward Island to Victoria, Canadian nurses are in charge of hospitals in the various towns and cities. Typical among these are Miss Ross in Charlottetown, Miss Malony at the Jeffrey Hale Hospital in Quebec, Miss Henderson, Miss Gilmour and many others in Montreal, Miss Meiklejohn in Ottawa, Miss Steyart, Miss Brent, Miss Scott and many others in Toronto, Miss Johns in Fort William, Miss Wilson in Winnipeg and Miss McFarlane in Vancouver. These names stand as representative of a hundred others which might be mentioned. School nurses in Montreal, Toronto and Hamilton are occupied in what is already a successful development of nursing.

Buy PURITY— the high-class flour and do your duty to your cooking-ability

WITHOUT a high-class flour like PURITY you cannot do your duty to your cooking-ability.

A cheaper, weaker, ordinary flour cramps and puts a limit on your efficiency.

On the other hand, PURITY FLOUR broadens your scope; provides you with unlimited opportunities to do ample justice to the cooking-ability of which you are so rightly proud.

PURITY FLOUR responds nobly to the skill of the cook. It yields the daintiest and most delicate cakes. And pies so creamy, so delicious, your husband will vote you a wonder.

And such golden-brown biscuits, such griddle cakes, such buns, and such bread you have never before succeeded in making, no matter how earnestly you've tried.

And the reason is not hard to discover. PURITY FLOUR consists exclusively of the high-grade portions of the best Western hard-wheat berries.

Unlike ordinary flour, PURITY FLOUR contains no low-grade portions, nor is it weakened by mixing soft wheat flour with it.

PURITY FLOUR will cost you slightly more, because it costs us more to make. But it's worth the difference.

A NOVELTY IN LAVA.

Monster Bubble, Bearing an Island, in a Fiery Lake.

Mail advices from Honolulu tell of the most amazing phenomenon ever observed within the crater of a volcano by a white man.

It was no less than a tremendous bubble of lava, inflated by gas from the very center of the earth, which supported an island as it floated across a lake of fiery liquid. Frank A. Perret, the scientist who observed it, estimated that it covered an area of 3,000 square feet, and he was fortunate enough to secure a few photographs, although conditions were far from favorable for picture taking.

"The bubble was a huge sausage shaped affair, inflated with volcanic gas and composed of lava glass," says the scientist in his report. "A lava fountain, boiling continuously under the eastern end, gave the appearance of a screw propeller, and the amazing contrivance seemed to be navigating the lake like a great whaleback steamer.

"There was an island of black crust, which when it began to sink evolved a great quantity of gas, which blew the bubble of lava glass, and this in turn sustained the island and prevented it from sinking. It made several tours of the lake before it disappeared from sight at last."

This was observed in the volcano Halemaumau, and Perrett and two Japanese assistants were the only ones who saw it.—Los Angeles Cor. Portland Oregonian.

Italian Officers' Wives.

Recent regulations bearing on the question of marriage in the Italian army are worthy of brief mention. Henceforward officers, whether on active service or half pay, will not be allowed to marry till they have reached the age of twenty-five and have obtained the sanction of the king. The bride will no longer be required to bring a specified dot, but she will, of course, have to give satisfactory evidence as to her social fitness for the position of an officer's wife. It will be remembered that the "dot reglementaire" was abolished some years ago in the French army by General Andre, other social requirements, of course, remaining as before.—London Queen.

Bildad is as confirmed an auction fiend as Mrs. Toodles of historic memory. Strong resistance to all other lures, he seems utterly unable to withstand the temptations of the hammer and the block. It is probably true, as his friend Dobbleigh has said, that in the days to come Bildad will stop his own funeral procession to go in and bid on some article for which neither he nor Mrs. Bildad has any use, if perchance the cortege passes a red flag on the way to the cemetery. However this may be, what is true is that while dozing in church last Sunday morning Bildad was suddenly aroused by the minister's announcement of the hymn.

"We will continue our service by singing the three hundred and seventy-fifth hymn," said the clergyman—"hymn number three-seventy-five!"

"Four dollars!" roared Bildad, still lingering on the borderland between the province of dreams and the land of reality.—Harper's Weekly.

WELLAND LANDS BIG MANUFACTURING PLANT

WELLAND, Nov. 30.—Plans for the Canadian plant of the John Deere Manufacturing Company, to be located here, are now in the hands of contractors, and the building operations will be commenced as early as possible in the spring. The capital stock of the company has been increased from $50,000,000 to $55,000,000 and of this amount $1,000,000 has been appropriated for the initial expenditure at Welland, which means that the Welland plant will be a very expensive and costly one when completed. The plant will be one of the largest of its kind in Canada, and will manufacture everything in the line of farm implements. The Vehlie automobiles will also be made here, and their manufacture will form a large part of the new plant. About 500 hands will be employed in the new works here at the start.

THE WAY OF ESCAPE

Explanation That Came Among the Tree Branches.

By JOANNA SINGLE.

John Kingdon was thoroughly angry. He pulled his cap over his eyes and rushed down a side street to escape Bradford, whose cheerful whistle seemed to be just behind him. He did not want to be pestered to play cards or golf or be pulled to the country club dance. He wanted solitude and his pipe and a chance to wonder why on earth Elizabeth Treynor should suddenly refuse to have anything to do with him after she had golfed and picnicked and sung with him all summer and after she had succeeded in getting him thoroughly in love with her.

He felt ill treated. He did not fall in love easily, and in general he did not care for western girls, being a Connecticut man, Yale trained and Europe finished, before settling to practice medicine in the midwest. Elizabeth was different, and as he reflected on the difference between her and all other girls in the world he heard Bradford whistling at the Treynor side gate for Jack and then asking if Kingdon were there.

Kingdon slipped over the fence in the twilight and clambered up the first conveniently low branched tree. Panting, but triumphant, he heard Bradford's account of how he had chased Kingdon and lost him somewhere and that he wanted him to take Nell Somers to the dance they had just got up on the spur of the moment. And where was Jack's sister? Bradford wanted to ask her to go with him.

Startled by the sound curiously like a suppressed snicker, Kingdon decided to climb higher. He reached up for a branch above him and seized a small, warm slipper that gave his hand a little kick.

"Keep still, can't you, and let go my foot?" a whisper admonished him. He looked up and saw Elizabeth sitting high and dry on a horizontal branch, swinging her feet and peering toward the house. "S-sh!" she warned again, for her brother Jack and Bradford came into the garden.

"Elizabeth!" Jack called. Then: "Confound girls, anyhow! She was here five minutes ago, and her wraps are in the hall. She must be near." On the strength of Elizabeth's chuckle Dr. John Kingdon climbed up and sat beside her. Her gray suit made her almost invisible in the growing dark, but he knew by heart the blue of her eyes, the rich brownness of her hair and the coldness of her manner to him of late.

"What are you doing here?" She tried to get hauteur into a whisper and failed.

"What you are—escaping Bradford evidently. I wouldn't go to the dance because you were to be there."

"Thanks," she replied. "Neither would I because you were to be there. That's why I'm here. One has to explain to Richard Bradford, and he always wants to know why."

"I'd like to know why myself."

"Oh, be still! Why doesn't he go?" whispered the girl, for the eternal Bradford sauntered under their tree and lighted his pipe.

"Don't wait for me, Jack, old man. I'll wait around a bit, and if she doesn't show up I'll come out alone."

"The confounded idiot!" Kingdon whispered and put out a protecting hand when she seemed to sway a bit. She froze instantly, and he dared not venture excuse or protest.

The darkness had increased, and when the moon came sailing up Bradford swore at his luck and departed, clicking the gate behind him.

"Now, Dr. Kingdon, I think you can make your escape."

"But I don't want to—now! May I not stay long enough to apologize for intruding on your tree solitude?" He spoke softly, with a delicate clipping of the r's. His fine dark face bent toward her. "I have not meant to persecute you, but you did not answer my letter. I will never trouble you again, but will you not be fair enough to tell me just what I have done? You could do an enemy that justice!" To his surprise she grasped his arm.

"Father and mother!" she murmured. "You'll have to stay. I couldn't explain to them why I am here!" Kingdon hardly breathed, for she forgot to loosen the blessed hold on his sleeve.

Mr. Treynor walked in portly pompousness beside his anxious little wife.

"Elizabeth worries me so," she complained, and they seated themselves on a rustic bench. "She's so difficult! I can't lay it to college and her trip to Europe, for she was lively till just of late. Now she doesn't enjoy society and is getting interested in the poor. And what do you suppose is her reason for refusing to have anything to do with that nice Dr. Kingdon and"—

"Some fool notion," her father grunted.

"And taking up with that Bradford? I hope she won't marry him. I don't care if we have always known him—he doesn't seem quite nice. Well, he told Elizabeth that Dr. Kingdon said at the club that western girls hadn't reserve enough—that he disapproved of co-education because it made girls too free and easy with men and a lot of stuff like that!"

"She needn't be a fool if he did. He never meant it for her."

"No. I'm from New Hampshire, and she has lived there half her time during the last six years. I [illegible] where she is now. Probably at A[illegible]. She's safe enough. So, if you're going to sleep we might's well go in. I don't like talking to the air, and I don't like Dick Bradford, and I wish the children were home. Listen to that, now!" Two men, laughing and yelling, drove past in a cart at a furious pace.

"It's Sam Brown," continued Mrs. Treynor. "I wish they didn't live next door. He's sure to kill some one sooner or later. He'll come back drunk about midnight and chase the family outdoors. I think the public ought"—Her voice died away as she entered the house with her husband.

Then Kingdon turned and faced the still, proud girl beside him. She held her head high, her beautiful face full in the moonlight.

"Is that true—what your mother said? Is that why you treat me so? Won't you be fair enough to tell me?"

"Well, yes," she admitted. "I don't like being called underbred. It's not true, and you wouldn't like it yourself."

"It was a careless statement, exaggerated by Bradford and made when I had met only a few girls of the Molly Racer type. You know perfectly well that it never applied to you in my mind or anybody's. I saw at a glance that you were thoroughbred—that you added to the older culture of the east the frank courage and honesty of the west; that you had the poise to be a law unto yourself—and unto me. Oh, I shall finish now, for I shall never speak to you again till you say you wish me to. You are a girl I could adore and be proud of, east or west. I would bear anything for one willing word of love from you. You know me—my pedigree, education and behavior, the best of their kind. I haven't much money, though I shall have, but I have pride—as much as you."

He paused. Elizabeth looked straight at him.

"I was unfair, and I am sorry. I want you to"— A furious rattle of wheels, a sound of cursing and yelling, and Sam Brown's cart careened dangerously as the terrified horse crashed into the fence just beneath. Kingdon started to leap down, then caught the girl's face to his breast and covered her ears with his hands to spare her the sight and sound of the drunken brute being dragged to death.

The horse broke loose and dashed away. A crowd gathered, and Kingdon whispered: "Stay here. I'll be back in a moment and get you down." He slipped down into the alley and out into the crowd.

In about twenty minutes—ages to the girl—he again scrambled up beside her.

"I did what there was to do—told them the life had gone out. He never knew what struck him. It's undertaker's work now. This has been miserable enough for you. Let me help you down and to the house." As she did not speak he looked at her. She laughed and held out her hand.

"Will you speak to me—now that I ask you to? You are—the nicest man—I know." She took his hand and climbed down, he after her.

"Wait," he commanded, swinging down before her. "I shall lift you down." She was just in easy reach of his arms. "And—another thing—I want you to—kiss me!"

His masterfulness took her breath.

"Why should I?" she laughed at last.

"It's improper—reason enough for a western girl!" he teased.

"Impertinent and won't stand," she decided. "Another reason."

"Well, Elizabeth—do it—because you want to."

He held out his arms, and she could not find it in her heart to deny him.

A Neighborly Hint.

"No," said Eben Slocum, "we aren't much given to surprise parties or combination gifts here in Cedarville, but once in awhile we do band together when we see real need. For instance, we gave Lem Fowle a load o' good shingles last spring, seven or eight of us neighbors did."

"How did that happen?" asked the summer resident.

"It happened after more or less talk about the way Lem's roof looked," said Mr. Slocum, "and considerable feeling about the way that boy o' his cut up in school and in church.

"We sent the load with a kind of an explanatory note to Lem, and he took the shingles and made good use of 'em both ways."

"Both ways?" echoed the listener.

"Why, yes," and Mr. Slocum looked rather tired at such an exhibition of dullness. "We wrote him that we cal'lated by the way his roof leaked and his boy acted that he was out o' shingles and couldn't afford to buy any. I should think 'twas plain enough. 'Twas to Lem anyway."—Youth's Companion.

Glass Pavements.

In Lyons, France, pavements made of glass have been in use for some time. They are constructed of ceramo-crystal, ceramic stone or devitrified glass and are laid in the form of blocks eight inches square, each block containing sixteen parts in the shape of checkers. It is said that these blocks are so closely fitted together that water cannot pass between them. The whole pavement presents the odd effect of a huge checkerboard. The special advantages claimed for this style of pavement are that it has greater resistance than stone, that it is a poor conductor of cold, ice accordingly not forming readily upon it, and finally that it is more durable than stone and much cheaper, besides affording no places for the lodgment of microbes.—New York Tribune.

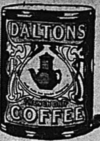
A Complexion Guard.

Red veils as a preventive of sunburn are considered better than any cosmetic ever invented. The woman who will wear a thin red veil over her face when she goes yachting, motoring, or golfing, may be sure of preserving the whiteness of her cuticle, as the sun's hurtful rays do not penetrate red gauze. One who wore such a veil during two months returned from the seashore without tan, sunburn, or freckles.

Does Your Husband

Drink Tea at Home and Coffee at the Hotels?

HERE IS THE ONLY SECRET OF GOOD COFFEE?



MILD BLEND COFFEE

STRONG BLEND COFFEE

It is not because a French chef makes the coffee at the big hotels—nor only because they use expensive coffee—that it tastes so good. It IS because the chef makes the coffee the right way.

Boiling ruins coffee. Such coffee is always bitter and weedy, and the longer coffee is boiled, the less flavor it has. Boiling drives off the fine aroma and flavor and leaves in the grounds and woody fibre, which are responsible for so much indigestion among coffee drinkers.

Dalton's French Drip Coffee Pot means all the good of coffee and always good coffee—and it means that you can make a cup of delicious coffee with ⅓ less coffee.

We give this French Drip Coffee Pot absolutely free in order that you will be able to prepare

Dalton's French Drip Coffee

as it should be made. And Dalton's Coffee is worth making right. It is entirely different, and better,—a Coffee you can drink every day, as much as you like, without fear of the effects of ordinary Coffee. By our special processes of selecting the raw Coffee—in cleaning, blending, roasting and grinding it—we take out the bitter skin which lines the Coffee berry. It is this skin, roasted and ground up in ordinary Coffee, that produces the ill-effects so common to drinkers of ordinary Coffee.

When you make a cup of Dalton's French Drip Coffee, in a Dalton's French Drip Coffee Pot, you get the delights of the finest Coffees in the world—with none of the faults of ordinary Coffee.

This French Drip Coffee Pot Free with one tin each of Dalton's MILD and STRONG Coffee at 50c. a tin.

Dalton's Coffee is better, very much better, than ordinary Coffee and you can drink it for every meal, all the year round. Only—it should be made properly. This is why we make this special offer.

THE LAST PENNY

The Judge Denounces the "Odious and Dreadful System."

The spectacle of a hundred and eighteen judgment summonses moved the county court judge at Kettering, England, to a tirade against the system. "There are four or five score of poor, wretched people, broken down—the bankrupts of the working class—who can hardly keep body and soul together, with too large families and too small wages, with the cost of living increasing and further taxes about to be put on them," said his Honor.

In face of that, he pursued, he had to make out orders to screw the last penny out of them or give the breadwinner three weeks in gaol. It was an odious and dreadful system, but fifty-four county court judges, with himself, were administering it all over the country. He did not think the public understood what went on in the county courts, and he was sure the Legislature did not. It would seem that the Legislature had no time to deal with such topics.

The 118 judgment summonses before the court were the greatest number he had ever had.

He was sorry to say, he added, that throughout the whole of his circuit judgment summonses were increasing by leaps and bounds. One reason was the Married Women's Property Act, and another the hire-purchase system. It was a monstrous system, but unfortunately it was the law. The Treasury were running county courts like a shop, and the more customers there were attracted to the shop the more fees went into the Treasury. It was oppressing and repulsive work for the county court judges.

DUE TO SELFISHNESS

The Bishop of London Denounces Childless Marriages

After a silence of some six years the Bishop of London has again come to the front with a vigorous attack upon race suicide. In a recent address he reviewed the steadily decreasing birth rate as given by the government statisticians, and made a strong appeal for the universal adoption of his principles. According to the Bishop, England is running France and the United States a close race in the matter of childless marriages. The Bishop's words are creating quite a stir among the many wealthy women's clubs that abound in London, and some prominent women have come to the front with views that conflict with the Bishop's. The publicity given his remarks and the widespread discussion they engendered have led him to again speak upon the subject. In this later talk the Bishop outlines his own position and the position of the Church upon this matter. In no uncertain terms he says that "it has been proved

IN PRAISE OF NELSON

"The Most Fascinating Man I Ever Conversed With."

Eight letters written by Nelson's chaplain on the Victory, the Rev. A. J. Scott, have just been sold by auction. While off Toulon Mr. Scott wrote to Lady Lavington:

"I never yet in my life met with so pure a mind as his, every thought flowing from the lusty family of selfishness is a stranger to his breast. He possesses that impulse of genius which, to whatsoever point the mind be turned, conceives, judges, and determines what is to be done, with promptitude."

It was his duty to accompany the body home after Trafalgar. On Dec. 10, off Spithead, he writes:

"Let the country mourn their hero. I grieve for the loss of the most fascinating companion I ever conversed with. The greatest and most simple of men—one of the wisest and most innocent—interesting beyond all. On shore—in public, and even in private life, men are not always themselves, and put on their behavior with their clothes—but if you live with a man on board of ship for years—if you are constantly with him in his cabin—your mind will soon find out how to appreciate him—the more you knew Nelson the more you loved him."

He was horrified later to find that a price was charged for viewing the coffin in St. Paul's, and remarks that no wonder the French call us a "nation boutiquiere." With this batch was a letter by Capt. Wells, of the Thunderer, describing the hero's death:

"I much fear his honors were the cause of his death, as he evidently was picked off from the rest, wearing his stars in action, which, in my opinion, was rather indiscreet. He loved to hear victory pronounced, and that the few ships of the enemy that were able were making off with all possible sail. It had a very great effect on him. He appeared pleased and happy, and thanked God for allowing him to outlive the day, and died almost immediately convulsed—his joy was too great."

This interesting series of letters realized $305.

DEATH OF McHENRY.

The recent death of Myron E. McHenry, the "man from Freeport," has brought forth many eulogistic references to the dead reinsman's ability when race driving, and the critics one and all agree that McHenry was the peer of all pilots of trotters and pacers. It was in October, 1903, that McHenry drove Dan Patch to the best pacing record in 1.56¼, the performance eclipsing anything previously done by a "side-wheel" horse.

WE REPAIR WEAK MEN

ONE SECRET OF OUR SUCCESS. Every case submitted to us receives the personal attention of our Medical Staff, who consider the symptoms, complications and chronicity, and then decide as to the disease and curability. Specific remedies are then prescribed for the case and are compounded by our own chemist in our own Laboratory. Such appropriate treatment cannot fail to cure, as specific medicines are selected to cure the symptoms that trouble you. We have no cure-all medicines like most specialists use who send the same medicines to all patients alike and cure none. SOLDIER AND SCULPTOR

Adrian Jones Understands a Horse From Tail Tip to Nostril

It is said of Captain Adrian Jones, who has designed the four-horse war chariot, weighing upwards of thirty tons, which is to be erected in London as a memorial to "Peace," that he is probably the only living sculptor who understands a horse from tail-tip to nostril. As a boy he loved and studied horses, and would have liked to become an artist, but his father had other plans, and he entered the Army. He saw much active service, and was then advised to become a sculptor, having devoted most of his spare time when in the Army to painting and sculpture.

Why Your Fingers Crack.

Dr. Howard Marsh tells in a recent paper that the "snap," which is often both felt and heard when a joint that has long been stiff or at rest is suddenly moved, is a phenomenon to which bonesetters point as a plain demonstration that a bone was out and has been put in. These snaps, however, are not produced by the concussion of two joint surfaces as they come suddenly into contact but, on the contrary, are due to the sudden separation of two surfaces which have been stuck together by a too viscid and tenacious synovial fluid (the synovial fluid is of the consistency of white of egg, and is Nature's lubricator of our joints, in the cavities of which it is present). Many persons can make all their fingers crack by steadily pulling at them till the joint surfaces suddenly separate.

MADMAN FOR COMPANY

A Lunatic in White Apparel Jumped on a Van Beside Driver.

A terrifying adventure befell the driver of the motor mail van which runs between Stirling and Bathgate, Scotland. While driving towards the former town at dead of night he was suddenly startled by the apparition of a white-clad figure rushing to and fro on the road in front of him. Impeded by the strange object, which paid no attention to his warning the driver was compelled to stop at Linlithgow Bridge. He had no sooner done so than the figure which proved to be a man clad in white shirt and trousers, stepped to the van. The intruder was carrying a heavy chain, and, realising that he was demented, the driver set the van in motion again, but failed to dislodge the madman who jumped on to the seat beside him. Roused to fury by his shadow on the glass screen the lunatic screamed and swung his chain round his head in a terrifying manner.

It was not until Falkirk was reached that a policeman was seen. The lunatic attempted to escape, but the constable, securing a horse, succeeded in capturing him and placing him under restraint.

SUZETTE'S SOLUTION

The Way She Brought Helena and Robert Together.

By A. M. DAVIES OGDEN.

It was only a few minutes until train time, and the woman who all the morning had been wandering restlessly about the house forced her reluctant consciousness to the realization of the fact that soon, very soon, Suzette would be here. Suzette, after her four years at an eastern college, was coming home. And what was she, Helena Crosby, going to say to the girl? It was in answer to Helena's own urgent appeal that the girl was coming—that and Sanford's letter. Despite the warmth of the sweet June day Helena shivered. What was she to say?

Sanford's letter spoke for itself. In clear, unmistakable terms it begged Suzette to give up that long dreamed of year in Europe and come back and marry him. His anxiously awaited promotion had arrived. He was at last in a position to ask the fulfillment of their boy and girl pledge. Helena knew well enough what the letter contained. Had she not practically dictated the substance of it?

And Suzette's only answer had been a noncommittal telegram, "Starting for home today."

Did she mean to marry Robert or did she not? That was the question which over and over again rose feverishly to his sister's mind. Since Suzette was sixteen and Robert twenty-three the two had been engaged, or, rather, there had been an understanding between them. Then Suzette had gone to college, and Robert had followed his regiment to the Philippines.

Had the trouble begun then, wondered Helena dully, when a triangular chain of correspondence linked the three, or was it not until Sanford had come to Helena first to talk about the absent Suzette, then to argue and tease about her own concerns and, lastly, to discuss that never tiring topic of conversation to a man—himself? Helena could not tell, but lightly, unthinkingly, they had drifted along until all unwittingly a sudden shock laid bare the truth to a lover and sister that a new feeling, stronger, deeper, had taken the place of that childish affection.

Sanford, manlike, had wanted to admit the truth and face the consequences, but Helena, her heart a fiery turmoil of conflicting emotions, would not listen. She who, although only a year and a half the elder, had been always mother, nurse, everything to the cherished little sister—she to be the one to destroy that sister's happiness, break forever her faith in humankind!

"Impossible!" cried Helena, her gray eyes dark with anguish, and from that determination she could not be shaken despite Robert's most impassioned pleadings.

"I cannot hurt Suzette," was her unswerving answer, and at last Robert, desperate, had written Suzette. Since the thing must be met, let it be met at once. Let them be married at once and return to the Philippines. It was the only remedy either could see.

And so it was that Helena Crosby could see nothing fair or lovely in the clear, warm sunshine, the rustling bird filled trees. When would Suzette come, and what would be the end? This was all her tired brain could carry.

There was a crisp footfall in the street, a sharp tinkle of the bell, then the sound of Suzette's voice in a low interchange of words; a retreating, heavier footstep. The next moment the girl had sprung into the room. Her arms closed about Helena.

"Why, you darling!" she cried. "Why, Helena, dear!" as her quick eye noted the signs of suffering in the elder's face. Helena tried to smile.

"It is nothing, sweetheart," she answered. "Only a touch of headache," falling back on woman's never failing excuse. "Oh, Suzette, how glad I am to see you!"

Suzette laughed, hugging her close. The girl's cheeks were flushed to a vivid pink; her blue eyes, her piquant little mouth, her wavy soft brown hair, all seemed alive, a-quiver with youth and joyousness. A breath from the brilliant, blossomy outer world seemed to have strayed in with her. A sob rose in Helena's throat. How soon—ah, how soon would Robert forget!

Suzette, tossing off hat and gloves, turned suddenly and, catching the older girl's hands, piled her down into the big chair, so often the shelter for them both. Her eyes were serious now.

"Tell me what it all means," she demanded practically. "Why is Robert in such a hurry all at once? He seems to have existed without me hitherto fairly well,"—with an amused little laugh. "Why, then, this sudden eagerness?"

"His promotion—his return to the Philippines," stammered Helena. It was going to be even harder than she had fancied. If to give up Robert to an invisible, intangible [illegible] sister had been difficult enough, [illegible] renouncing of him to this radiant, splendid young creature— "He—he thinks best," she faltered. "He"—

"He thinks I will go with him to the Philippines," put in Suzette keenly.

"I!" There was incredulous protest in every line of the pretty face.

Helena flushed.

"Why, surely, dear, as his wife"—she began, but Suzette interrupted.

"Not I!" she declared decisively. "No heathen lands for me! It's absurd!"

"Absurd!" echoed Helena. "But Suzette, dear—if you love him. Surely you love him?" she insisted strenuously. Suzette's chin tilted resentfully.

"Do I?" she said. "Not enough for that, anyway. After all, I haven't seen Robert in ages, and we were only babies when—when we were so foolish," her own wild rose tint deepening. "He is unreasonable. How do I know whether I love him?"

"But you do!" broke in Helena passionately. "Of course you do; you always have loved him, dearest. And he loves you," bravely.

"Um! Does he?" was the dubious response. "Well—perhaps. But I—listen, Helena," her voice sharpening suddenly. "You—you remember Mr. Williams? I've written about him."

"Yes," answered Helena, surprised. The little face was hidden now on her shoulder.

"Well—well," came a muffled sound, "he has always known of my engagement to Robert—so when I told him that I was coming home he—he would not let me come alone. He is older than I, a good deal," went on the voice. "He—he cares for me very dearly though. He wants to take me abroad, to let me study"—

A sudden blind resentment surged through Helena.

"But—but Robert," she urged vehemently. "He cares for you, too; you know he does. He has not so much to offer"—an unreasoning loyalty to the absent soldier sweeping her along. "He—he"—stammering as she remembered.

A warm little arm crept about her neck.

"But you will help me," begged the voice. "You—you will tell him"—

"Tell him what?" uttered Helena sharply. There was fear, almost terror, in the cry.

Suzette sat upright.

"That—that I am married," said Suzette distinctly. "Frederick would not take the risk of losing me. And—and so we were married in Denver. He brought me here. He is coming back in an hour. You—you are not angry?" wistfully.

"Married!" gasped Helena. For a moment she remained quite still, seeking to absorb, to realize, the wonderful fact. "You—married!"

"Yes," said Suzette meekly.

"And—and you are happy?" her first thought, as ever, for Suzette.

"Yes," said Suzette, a sparkle of laughter breaking forth.

"And—and Robert?"

"Robert I leave to you," said Suzette. "You must explain"—

But Helena, comprehending at last, sprang toward the telephone. As she watched the girl's face changed; a new and wholly sweet expression crept across the mobile features, revealing unsuspected depths.

"And do you two think that I could not understand?" she breathed, a tender renunciation shadowing the blue eyes. "Did you think I could not guess the truth? Oh, sister, my dearest sister, I leave Robert—to you."

Blind Men In the Witness Box.

Before the trial was half ended it was apparent that most credence was placed in the testimony for the defendant.

"That is because he has two blind men testifying for him," said a man who has served on many juries. "When it comes to a question of memory the word of a blind man goes further in a courtroom than that of a person with good eyes. It is with the jurymen that his testimony really counts, but judge and lawyers are also impressed. This is taking into consideration, of course, that the blind man has a reputation for veracity. We assume that with the loss of one faculty others have developed. What a man cannot see he hears and his mind stores up. Our faith in the retentiveness of a blind man's memory has been frequently justified. Where a person with all his senses would become confused and testify vaguely the blind man can repeat a conversation verbatim."—New York Sun.

Early Weapons.

The earliest weapons of mankind—of the cutting, thrusting, hacking and stabbing variety—were undoubtedly suggested by the natural weapons of the animals—the tusks of the boar, elephant and walrus, the sword of the swordfish and norwhal, the pointed antlers of the deer and the short horns of the steer. In fact, it is well known that these weapons, taken directly from the fruits of the chase, were actually employed by men before they made for themselves any other weapon than the club. The sword is simply the buffalo's long curved horn made into steel and flattened out, just as the dirk is the deer's antler made out of the same material, and so on to the end of the chapter.—New York American.

The Small Voice

"Children," said the minister, addressing a Sunday school, "I want to talk to you about one of the most important organs in the world. What is it that throbs away," he went on, "beats away, never stopping, whether you wake or sleep, night and day, week in week out, without any volition on your part, hidden away, as it were, in the depths unseen to you, throbbing rythmically all your life long?"

During the pause of oratorical affect came a small voice, "The gas meter."

Large views, high hopes, and unselfish aims dissipate a whole army of petty trials, annoyances and irritations, and even greatly reduce real anxieties and solicitude.

BRAINY PAUPERS.

Brilliant Inventors Who Reaped Pitiful Rewards.

DIED IN POVERTY AND WANT.

Some Men of Genius Who Were Deemed to End Their Days in Obscurity, While Their Fruitful Ideas Made Millions and Fame For Others.

Now and again a man is born whose brain fairly bubbles with inventive genius. New ideas stream from him, and all branches of science are mastered with hardly an effort.

Such was Frederic William Martino, one of those many brilliant Italians who left their native land to seek fortune in a foreign country.

Martino came to England, and his name is most familiar from the Martini-Henry rifle, the breechblock of which was one of his numerous inventions.

It is an irony of fate that Martino's name should go down to posterity solely through a warlike invention which he himself thought little of when his greatest work was done in the cause of peace, for Martino was the discoverer of the process for converting basic slag into manure, a discovery which has put millions into the pockets of German manufacturers, but from which he himself, it is stated, never reaped a penny.

The fluted rib for umbrellas, a new process for the extraction of nickel from its ore, a new development of platinoid — immensely important in electric work—and a brilliant invention for the reduction of gold ore, these are only a few of Martino's discoveries. And yet he was so lacking in business capacity that in spite of his extraordinary output of valuable ideas he died at Glasgow in 1903 a comparatively poor and obscure man, while dozens of others have been made richer by his genius.

In 1860 the chemist Lenoir patented a motor driven by an explosive mixture of air and gas. He used electric ignition obtained from a battery and a Ruhmkorff coil, actuating a sparking plug very similar to that in use in the modern motor. The system of valves by means of which the suction of the piston drew in the charge of gas for the next explosion was also designed by Lenoir.

In 1862 he actually produced a car which, if crude, was similar in all respects to that in use today, save that he employed coal gas instead of petrol, and this he actually drove himself through the streets of Paris.

Yet for reasons similar to those which caused the failure of Martino he never received the reward of his genius, and it was left for Daimler, nearly thirty years later, to produce the first of the practicable autocars.

Lenoir died in 1900, poor and unknown.

Three years later, in 1903, the life of George Shergold came to an end in Gloucester workhouse. Shergold, originally a shoemaker, was the inventor of the safety bicycle. He built a machine of this order in the year 1876, the front wheel of which was twenty-seven inches and the rear wheel some thirty-one inches in diameter.

In 1900, when it first became generally known that the man whose invention had made millions for others was as poor as when he had cobbled shoes, a public subscription was raised, and for some time an allowance of 5 shillings a week was made to Shergold. But the funds became exhausted, and poor Shergold ended his life in the workhouse.

How many people have ever even heard of Scheele? Yet this poor Swedish chemist was perhaps the greatest discoverer of facts that the world has ever known.

We always hear in England that Priestley was the discoverer of oxygen. Yet Scheele made this most important of all chemical discoveries simultaneously with Priestley. And it was Scheele who discovered chlorine gas. Chlorine is perhaps the most important of all gases in commercial chemistry. It is the great bleacher that gives us white linen or white straw hats. It is also the best disinfectant known. It is essential to the manufacture of the great pain killer, chloroform, and it is used extensively for the extraction of gold from its ores.

Chlorine's value to the world has been incalculable, yet Scheele, the man who discovered it, lived hungry and died a pauper.

Professor Gore died a comparatively poor man, yet Gore was the inventor of the modern safety match, of the method of electrodeposition commonly known as electroplating and of many other processes which have put millions into the pockets of manufacturers. Gore's book, "Electrometallurgy," published in 1870, is still a standard work on the subject.—London Answers.

Speaker Bans Liquors.

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—"For the first time in the history of the Canadian Parliament all wines and intoxicating liquors will be excluded from the dinners and all social receptions held in the Speaker's chambers," says yesterday's Journal. Then it adds:

"This significant decision has been arrived at as a direct result of the expressed desire of Mrs. Sproule, wife of the Speaker, who will be hostess. A similar order of things was observed in the Ontario Legislature under the late Speaker St. John. Another famous example has been set by Lieutenant-Governor MacGregor of Nova Scotia, who issued a similar order upon his assumptoin to office."

STEAMER IS WRECKED

The Raleigh Is Ashore and Two Are Drowned.

Steward and Wife Perish When Ship Is Beached Near Port Colborne and Engineer Pritchard Is Believed to Have Lost His Life — Crew Taken Ashore and Cared For—Going to Pieces.

Port Colborne, Ont., Dec. 1.—The steamer Raleigh, loaded with pulpwood from Quebec to Erie, is ashore at Point Abeno, about seven miles east of here, and if fast going to pieces. Mr. W[illegible]e, of Cleveland, who was the steward, and his wife, who was the cook, were drowned in trying to make the shore in yawl boats. One of the boats capsized.

William Prtchard, of Cleveland, the engineer, would not leave the ship and when she was broken up he clung desperately to a few rafters and boards that were still joined together. The heavy seas made it impossible for lifeboats to put out to his rescue and at a late hour it was feared he would be drowned before help reached him.

Several men from Port Colborne, who were patroling the beach, waded out with lines and rescued the crew of twelve men. They are all being cared for at a farm house at Sherkston.

After battling with the terrific seas all night and all day, and sending out signals of distress, the Raleigh broke her rudder and was rendered helpless. She ran ashore opposite the Empire Limstone Co.'s works.

Pieces of cordwood are floating in towards the shore in hundreds, and the beach is already lined with them.

The steamer is owned by Henry Wiseman, jr., of Detroit, and was in charge of Captain H. L. Beauvais.

Anchors Didn't Hold.

Buffalo, Dec. 1.—The Raleigh left Port Colborne at six o'clock Wednesday night with a cargo of pulpwood for Erie, Pa. There was a high wind and a heavy sea when the steamer put out from the Canadian shore, and conditions grew worse during the night. Early yesterday morning the steamer's steering gear became disabled. Both anchors were lowered, but they failed to hold on the sandy bottom and the Raleigh was carried toward Point Abino by the stiff northwest wind.

Captain Beauvais and his crew fought desperately to keep the disabled steamer in midlake, but when the boiler room became flooded by the tons of water shipped in by the heavy seas, they were helpless. At dawn the Raleigh crashed on the rocks.

Nine members of the crew of twelve succeeded in getting ashore and were cared for in the huts at the Empire Limestone Co.'s quarries near Sherkston. Employes of the quarries and the survivors were unsuccessful in their efforts to rescue Engineer Pritchard, who at last reports, was still adrift.

A MODERN WIZARD.

Love Analysed as a Disease, and Medical Man Offers Treatment for Misplaced Affection.

A London doctor has been analysing the disease called love. From a psychologist's standpoint he defines what is popularly known as "falling in love" as a mere crystallisation of a whole set of emotional tendencies and ideas round some object. This "nucleus of ideas may become solidified and grow in strength," and to see that it does so is the task of the psychologist, always providing, of course, that the remuneration makes it worth his while to call into play his weird and wonderful powers. Granted a generous reward on an cash basis, our psychologist adviser will "unravel our mental tangles and cure our bad habits." But these trifles are merely dealt with by the way, when trade is bad and lovers possibly may be scarce. Under ordinary circumstances the task set himself by the psychologist is "particularly to remedy cases of unrequited love or jealousy." This gentleman will "educate and divert these ideas — provided the subject is willing — so that the loved object may become a mere annoying incident in one's life." Further good news is contained in the declaration that "husbands and wives who get bored with each other may be made happy and contented in each other's society." It is altogether a glorious vista that this modern warlock opens up to humanity. His subtle spells and magically acquired powers will give us — at a certain fee per head — a taste of the fearful joys of a charlatan's elysium. We smugly pride ourselves that we live in an enlightened age; but the appearance of the psychic treatment for misplaced affection and other ills to which we are heirs suggests some doubts on the fact.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS IN SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Nehemiah Rebuilds the Wall of Jerusalem. Neh. iv.

Golden Text—Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong. I Coir. xvi:13

(1) Verse 1.—What progress had been made up to this time in rebuilding the wall of Jerusalem, and how had the work been done?

(2) What right had Sanballat to object to building the wall, and why did he do it?

(3) What did they expect to accomplish by mocking at, and jeering the Jews?

(4) Can you give any instance where mocking and ridicule have stopped a good work, or ruined a good life?

(5) Verses 2-3—What is it in human nature which makes individuals jealous of individuals, towns of towns and countries of countries?

(6) When a man is down, do the human tendencies around him tend to kep him down or to help him up? Why?

(7) Which gets the more hurt from scorning, the scorner or the scorned, and why?

(8) What influences did the ridicule of Sanballat, and Tobiah, have on the work upon the wall?

(9) If one is true to God does the devil mostly hurt or help him in his life and work?

(10) Verses 4-6—Is any experience that will give us the opportunity to pray, and to test God's power to be regertted?

(11) Should the prayer of Nehemiah that God would forgive them, but that they should suffer for their sins, be imitated by us? Give your reasons.

(12) Verses 7-8—What reasons are there to believe that those who are jealous of the prosperity of others, will not stop short of actual violence to accomplish their evil desires, if they can do so with safety to themselves?

(13) Verse 9.—What are two effectual things we may always do, when we are surrounded by enemies?

(14) Is prayer without watching or watching without praying, of any avail, if we have the opportunity to do both?

(15) Verses 10-12—Which as a rule does the more injury, the opposition of enemies, or the pessimistic discouragement of friends?

(16) Verses 13-14—What effect did the threat of his enemies, and the wall of his own countrymen, have upon Nehemiah?

(17) How often is a determined man with [illegible] on his side liable to be eeddetaf 7[illegible]he s'liiv- carddl k(? defeated in[illegible]ngs he undertakes?

(18) Verse 15—What factor is courage alone, in winning life's battles? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by membesr of the club.)

(19) Verses, 16-23—In how many senses is a Christian under obligation to fight and to build all the time?

(20) Why may we rely on God fighting our battles for us, if we fight and work with Him?

Mrs. Adamson, head mistress of the Blairmand school, has resigned after 36 years' service.

AN AMERICAN WIDOW

She Interested the Judge Up to a Certain Point.

By LOURENE RICHARDS.

It was at Lausanne, Lake Geneva, and at one of the small and quiet hotels, that Judge Fordham, U. S. A., was told by the landlord:

"You will be glad to learn that I have a compatriot of yours here. She has been here a week. She is a widow. I believe she is from Chicago, Canada."

"Sure it isn't Philadelphia, Montana?" asked the judge.

"I will at once find out all particulars, your excellency."

"Never mind just now. I'd like a few hours' rest before meeting the widow, American or otherwise. If you will be so kind you needn't mention to her that I am here. I came away from my home in Boston, California, to escape a widow, and, you see, I don't want to bump up against another too soon. We Americans always want to walk around awhile before getting acquainted."

"It is so, your excellency, and your wishes shall be respected," said the obsequious host.

"How does the widow happen to be here alone?" inquired the judge without much show of interest.

"Her brother is at Lyons, France. He is a buyer of silks for Americans. He will soon be here."

"Is she good looking and rich?" asked the judge.

"Had I known, your excellency, that Chicago, Canada, had such handsome women I should have gone there for my second wife. As for riches, she has my best rooms and orders what she wants. My bill against her will be very much."

"Think she's on the marry?"

"When I saw you, sir, and knew that you were an American I said to myself:

"'He comes from the same country. He looks like a widower. He appears to be rich. Why should not the widower marry the widow and thus make each other happy?'"

"Thanks for your interest in the case, old man, but go slow. An American widower and an American widow will always find each other in good time if you leave them alone. Just leave it to us."

They met at the table, but were not introduced. A sharp eyed person would have noticed that they were sizing each other up. Two days later, as the widow sat on the veranda with a book in her hand, the landlord and the judge approached, and the former indulged in a dozen bows and scrapes as he said:

"I have the utmost felicitation in presenting Judge Fordham to Mrs. Chatham."

The judge found the widow to be a woman not much over thirty. She was bright and keen and self possessed. She found the judge to be a man of about forty-eight, hale and hearty and inclined to be frank spoken. Of course they became interested at once, and after a few minutes the landlord reentered the office to say to his wife:

"Today, Marie, I have done a noble thing. The widower will marry the widow, and when they return to America they will probably live in New York, Arizona, and be happy all their days. Did I not tell you when we were married that as a landlord I should be a magnificent success?"

Neither the Widow Chatham nor Judge Fordham had a story to tell. It came out casually in conversation that she was the widow of a Chicago wholesale grocer and had taken the trip abroad at the instance of her brother Tom, who was a silk buyer for a New York house and who would soon be with them. It came out the same way that the judge had retired from the bench in New York and was now taking it easy abroad while his bonds went right on piling up interest. They found themselves agreeing on almost all subjects, especially on the greatness of Chicago and the purity of American politics, and now and then the landlord looked out to smile and turn to his wife with:

"Marie, compliment me on my magnificence. The widower and the widow are becoming more and more interested in each other."

The judge rather took charge of Mrs. Chatham after the first day. They rode out together, they boated together, they climbed the hills together. The subject of love wasn't even hinted at, but there were other persons than the landlord who smiled in a knowing way.

There was just a bit of mystery about the brother. He was to arrive at such and such a time, but he didn't arrive. It was all the fault of the silk men, he wrote. They were taking things easy and refused to be hustled. He would be along in good time, however, and in one of his letters he wrote that it would be a pleasure for him to meet the judge. The judge smiled grimly when this extract was read to him. He seemed to doubt it.

After their acquaintance had lasted two weeks and one day just after a telegram had been received by the widow the judge strolled into the railroad depot and found her about to take a train—that is, he thought she was. She had no baggage and appeared to avoid observation.

When she saw that she was discovered she made some excuse and left the depot in his company. She was a bit glum for awhile, but soon rallied and was very gay that evening. Two days later a telegram announced that Brother Tommy was ill at home. The widow said she would run over there for a day or two, and the judge said he would accompany her. He had a curiosity about the silk mills, and this would be a good time to gratify it. The widow suddenly decided that Tommy might get over his illness without any of her help. She had her fair share of sisterly affection, but Tommy was one of these fellows that always played baby even with a cold in the head.

Two mornings later the judge took an early morning walk. It was an hour before breakfast. He walked down to the depot to see the 6:20 train go out. He was on time, and he saw the Widow Chatham there. She dodged him and returned to the hotel instead of taking the train. When they met at breakfast neither one said anything about the walk, but the landlord rubbed his hands and smiled and said to his wife:

"Marie, my magnificence grows. The widower and the widow were out for a sunrise walk this morning. That means love and matrimony. I was the one to introduce them and bring two happy hearts together. Of course it will go into both bills as an extra."

There is a pretty fair mountain at Lausanne. It is high enough to have precipices and rugged enough to put a man out of wind to climb it. When you have followed "Lovers' walk" far enough you strike into "Heart's highway," and a quarter of a mile farther you debouch upon a platform called "Maiden's rest." The judge and the widow had been up there twice. On the afternoon of the early morning walk they took the path again. When they had reached the plateau and found seats and had a few words to say about the view the widow looked the judge fair in the eyes and said:

"Mr. Fordham, in about three minutes, unless you promise to leave Lausanne by the evening train, I shall begin to scream."

"Yes?" he calmly replied.

"I shall run down the path shouting for help."

"Yes?"

"I shall meet people and declare that you threatened me. I think you will understand what that will mean to you."

"Certainly, but there are loopholes in your plan. For instance, I have no less than three witnesses concealed behind the rocks up here. Then I have a telegram to the effect that your brother Tommy is in custody at Lyons. I also have a second stating that his extradition papers, for which I have been waiting these many days, are ready for me."

"Where do I come in?" she asked after awhile.

"You don't come in. Tommy did the embezzling, and you simply ran away with him. So far as my instructions go, you are to be left behind here in Europe to enjoy yourself as best you may. No doubt you have some of the stolen money to pay your bills with, but I was not instructed to arrest you. I was simply keeping tab on you until the papers were ready for Tommy. Is there anything more to say?"

"Sir, I do not know you!" answered the widow as she arose and started down the path by her lonesome.

* * * * * * *

"And so you go away to Lyons?" repeated the landlord after the judge had announced his intention.

"Yes; I have to go."

"And the widow from Chicago, Canada?"

"I must leave her in your keeping. We have had a misunderstanding. You know how cantankerous American widows are."

"Marie," said the landlord to his wife that evening, "I may be magnificent, and I may not. The widower and the widow have quarreled, and he has started for Lyons, and it may be that he will never come back to plead for a reconciliation. The main point, however, is that I charged him two extra for falling in love with another guest of my house and falling out again, and maybe I am magnificent after all."

Curran and Sir Boyle Roche.

Sir Boyle Roche, a famous Irish character of a century ago, was proud of his alliance with an English family of ancient lineage and was fond of referring to his titled father-in-law's kindness in giving him his eldest daughter, a boast which provoked Curran's retort, "Aye, Sir Boyle, and, depend on it, if he had had an older one he would have given her to you."

Whether it was this sarcasm which provoked Sir Boyle's hostility or that an enmity had already been created between Roche and Curran, it is certain that the two men were perpetually sparring at each other in the house of commons, as the debates of the Irish parliament testify.

Nor was the witty advocate and orator always successful in these encounters. Curran had observed one night, somewhat magniloquently, that he needed aid from no one and could be "the guardian of his own honor," whereupon Sir Boyle instantly interjected his sarcastic congratulations to the honorable member on his possession of a sinecure.

Divorce For Upton Sinclair.

New York, Dec. 1.—Upton Sinclair, the author and Socialist, will get his divorce from his wife, Meta F. Sinclair, if the court approves the recommendation made yesterday by Referee W. S. Kelley, who has been taking testimony in the case since October 23.

She Understood.

A St. Joseph woman recently engaged the services of a Swede girl as a domestic. The girl asked her mistress what had become of her son. "He has just returned to Yale," the mistress replied, "and I feel lonesome without him." "Ay know yust how you feel," said the Swede servant. "My brother Hans has been in yail three times since the Fourth of Yuly." —St. Joseph Gazette.

WANT GOOD RELATIONS.

English Have No Quarrel With Germany, Says Morley.

London, Nov. 29.—The House of Lords last night discussed Anglo-German affairs, without arriving at any fresh revelations. Lord Courtney, Liberal, attacked the Government and Lord Morley of Blackburn, and Lord Lansdowne defended it.

Lord Courtney desired to know why Great Britain could not come to an arrangement with Germany as she did with France, Russia and the United States. He declared that Chancellor Lloyd-George had made an outburst of which no Englishman could be proud, that it naturally promoted ill-feeling in Germany and brought the country into real peril of war.

Viscount Morley said that the entente of 1894 was an agreement that Great Britain should have a free hand in Egypt, and France a free hand in Morocco. Great Britain had had her share of the profits, and it would be intolerable if they refused France hers.

"The whole nation," continued Lord Morley, immensely desire friendship with Germany. There is no reason why the German naval program should diminish the desire, but we must consider all the circumstances."

He declared that Sir Edward Grey had said everything possible to encourage better feeling. No Cabinet ever met with more intent of not drifting into a single unnecessary antagonism.

The Marquis of Lansdowne, leader of the Opposition, said that the entente would remain a dominant factor in Great Britain's foreign policy.

Betrothal to Dead Girl.

Boston, Nov. 29.—Lines on which the defence may base its case in the coming trial of Rev. C. V. T. Richeson, charged with the murder of his one-time sweetheart, Avis W. Linnell, are possibly indicated in statements which Dr. H. O. Connor, a former member of the Idaho State Prison Commission, says the minister made to him in his cell.

Mr. Connor is visiting eastern prisons. He quoted the accused minister as saying in substance: - -

Queen Mary is going to provide a shelter for consumptives on the Balmoral estate.

Appeal to Prohibitionists.

Toronto, Nov. 29.—An appeal to the electors of Ontario to work and vote for the election of candidates who "are avowed and trustworthy supporters of temperance reform, who can be depended upon to do all in their power to secure at the earliest opportunity the enactment of effective legislation against the bar-room evil, and who will hold themselves free from party dictation in relation to such legislation," was issued by the executive of the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Alliance, as the result of their deliberations of Monday night and yesterday morning.

The work of the Alliance was reviewed at the meeting, and it was pointed out that voting on local option would take place this year in seventy municipalities, and repeal contests in about fifteen

EIGHTEEN CARDINALS

Pope Pius Confirms Accessions to the College.

In Secret Consistory His Holiness Confers Red Hat on Princes of the Church and Declares That Present Year Is One of Mourning for Roman Catholics on Account of Jubilee—Hope In Eucharistic Congress

Rome, Nov. 28.—Obedient to a summons from Pope Pius X., the cardinals in Rome assembled in a secret consistory yesterday and confirmed the papal nomination of 18 new members in the college of cardinals, the supreme governing body of the Roman Catholic Church. Besides the new cardinals who received the red hat yesterday the Pope created another whom he kept secret. It is supposed that the unnamed cardinal is Mgr. Filippe Giustini, secretary of the congregation of sacraments. As he entered the hall of the consistory, where yesterday's ceremony took place, the Pope's step was less sure, and the careworn face of his holiness bore signs of his recent illness, that had come to stay. Nevertheless he withstood the fatigue of the long and trying ordeal bravely.

The Pope said that the present year is a year of mourning for the church. All felt that this phrase alluded to the clamorous commemoration of the Italian jubilee, which it is felt offended the rights of the holy see. Through the manifestations of sectarians (evidently hinting at the Freemasons), hatred to the Catholic faith, the allocution continues, was promoted, thus offending the faithful of the whole world, while the supreme greatness of Italy is this faith, which had inspired every civil progress, and which alone is the source of peace and lasting prosperity.

The Pope lamented the impunity which was granted to the enemies of religion in Rome, especially the iniquitous body, as he refers to them, which opposed the existence of God and the Christian order. Pius X. then dealt with the persecution of the church in Portugal by the same body, and expressed the hope that the Portuguese nation, boasting of centuries of attachment to the church, would react against her enemy.

The evils of modernism and naturalism were counterbalanced, the Pope continued, everywhere by the love of the holy eucharist, as was proved by the congresses held in Cologne, London, Montreal and Madrid. Spain especially had, he said, demonstrated her true religious sentiment, and he ended with the hope that God would preserve her from the evil threatening her peace and happiness.

The new cardinals include Francis Bourne, Archbishop of Westminster, England; Guiseppe Marie Cos y Machie, Archbishop of Valladolid, Spain; Antonio Rico, Papal Nuncio of Spain, an Italian; Gennaro Granito Di Belmonte, Archbishop of Edessa, Italian; Francis Bauer, Archbishop of Olmutz, Austrian; Leone Adolfo Amette, Archbishop of Paris; Francis Virgille Dubillar, Archbishop of Chambery, France; Francis Nago, Archbishop of Vienna; Mgr. John H. Earley, Archbishop of New York; Mgr. William O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston; Mgr. Diomede Falconi, Apostolic Delegate at Washington; Francis Maria Roverie De Cabrieres, Bishop of Montpellier, France; Gaetano Bisleti, Papal Major Domo, Italian; Giovanni Battista Tugari, Assessor of the Congregation of the Holy Office, Italian; Basillio Pompili, secretary of the Congregation of the Council, Italian; Ludovico Billot, French Jesuit; Guglielmo Van Russum of the Fathers of the Resurrection, Dutch; and Enriquez Almaraz y Santos, Archbishop of Seville.

Modified the Decision.

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 28.—The Supreme Court yesterday modified the decision in the International Harvester ouster case, reducing the fine from $50,000 to $25,000. Judges Graves and Woodson dissented.

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

"SOMETHING JUST AS GOOD."

A discovery can be made but once. After that all similar acts become emulation, imitation, or an attempt at substitution.

Newbro's Herpicide is a discovery. It was the first remedy ever given to science to kill the dandruff germ. Other preparations have since been offered to the public, some similar in appearance, some in color, but all bringing the daring promise of doing the same things that Herpicide has been doing for years.

Every article of this kind is merely one more instance of vicious emulation, vile imitation or a base attempt at substitution.

The "something just as good" story is old, why give it a thought? Herpicide is the Original Remedy. It kills the dandruff germ and prevents the hair from falling. Itching of the scalp stops almost with the first application.

Don't be deceived by "Something just as good." If your own druggist does not keep the genuine dandruff germ destroyer, Newbro's Herpicide, go to one who does.

One dollar size bottles are sold under a guarantee.

Send 10c. in postage for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept R., Detroit, Mich. Applications may be obtained at good barber shops.—Doyle's Drug Store, special agents.

WALK OUT IN BODY.

Unionists Resent Government Methods of Closure.

London, Dec. 1.—There was a remarkable scene in the House of Commons last night, when the Government applied the guillotine to 470 amendments in the report stage of the insurance bill.

Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, heatedly accused the Ministers of acting in obedience to the Redmondites in thus flouting Parliament in order to clear the road for home rule for Ireland. David Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, as hotly replied that the Government was only following the example set by Unionist Governments.

The excitement was intense and the members faced the prospect of a division on each amendment when, on the Speaker putting the first amendment, the entire Opposition rose and made a dramatic exit from the chamber, pursued by derisive Ministerial cheering. Then in a dreary montone the Speaker began formally putting the amendments and when he became fatigued the Deputy Speaker relieved him. The entire 470 amendments were adopted and in only a single case was the division challenged by the Laborites.

This concluded part one of the bill. The remaining parts will be guillotined to-day.

ROWELL AT WATERFORD.

Liberal Leader Discusses Power and 'Phones.

Waterford, Ont., Dec. 1.—At his meeting held in the Town Hall here last evening, N. W. Rowell devoted the greater portion of a long speech to the discussion of the public ownership of telephones. Evidently he had selected a subject which appealed most intimately to the farmers of North Norfolk, for his remarks were received with continued applause.

This was a progressive proposal, he said, a proposal in line with the general trend of progress on this matter throughout the world. Ontario, which once led all the other provinces, could not afford to come up at the end of the procession on a matter of such importance. It was time for her to take her old place in the van, and not permit every province in the Dominion to move ahead of her.

Already Alberta, Manitoba and Saskatchewan have proved the wisdom of such a policy. It is a policy which every European country of importance adopted long ago by taking over the trunk lines, and one which is giving the utmost satisfaction in Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

"Let me give you some figures from the western provinces which enjoy the operation of telephones under Government control." He said, "In 1905 there were in Manitoba 5,600 telephones, all bell instruments, in 1911, under Government control and at lessened cost to the subscribers there were 35,000 in use; in 1905, when Alberta decided to take over the management of her telephones, there were 650 in operation in the province. Today there are 12,000. Saskatchewan had only 350 in 1905, and 3,500 in 1908 when the change was made there. By 1911 she had 15,000. There should be no cost to the Government and the people of Ontario should save the big profits now being made by the Bell Co."

Mawson to Beautify Ottawa.

Ottawa, Dec. 1.—The Government has set itself to the task of beautifying the city of Ottawa. It is understood that the present improvement commission will be disbanded immediately. It is also understood that the Government has reached an agreement with Mr. Thomas Mawson, the well-known English authority on city planning and landscape gardening and lecturer on landscape design at the University of Liverpool, whereby Mr. Mawson will act in the capacity of a commissioner for the Government with the authority to organize and carry into effect a great scheme for the beautification of the capital.

Westfield Man the Victim.

Montreal, Dec. 1.—The mangled remains found near the Canadian Pacific Railway track at Bordeaux, Tuesday, are thought to be those of Arthur Jones, Westbury, Ont. Lieut. Tetreault, who is investigating the case, found part of the victim's coat torn from the body, in the pocket of which was found a note. The note read: "My name is Arthur Jones. In case of accident, notify Mrs. Lena Jones 119 Franklin avenue, Westfield, Mass."

THE OLD COUNTRY CHURCH.

I have worshiped in cathedrals that are Gothic
  And in temples that are modern in their style.
I have seen the art and beauty of their frescoes
  And the glories of their altar and their aisle.

But to me there is a temple that is fairer—
  It's the old white church down in the dell,
Where the birds that nest up in the belfry
  Start to sing when the saxton rings the bell.

There it stands among the tall old maples,
  Hark the music of its sweet old bell
Sounding through green hills and golden wheatfields!
  Soft and low it echoes through the dell.

There the honest country folk now gather,
  Hark to their hearty prayer and praise
As it floats out on the Sabbath morning
  Like sweet incense that wild roses raise,

Floats above the peaceful ancient graveyard,
  Where beneath the flowers loved ones rest;
Soars above and brings a heavenly blessing
  From the realms that are forever blest.

I have worshiped in the grand cathedrals,
  Heard their themes, their chimes and anthems swell,
But praise seems higher, heaven seems nearer,
  In the old white church down in the dell.

KURIOS FROM KORRESPONDENTS

Q.—Does it pay to cross the Belgian hare with the common cottontail? A.—No.

Q.—In breeding Belgians, what is the interval between litters? A.—Thirty days.

Q.—How much nutriment is contained in fifty pounds of skimmilk, and how may it most easily be extracted? A.—Skimmilk is largely water, fifty pounds containing but five pounds of nutriment, mostly protein, which is best secured by making it into "cottage cheese."

Q.—Why is the Aylesbury duck not popular in this country? A.—This quack has a white skin and picks hard and is not so easy to raise as the Pekin, which is a better layer and just fits the American market with its yellow, tender, juicy carcass.

Q.—What is meant by "pinioning" as regards geese? A.—Those who keep wild geese, like the Canadian, are compelled to remove the outer wing joint to prevent their escape. They are thus "pinioned."

Q.—How much of a cut is given a show bird for a missing tail feather, and how long does it take for new wing and tail feathers to grow? A.—If the variety is subject to color disqualifications, one point; if not, one-half point. Six to eight weeks.

Q.—What is an "emasculated" cockerel? A.—Your dictionary will tell you that it is a capon.

Q.—Which are the great duck raising states in the Union, and which is the most popular duck? A.—Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania. Pekin.

Q.—What is meant by the word "fancier?" A.—A breeder of pure bred chickens is termed a fowl fancier, a breeder of pure bred dogs is called a dog fancier, and a breeder of pure Chester Whites is a hog fancier.

Q.—Which is the more important side of the poultry industry, meat or eggs? A.—Eggs. The return from this source is two-thirds of the whole total from the poultry industry.

Q.—What are fancy breeds? A.—These are the ornamental in poultry—like the Sultans, Silkies, bantams and peafowl.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

There are two things that make many flocks unprofitable—too much grain and too little animal and green food. This makes a narrow fattening ration, and the hens do not receive the elements necessary for health and egg production.

Edward Taylor of Alexandria, S. D., wrote his name on an egg that was shipped to Brooklyn. Miss Margaret Graynor ate the egg, and it was so bon ton that she wrote to Mr. Taylor. They later sent out their wedding announcements written on eggshells.

One reason why turkeys crossed with the wild do not get blackhead so often is because the wild blood in their veins leads them to wander and to keep away from the barnyard and the hen runs, where the blackhead germ, the Amoeba maleagridis, flourishes.

Among the gifts at a donation party to a new preacher at Terre Hill, Pa., was a flock of fourteen fine chickens. They were placed in a new henhouse the members had built and started right in to lay. This beats serving preachers antediluvian clucks and rubbernecks.

The fellow who claims he has discovered the secret of the sex of eggs and can control the same should get busy on the problem of perpetual motion. If there is any liar that can find the secret without half trying he can. His own wagging tongue could be used in the experiments.

Allentown, Pa., has a female society called Yo Old Hens. While it is composed of young and coy maidens and the principles of the club are not anti-matrimonial, the young men of the famous Peanut City are giving the fair members the cold shoulder, as they fear cacklers and henpeckers.

Dogs soon become proficient at opening spring gates. Our bulldog Ted easily opens the ordinary store door by rising on his hind legs and snapping the latch, but when confined in a room where there is a window he doesn't bother with preliminaries, but chews up the sash. To avoid flocks getting mixed and cocks getting into mixups use bolts, bars or hooks to keep out the pups.

An English Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair

In England the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing rats, which is due entirely to this new discovery.

It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredietns that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-looked-for article is proven every day.

The Americans are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract of Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale.

This preparation is called SALVIA, and is being sold with a guarantee to cure Dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed SALVIA makes a most pleasant hair dressing. D. M. Waters, your druggist, is the first to import this preparation into Belleville and a large, generous bottle can be purchased for 50c.

THE HOLSTEIN-FRIESIAN

Canadian Conditions Favorable for Breeding a Good Class of the Holstein-Friesian Cow.

The people of Holland are noted for their thrift, progressiveness, and wealth. They are the wealthiest per head of population of any country. This happy condition has been brought about largely through the influence of the Holstein-Friesian cow upon the agriculture of Holland. This influence is not of recent origin, else it had not been so potent. We read that the Friesian people have dwelt upon the shores of the North Sea since 300 years before the Christian era. It is supposed that these people came originally from India, bringing with them herds of pure white cattle and sought the shores of the North Sea as a pasturing ground for their stock. Two hundred years later a German tribe came from the Upper Rhine district and also settled on the shores of the North Sea near the Friesians. They also brought their cattle with them — a black race of animals. It is further supposed that the white cattle of the Friesians and the black cattle of the Germans became crossed and thus laid the foundation of the present Holstein-Friesian breed of cattle and also the foundations of the dairy industry in Holland.

The cattle have spread to America, where a larger number and better cattle of this breed are found than in their native country. The conditions in Canada and the United States are favorable for breeding large numbers and for developing the breed to their highest capacity. Our large areas of land and immense stocks of food are favorable natural conditions for developing the hereditary tendencies of the breed, while our wide awake breeders have been quick to see the possibilities of animals of black and white color, in milk production, and have developed these with all the shrewdness characteristic of the race dwelling in North America, not the least important of whom dwell in the country called Canada.

Alfalfa Pasture for Hogs.

Henry Coates, one of the most successful hog raisers of Kansas, claims that hogs on alfalfa pasturage, fed on a small grain ration, will do far better than those fed on full feed of grain in dry lots. Mr. Coates says:

"Twenty-five years of pasturing hogs of all ages on alfalfa has proved to me conclusively that a fourth to a half grain ration while they are on such pasture will produce greater growth per day than when they are kept in dry lots and fed on full rations of corn. Hogs will maintain a reasonable growth, but not fatten enough for market on alfalfa pasture alone, therefore it is better to feed them with some grain while running on green alfalfa in order to make them profitable.

"If it is desired to full feed hogs they will make a rapid fattening growth from increasing the grain ration while they are on the pasture, and with this grain and alfalfa combination, the meat will be nearly as firm as that of the hogs kept in the dry lot and fed on nothing but grain. I find no distinction on the market between alfalfa fed swine and those purely grain fed and they sell price and price alike. The general health of the alfalfa fed hog is equal to that of those maintained on any other feed and they are prolific."

Clothes to Float You.

A remarkable demonstration was given the other day in the Spree, near Berlin, of a new fabric designed to make clothing so buoyant that it will keep its wearer afloat in the water. The composition of the invention which brings about this result is a well-guarded secret. To don a garment lined with it is to become unsinkable. On the occasion in mention infantrymen, in full marching kit, clad in uniforms lined with the material, which rendered the clothing neither heavier nor thicker than usual, threw themselves into the water, and not only did not sink, but were able to "march" in the water and to fire. At the same time coffee was served to a party in the water, waiter and guests being clad in the special fabric.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

HIGH COURT.

The fall sittings of the non-jury High Court of Justice wil open here to-morrow afternoon before the Hon. Justice Middleton. There are but few cases on the docket and none are of a very important nature.

THEY DID NOT STAY.

At an early hour on Sunday morning Michael O'Brien and Thomas Jackson, two strangers, were arrested at the G.T.R. station on a charge of vagrancy. This morning the Magistrate allowed them their liberty upon trate allowed them their liberty upon promising to leave the city.

WINGERT—PIGDEN.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at Elm Street Methodist Church parsonage, 42 Breadalbane Street, Toronto, on Saturday, when Rev. Dr. W. F. Wilson united Mr. Roy Wingert, of Harrisburg, Pa., and Miss Helen Louise Pigden, of Belleville, in marriage. The bride was attended by Miss Carroll, and the groom supported by Mr. Norman W. Squire.

PRESENTATION AT CHURCH.

At the close of the service at the Baptist Church last night an individual communion service was presented to the church by the Yokefellows Bible Class. This beautiful gift was formally presented to the church by, Mr. W. B. Riggs, the popular president of the class, in an appropriate speech. Deacon Riggs accepted the gift in behalf of the church in a few well-chosen remarks. A very large congregation was present and many expressions of appreciation were heard of this splendid gift. Seven new members were received into the membership of this church at the service of the Lord's Supper, which followed.

MISSIONARY SERVICES.

At Holloway Street Church yesterday morning missionary sermons were preached by the Rev. George W. McCall, B.A., B.D., of Napanee. Good congregations were present and the appeals on behalf of the missionary enterprise made by the Rev. gentleman were attentively listened to. Rev. Mr. McCall is a good platform speaker and forcible in his remarks. In the evening his subject was the command of Jesus to go out and teach all nations. This command was laid upon all and it was not only our privilege but our duty to respond to the command. It was an impressive sermon. During the service the male quartette composed of Messrs. Geo. Dulmage, O. Duprau, John Boyd and R. Taylor sang "Nearer My God to Thee."

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.

About two weeks ago Mr. Douglas Holton, son of Mrs. C. P. Holton, of this city, who was employed on the survey of the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway far in the wildnerness, thirty-five miles from civilization, where communication with the outer world was had only once every two weeks by a man who came in with mail and supplies, was the victim of a very distressing accident. Mr. Holton had lost the sight of one eye in childhood, and in the evening of the day on which the messenger arrived, and after his departure, Mr. Holton fell, fracturing the cover of his good eye, and thus was rendered totally blind. He was obliged to remain in this condition for ten days, when, fortunately, one of the head men arrived and took the injured young man to Toronto and communicated with his relatives here. He was brought to Belleville, arriving here at 2. a.m. on Sunday. Dr. Farley was sent for, and called in consultation Dr. McCullough, and on their advice the patient was taken by the flyer yesterday to Toronto, accompanied by his mother and Mr. C. J. Bowell, for treatment by Dr. Reeve, with the result that Mr. Holton was taken to the Cottage Hospital, where an operation was to be performed this morning. It is hoped that the patient will be able, by means of thick glasses, to recover his sight sufficiently for practical purposes.

TRAMPS ON THE MOVE.

No less than seven members of the tramping fraternity last night sought shelter at the police station. All were comparatively young and able bodied men.

KILLED A DOG.

Yesterday afternoon the police answered a call to Mill Street and despatched a fine spaniel dog. The unfortunate canine had been run over by a vehicle with the result that two of its legs were broken.

COUNTY PARLIAMENT.

The County Council will assemble here to-morrow for their final meeting of the year. This august body will be honored by the presence of two members of the Legislature, namely Mr. Robert Cook, Reeve of Rawdon, member for North Hastings, and Mr. Sandy Grant, Reeve of Tweed village, member for East Hastings.

DIED IN ENGLAND

Mrs. Wm. Blaiad and Mrs. Bert. Langfield, of this city, received this morning the sad news of the death of their father, Mr. Edward Bluck, which took place at Leatherhead, Eng., Nov. 22nd.

NEW RECTOR.

Rev. Father Killeen, of Picton, has been appointed Parish Priest for St. Michael's Church. The Rev. Father comes here highly recommended and will no doubt prove a worthy successor to Archbishop Spratt.

MILITARY CONFERENCE.

At the monthly meeting of the Daughters of the Empire at the Armories on Friday Colonel Ponton addressed the ladies on incidents and experiences at the recent military conference at Ottawa, so successfuly carried out by the Minister of Militia and Defence.

A PARTY FROM BELLEVILLE.

Among the Belleville people who came down for the consecration of Archbishop Spratt on Thursday was a party consisting of Miss Helen Kyle, Miss Lena Meagher, Miss Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Black and Frank Fitzpatrick. The latter is the popular clerk of the Hotel Quinte. While in the city they stayed at the Hotel Randolph.—Whig

DIVERS AT WORK.

The barge Sligo, loaded with concrete stone, which sank at Port Hope last Saturday, is being repaired in preparation to raising. Two divers, one from Belleville, and the other from Toronto, are making the repairs. The water is very cold, but the divers are able to stay under for one hour and are making good progress with the work. A large number of citizens are watching the operations with interest.

C.N.O.R. NOTES.

During the past few days considerable freight has arrived in the city over the line of the C.N.O.R. and the prospects are that the road will do a large business in that line here. The past few days a number of workmen have been engaged in rivetting the iron structure work placed across the harbor, being an addition to the company's bridge across the mouth of the river. Of late considerable ballasting has been done between Belleville and Trenton, the roadbed now being in fairly good shape.

ELECTED OFFICERS.

Yesterday afternoon at Bridge St. Church the Belleville Business Men's Bible Class elected their officers for the coming year as follows:

President—R. B. Morden.
1st Vice-Pres.—A. R. Walker.
2nd Vice-Pres.—A. M. Chapman.
Treasurer—J. A. Porbridge.
Secretary—Dr. H. S. Clapp.
Asst. Sec.—Chas. Boyle.
Chorister—C. H. Vermilyea.
Organist—W. A. A. Chown.
Teacher—F. E. O'Flynn.
Asst. Teachers—A. McClatchie, Geo. F. Stewart.

Before the election of officers Miss Helen Ketcheson sang "Wonderful Words of Life" and the quartette rendered most acceptably "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." Mr. F. E. O'Flynn gave a short address, which was much appreciated by all present.

Waterford's Tragic Death—Stumbled Into Flooded River at Night

DUBLIN, Dec. 2.—The Marquis of Waterford was drowned last night in the River Clodagh, near his residence at Curraghmore, in the county of Waterford.

He was one of the most prominent among the Irish nobility. Born in 1875 he succeeded to the title in 1895. He was educated at Eaton and then served in the Royal Horse Guards, afterwards transferring to the militia, and more recently becoming lieutenant-colonel of the South of Ireland yeomanry. He is succeeded by his eldest son, the Earl of Tyrone.

The Marquis' body was found at 8 o'clock this morning. He had been hunting yesterday, and when he returned to Curraghmore, paid his customary visit to the kennels before dinner. When he failed to retrun to the house, a search was instituted and continued throughout the night. The body was eventually discovered in the small river Clodagh which flows between the kennels and the residence.

The night was very dark and the [illegible] much swollen by recent rains. It is thought probable that the Marquis fell into the water accidentally.

The Marquis was the third successive Marquis to die a violent death. His father committed suicide after being crippled through an accident in the hunting field, and the preceding holder of the title broke his neck when jumping over a stone wall while hunting.

The deceased Marquis had to cross a narrow bridge protected only by a low handrail. It is believed he stumbled and fell over, striking the stones at the bottom of the stream,

JOHNSON ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION

Able and Popular Candidate Given A Second Term in the Legislature

Nomination of candidates for the representation of West Hastings in the Ontario Legislature created but little public interest, owing to the fact that but one candidate was in the field, namely, Mr. J. W. Johnson, the popular Conservative member in the late Legislature.

The proceedings opened in the city hall at the hour of noon before the returning officer, Mr. W. P. Hudson, ex-M.P.P. Shortly after 12 o'clock Mr. P. J. O'Rourke, of Trenton, nominated Mr. J. W. Johnson, ex-M.P.P. Mr. Clem. H. Ketcheson, of Sidney, seconded the nomination.

At 1.30 the returning officer declared Mr. Johnson duly elected, according to section 58 of the Ontario Election Act which reads as follows:

"If no more candidates are nominated than are required to be elected, or if by the withdrawal of persons nominated there remain no more candidates than are required to be elected the Returning Officer at the expiration of one hour from the nomination of the candidate last nominated, shall close the election and openly declare the person or persons so chosen to be duly elected. R.S.O. 1897 c, 9, s, 55."

Short addresses were then delivered by the member-elect, Sir M. Bowell, Messrs. P. J. O'Rourke, Clem H. Ketcheson and H. Corby, ex-M. P., a report of which will appear to-morrow.

NORTH HASTINGS ALSO

Mr. Robert Cook, Reeve of Rawdon Township, was this afternoon elected by acclamation as the representative of North Hastings in the Legislature. His name was proposed by Mr. J. W Pearce, ex-M. P. P. A large number of electors were present at the proceedings.

LIKEWISE THE EAST

Mr. Sandy Grant, Reeve of Tweed, the Conservative nominee for the Legislature in East Hastings, was today elected by acclamation. The nomination was held at Roslin.

ACCLAMATIONS ELSEWHERE

KINGSTON, Dec. 4.—Dr. Arthur E. Ross (Con.) was to-day elected M. P.P. for Kingston by acclamation.

PEMBROKE, Dec. 4.—At the North Renfrew nominations Edward A. Dunlop, (Con.), was elected by acclamation.

PERTH, Dec. 4—At the nomination held to-day for South Lanark, Hon. A. J. Matheson, (Con.) was elected by acclamation.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Hon. Adam Beck (Con.) was to-day re-elected unopposed to represent the city of London in the Ontario Legislature.

DEATHS CALL

MRS. PIGDEN.

After an illness of two years' duration Mrs. Mary Ann Pigden, wife of Mr. Thomas Pigden, passed away on Saturday afternoon at the family residence, Ann street. In the year 1831, at Brighton, England, the deceased was born, being thus in her 81st year. About half a century ago Mrs. Pigden came to Canada and since that time had made her home in this city and Deseronto. She was an estimable lady and made many friends. Deceased was an Anglican, being a member of Christ Church. An aged husband and a family of two sons and one daughter survive. The sons are Alexander, of Watertown, N.Y., and Thomas E., of New York City. The daughter, Miss Harriett, resides home.

MRS. W. A. KETCHESON.

Mrs. Ada Ketcheson, wife of Mr. W. A. Ketcheson, of Huntingdon township died this morning. Deceased had been a sufferer for some time with cancer of the stomach. Mrs. Ketcheson, who was in her 61st year, was a daughter of the late Mr. Stephen White, of Huntingdon. In addition to the husband, two sons,

CURRENT COMMENT

It may be set down in your diary that navigation closed at Belleville on the 5th of December, 1911.

Winter is off to a good start, with a temperature of 5 degrees above zero during last night.

It was supposed that because Sir Gilbert Parker could be spared from England for a few weeks there was no serious trouble on the horizon, but all at once the Suffragettes broke loose.—Mail and Empire.

Dr. Sproule, Speaker of the House, has again earned the enmity of the opposition. By actually banishing intoxicating liquor from his table he has done something they are powerless to blame him for, without calling down the wrath of a cause they profess to cater to.—Hamilton Spectator.

The County Council looms large as a legislative body, no less than two of its members being members-elect, and that by acclamation, to the Ontario Legislature. They are Messrs. Robert Cook, Reeve of Rawdon, for North Hastings, and Sandy (not Alexander, as some people have it) Grant, Reeve of Tweed, for East Hastings.

John Hays Hammond, an eminent American, declares that the Jamieson Raid was an "American" scheme entirely, originated and carried out as far as it went, by United States citizens in the Transvaal who rebelled against the tyranny of Oom Paul Kruger. A lot of hearthstone critics who have for years been accusing English capitalists and politicians of plotting against Kruger ought to apologize to the people they have slandered. But they won't.—Brockville Times.

It was a striking tribute to the Premier of Ontario that Mr. A. E. Fripp M.P., paid in the House on Friday when he declared that the Government would do well to copy the business-like methods of Sir James Whitney and his Government. He maintained that more good legislation had been adopted by the Ontario House in the past four or five years than in the Dominion House in 15 years.—Guelph Herald.

Scenes more interesting and exciting than edifying have been somewhat common in the House of Commons since it began its work a fortnight ago. They generally had their origin on the opposition side. They indicate that the party which lost in the late elections is taking its misfortune in a spirit of hardness which is not promising for its future peace. It looks as if it would have to nurse its soreness a long time.—Montreal Gazette.

The latest freak of the militant British suffragists in creating a disturbance in a church and preventing Premier Asquith from delivering an address by organized disturbance and unseemly antics, seems bound to injure the movement by its effect on normal public opinion. If such women as created the disturbance are to be enfranchised in large numbers, it will infuse a hysteric and largely irresponsible element into the electorate of the country, whose influence on public affairs might be regarded with anxiety.—Ottawa Citizen.

A unique experience was that of four Indianapolis prisoners, who were taken for an automobile ride of ten miles the other day, and saw in an hour the developments which have taken place in 40 years. One convict had served 40 years, one 35 years, one 17 years, one 13 years. All are lifers. The ride was from Michigan City to Laporte, where two of the prisoners saw for the first time trolley cars, automobiles and many other evidence of modern achievements, hidden from them by prison walls. So great was the surprise that two of them utterly collapsed from nervous excitement.

"Well, mamma," pursued thoughtful Thomas, "you call me your little lad, don't you?"

"Yes, dearie, you are mamma's little lad!"

"Then, mamma," concluded Tommy, "I suppose I must be my step-papa's little step-ladder."

DETECTIVE HAD SLIGHT CLUE

Board, Brass and Tin Can Gave Start Which Led to Arrest of McNamaras

A bit of board and a bit of brass and a tin can, gave the first clues which led to the arrests of the McNamara brothers and Ortie McManigal on charges of a sreies of dynamite outrages committed on behalf of the Structural Iron Workers' Union, and which incidentally included the destruction of the office building of the Los Angeles Times, a non-union paper, with a loss of 21 lives. The brass and the can were parts of an infernal machine which had failed to explode at Peoria, Ill., in Sept. 1910. Lettering on the can was recognized by the agnt for a nitro glycerine manufacturer. The brass was part of an alarm clock. Customers of the explosive companies were investigated and suspicion centered on one J. W. McGraw. Burns, trailed him and connected him with John J. McNamara. Then came the Times explosion. A bit of board and a bit of brass were recovered. The brass was identical with that found at Peoria. The board was marked as the property of a powder works and its purchaser was found to be one J. B. Bryce. Then "McGraw" and "Bryce" were found to be James B. McNamara.

One day last April McNamara and Ortie McManigal were secretly arrested at Detroit and whisked off to Chicago. Before the fact became known, ten days later the headquarters of the Ironworkers' Union in Indianapolis were raided and John McNamara arrested and hurried off at once to California. In his private vault were found more alarm clocks and dynamite. Then it was announced that McManigal had confessed.

Labor bodies tried to have Detective Burns convicted for kidnapping McNamara without complying with extradition laws and voluntary subscription funds for the defence were contributed, several hundred thousands of dollars in all. The McNamaras constantly professed their innocence. Within the last fortnight they exchanged such telegrams with the American Federation of Labor at Atlanta, Ga.

The Los Angeles Times building was blown up on the morning of Oct. 1, 1910, the building being wrecked. Later in the morning a bomb was found in the residence of General Harrison Gray Otis, proprietor and editor of the Times, and an uncompromising opponent of the closed shop. These were the climax to a long series of outrages on bridges and buildings under construction throughout the country, doing millions of dollars' damage and costing many lives. Los Angeles authorities contributed a large reward and employed Sleuth Burns. This is his day of triumph.

Kirkcaldy gas undertaking, which was recently purchased by the town, has cost the town $126,620.

SCOTSMEN IN CANADA

Least Likely to be Discouraged by Hardships in Canada

In an article discussing types of settlers in Canada, the Victoria Daily Colonist thus sums up its views of the various nationalities in the United Kingdom. "Experience with settlers from Scotland in the eastern provinces shows that of all newcomers they are the least likely to become discouraged by hardships and disappointments. Instances could be cited where settlers from Scotland, who were by no means well placed in respect to locality in Canada, have persevered against very adverse conditions and achieved success. They do not readily give up, and they are not willing to sacrifice the result of their work, the latter quality leading them to stick out against conditions which would discourage people of almost every other nationality. When the Irish can be induced to go upon the land they exhibit excellent qualities, but again speaking from experience in the past, they are somewhat inclined to drift to the cities and work for wages in preference to becoming farmers. There are many conspicuous exceptions, and it would not be difficult to mention localities, settled wholly by immigrants from Ireland, which are now very prosperous. There are Englishmen and Englishmen, when it comes to speaking of their fitness for pioneer work in a country like British Columbia. Here again estern experience serves as a guide. A resourceful Englishman makes an admirable settler, but for some reason or other there are not as many of this type as could be desired. The facts seem to show that almost any Scotsman can make a success at farming in this new country under pioneer conditions, that most Irishmen will do the same if the lure of the city does not draw them away, and that a certain type of Englishman will also do so. We are speaking now of the pioneers only, the men who go out into the wilds and make a farm out of the rough. When it comes to the purchase of improved farms, we do not know that there is any difference to be noted between the people of the three kingdoms."

HAIRDRESSERS

RECOMMEND PARISIAN SAGE.

Hugh D. McKinnon, of Brantford, Ont., says: "I consider Parisian Sage the best preparation for the cure of dandruff, falling hair and itching scalp that I have ever used in my business. It is a most excellent tonic and dressing, and has given perfect satisfaction to my customers. I am and always shall be pleased to highly recommend Parisian Sage."

Parisian Sage is the only scientific hair restorer in the world and it is fully guaranteed by the proprietors to do what they claim or refund your money, but you must see that you get the genuine, which is guaranteed by J. V. Doyle, who sells it at 50c. a large bottle. The girl with the Auburn Hair is on each package. Look for this.

STATUE OF SIR WILFRID

Mr. Paul Chevre Will Carve One for Chateau Laurier.

Mr. Paul Chevre, the Parisian sculptor, who designed the Champlain monument on Dufferin terrace, Quebec, and the Mercier monument to be unveiled next spring in the Ancient Capital has just booked the order from the G. T. R. for a statue of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to adorn the centre piece in the lobby of the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa.

The statue will be marble, along the lines of the bust of Sir Wilfrid Laurier made by the same artist and presented to the ex-Premier in 1901. The bust will slightly exceed the natural size, and will be supported by a single column, adorned with appropriate allegories. It will be ready in the spring and will cost $5,000.

Would You Make Coffee in a Frying Pan?

WHY wouldn't you? Because the best part of coffee is the aroma, and if you made your coffee in a frying pan you would let most of it out.

Same with rolled oats.

If the miller dries them in open pans, in the ordinary way, much of the aroma and flavor of the oats escape with the moisture.

Tillson's Oats are dried in pans enclosed in kilns. When they reach your table, you will find they retain all the appetizing aroma and delicious flavor which nature gave the oats.

In a flash the image of Genevieve Cooper swam out of my thoughts. My whole attention become glued to the cipher. At each end of the two rows of numerals and arrows was a peculiar crenellated design; it had struck me with a sudden sense of familiarity. Where had I ever seen anything similar or identical, that this odd symbol should penetrate into the midst of my absorption and force me unwittingly to try to recall the circumstance? Quite recently, I was sure—to-day—in this very house. My glance skirted the spacious library, darting from one object to another, but encountered nothing at all that in any way resembled it. Here was a subliminal reminder which my perception was dull to read.

Filled with the idea, I thrust the strip of parchment-like paper back into my pocketbook, and started eagerly upon another tour of the entire establishment. I paused in one room after another, examined each article in turn, but ended not a whit wiser than when I began.

Yet my belief in the correctness of the veiled mental impulse remained unshaken. The design was a facsimile of some object in this house; something my eyes had rested upon, albeit without the existence at the time of any occasion to fix it upon my mind; but conjure my brain as I would, I could not recall where or when.

When Stodger returned, I determined at last, I would set him at work searching for the odd symbol, or whatever it might be. When I made this resolve I was standing beside the old Walnut table at the head of Mr. Page's bed; with a forefinger I idly traced the design in the dust on the artificial leather cover, beside the impress made by the jewel-box.

My preoccupation was broken in upon by the arrival of the undertaker's men. It would not do—if the ruby was really beneath this roof—to grant any strangers unrestricted privileges of the house; at least not without keeping a needful eye upon their movements. Alexander Burke, I shrewdly suspected, was equal to any subterfuge or ruse to obtain the jewel, and I did not mean to be caught napping.

No small responsibility is involved in safeguarding $500,000—the amount Maillot declared his uncle had paid for the ruby—particularly when the guardian himself does not know precisely where the treasure lies. It would not do to take any chances. Otherwise, if the amount had been materially less, or had been in a form not so easily disposed of about the venient cranny, or, perhaps, even tossing it unseen through a window to a waiting confederate on the outside, my wisest course might have been to permit Burke, or whoever knew where the jewel was, to lead me to its hiding-place. But I must be vigilant, always alert; there would be little sleep for me until I had this extraordinary gem safe in my hands.

So I remained with the undertaker's men until they departed with the body.

As I turned to re-enter the house Stodger's portly form hove into view. He dropped into one of the library's big easy-chairs.

"Whew!" he gasped. "I'm a peach of a shadow, ain't I? Nice work for one of my build. Say! That fellow Burke—Alexander Stilwell—he's the—you know—most restless party I ever saw. If Fanshawe hadn't relieved me when he did I'd be worked down to about middle-weight by this time."

"Anything particular?" I inquired.

"Er—no. You know he came back here. Rest o' the time he spent dodging in and out of old Page's offices at the Drovers' National. Walk like a house afire for—m'm'm—maybe a block; next time maybe six blocks."

"Well?"

"Then he'd—ah—he'd turn round and walk back again."

"Not very interesting for you. But we know one thing for certain: he's uneasy. I have a far lighter task for you, though, than following the erratic movements of Mr. Alexander Burke."

And then I recounted for his benefit all that I knew respecting the ruby, declared my belief that it lay somewhere in the house, and, finally, outlined my plans for the immediate future.

"We'll divide the vigil between us, Stodger; you and I shall camp right here until that costly bauble comes to light. We'll have to keep our eyes open and our wits about us, too; I wouldn't be surprised at some tricky attempt to recover it at any time—especially during darkness."

After showing him the cipher and requesting that he be observant to find the counterpart of the two peculiar designs, I left him in charge of the house. Next I arranged that our meals be brought to us, after which I returned to town and held a long conference with my chief. This proved to be eminently satisfactory, inasmuch as he left the Page affair entirely in my hands.

Although I hoped that some new development would require another interview with Miss Cooper, absolutely nothing transpired until the next morning. During the rest of Wednesday afternoon—perhaps I forgot to mention that the murder was committed at about midnight Tuesday—and until late Wednesday night, Stodger and I prosecuted a diligent and systematic search for the ruby, the original of the design of the cipher, and for anything else that might bear upon the crime, but found nothing to reward our efforts. At a late hour we knocked off and sought the library's easy-chairs. After a while Stodger asked me for the cipher. When I dropped off to sleep he was industriously digging away at it, with many gasps and inarticulate exclamations.

Concerning the cipher, it is perhaps well to mention that I applied it to the door of the hidden safe on the chance that the opposed arrows indicated the different movements of the dial; but I discovered the combination to be much simpler. In fact, there were not sufficient tumblers in the dial to allow for so complicated a combination at all.

There remained the possibility that the numerals belonged to some other safe, though I did not think so: those two odd crenellated figures could have nothing in common with any permutation-lock. I had seen them; they were tantalizingly familiar; but where? And what meaning did those two figure "10's" bear? Here was a riddle for Œdipus.

The next morning—Thursday—Dr. De Breen conducted the inquest in the library. I mention this hearing solely because of a number of circumstances which occurred during the proceedings—although unrelated to them—and which have a bearing upon the story. As for the testimony itself, it was about as satisfactory as in most instances where little respecting the crime is definitely known.

Stodger and I had the burden of additional watchfulness imposed upon us; a number of people would be brought upon the scene, and each of us had to be present at some time during the hearing without leaving the house unguarded for a second.

"Looky here, Swift," Dr. De Breen buttonholed me, grabbing at his glasses, "what's in this case, anyhow? Have you got the man? 'Tisn't a woman, is it?" He cocked his head on one side, and favored me with a squinting regard.

"No, I haven't," I emphatically returned. "And what's more, I don't think you're going to hit upon him today. It isn't a woman, either."

"Don't say! But what have you?"

I displayed the cipher, at which he scowled ferociously for a second.

"It's a combination," he announced, decisively; "bet the cigars it's a combination—or direction of some sort."

"Sure thing. Perhaps, too, you'll tell me where I can try it out."

Holding his glasses with one hand, he stared through them at the bit of paper.

"What are those fluted affairs at each end with figure '10's' in 'em?"

I shook my head. "You can search me. I thought you might tell me something; I can ask more questions about it myself right now than I can answer."

But I added my conviction that they were fac-similes of some detail of ornamentation I had seen in the house. I also told him where the cipher had been discovered—but not who had discovered it—and, in short, gave him a summary of the entire case. Before I was through he was grinning at me in a very superior and knowing way.

"Nice, bright sleuth, you," commented he, mockingly; "can't you see through a grindstone when there's a hole in it? Now, looky here, Swift; old Page kept the replica in the box as a blind; this cryptogram tells where the real ruby is."

I shrugged my shoulders; the idea was by no means novel. But it did not make matters any clearer.

"It must have been the ruby which he showed Maillot," I insisted. "That young man may not be much of a gem expert, but I don't think any mere paste imitation of a ruby would have inspired him to such a flight of vivid description as he indulged in when he talked with me yesterday morning. Guess again."

Whitney Governmemt and Farmers

The agricultural policy of the Whitney Government has been distinguished by two things—the initiation of broad new lines and the strengthening and expanding of some of the lines started by their predecessors.

In Opposition Sir James Whitney declared agricultural schools should be established in every county in order that agricultural instruction might be brought closer to the farmer than was possible through one central Agricultural College. In 1907 the Departments of Agriculture and Education began to co-operate to make good this promise and the results have already more than exceeded the most sanguine anticipations. It was decided to attach a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College to the staff of the county High School, thus enlisting the support and co-operation of the county authorities. Beginning in six counties in order that the work might be launched on a sound basis the number has been increased from year to year. Twenty counties are now being served by permanent men, covering nearly half the province, and it is the intention of the Government to continue this work in accordance with the demand until all the province is covered.

Not only has the number of offices increased but the work has developed so rapidly that in almost every case an assistant has had to be appointed. This means that the services of nearly forty trained specialists in agriculture have been placed within easy reach of the farmers of the province, whereas in 1904 there was not a single one. Aside from the benefits of having agriculture taught in the High Schools, the advantage of having an expert on hand to consult on all the problems of the farm can at once be appreciated. It is as though the services of a doctor or a lawyer were placed at the disposal of the farmers free of charge. There can be no doubt but that the improved methods resulting fromt his work have put thousands of dollars into the pockets of the farmers and therefore been of great value to the community as a whole. In one county it is figured that the work of the district representative has added three dollars an acre to the value of the land in that county.

In addition to the permanent appointments, men have been at work in half a dozen different sections during the summer months, chiefly in the newer districts of the province.

Provincial Finances

Before taking office Sir James Whitney declared that the province, under proper management, need experience no such situation as that which was obstructing its progress. He said: "With her extensive resources the problem of provincial finances can be easily solved, leaving the way clear for such increased expenditure in agriculture and education as may be found necessary and desirable, and the result can be arrived at without periodically selling timber limits, or in other words, capital stock, to cover up an anticipated deficit, caused by the excess of annual expenditure over annual income.

The policy of the Conservative party was thus, not the starvation of necessary services, but finding of revenue that all the services might be kept up and improved and that the deficits should cease. On the appointment of Hon. A. J. Matheson to the Treasurership the work of reform was undertaken. The first move looked to the proper collection of the revenue and to provide more liberally for the public services such as agriculture and education.

One of the movements to which the Government successfully applied itself was the securing of justice from Ottawa by pressing the claims of Ontario for a fair subsidy. The original terms of Confederation gave Ontario a fixed annual grant regardless altogether of the increase in population, and of the increased administration. The Whitney Government contended that this was not reasonable. Ontario was paying larger customs and excise duties and was undertaking new and more expensive services in behalf of the people. She was therefore entitled to a larger share of th Federal revenue.

In the campaign for better terms the other provinces joined and after discussion the Dominion Government recognized the justice of Sir James Whitney's demand and agreed to a new deal. The result was an amendment to the terms of Confederation, under which Ontario receives for the purposes of civil government $240,000 a year instead of $80,000, as formerly, and, in addition, 80 cents per head of the population, as determined from time to time by the census, instead of 80 cents per head for the population as it stood in 1861.

By this splendid move the Whitney Government secured for the province an increase in the revenue of no less than $700,000 a year. The income from Ottawa, under the old arrangement, was $1,339,287 annually. By the changes secured at Ottawa it became $2,128,772.

MR. NORTHRUP'S ABLE SPEECH IN THE DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS

He Rallies the Opposition on Their Waste of Time—Keen Analysis of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Amendment— A Glaring Misstatement Exposed—Trenchant Discussion of the Subjects Before House

Mr. W. B. NORTHRUP (East Hastings). Mr. Speaker, I trust that I shall be forgiven if I decline to wander through the wilds of fancy, fiction and irrelevancy, through which this House has been dragged during the last seven or eight days, and come down to the more prosaic, but I hope not less useful task of considering the question before the House. Let me remind the House that we are called together by an official notice for the despatch of business, and would any one who has looked down on the proceedings of this House for the past week believe that 221 selected representatives of the people, supposed to be the ablest men the people could call to this Chamber to discharge their duties by considering those matters and legislating in those directions which are for the true interests of the people of this country, had spent eight days here without doing one single cent's worth of good.

Let me remind the House of the position we are actually in. A motion was made a week ago to-day for an address in reply to the speech from the Throne. I fully recognize the constitutional right of any and every member at such a time to bring before the House and grievance, to call the attention of the government to any matter of moment to which he may consider it proper to call attention. But we must not forget that despite these rights, that we are called here for the despatch of business, and so far, nothing has been said by the opposition to show that any fault exists in anything that is in the speech from the Throne. Therefore, I think we are now entitled to assume that the speech from the Throne, so far as it goes, meets the views of the opposition. But the opposition have not said anything to show that they find any fault with the speech from the Throne with regard to anything that is omitted, because this amendment to which I will come in a moment, does not find fault with the speech from the Throne on account of anything contained therein, or omitted therefrom, but brings up an entirely new and different matter. And so, Sir, after a week's debate, we find that this House is satisfied with the bill of fare presented by the government in the speech from the Throne.

Under such circumstances, when the hon. gentleman (Sir Wilfrid Laurier) who leads the opposition to-day after so many years' occupancy of the place of leader of the government, comes before the House with an amendment, one would surely be justified in supposing that he would have taken the trouble to consider the subject he is bringing before the House and to have brought before us a motion that the hon. members could consider without derogation of their own dignity or waste of the time of the House. I am sorry, very sorry, that the right hon. gentleman is unable to be in his place to-day. But that shall not prevent me from calling attention to two stubborn facts. In the amendment he has moved there is first a statment of fact and then a proposition of law. Now, the statement of fact is false, or it is true, the statement of law is sound or it is childish. I do not need to go very far to find that the statement of fact is not accurate and the statement of law is not sound.

What is the statement of fact upon which the right hon. gentleman has based the amendment which has been the occasion for this whole week's waste of time? He quotes a resolution passed by this House on the 29th of March, 1909, a resolution passed under circumstances to which I adverted last session and which I shall not take time to advert to again to-day. But a copy of the principal clause, the one on which the naval policy of the government was based, is given as follows:

> The House will cordially approve of any necessary expenditure designed to promote the organization of a Canadian naval service.

And yet, Sir, there is no such clause in the resolution of the 29th March, 1909. Would it be believed?—the right hon. gentleman has put in his amendment a statement of a clause of a resolution passed in this House on a certain day, when, as a matter of fact such a clause is not contained in any resolution passed by this House on that or any other day. Let me read what was really passed by this House on the date referred to, the 29th of March, 1909:

> The House will cordially approve of any necessary expenditure designed to promote a speedy organization of a Canadian naval service——

So far correctly quoted. But there is no stop there, not even a comma, and the resolution goes on:

> —in co-operation with and in close relation to the Imperial navy, along tthe lines suggested by the Admiralty at the last Imperial Conference, and in full sympathy with the view that the lines suggested by the Admiralty is essential to the security of commerce, the safety of the empire and the peace of the world.

A wonderfully different sentence, a sentence which if introduced into this amendment would have made absolutely nugatory every word stated in that amendment. Yet it is a sentence part of which it is deemed necessary to cite in order to give even the pretext of a shadow of excuse for bringing this amendment before the House. Let me call attention to this clause which the right hon. gentleman has so mangled and misquoted in the amendment before us. This clause declares that the Canadian naval service is to be in co-operation with and close relation to the Imperial navy along the lines suggested by the Admiralty at the last Imperial Conference. In order to understand that, we need to know what the Admiralty did suggest at the last Imperial Conference. I can inform the House as to that from the original blue-book giving the reports of that Conference. On that occasion Lord Tweedmouth, the head of the Admiralty, said:

> I know that you gave to the government and to the Admiralty, with a free and unstinting hand, the help that you thought you could manage to give. Gentlemen, I have only one reservation to make, and in making it, I ask that, as we have proved ourselves successful in the past, you should put your trust in us now. The only reservation that the Admiralty desires us to make is, that they claim to have charge of the stragetical questions which are necessarily involved in naval defence, to hold the command of the naval forces of the country and to arrange the distribution of ships in the best possible manner to resist attacks and to defend the empire at large, whether it be our own islands or the dominions beyond the seas. We want you to help us in that defence. We want you to give us all the assistance you can, but we do not come to you as beggars; we gladly take all that you can give us, but at the same time if you are not inclined to give us the help that we hope to have from you, we acknowledge our absolute obligation to defend the King's dominion's across the seas to the best of our ability.

That is what the Admiralty wanted —contributions from the various parts of the empire, in money or in ships, but a navy over which the Admiralty was to have supreme control. Is that the naval policy referred to by the right hon. gentleman, adopted by this House in 1909 and carried out by the late government? Why, Sir, it is a sheer abuse of language, a travesty of justice, to claim that there is any connection between the proposal of the Admiralty asking for a navy along the lines indicated and the navy that would have been foisted on the country by hon. gentlemen opposite had they remained in power. But the Admiralty spoke further. Let us see what Canada's position was. Lord Tweedmouth, at this conference further said:

> I have here a statement of the subsidies which in the past have been given by the various colonies. Australia gives £200,000; New Zealand £40,000; Cape Colony, £50,000; Natal, £35,000; Newfoundland, £3,000; in all £328,000. . . . We are quite ready to enter into any arrangements with the colonies that may seem most suitable to them and which may seem to bring advantages to the navy, and advantages to the colonies themselves.

You will notice, Mr. Speaker, that in the list of contributions the name of Canada does not appear. Again, at page 470: Lord Tweedmouth lays down in plain language where Canada was and what Canada was undertaking to do, and it was along these lines that this precious navy was to be founded and carried out:

> There is at present no proposition from Canada to make any change at all, but I think it is proposed that matters shall go on very much as they have gone on, except that the Canadian representatives announce that they are desirous to do all that they can to expand the interest in the navy throughout the Dominion, and in that way think that they will really be giving a great help to the empire as a whole.

Here is where Canada shines:—'The Canadian representatives announce that they are anxious to do all that they can to expand the interest in the navy throughout the Dominion.'

But you see that the navy we were to develop was never along the lines as laid down by the Admiralty at the conference in 1907. That which was accepted by the Admiralty, as voiced by the head of the Admiralty, Lord Tweedmouth, was that Canada would do her best 'to expand the interest in the navy throughout the Dominion.' That was the sum total of the contribution that this great overseas Dominion was willing to make.

As if to put the matter beyond peradventure, at the close of the conference Dr. Smartt moved a resolution that it seems to me any man with one spark of loyalty or one drop of patriotic blood, or even with a spark of self-respect might support. Dr. Smartt moved:

> That this Conference recognizing the vast importance of the services rendered by the navy to the defence of the empire and the protection of its trade, and the paramount importance of continuing to maintain the navy in the highest possible state of efficiency, considers it to be the duty of the dominions beyond the seas to make——

And now what were we to do?

> —such contributions toward the upkeep of the navy as may be determined by their local legislatures——the contribution to take the form of a grant of money the establishment of local naval defence, or such other services in such manner as may be decided upon after consultation with the Admiralty, and as would best accord with the varying circumstances.

Can you imagine any resolution proposed at any conference of imperial statesmen that would seem less open to criticism than the resolution I have just read, a resolution which commended itself to every statesman present save the representative of Canada, the right hon. gentleman who moved this amendment and who said as soon as Dr. Smartt took his seat:

> I am sorry to say that so far as Canada is concerned, we cannot agree to the resolution.

The chairman said:

> I think it is a pity to pass the resolution if it is not unanimous.
>
> Dr. SMARTT—I should like very much to hear the opinions of the representatives of the other portions of the empire.
>
> Mr. DEAKIN—I have no hesitation in entering into the discussion if desired; but if we are not going to pass the resolution, is it worth while?
>
> Dr. SMARTT—I think it is a great pity we do not pass something. We have done so much in the way of pious affirmation, that I am anxious we should do something of a practical character.
>
> Sir WILFRID LAURIER—It can be passed if there is a majority. For my part I must vote against it.
>
> Sir JOSEPH WARD—To do any good we would require to be unanimous about it.
>
> Dr. SMARTT—Yes, I suppose so.
>
> Mr. WINSTON CHURCHILL—It is not much good to have a resolution at all if we cannot be unanimous.
>
> CHAIRMAN—I think we had better not proceed any further just now.
>
> Sir WILFRID LAURIER—We, of the different dominions beyond the seas, have tried to be unanimous up to the present time. I am sorry to say this is a question upon which we could not be unanimous. Therefore Dr. Smartt can move it if he choose or withdraw it. But if he presses it I should have to vot against it.
>
> Dr. SMARTT withdrew the resolution.

There is the right hon. gentleman finding fault with this resolution and now stating the most absurd doctrine of constitutional law in support of his amendment to the address, and who in 1909 moved the very resolution whose terms I have read committing this House to a fanciful scheme which could no more be carried out than the vessels built under it could be made to sail north by south. I think I have shown then that the alleged statement of fact in this amendment moved by the right hon. the leader of the opposition is absolutely contrary to the facts as laid down in the resolution of March 29, 1909. Based on this so-called statement of fact the right hon. gentleman goes on to say in his amendment:

> We respectfully submit to your Royal Highness that it is a fundamental principle of constitutional government that the advisers of the Crown shall be heartily in accord on all important questions of public policy, and that the inclusion, by the Prime Minister, in the present Cabinet, of members holding diametrically opposite views on a question of the highest importance to the Dominion and to the empire, is contrary to the well-understood principles of responsible government and should not receive the approval of the House.

That is to say, the proposition is laid down, for the first time in the history of any parliament in the British Empire, that the advisers of the Crown shall be heartily in accord on all important questions of public policy. What enemy of the right hon. gentleman, behind his back, ever drew up such an amendment as this and induced the right hon. gentleman without having read it—because I am sure if he had read it he would not have committed his reputation to it—to bring it before this House. Imagine such an impossible doctrine as that the advisers of the Crown must be heartily in accord on all important questions! I wonder if the hon. gentleman ever heard of a coalition government—I am not saying that this is one. We know that the Crimean War was fought out under a coalition government. Does the right hon. gentleman say that the members of that government agreed on all important questions of public policy? Does he remember the history of this country when, in order to form a union of the four provinces, it was necessary to bring in men from all parties to form the first government. Does anyone suppose that Sir John A. Macdonald and the Hon. George Brown, were, to quote his words, 'Heartily in accord on all important questions of public policy.' Is it not the very statement of historical fact enough to show the utter absurdity of the proposition laid down by the right hon. gentleman. Does the right hon. gentleman not know, apart from coalition governments, that in every government there are a number of questions that are allowed to be open questions? Some members may be astonished when I read a list of the questions that have been held to be open questions by governments in the motherland. I quote from Todd at page 404:

> Since unanimity in the cabinet has become an acknowledged rule, such great questions as parliamentary reform, the ballot, the abolition of the slave trade, Roman Catholic emancipation, free trade, hours of labor in factories, marriage with a deceased wife's sister, women's disabilities household franchise in counties, and the Public Worship Regulation Bill, with other minor matters, have severally been considered as 'open questions' by some administrations, though not by others.

There we have a great number of questions of the utmost importance which were held to be open questions and upon which, according to this amendment, all advisers of the Governor-General should be in accord.

Mr. Pugsley.—The author speaks of them as minor questions.

Mr. Northrup.—Let us not have any misunderstanding. The list is:

> Parliamentary reform, the ballot, the abolition of the slave trade, Roman Catholic emancipation, free trade hours of labor in factories, marriage with a deceased wife's sister, women's disabilities, household franchise in counties and the Public Worship Regalation Bill, with other minor matters have severally been considered as 'open questions' by some administrations, though not by others.

Mr. PUGSLEY.—And other minor matters.

Mr. NORTHRUP.—Minor in comparison with the matters on which the government must be unanimous,

Englishmen In Capital Think Foreign Secretary Has Been Outplayed by Shuster—Thousands of Natives Parade, Bearing Banners Marked "Death or Independence"—Russian Troops Advancing on Frontier.

Teheran, Dec. 4.—Ten thousand persons carrying banners with the inscription: "Death or Independence," marched to the American legation yesterday and appealed to the Minister to urge the Government to support the American principles of fair play and love of justice.

The English community here is aroused against Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, and think that Mr. Shuster, the Treasurer-General of Persia, outplayed him by revoking the appointments of Englishmen, to which Sir Edward objected. The British correspondents here are making it very plain in their despatches that they believe that the British Foreign Minister is ruining the prestige of his own countrymen, which might be regarded as "Laughable, if it was not tragic."

MR. NORTHRUP'S ABLE SPEECH

but these are the style of questions that are allowed to be open questions.

It is laid down in Anson just how far a government has to be in accord, and I am not for a moment pretending to say that the advisers of the Crown on all occasions can go each his own way, apart from the others; the advisers of the Crown can have as many opinions as members of the opposition and they have a perfect right to these opinions, but when the advisers of the Crown come to advise the Crown or to lay a Bill before this House, then there must be unanimity; but until they do either of these things they may have as diverse views as they see fit.

If hon. gentlemen will take the trouble to read the speech from the Throne they will not find one single reference therein to any naval policy that the government is committed to. Therefore the members of this House have a perfect right to differ as much as they like with regard to the naval policy, and such a position is no contravention of any constitutional law or usage. It is contrary to the custom and practice of England that they should be held up before His Royal Highness the Governor General as being unworthy of the positions which they occupy, because they differ, if they do differ, on matters as to which they have not so far given of any legislative assembly. which they have not brought an question before this House.

I do not intend to go into the various questions which have been discussed by different members here in view of the stand which I have taken that the time of this House is being wasted by a discussion which is certainly out of place. I am content with having called attention to the fact that we have spent a week discussing an amendment to a motion, which is in order, which provides for an address in reply to the speech from the Throne, as to which no fault can be found to its contents or omissions and that the discussion lays down an untrue statement of fact and a proposition of law for which no countenance will be found in any work on constitutional law, or the practice of any legislative assembly.

CONTESTS ALL OVER.

Most of the Ridings Will Have Liberal Candidates.

Toronto, Dec. 4.—All roads to-day lead to the nomination halls. All over the province the official nominations for the Legislature are being held, and very soon the candidates will be doing their utmost to secure their election.

Sir James P. Whitney, Premier of Ontario, will speak at Winchester Springs, Dundas County, at his own nomination. The leader of the Opposition, N. W. Rowell, K.C., will speak at the North Oxford nomination in Woodstock.

Although thirty seats lacked Liberal candidates a week ago, F. G. Inwood, Liberal organizer for the province, was confident that by to-night every vacancy would be filled.

"I don't believe there will be a single acclamation outside of Toronto in the province," he said. "The only constituencies where candidates have not yet been secured are: Carleton, East Durham, East Hastings, West Hastings, North Hastings, Lincoln, London and East Victoria.

Conventions are being held in London, East and West Hastings to-day, and candidates secured.

"This only leaves five constituencies on which I have not received the latest advices, but I am not looking for a single acclamation in the province.

"It will not be necessary to hold conventions in many cases," he said, "as the local executives will name candidates."

Twenty-five members of the last Legislature have not been renominated. Of these eighteen are Conservatives out of eighty-seven, and seven are Liberals out of eighteen.

Including Duncan Ross, who was elected in 1908, there are eight Liberals.

A. E. Hacker of the local Liberals refused to state whether the Liberals would put men in the field for the remaining three York constituencies.

The Independent Labor party has candidates in each constituency in the county, and will put up a strong fight.

Six Murderers Sentenced.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—Four men were sentenced Saturday to be hanged on Dec. 22. Their crime was the murder on Oct. 20 of Fred. W. Guezlow, jr., a truck farmer. The four men are Philip Somerling, Ewald and Frank Shiblawski and Thomas Schultz.

Leo Suchomski and Frank Kita, each 16 years old, also stood before the bar and heard sentences of life imprisonment passed upon them for their part in the murder.

Montreal Port Closes.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—With the sailing of the Brayhead for Irish ports shortly after noon Saturday the season of navigation to this port finally closed. Dec. 3 is unusually late for the last sailing, it being some ten years since a boat left on so late a date, while as a rule the port is closed before end of November.

AEROPLANES IN WAR THEIR POSSIBILITIES

Colonel Capper Gives an Interesting Estimate Regarding Bomb Dropping by an Aeroplane Fleet

Colonel J. E. Capper, a military aviation expert in England, has given a very interesting interview regarding the possibilities of the aeroplane in warfare.

"Fifty machines," he said, "making two trips each per day, within a radius of a hundred miles, could drop each day 15,000 pounds, or about six and a half tons of bombs, on any selected area." Colonel Capper, however, does not think much damage could be done by single machines, but remarks that several flying squadrons of ten or a dozen machines would prove of the highest importance during a campaign.

The question naturally arises: What about the cost of such fleets? If numbers were ordered, the average price for a military machine would be about $3,000. The cost of a fleet of a hundred flying machines would, therefore, be about $300,000. Portable sheds, workshops, etc., could be provided and fitted up for about $100,000, and, allowing a similar amount for expenditure on flying grounds, motor-cars, etc., an initial expenditure of $500,000 would suffice for the provision of a fleet of a hundred flying machines. The upkeep would be about $300,000 per annum, and providing for, say, forty new machines annually would cost $120,000.

Repairs and upkeep of those in use, fuel, etc., would be liberally provided for at $80,000, so that an original outlay of $500,000 and an annual grant of $500,000 would suffice for the provision in peace of a fleet of a hundred flying machines, including the renewal of the whole fleet every two and a half years.

It has been suggested that it would be an easy matter to destroy a squadron of flying machines with artillery or infantry fire. As a matter of fact it would be extremely difficult to do so if the machines were flying at any fair height. It must be remembered that the flying machine travels from fifty to seventy miles an hour, and it is obvious that a hit in such circumstances would be very difficult to secure, even by the best artillery in the world.

Moreover, quick-firing guns have but a small angle of elevation, and even a field howitzer could hardly hope that its shells would reach a height of 3,000 feet, so that it a very considerable height a flying machine would be absolutely immune.

"But what about meeting the attacks of other flying machines?" some reader may ask. For this purpose, says Colonel Capper, every military flying machine must be armed with a quick-firing small-bore gun or rifle, and the aeronaut must be trained to use it whilst in rapid flight. In addition, a few small deadly explosive bombs should be carried for the destruction of hostile airships.

Airships will be of little use in warfare when it comes to fighting flying machines. They are slow in speed, and are not calculated to manoeuvre at heights much over 6,000 feet, and even by sacrifice of all fuel and ballast can hardly reach 10,000 feet, a height which flying machines can speedily attain. No airship will be able to engage in war without a small squadron of bying machines to guard her, and in a fight between flying machines the victory will go to that which can fly and rise fastest, manoeuvre easiest, and shoot the straightest.

DUKE'S PRIVATE INCOME

In Addition to Salary He Has Annual Income of $125,000

There are only a few wealthier men in the Dominion at the present time than His Royal Highness, the new Governor-General. In addition to the salary Canada will pay him, the Duke enjoys a yearly income of $125,000, which was settled on him for life by the British Parliament because of his being one of the younger sons of the late Queen Victoria. Nor does this exhaust the amount of his income from official sources, for he also draws some $25,000 annually as Field Marshal in the British Army.

Besides his revenue from official sources, the Duke of Connaught enjoys the returns from his share of the estate left by his mother, Queen Victoria, the total value of which has never become known to the general public. That the whole estate was very large is common belief, rumor estimating the Duke's share at varying amounts from five to fifteen million dollars. It is said in well-informed circles that his income is greater than that of King George.

LION AND BULL FIGHT

Thrilling Encounter in an Arena at Lima, South America

Not many people, outside Spain or Spanish American countries, have witnessed a bull-fight—a matter which they need not deplore—and perhaps still fewer have seen the rather unusual spectacle of a lion and bull fight. Two magnificent lions, male and female, finer than any I ever saw in any menagerie or zoo (says one who was present) had been purchased by the Peruvian Government for the Botanical Gardens at Lima, and by order of the authorities the male lion was pitted against a bull on a fixed day in the bull-ring.

A large iron structure was erected in the centre of the bull-ring, and into this the male lion had been introduced. As he lay crouched on the ground at full length, looking up with half-shut eye at the sea of faces, and, no doubt, wondering what all the fuss was about, one could not help admiring his noble proportions. From the door of this iron structure a long boarded alley-way led to the pen where the bull was housed.

A great hush falls on the multitude as the doors of the pen are rolled back and out rushes a bull of large proportions, heading down the alley-way (there was no other road for him), straight into the lion's den. With a sharp roar the lion sprang to his feet, and, nimbly as a cat, vaulted in his first spring right over the back of the bull, missing him. The latter, instantly taking in the situation, backed and lowered his head to charge, but ere he could move the lion was upon him, seized his muzzle between his own enormous jaws, and encircled the bull's neck with his fore paws.

Thus locked in mortal embrace did the bull make frantic efforts to free himself, and at times almost lifted the lion bodily off the ground, such was his strength; but it was all in vain, for the lion held him as in a vice. The struggle lasted about three minutes, and so great was the tension among the spectators that one could have heard the proverbial pin drop. Then there was a perceptible tottering of the bull's hind legs, a swaying of both bodies from side to side that nearly overturned the structure, and finally a great lurch, in which both rolled over together. The bull lay stone dead.

Slowly relaxing his death grip, the lion rose, sniffed all around his prey, and, placing one of his fore paws on the bull's haunch, glared proudly round on the crowd, as if demanding approval.

SENSE IN BRIEF.

There are times when it is better to be imposed upon than to fight.

When a kind and gentle man does deliver a jolt it counts.

A self-made man nearly always looks like the kind of a job he might be expected to turn out.

No matter how little we love our neighbors, we can see no good reason why they shouldn't have a kindly feeling for us.

Free advice is the kind people give away, because they have no use for it.

The man who hasn't enough property to interest the tax-assessor is always talking about the good he would do if he were a millionaire.

You can tell when a man has made a little money by how patronizing he is to everybody who hasn't.

The average friend, like the average shadow, is only on hand when the sun shines.

OIL DRIVEN SHIP

A Description of the "Toiler," the First of Her Kind in Canada

The first oil-driven ship on Canadian waters is the "Toiler," a vessel without a funnel. In many ways the Toiler is more economical than a steam-driven boat. She has a greater deadweight capacity owing to the fact that the Diesel engines are much lighter than steam engines and boilers. Furthermore, as she carries no boilers the boiler space is saved and besides the oil fuel is carried in the double bottom in place of water ballast, thus saving bunker space. The consumption of oil is much less in weight than the consumption of coal for steam engines. In the Toiler the consumption at full speed does not exceed 1.75 tons per day of oil fuel of 18 B. T. U. calorific value, whereas with steam engines of equal power the consumption would not be less than eight tons per day.

Not only is the economy of this vessel shown in the increased deadweight of cargo carried, and the increased cubic capacity and the low fuel consumption, but the staff on board to attend to the Diesel engines is less than the staff required for steam engines and boilers, the engine-room staff being about the same while the firemen are not required.

The deck machinery and engine-room accessories of the Toiler are driven by compressed air, being furnished by a compressor driven by a Diesel engine. The electric light, with which the vessel is fitted, obtains its power from a paraffin engine. The accommodation is heated by hot water, the heat being obtained from the exhaust gases of the main engine. There is thus no steam on board the boat, and the vessel, therefore, presents an unusual appearance in having no funnels, and as the masts are mainly used for hoisting purposes and, therefore, very small, her appearance is decidedly different from that of the types of boats to which we are accustomed.

The accommodation for the officers and crew is well fitted up and excellent in every respect.

MEANS TROUBLE FOR THE BEAR

The Oddest Animal of Nature Is the Porcupine and His Darts are the Most Deadly Fighting Weapons on Record.

Although the notion that the porcupine defends itself by shooting its quills to a distance — like arrows — was long ago exploded, few persons know how really dangerous and even fatal quite commonly are these same curious weapons with which one of the oldest of all the mammals is provided by Nature.

Anybody who takes the trouble to examine a dead porcupine will be surprised to find how slight is the attachment of the quills to the skin on the creature's back. They come away readily in the hand when a little pull is given; and this, indeed, as will presently be seen, is a very important feature of this peculiar defensive equipment namely the looseness and ready detachability thereof.

Though the porcupine is not able to throw its quills, it can inflict most deadly damage upon an adversary by the merest contact. It is a creature native to mountainous parts of the United States in northern latitudes and the foes it has to fear are chiefly bears, big cats and other such formidable carnivora.

Each individual quill borne by the porcupine — naturalists say that they are modified hairs — is not only as sharp as a needle at the point but formidably barbed. On this account, if one of them is stuck by chance into the flesh of a human being it cannot be withdrawn, but must be cut out — the only alternative being to push the quill clear through and pull it out on the other side if the wounded part be an arm or a leg.

Unfortunately a bear or a lynx has no surgical resort in an event of the kind; and consequently, if it carries off half a dozen quills in its hide as a memorial of an encounter with a porcupine, trouble soon follows.

With every movement of the animal the quills make their way into the flesh more deeply. If one of them happens in its progress to strike a bone it will turn up along the latter and pursue its course remorselessly. Eventually the quills may work their way out, but the chances are greater that they will reach a vital part and, after inflicting prolonged suffering, cause the death of the victim.

SEE THE FUNNY SIDE.

Use Your Sense of Humor When Distressing Situations Arise.

Humor proves to be the saving clause of many a distressing situation. The trouble with most of us is that we take our troubles altogether too seriously. We fail to see the funny side of things that for the moment concern us, even though we are quick to grasp it when we are mere onlookers.

In the face of gathered clouds that seem to shut out the sunshine forever it is not a bad idea to remind ourselves that this old mother earth has been revolving on her axis for countless ages, that generations of men have come and gone for thousands of years and that the march of human progress has gone right along in the forward direction despite what seemed to be occasional setbacks.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you." There is humor in nearly every situation if we can only see it from the right angle. Those of us who try to smile in adversity and think how much more laughable it would be if conditions were reversed at least feel less uncomfortable over it and take pleasure in looking forward to the time when the shoe will be on the other foot.—Omaha Bee.

NANKING IS OCCUPIED

Rebels Take City After a Parley With General Lin.

White Flag Flies Over the Centre of Attack and Revolution Is Spreading With Great Rapidity — Yuan's Colleagues Are Resigning and His Difficulties Are Increasing—Bandits Busy at Amoy.

Nanking, Dec. 4.—The revolutionary forces took possession of the city on Saturday morning, after a parley with the Imperial Government forces, who were in occupation. At midday the white flag was displayed on Lion Fort, inside the walls to the northwest, indicating that the gunners had joined the revolution.

Gen. Li Yuen Heng, the revolutionary leader, who had captured Tiger Fort a few days ago, occupied Shaikwan, a town on the banks of the river outside the City of Nanking. Thereupon the warships under the command of Admiral Sah, which had hitherto been two miles down the river, cautiously approached and took up a position under the guns of Lion Hill Fort.

Gen. Lin, second in command of the revolutionary forces, took the Taiping gate and then arranged the terms of capitulation of the entire city. Later on the revolutionary troops entered and took possession of the telegraph office. White flags began to appear everywhere, and no fighting occurred when the revolutionaries entered the streets.

Bad For the Throne.

Pekin, Dec. 4.—Late developments are all unfavorable to the Imperialists, whose hopes rise and fall with every change. Yesterday they were dejected because Urga, the capital of Mongolia, which like Lhassa heretofore has been held by force, has now taken occasion to declare its independence and has expelled the Chinese officers.

Various reports reaching Pekin indicate that Manchuria, which up to the present has been only passively rebellious, is likely soon to become an active factor in the revolution. Gen. Chao Erhhsun, viceroy, reports that Japanese are assisting the revolutionaries, that they are importing dynamite for the rebels and even joining the rebel ranks.

The Chinese Foreign Board yesterday called attention to the arrest of four Japanese at Mukden on the charge of throwing bombs. The Chinese officials assert that one of the Japanese has confessed that general rising had been planned for Dec. 5. The Japanese legation, in answer to the protest of the Chinese Government, disclaimed any knowledge of these reports, but added that efforts would be made to prevent individual Japanese from breaking neutrality.

Continued resignations from the Government, including the Viceroy of Honan and the Finance Minister recently appointed to Yua Shi Kai's Cabinet, leave the Premier more than ever a one-man government.

The newspapers are beginning to voice the popular idea that Premier Yuan intends soon to declare himself regent. Evidently the Premier, not being able to bring the rebels to terms which would be acceptable to the Manchus, intends to do further fighting.

Clan Fighting Near Amoy.

Amoy, Dec. 4.—Clan fighting continues in the northwestern quarter of the city. A number of irresponsible bands of men representing themselves to be revolutionists are traversing the country and blackmailing the inhabitants of the villages.

A band of 300 ruffians armed with nondescript weapons have demanded enrollment at Amoy, but the revolutionary leaders have refused to accept them, and the men are now threatening to cause trouble.

Sailor's Death Accidental.

Cornwall, Dec. 4.—The inquest into the cause of the death of Robert Kehoe of Cleveland, Ohio, a sailor on the steamer Senator Derbyshire, who was killed at Lock 17 of the Cornwall Canal on Nov. 25, resulted in a verdict of accidental death. It was apparent that Kehoe had his choice of a rope ladder or a rope to climb the side of the steamer after releasing her from the snubbing posts and sailor-like chose the rope. Either his mitts or the rope or both were icy, and therefore it was easy for him to slip down between the boat and the lock wall, as the boat swung in. No blame was attributed to anyone connected with the steamer.

As none of Kehoe's relatives could be located, the remains were interred at Cornwall.

Westmount Took Census.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—Discontented with the population with which their thriving suburb was credited by the federal census, the town councillors of Westmount Saturday conducted a census of their own. The final figures will be announced to-morrow, as in some cases the enumerators found no one at home.

LABOR MEN ARE ANGRY

They Want Full Penalty For McNamara Brothers.

Astounding Revelations Are Expected In Union Circles and Leaders Are Determined to Find Out Where the Money For Outrages Came From—Spokane Starts Hanging Movemnet —Gompers Says "No."

New York, Dec. 4.—The revelations at Los Angeles as to the dynamite outrages in the United States in connection with labor disputes are shaking the American nation to its very foundations.

Organized labor is involved, and is likely to be still further involved.

The revelations are only beginning. There are many more culprits than the McNamaras, and some of them are higher up.

Outrage after outrage has occurred, and the men mixed up with them are likely to be unearthed.

The money for the outrages came from somewhere. Where? The American people are determined to know. The Federal Government is already investigating the Indianapolis outrages, and they will investigate the others with increased energy after the confessions at Los Angeles.

The manufacturers are severe in their criticism of Samuel Gompers, the head of organized labor.

Altogether a most astounding state of affairs is about to be revealed.

Should Pay Penalty.

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 4.—The Central Labor Union of Spokane, representing 4,500 union men, is shaping plans for a country-wide movement to obtain the maximum penalty for the Los Angeles dynamiters. The program is to have every labor union organization in the United States telegraph to the California authorities before next Tuesday morning, urging that the limit sentence allowed by the laws of the state be imposed upon the McNamara brothers for the crimes they have confessed.

Want Them Hanged.

Indianapolis, Dec. 3.—That the McNamara brothers should be hanged, not imprisoned, was the conviction expressed Saturday in statements by officials of three national labor organizations that have headquarters in this city.

"The McNamaras took human life, and, just as in any other case, the penalty should be life for life," declared Frank Duffy, national secretary of the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union. "They deluded us, and we went down in our pockets for them. We don't want such men in organized labor."

"It is awful," said J. W. Dougherty, international secretary of the Bookbinders' Union. "As far as I am concerned, they cannot hang them up too high to suit me."

Opposes Hanging.

New York, Dec. 4.—"I am not a hound. I am not a hound. I do not seek human life in punishment for any crime."

This was the angry exclamation of Samuel Gompers last night on his return from Troy, when shown a despatch from Spokane stating that the Central Labor Council of that city is planning a country-wide movement to obtain the maximum punishment for the Los Angeles dynamiters. Mr. Gompers made an impatient gesture as he finished reading the despatch and vigorously shook his head.

"I do not believe in capital punishment under any circumstances," he continued. "I do not believe that the state has a right to take human life. This is a very unwise movement. I am against it. It is like the populace in the Roman arena demanding with its thumbs down that the victorious gladiator plunge the sword into his victim. I do not believe in thumbs down for these or any other men."

"What punishment do you think should be meted out to them?" the labor leader was asked.

"Suppose we let the judge decide that, I am content to leave it with him," was the reply.

"Has the American Federation of Labor any authority over the Central Labor Council of Spokane?'

"They are affiliated with us, but we have no authority over them. They have a right to do as they please as long as they obey the law. I can only say that this is a very unwise movement, a misdirected effort and I am not in sympathy with it."

Mr. Gompers was also shown the despatches stating that the federal investigation at Indianapolis into dynamiting cases would proceed in spite of the fact that the McNamaras had pleaded guilty, and was asked if he thought there was any possibility of officials of the American Federation of Labor being involved.

"Let them go ahead. Let them go as high as they like," he exclaimed. "If there are other men above or below in this case, the federal investigation ought to disclose them. Let the federal investigation go on. If there was anybody behind these men, their identity ought to be known. Personally I cannot conceive of where they got their money to perpetrate their outrages. I cannot dream of who was behind them."

Mr. Gompers was found at a Broadway hotel, where he will make his headquarters until he leaves for Washington, probably Monday night, and plainly showed the effects of the strain.

"I had had little sleep and practically nothing to eat all day," he said. "In due time, when I have the facilities and the opportunity I may make a written statement, but I don't want to discuss the matter any more."

"It has been said that the McNamaras pleaded guilty to protect other persons," Mr. Gompers was told.

"I don't know anything about that. I have received no communication from Los Angeles since the joint telegram from the McNamaras thanking me for the support of the American Federation of Labor. If there is anybody that needs to be protected, I don't know of it."

"Is the American Federation going to take any action in the matter? Will it make any investigation to find out where the money for the McNamaras expenses came from, or who was behind them?" the labor leader was asked.

"It is too early to state yet what we will do. Until we hold our meeting on Jan. 6 I am afraid the public will have to wait."

Must Punish, Says Daly.

Portland, Ore., Dec. 4.—William H. Daly, an official of the Federation of Labor, said on Saturday:

"As they are unionists, we ask only the same justice for the McNamaras now as we did when believed them innocent. If they are guilty, as is evident from their confessions, every laboring man wants the proper punishment meted out to them."

CANON ELLEGOOD DEAD.

Aged Montreal Clergyman Is Victim of His Zeal.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—Rev. Canon Ellegood, rector of the Church of St. James the Apostle, one of the oldest clergymen in the Dominion, passed away at his residence at eight o'clock yesterday morning.

He had been in very feeble health for some time, and during the past few days the end had been expected at any minute.

Canon Ellegood's career was one of enthusiastic work in the ministry right up to the time of his last illness.

Born near Fredericton, N.B., March 1, 1824, he received his early education at King's College, where he graduated with the degree of B.A., in 1849. Upon his ordination, first as a deacon in 1848, and as a priest in the following year, he was appointed junior assistant at Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal.

His first charge was St. Ann's Chapel, Griffintown, and there he remained during the year of the immigrant ship fever and as a consequence suffered for years from the poisonous virus with which his system had become infected. A year later he aided in the fight against the pestilential outbreak of cholera, which followed the ship fever.

His church was burned to the ground shortly after, but was rebuilt through an appeal to the people of wealthier parishes and renamed St. Stephens.

In 1864 St James the Apostle Church was built, and he became the first rector, and has since remained with that church.

He was the oldest clergyman in the diocese of Montreal, and the only one left who saw the birth of its synod in 1859. He was also the oldest military chaplain in the British service, having been appointed chaplain of the Victoria Rifles when that regiment was organized over fifty years ago.

Fulfils His Vow.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Dec. 4.—The police believe the man who committed suicide by going over the American falls Saturday night was Hugh J. Adams, 30 years old, a farm hand who have been working near St. Catharines. The description of the suicide tallies with that of Adams in all but one particular. Adams had a moustache when he left St. Catharines for the falls, but the suicide was clean shaven.

About 7 o'clock Saturday night, Reservation Officers John Wilson and Arthur Alexander saw a man standing in the glare of the park electric lights on the river bank, a short distance above the falls, just outside the iron railing that guards the river. They shouted to him to come back, but he paid no attention. The man calmly waded into the rapids above the falls, and while the officers made futile efforts to rescue him, he was carried over the falls. All efforts to locate the body have been unsuccessful.

Chief Thomas Lyons yesterday afternoon received a telephone message from Chief Greene, St. Catharines, to the effect that Adams had left St. Catharines with the avowed intention of going over the falls.

Nurses Threatened.

Guelph, Dec. 4.—Misses Arkell and Ferguson, two nurses in training at the General Hospital, were rudely awakened about two o'clock Saturday morning by a man running an arm under their pillows, evidently feeling for valuables. One of them raised an outcry and was warned by the intruder to desist or she would suffer death.

With that the intruder made his way to a window by which he had entered, with the assistance of a ladder, and disappeared. Harry Jones, night watchman, saw the man escaping and notified the police, who were able to follow the tracks in the newly-fallen snow to Arthur street, where they arrested a man named James O'Connor, who occupies two rooms with his wife. He came here about a week ago from Detroit, he claims. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded. This is the second time in a couple of months that nurses have been similarly disturbed.

Suffragettes In Brantford.

Brantford, Dec. 4.—At an enthusiastic meeting of Brantford women, held at Conservatory of Music here, on Saturday, a branch of the Suffragette League was organized with Mrs. S. W. Secord as president. Educational work will be conducted here to help secure women's suffrage, behind which are several prominent women in Brantford society.

Shot In Fight Over Gun.

Sm[illegible] Falls, Dec. 4.—Two boys named [illegible]urroughs and McKeowne were [illegible]gling for possession of a rifle yesterday when it was accidentally discharged. The bullet entered the cheek of a boy named John Moran, coming out at the eye, shattering the latter member. The injured boy is at a hospital in a precarious condition.

Rancher Ended Life.

Okotosk, Alberta, Dec. 4.—Edward W. Melladow, a well-known rancher of Millarville, committed suicide yesterday morning in the Grand Central Hotel by blowing off the top of his head with a shotgun. He discharged both barrels and death was instantaneous. He had been acting strangely of late, and it is believed be was insane.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Rains retarding the Argentine harvest and damaging the crop kept the wheat market today on the advance. Closing prices were firm 1-2c to 7-8c to 1 1-2c higher than last night. VOYAGE ENDS.

Their Majesties Are Warmly Welcomed In Bombay.

Bombay, Dec. 4.—"King-Emperor" George, and "Queen-Empress" Mary, as they are officially styled since their arrival in their great eastern empire, landed from the steamer Medina on Saturday, at the Quay at the Apollo Bunder at four o'clock.

They were met by the governor of Bombay and a large gathering of high officials belonging to the civil and military service. They at once proceeded to a huge amphitheatre which had been erected opposite the landing stage and which was filled to its utmost capacity with many thousands who had come to welcome Their Majesties.

The scene was a remarkably brilliant one. The handsome levee dress of the officials and the uniforms of the naval and military officers, together with the bright toilettes of the women, only served to emphasize the gorgeous hues of the ceremonial attire of the Indian chieftains.

Behind these were massed an immense throng composed of Hindus, Mohammedans, Parsees and Arabs, all attired in richly colored festival costumes.

Addresses of welcome were presented to the King-Emperor and the Queen-Empress, by the municipality and other bodies, to which His Majesty replied.

A royal procession was subsequently formed. It was a mile in length and comprised representatives of all branches of the European and native armies in India. It subsequently traversed all parts of the gaily decorated city.

The native quarters presented a quaint appearance, forests of masts along the streets bearing a multitude of native religious symbols, representative of the various sects.

Enormous crowds everywhere heartily acclaimed Their Majesties, who returned to the Medina at 5.30 in the evening.

Badly Burned by Electricity.

Toronto, Dec. 4.—While experimenting with the main electrical switch board at the car barns, corner of Frederick and Front streets, late last evening, William Lyons was badly burned about the hands and face. He pulled a switch believing it to be dead, but through which much power was running. He was taken to the General Hospital. He is considered to be in a critical condition. No one saw the accident.

Train Crew Exonerated.

Brantford, Dec. 4.—At the inquest into the death of Henry Shaver, who was killed by the Grand Trunk train at Cainsville, on Thursday, when his horses ran away, was held here Saturday evening. A verdict of accidental death was returned and the crew of the train was exonerated. It was recommended, however, by jury that the company should improve loading facilities where Shaver met his death.

Child Burned to Death.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—While playing around the kitchen of his home on Outremont avenue Saturday, three-year-old Paul Manalko, was so severely burned that he died on his way to the hospital in an ambulance. His mother, who rushed to the kitchen from an adjoining room on hearing his screams, was very severely burned in attempting to beat out the flames.

Laziness inspires many a man to seek a political job.

No man is expected to shine as a talker when his wife is present.

TOY - LAND

Opened With a Bang!

Santa Claus was at Stroud's Store yesterday and greeted hundreds of Boys and Girls who came to visit him.

He presented those who called on him with pretty Christmas Post Cards, on which to make their wants known to him.

Santa will rest up Saturday but will be on hand again Monday.

He thinks we have the greatest showing of Dolls, Toys, and Books ever, and this year he didn't bring everything with him because he knew he could get a whole lot at our Store.

Many of the Children asked Santa Claus "where the Teddy Bear was," and Santa told them Teddy wasn't feeling very well just now but would be along in a few days.

Come and see Santa on Monday.

JOHN HAYS HAMMOND TELLS THE CAUSE OF THE BOER WAR

The Jameson Raider Opens his Lips—Released at Last from His Oath, Mr. Hammond Explains the Events Which Led to the Transvaal Struggle—It was a Movement Which Originated With Americans

BOSTON, Nov. 30.—John Hays Hammond, released by lapse of time from an oath not to talk on South African affairs or reveal any of the "inside" events that led to the Boer war broke his silence for the first time at a dinner of the Clover Club.

Mr. Hammond made it clear that in his opinion a good deal of sympathy has been wasted on Oom Paul, who was so bigoted that he refused absolutely to grant either Catholics or Jews the franchise when he was negotiating with the reform committee before the Jameson raid.

Mr. Hammond told of the oppressive conditions imposed by the Boers on all foreigners in the republic, and especially on Americans, whom Kruger wanted commandeered to fight the natives in the northern part of the country. It was this order and the refusal of Hammond and 500 or more Americans to obey it that led to the formation of the reform committee in Johannesburg with Hammond at its head, and the smuggling of arms in Standard Oil Company tanks to the committee from Cape Town and Kimberley.

Kruger Caused Trouble.

Mr. Hammond showed that the intention of the reform committee was not to foment a revolution in the country, but to save the republic. In fact, he and others made a compact that the first man caught raising the British flag should be shot. It was their intention to reform the Government and secure for Uitlanders the rights of citizenship and such legal rights as they were entitled to. Men of many nationalities were on the committee, and they represented about 90 per cent. of the mining and other industries of the Boer Republic.

There were two factions in the Boer Republic at the time—the narrow and bigoted reactionaries, headed by Kruger, and the Liberals, headed by Gen Joubert.

"Kruger," said Mr. Hammond "was an extraordinary man. He was courageous, but he was cunning and narrow and far from being a patriot of the George Washington type. He was opposed to progress, believed the earth was flat, and that the devil had a tail—a religious tenet on which there was a difference of opinion by the Boers--but he was a thoroughly scared man at the time of the Jameson raid.

Got Colonists Falsely.

"People have wondered why the Uitlanders were dissatisfied, and why if they did not like the country or the Government, they didn't leave. It was because they were invited into the country by Kruger on false pretences. When he was in Europe in 1894 trying to raise money for the republic—when it was in bad financial straits—he spent a few weeks in London and issued an invitation through the press to foreigners to come to the Transvaal and offered bonuses for the discovery of paying gold mines or other mines. As a result, foreigners and prospectors went into the country and discovered the Wittwatersrand gold fields, out of which more than $2,000,000,000 in gold has been taken and which have had an annual output of $175,000,000, which bids fairs to be the yield for the next ten or fifteen years. So I am, in a sense, innocently responsible for the present high cost of living through the discovery of some of these mines and the consequent increase of the gold supply of the world.

Told Them to Fight.

"Americans were particularly distasteful to Kruger, especially those who had been holding meetings to protest against the commandeering order. A spy was at one of these meetings when they voted that if they were commandeered the first time they were ordered to shoot they would shoot the commanding officer. When Kruger heard this no Americans were commandeered or ordered to fight natives.

"Deputation after deputation was sent from Johannesburg to Pretoria to Kruger, and Kruger's answer was: 'Go back and get your guns; fight if you want to. Let's see you fight.'

"Finally Kruger learned that the reform committee had 30,000 stands of arms and thirty cannon, and then he began to negotiate. The reform committee had sent strict orders to Jameson that he must not invade the country until the revolution had been started inside. In point of fact the reform committee had only 2,700 rifles and two cannon when Jameson on his own responsibility entered the country on his famous 'raid,' which ended disastrously for him and for the reform committee at Johannesburg.

Broke His Promises.

"Curiously enough, just before this occurred the famous Venezuela message was issued by President Cleveland, and this caused considerable friction between Americans and British in the Transvaal.

"Kruger played false with the reform committee after the Jameson raid, broke all of his promises, and after he had secured the arms in Johannesburg through Sir Hercules Robinson he arrested the entire committee.

"Then, not wanting a public trial, he gave the arrested men to understand that if they pleaded guilty they would be let off with a fine. After pleading guilty they were sentenced to be hanged inside of twenty-four hours, and the gibbets were ready for them when Secretary Olney's despatch arrived in the night along with many other despatches."

This despatch from Secretary Olney caused Kruger and the Boer Council to hesitate, and after an all-night session the Council voted to commute the sentence to life imprisonment, for which Mr. Hammond and the others did not thank Mr. Kruger or Dr. Leeds, the Secretary of State, whom Mr. Hammond accused of being the cause of most of the trouble in South Africa.

Mr. Hammond is a man of high character and of internation reputation, so his statements may be accepted without question. He was one of those who were imprisoned by order of Kruger in Pretoria jail at the same time as was Mr. Fred Lingham.

LITERARY NOTES

In every respect The Canadian Magazine for December is a highly attractive Christmas souvenir. There are seventeen illustrations in tint, many of them full-page size, with, as well, a number of reproductions of famous paintings, with the frontispiece from a painting by the famous Canadian painted, Homer Watson. The illustrators are C. W. Jefferys, J. W. Beatty, Arthur Keelor, A. Helene Carter, C. Finlay. Well-known. There are eighteen short stories, sketches, and poems by Canadian writers, among them being Arthur Stringer, Frank L. Packard, Newton MacTavish, Isabel Ecclestone Mackay, Virna Sheard, S. A. White, George Herbert Clarke, L. M. Montgomery, Madge Macbeth, A. R. Carman, G. B. Burgin, Peter McArthur, Ethelwyn Wetherald and W. T. Allison.

CANADIAN HOME JOURNAL.

The December, which is our Christmas number, will delight the fiction lovers with its many short stories and serials. Nellie McClung contributes a little story that will please the children as well as the grown-ups. Other short stories are by Annie Tibbits, A. Gertrude Jackson, Kate H. Miles, Jennie Allen Moore, Mrs. Isabel Ecclestone MacKay, of Vancouver, has won a new triumph in her continued novel, "The House of Windows," which is proving immensely popular. "The Cost of a Crime" is by Annie S. Swan, probably the most popular living English authoress.

The Christmas household features, gifts, entertainments, menus and gala day table decorations, will be of great pleasure as well as assistance to every housewife.

We are glad to find the Journal making such splendid progress. It is growing more helpful, attractive and interesting every month, and certainly deserves the support of Canadians, especially at the very reasonable price.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

An interesting and profitable meeting was held in the Association rooms yesterday afternoon, when Mr. Andrew Carmichael, who has been a missionary in Northern Ontario, addressed the men on the work in the north. Mr. Carmichael gave a very interesting talk on his experiences in that part of Ontario. A bright song service was led by Mr. Jas. Dyer.

The business mens' gym. class will meet to-night at eight o'clock. All the men interested are asked to be out on time.

The Association baseball team plays the Springer Lock Co. Tuesday night in the Armories at eight.

The intermediate basket ball league will begin this week. The first game will probably be played Thursday evening.

A CITIZEN MAKES COMPLAINT OF WASTE

States a Case in Which He Alleges that City's Money is Squandered

To the Editor of The Intelligencer

Sir,—In writing this article I wish it clearly understood that I court neither fear nor favor. I have no bone to pick with anyone, but it is a disgrace to our fair city to have the city's funds squandered in such a manner.

If the other city departments are managed as judiciously (?) as the Waterworks Department, I do not see why the city is not bankrupt.

About six weeks ago Colborne St. was opened up to lay a water main from James to Mary Street. At first six or seven men were on the job and made good progress for a day or two. Then a few days passed and the men did not appear. They were taken to work some other place; then some days one man would be on the job and some days two.

This went on till the entire street was dug up. On about two-thirds of the street the trench was dug the required depth, so Mr. Colden informed me. Then an abrupt ledge of rock made it necessary to blast the remainder of the street.

After removing the earth to the depth of a few feet on the remaining third of the street and paying the men $1.75 per day (more or less) for this, it was replaced again, paying the men the same again for this. I asked Mr. Colden why they were filling in the street and he replied that they were not going to blast this year, as it was too late to finish, but were going to lay the pipes to where the rock began. It went on for a few days longer and the men appeared to lay the main.

On account of recent rains the excavation was partly filled with water, although for a long time it was perfectly dry. The men worked one and one-half days and only succeeded in making the connection and one or two pipes, and then abandoned it on account of the water.

They erected barricades and intended to leave it till next year till the water disappeared, as it was impossible to lay the main while the water was in the ditch. Both Mr. Lindsay and Mr. Colden informed me to this effect.

It was brought up in the Council and Mr. Soules was given the contract to lay the main, as Mr. Colden could not do it.

In less than a day Mr. Soules succeeded in laying the entire main. It was a great surprise to me to see the pipes go in so quickly after seeing so much tomfoolery by the "competent city officials." I may add that the water was even deeper at this time.

Why don't the city get a competent man to manage the Waterworks Department?

The main was now laid, and the city officials again appeared in due time and the main was covered, but, just as the men were about to leave, I could not believe my eyes when I saw the men starting to open the trench again. I was dumbfounded when Mr. Lindsay and Mr. Colden told me the whole thing must come up again, as it was not down deep enough, although if they could have laid the pipes they would have been placed no deeper. Sour grapes!

Is it because the Water Works Department did not lay the main?

Who gave Mr. Lindsay or Mr. Colden the authority to take the pipe up again?

Both Mr. Lindsay and Mr. Colden informed me that it was only a waste of money to try to lay the main with the water in the trench.

If that was a waste of money then this is a double waste. With a practical man as manager of the Water Works Department it would have been no waste of money, much less a double waste.

Did any citizen of this fair city ever hear or see such a case of mismanagement and incompetence? Could any man of ordinary intelligence do a piece of work like that?

Will Colborne Street remain open till we get a practical man to manage the Waterworks Department?

I could not find any one to take the credit of this great undertaking. (Modesty of course.)

Is this the way twenty-one aldermen manage the affairs of the city? If so, let us get back to the old system of ten aldermen from the entire city as formerly.

Hoping I have not trespassed on your valuable space, I remain

Yours truly,
ED. A. KELLAWAY.

P.S.—They are covering the main up again this morning. What do you think of that?

And many a prophet is without honor—his wife at home.

The path of ambition leads to many political graves.

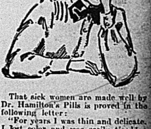
HEALTH FOR EVERY WOMAN NO MORE HEADACHES

FROM WEAKNESS AND DESPAIR THOUSANDS HAVE BEEN RESTORED TO ROBUST GOOD HEALTH BY DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS.



That sick women are made well by Dr. Hamilton's Pills is proved in the following letter:

"For years I was thin and delicate. I lost color and was easily tired; a yellow pallor, pimples and blotches on my face were not only mortifying to my feelings, but because I thought my skin would never look nice again I grew despondent. Then my appetite failed. I grew very weak. Various remedies, pills, tonics and tablets I tried without permanent benefit. A visit to my sister put into my hands a box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. She placed reliance on them, and now that they have made me a well woman I would not be without them whatever they might cost. I found Dr. Hamilton's Pills by their mild yet searching action very suitable to the delicate character of a woman's nature. They never once griped me, yet they established regularity. My appetite grew—my blood red and pure—heavy rings under my eyes disappeared, and to-day my skin is as clear and unwrinkled as when I was a girl. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it."

The above is a straightforward letter from Mrs. J. V. Todd, wife of a well-known citizen in Rogersville, and is proof sufficient that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a wonderful woman's medicine. Use no other pill but Dr. Hamilton's, 25c. per box. All dealers or the Catarrhozone Co.,

REMARKABLE WORK IN SAVING LIVES

Story of Ida Lewis, Known as "The Grace Darling of America."

When Ida Lewis passed away in the Newport lighthouse, one of the bravest women in the United States ended her career. Indeed, according to the official records of the American Society of the Cross of Honor, she was the bravest woman. Well was she called the "Grace Darling of America," and worthily did she sustain the resemblance to the great English heroine, for while her life-saving exploits were not as numerous, nor quite as sensational, they were frequent enough and thrilling enough to command the attention of the whole country. Between twenty and thirty people were saved from death in Ida Lewis' rowboat, and her faithful tending of the great lamps in the lighthouse made the sea safe for thousands more. Idawalley Zoranda Lewis was born in Newport in 1842, and when the Lime Rock lighthouse was built in 1850 her father was appointed keeper. Her father was a man well on in years, and when his health failed Ida used to do the work for him, besides rowing her younger brothers and sisters to Newport every day to attend school. Her first rescue was made when she was only 16 years old.

The title of "Grace Darling of America" was given to her in 1869, when she put out in a raging sea to the rescue of two soldiers and a boy who had capsized their sailboat. Although the men were unconscious when she got to them, she hauled them into her own frial boat and made her way back to the lighthouse, where they were revived. Her life was in peril every moment of the trip, for a fierce storm was blowing and the waves rose like mountains. For this exploit the young woman was thanked by Congress, and by the General Assembly of Rhode Island, and received a medal and $400 in cash. In January, 1867, she rescued three laborers who had taken to a boat in pusuit of a flock of frightened sheep that were swimming out to sea. The previous Winter she had saved three more soldiers, and a fortnight after her adventure with the laborers she rescued a man off the masthead of a sunken vessel. In 1881 she was pulled through the ice in the harbor by two soldiers whom she was rescuing, and when she brought them to safety finally she was near the point of death herself. From 1861 to 1896 she saved the lives of 18 people, and had formal recognition from a dozen bodies. Each Sunday she rowed ashore to attend the Methodist Church, no matter what the weather was like, for the sea could no more turn her from this duty than from her efforts to save life. Ida Lewis was married in the Fall of 1869, her husband being William H. Wilson, the skipper of a yacht. They did not get on well together, however, and in a couple of years he deserted her, and has not been heard of since. Had not Grace Darling preceeded her, it would have been thought impossible for any woman to perform the feats of strength and skill and endurance that Ida Lewis accomplished on many occasions, feats that caused General U. S. Grant to declare, on one occasion, that he had never had a soldier under his command that matched her for daring and devotion to duty.

LARGE IRRIGATION PROJECT

Three Thousand Laborers at Work in Mesopotaminia.'

Work has just been begun on the irrigation of the Mesopotamin desert, a long projected scheme, and the first 3,000 laborers are at work with the preliminary preparations. The British contracting engineer, Sir John Jackson, famous for dock works, has control of the contract, with Arthur Noet Whitley, another Britisher, who has been second in command on the railway construction work across the Andes, as a commander on the spot.

The work is a huge one, for it entails opening a gap through the mountains, building watercouses, dams and reservoirs. Three great barges will be built, the first at Hindia on the Euphrates, whence the first section, irrigating 600,000 acres at a cost of $7,500,000 will be worked. It will then match the work the British government has done in the lower Nile in consequence of the bluilding of the great Assouan dam. It is expected when a regular supply of water once more reaches the arid zone it will be worth at least $200,000,000.

ALPINE DEATH ROLL

15 Climbers Killed in 1911; All But Two Were Without Guides.

The Alpine death roll for 1911 though probably not quite complete, shows that 115 persons were killed and 37 injured during the season. The killed include 38 Germans, 29 Austrians, 27 Swiss, 9 Frenchmen, 5 Italians, 3 Englishmen, 2 Russians, 1 Hollander, and 1 American.

As usual, the majority of the accidents seem to have been preventible, as there were only two fatal accidents to climbers who provided themselves with guides. Thirteen of the victims were looking for Edelweiss and other Alpine blooms.

Three Viennese, a man and two women, were killed on the easy climb of the Great Pyrgas, in the Tyrol. The man's boots were not even hobnailed. One of the girls [illegible] a hobble skirt, while both wore [illegible] heeled shoes.

Though there are many English climbers, the number of accidents among them is small, as they invariably take guides.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story [illegible]ring, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG,
SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good." It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures. Ask Your Neighbors. They probably know of some of its many cures.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 31 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 50 stamps. Address Dr. R.V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

SHOULD BE RAISING SHEEP

To the Tune of Eighty Millions, Whereas We Have Less Than Two Millions

Canada should be carrying 80,000,000 sheep. Instead, the figures are less than 2,000,000, that number being 1,000,000 less than twelve years ago. Mr. W. T. Ritch, special commissioner to the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, with Mr. W. A. Dryden, have been conducting an inquiry into the causes of comparative failure of the sheep raising industry in the Dominion. As an instance of the varying conditions of different countries, it is shown that, whereas in Australia sheep are principally raised for their wool, the value of the sheep apart from its wool is no more on oh an average than 10 shillings, or about $2.50, while here it is a poor sheep that will not fetch $6 at least. There is a great demand for mutton-sheep in New England, so that last year 26,000 sheep were exported to Boston from Prince Edward Island alone, and many more from the other Maritime Provinces. Yet all the time the Canadian farmer has been neglecting the certain revenue that awaited him to raise wool rather than mutton. The following instance of the prevailing ignorance among sheep farmers is given to show how much must be done before better results can be hoped for. In Ontario wool is sold for from 14 to 15 cents a pound. In the Maritime Provinces they still follow the custom that obtained in England in the days of handloom weaving. The wool is first shorn and then tub-washed, after which it is sold for 22 to 24 cents a pound. The farmers openly boast of the superiority of their wool to that grown further west, forgetful that it has shrunk in the process of tub-washing quite 40 per cent., so that Ontario wool is really the more profitable. Other important matters on which the report will touch are the better administration of the dog laws, and the improvement of fencing in the eastern provinces, to obviate the heavy losses that now take place from dogs worrying the sheep; and last though not least, the necessity for the proper classification of wool, at which the farmers too often laugh as a fad, forgetful that in Australia an expert wool-classer often makes $5,000 a year, in Canada the farmers are obtaining no more for the first fleeces than for subsequent shearings, or for fine wool than they do for coarse.

ELEPHANT PULLS TOOTH

Unusual Operation Witnessed by Visitors to Riverdale Zoo

The elephant at the Riverdale Zoo, Toronto, acts as his own dentist. A few days ago it pulled a tooth which had been bothering it, the operation being witnessed by a number of persons who were watching the animal at the time. It appeared to be in pain, and worked it strunk around in its mouth as though to dislodge something unpleasant. At last, after moving its trunk frantically, the animal drew something from its mouth. It cast the tooth thus extracted out of the enclosure. The molar was large, and had evidently broken off in the gum, as all the root did not come out. The crown was in a good state of preservation, but there were signs of decay lower down.

SUCCESSFUL VIOLINISTS

Kubelik Advises Students on How to Master the Strings

In the opinion of Kubelik, the famous violinist, the standard of violin-playing has steadily risen of late years, which is not surprising when one considers the enormous increase in students from all nations, who for years steadily devote hours daily to mastering the intricacies of the instrument. Kubelik, however, not only emphasizes the need of earnest, steady work, under the direction of a good teacher, but that the student should procure as good a violin as possible, care being taken that the tone is pleasant to the ear.

"The tone of a violin greatly depends upon its strings," says Kubelik, "and the proper placing of the bridge and sound-post. The sound-post is the little wooden pillar inside the instrument, situated about a quarter of an inch behind the right foot of the bridge. Should the bridge or the sound-post be only slightly out of place, the finest 'Strad' will sound like a three-dollar fiddle.

Watch the Strings

"I would recommend all possessors of violins to have them examined by an expert, in order that the best results may be obtained. My experience is that most violins can be improved by paying attention to these details.

"I have known students almost driven to despair and loss of weeks of work in the vain endeavor to produce certain notes with a pure tone, not knowing that the difficulty arose from defects of the instrument, probably the bridge or post, being slightly out of place, or the bad quality of strings.

"It is false economy to play too long without changing strings, as a string after being used for a certain time refuses to respond to the student's intention, and time is lost by unnecessarily repeating a phrase.

"Beginners should commence their studies with a competent teacher, as good progress can only be made on a proper foundation, and bad habits, once acquired, are difficult to eradicate. So commence properly.

Concentrate! Concentrate!

"When practising the mind must be entirely concentrated on the work in hand. If the thoughts are allowed to wander, no good result will follow, and consequently it is not advisable to play too long without a rest.

"When the student feels his brain refuse to grip he must stop at once. Each individual should arrange his studies to suit his physique, and on no account continue his exercises when his brain is tired. I do not expect the 'born-tireds' to take advantage of this rule; my advice is intended for diligent students only.

"I strongly advise all students to attend to physical culture, avoiding exercises which tend to stiffen the wrist and interfere with the flexibility of the fingers."

DARING ANIMAL OPERATIONS

Remarkable Dental and Surgical Operations in Zoos.

The great feat performed by Professor Woolridge at the London Zoo setting the fractured jaws of the famous nine-yards-long python is a reminder of the remarkable progress made in operating upon animals.

There are now quite a number of pet dogs and cats with artificial eyes and legs; and a short time ago a cat, having swallowed a small hatpin, was placed under the X-rays, and, the pin having been located, was soon skilfully drawn. Professor Garre a few years ago removed the kidney of a dog and sewed it in the same animal's neck; and later he sewed the kidney of a dog in the body of another canine. The experiment was quite successful.

Perhaps the greatest dental operation on record was performed upon an elephant in the city of Mexco. The aching tooth was 12 in. long and 14 in. in diameter at the root. After the animal had been securely fastened with chains, his mouth was prised open, and a quantity of cocaine applied to deaden the pain. When this was done, a hole was bored through the tooth, and an iron bar inserted. Then a rope was twisted around the bar, and four horses were attached thereto to drag the offending molar out.

PHOTOS BY "INVISIBLE" LIGHT

Professor R. W. Wood, of the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, recently delivered an address on "Recent Experiments with Invisible Light," in which he described some of his researches with spectrum rays that are incapable of exciting the human retina, the experiments dealing with the appearance which various objects would present if they could be viewed by these radiations.

Rabbi's Wit.

Dr. Adler, the late Chief Rabbi, was gifted with a ready wit. He was once seated next to a cardinal, with whom he was on friendly terms.

"When shall I have the pleasure of seeing you eat ham?" asked the cardinal.

"At your eminence's wedding," was the prompt reply.

"You are the prince of beggars," one of the Rothschilds said to him on

TRIALS BY WATER

A Distinctly Unpleasant Way of Proving One's Innocence.

Throwing people into the water to let it determine their innocence or guilt was widely in use in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. A synod of West Prussia forbade its use in 1745. Sporadic cases, however, occurred during the whole of the nineteenth century.

Professor E. P. Evans wrote in 1895 of its use in Dalmatia, where in some districts it was still customary to throw all the women into the water on a specified day to see whether they would sink or swim.

A rope was attached to each in order to save from drowning those who proved their innocence by sinking, while those believed to be guilty because they floated were rescued and made to promise to forsake their evil ways on pain of being toned.

A traveller has described a modern survival of the ordeal used in detecting thieves in Southern Russia. All the servants of the household where a robbery occurred were assembled and as many balls of bread were made as there were suspected persons.

A sorceress then adressed each one of the number, saying that the particular ball of bread which she held in her hand would sink or swim as the party addressed was guilty or innocent. She then flung it into the water.

Boiling water was used in ordeals by the Persians, and it is referred to in the Avesta. It contained both the sacred elements, water and fire, suggesting the deluge past and the fiery doom of the future. In the simplest form of the hot-water test the bare arm was plunged to the wrist in trivial cases, and to the elbow in more serious trials, usually to bring out rings or coins thrown therein.

In Thibet plaintiff and defendant settle their cases judicially by plunging their arms into boiling water containing a black and white stone, when he who brings up the white stone wins the verdict. A king of the Goths in the seventh century, with the sanction of the Council of Toledo, recommended the boiling-water ordeal for crime.

CANNOT UPSET IT

Two Tests Made of New Lifeboat and Both are Successful

The new Harry Fisher lifeboat was successfully launched at Polson's Iron Works, Toronto. It was dropped from two heights, and demonstrated its self-righting principle in both. The first drop was made from an iron cradle ten feet from the water. Although the framework of the cradle broke just as the boat was being tipped, thus turning it nearly upside down, it righted itself in a few feet, and fell in the water right side up.

A rope was then let down from an overhead crane and fastened by an ordinary hook to the top of the boat. When the boat was raised a few feet from the water the hook snapped owing to the weight of the vessel, nearly four tons, and the boat dropped back into the water.

The boat was next raised to a height of twenty feet, suspended from the overhead crane, and at a given signal, was dropped t othe water. It landed right side up.

The boat, which is of steel, is shaped somewhat like a cigar, and inside has a steel boat working on pivots, so that it is always in proper position.

It is claimed for the boat that it is fireproof, non-sinkable and non-capsizable. It has capacity for fifty persons, and with the aid of running-boards on the sides and top could, if necessary, carry another fifty. It is twenty-four feet long and seven feet wide, and is propelled by a screw operated by a crank.

Light is obtained through a number of glassed-in port holes, and air by special self-closing devices.

AN EASY CATCH

New Brunswick is not going to be behind in the fish jumping contests. A motor boat with three men was approaching the wharf at Westfield when a salmon, in one of his jumps, lost his bearings, and landed in the boat. As the salmon weighed twenty pounds, he made a great fuss until one of the three succeeded in killing him. The men were elated with their easy catch, and the salmon was good eating despite the singular method of his capture. The previous record in New Brunswick was a ten pounder which flopped into a dugout a fisherman was poling up the Matapedia River.

NOMINATION AND ELECTION FOR RIDING OF WEST HASTINGS

Mr J. W. Johnson M. P. P. Thanks the Electors for his Unopposed Return—Speeches by Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Mr. Henry Corby Mr P. J. O' Rourke and Mr. Clem H. Ketcheson—Discretion of the Liberals Commended

At the close of the time for receiving nominations yesterday afternoon at the City Hall brief addresses were given by some of the prominent persons present The following is a synopsis of their remarks:

MR. J. W. JOHNSON.

Mr. Johnson, member-elect, who was cordially received, returned his heartfelt thanks for the honor that had been done him by electing him by acclamation. His influence would now be even greater than ever before for the riding's interests. In the past he had endeavored to do his duty and do all he could for the riding of West Hastings. He would continue in the future to give the same attention to his constituents as he had in the past. Not only would he do all he could for the riding, but for the county. He had arranged to accompany a delegation to interview the Minister of Education in reference to the re-establishment of a Model School at Madoc village, and also intended to assist a delegation from Huntingdon Township in regard to a grant on a colonization road. This was an evidence that his efforts were not alone confined to West Hastings. This was not a day of discussion, as it was not necessary to discuss the political questions in view of the fact that there was no election here. He was grateful to the Liebrals for the treatment they had extended to him, some of whom had voluntarily tendered their support if opposition had developed. The party had not, however, placed a candidate in the field. He felt grateful to all for the honor conferred upon him by electing him by acclamation.

MR. O'ROURKE.

Mr. P. J. O'Rourke, of Trenton, said he had come to the gathering for the purpose of nominating Mr. Johnson, a gentleman who had done his duty ably and well. The riding of West Hastings had been well represented in the Legislature by Mr. Johnson. What had happened here to-day would no doubt happen in various ridings in the Province. The speaker referred to the recent Dominion election and how the Canadian people had turned down reciprocity, which the United States so much desired. The result showed that the Canadians were as sharp as any other people and as bright and intelligent. The Whitney Government gave to this Province an horest administration and the electors of this Province could not be deceived by any cry which might be raised. We have an honest Government and that is all we want.

SIR MACKENZIE BOWELL.

Sir M. Bowell, being called upon, remarked that the election of Mr Johnson by acclamation was a credit to the constituency and to the member. It was an evidence of the popularity of the Whitney Government The Liberals, he considered, had showed wisdom in having no election. The Central Committee at Toronto had endeavored to induce candidates to enter the field, knowing there was no possibility of success. The Government in power in Ontario was a credit to the Province. The election of three members in Hastings County by acclamation was unprecedented in the history of Canada. Sir Mackenzie said that Sir James Whitney had some of the characteristics of John Bull in him, and if he thinks it is not right to do or carry out certain things he does not do them. Mr. Johnson has somewhat of the same nature. Sir James Whitney is honest. The idea some had that a man could not be honest in politics was erroneous. A can can be an honest politician as well as an honest man in private life. In conclusion, he congratulated the riding and Mr. Johnson that the election had gone by acclamation. It was a credit to the riding and to himself.

MR. HARRY CORBY.

Mr. H. Corby, ex-M.P., was most cordially received. He spoke briefly referring to the fact that the present occasion reminded him of some 23 years ago when he (the speaker) had the honor conferred upon him by being elected by acclamation to the House of Commons. He was pleased that their esteemed member, Mr. Johnson, had been elected by acclamation. It was a compliment to the Liberal party that they had not placed a candidate in the field and to that party we extend our sincere thanks. We had a good honest Government in Ontario and many Liberals had helped to place Sir James Whitney and his Government in power. That they were satisfied with the Government was evidenced by the fact that in the three ridings in Hastings County the members had been returned by acclamation. He thanked all for the honors which had been conferred upon him in the past and it was pleasing that there was no contest in this riding.

MR. C. H. KETCHESON.

Mr. Clem H. Ketcheson, of Sidney, said this was a red-letter day in the history of West Hastings. It was the first time a candidate had been elected by acclamation for the Legislature in this constituency. He felt proud of Mr. Johnson, who had done all he could for the riding in the past and he had no doubt he would do all he could in the future.

A vote of thanks, proposed by Sir M. Bowell, and seconded by Mr. Johnson, was tendered to Mr. W. P. Hudson, Returning Officer and chairman of the meeting. The recipient fittingly acknowledged same.

The meeting then closed after cheers had been given for the King, Sir James Whitney, Mr. Johnson and Sir M. Bowell

NORTH HASTINGS.

(From our own correspondent.)

MADOC, Dec. 4.—The nominations were not very interesting to the small crowd that gathered at the Town Hall, as there was no opposition. Yet there were quite a few in town. This is the second time that there has been no contest in North Hastings.

PRINCE EDWARD.

PICTON, Ont., Dec. 4.—The Whitney Government has a booster in S. nominated Liberal candidate for Edgar Masten of Bloomfield, who was Prince Edward here to-day. R. A. Norman, late M.P.P., was the Conservative nominee.

When it came to the speeches, Mr. Mastin's first words were tributes of praise to the Government. "We are not here to attack the Whitney Government; that Government has done good things," he declared with emphasis. "Its power policy is good. We want to give credit where credit is due."

Later on he made this assertion:—"I am not here to advocate the turning out of the Government," adding to this as his own claim for election, that he thought the opposition should be strengthened.

The Conservative standard-bearer, R. A. Norman, gave a splendid review of the seven years of Whitney government—"progressive, constructive legislation." He spoke of increased revenues, which had enabled the Government to aid Toronto University, as had been thought possible by the Ross Government. There had been no scandal connected with the Administration.

"I feel proud to come before the electors to ask a cotinuance of this policy that has so advanced Ontario," declared Mr. Norman amid cheers.

AMUSEMENTS

McEWEN MADE A HIT.

The Griffin Opera House last evening was filled to the door with an audience which was not slow to appreciate the merits of the performance given by the great McEwen, hypnotist, conjuror, wizard and entertainer. Mr. McEwen is certainly a good entertainer and at times had the audience convulsed with laughter by the actions of his subjects upon [illegible] stage. The reputation of Mr. McE[illegible] as the king of entertainers is certainly well applied. Before porceeding to demonstrate his abilities as a hypnotist he gave an exhibition of sleight of hand in which he is proficient. He will be here for this week, and the programme will be varied nightly.

Instead of talking about a man behind his back, be considerate and register a kick.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC ROUTE THROUGH TOWN

Nothing Definite Likely to be Done for Several Months to Come

A great deal of speculation has for a length of time past been indulged in as to the route through Belleville which will be adopted for the new Toront-Ottawa line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Many surveys have been made and it is understood that five proposed locations are under consideration, but, judging from the following from the Cobourg Post, it is not likely that a decision will be arrived at for some time to come:

"On Monday last the Canadian Pacific Railway engineers returned to town and resumed their work surveying a line through the town. At present they are engaged on a route through the south end of the Canadian Northern property, thence west through the terrace and Mr. Harry Hall's property, over the south end of the golf ground, running between Mr. Ambrose Keane's house and the power station of the Seymour Power Company West of Ontario srreet the line is through Mr. Webster's field directly north of the Provincial Steel plant, but beyond that nothing west of that point is at present known.

"We understand another line is to be run through the Agricultural Grounds thence west south of the Grand Trunk to a point near Burnham Street.

"The engineers expect to be here in Cobourg until spring and have opened an office in the rooms over the Standard Bank.

AGED FATHER BURNED IN BED

GALT, Ont., Dec. 4.—Michael Lober, 96 years of age, a man known throughout Waterloo and the neighboring counties by the stone fences he has built on many of the best farms, was burned to death Saturday afternoon. Over a week ago the old man became very sick and was under medical attendance.

Saturday morning Lober's son came to Galt to see the doctor, and when he returned, found the little stone house in which the old man lived, a burning mass of ruins and the charred remains of his father gave evidence of the awful tragedy that had taken place.

In the diminutive domicile were two wood stoves, and it is supposed that the fire originated from one of these. The sick man lay on his bed in an inner room, and it is likely he was suffocated while sleeping.

The house was situated between Branchtown and Sheffield, isolated in the bush, and the neighbors had no idea of what was happening until it was too late to do any good.

M'NAMARA'S CONFESSION

(Intelligencer Special)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 5.—Jas. B. McNamara's brief confession, penned by his own hand late yesterday, was made public to-day. McNamara says in it that on the night of Sept. 30, 1910, he placed in Ink Alley a portion of the Times building, a suit case containing sixteen cases of dynamite, intended to explode at one o'clock the next morning. He adds: "It was my intention to injure the building and scare the owners. I did not intend to take the life of any one. I sincerely regret that those unfortunate men lost their lives. If the giving of my life would bring them back I would gladly give it. In fact, in pleading guilty to murder in the first degree, I have placed my life in the hands of the State."

M'NAMARAS UP FOR SENTENCE

(Intelligencer Special)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 5.—The McNamaras were taken to and from the court house to-day for sentence under an extraordinary guard. The prisoners were ironed together and under the personal charge of the sheriff and were surrounded by fifteen heavily armed guards.

EXPRESS ROBBERY

(Intelligencer Special)

HAMILTON, Dec. 5.—J. Douglas Chilman, former employee of the Canadian Express Company, and Joseph Acheson, until recently a traveller for the Evel Casket Co., were arrested this morning in connection with the $10,000 express robbery last September.

ARRESTS IN INDIA

(Intelligencer Special)

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 5.—Although no untoward incidents have occurred to indicate the existence of a plot against the King and Queen, many arrests of suspicious characters were made to-day. The natice press warmly praised the King for his generous contributions to charitable institutions.

HARD FIGHT IN TRIPOLI

TRIPOLI, Dec. 5.—A force of 20,000 Italians attacked and occupied the Turkish military camp on the oasis of Ain-Zara, in the vicinity of the town of Tripoli, yesterday after a severe battle in which both sides are reported to have lost heavily.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

NEW APPOINTMENT.

Mr. John Hunter, who was recently appointed postmaster at the station post office in this city, having resigned, Mr. Crossley has been appointed in his stead.

ROW IN RESTAURANT.

At about 10.30 last night there was trouble at the Chinese restaurant, with the result that a man sustained a severe cut upon the head and Harry Lee, one of the celestials, was placed under arrest, charged with assault. He was subsequently allowed out on bail to appear this morning at police court. The trouble arose over the payment for a lunch.

A PROLONGED STAY.

Chief of Police Chilton, of Lindsay, and Deputy Sheriff Foster, of Lindsay, were in the city last evening en route home. Yesterday they escorted Henry Malcolm Graham to Kingston, where he will spend three years in the penitentiary, having been convicted of endeavoring by fraudulent means to secure money. Graham is a young man but 23 years of age, and for some time was a resident of Trenton.

SEVEN WERE SHELTERED.

Judging from the number of tramps that have sought protection at the police station the past three nights, the country must be infested with this class of humanity. Last night seven were provided with shelter.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

The December sittings of the County Council opened at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Council Chamber in the County building. The gathering is presided over by Warden Dryden, Reeve of Deseronto. All the members were present at the opening session.

CHINAMAN IN COURT.

Harry Lee, who is connected with the Chinese restaurant in this city, was this morning before Magistrate Masson charged with wounding a young man named Nash. The affair occurred last evening during a dispute as to payment for a lunch. The case was enlarged until 3 o'clock this afternoon after some evidence had been taken. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown, Mr. Carnew the private prosecutor, and Mr. J. F. Wills for the defendant.

CURRENT COMMENT

It was a bloodless victory.

Hon. Dr. Sproule has banished liquor from the Speaker's table for the first time in Dominion Parliament history.

Congratulations to Messrs.
J. W. JOHNSON, West Hastings
R. B. COOK, North Hastings
SANDY GRANT, East Hastings.

Canadians, as usual, won a large majority of the prizes at the international sheep and cattle judging competition at Chicago. They took 70 per cent. of the prizes.

An exchange asks "Does music kill men?" That is a question to be answered, but there is no doubt that much good music is deliberately murdered by some men—and women, too.

Mr. George W. Verrall, who has been twice beaten in contests for the Legislature for West York, has for a third time entered the field in the Grit interests. "Insatiate archer would not TWO suffice?"

The Toronto Star editorially advises its readers to "be with the rising party," by which, it means, no doubt the fag-end of the once powerful Grit organization. As the party which The Star supports is, after having risen to sublime heights, on the down grade, its advice is good, because those who follow it must be Conservatives.

In 1875 the Mackenzie Government at Ottawa issued an order in council forbidding their officials from becoming members of municipal bodies. Would not this be a good example for the Ontario Government to follow? The public servant who faithfully attends to the duties of his office cannot have any spare time to devote to other business.

It is satisfactory to learn that the Transcontinental Railway Commission is to be reorganized. The incompetents who were appointed by the Laurier Government because of their activity as politicians, ought as soon as possible to be replaced by men who are capable and honest.

In England the public men who favor woman suffrage and are willing to say so in moderate language are not pleased with the way their more energetic sister-believers demonstrate in the streets. They will probably be set down as old fogies by the suffragette leaders. Men who would move quietly to an end, cannot be appreciated by those who would burst into a polling booth through a broken window after climbing over a knocked-out policeman.

SOME IMPRESSIONS OF AUSTRALIA

Mr. Ames, M. P. Talks Interestingly of the Antipodean Island Continent

Last evening another of those pleasant gatherings of the Canadian Club of this city was held at Wallace's restaurant. The members assembled at 6.30, and there was a record attendance, some 60 men being present. The speaker and guest of the evening was Mr. Herbert B. Ames, M.P., of Montreal, one of Canada's best speakers.

After the supper, which was a very dainty repast, the new president, Mr. John Elliott, of the Standard Bank, called the assembly to order. He stated that he was pleased to see so many present. He wished the members to feel that the club did not belong to the officers, and wanted each one to try to increase the membership. His ambition is to have a membership of two hundred. He referred in glowing terms to the services of the past president, Mr. C. M. Reid, and he suggested that Mr. Reid be made an honorary president of the club.

Mr. J. W. Johnson, the member-elect for West Hastings in the Legislature, made a motion to that effect which was heartily seconded by Mr. D. V. Sinclair. This motion was unanimously carried.

Mr. Elliott then introduced the speaker, Mr. H. B. Ames, M.P., chairman of Commerce and Banking in the late Parliament.

On rising, Mr. Ames expressed his pleasure at being present. The Canadian Clubs, he said, were a happy thought, and they were doing much good everywhere. The subject of his lecture was "Impressions of Australia." Mr. Ames was one of a dozen delegates from Canada to a convention of Boards of Trade and Commerce from different parts of the empire. This convention was called to consider ways and means of furthering more intimate trade relations between different parts of the British empire. The delegates, he said, were royally treated by the Government of Australia. While Australia is essentially a foreign country, but somewhat similar to our own Canada, it is also vastly dissimilar in various ways. On visiting a foreign country one always notices more particularly those things which are different to what one is used to at home. He was struck by the enormous extent of the continent, which has, he said, a coast line twice as long as that of the United States, the area of which is also larger than the United States. Ten per cent. of the population of Australia is found in the four or five large cities on the coast. Contrary to conditions in Canada, there is no large rural population in Australia. Only the outside fringe of about 300 miles was settled, the interior being a barren, treeless plain as yet unexplored. The population of Australia is not as diversified as that of Canada, 98% of the people being purely British born. Australia has also what Canada has not—a real "yellow peril." The northern coast of Australia is closer to Japan than the southern part of the continent is to the northern coast. The State owns all railways and is at present building two great transcontinental railroads for stragetic purposes, to be used in a struggle between the yellow and the white races, which they fear will take place in the future. The northern part of Australia is semi-tropical, and while it is too warm most of the time for whites to live there, they are determined that the yellow races shall not get a foothold there. Australia is building a navy and her naval programme covers a period of 22 years. Every boy in the country has to go through a course of physical and military training. There are 150,000 boys now undergoing training for militia men.

In Australia they have an "open climate" all the year round. While this is very nice, the country suffers the disadvantage of drought and famine every six or seven years. At these times all vegetation dries up, cattle die by thousands, and sheep have to be driven hundreds of miles to find water. In concluding his excellent address, Mr. Ames said that it was nice to be able to go around the world, but he was very pleased to get back to Canada and preferred this country to any other. It was a great thing when travelling to know that at all times you are under the British flag, and when he returned home it was with the determination to do all in his power to keep that flag flying.

Mr. F. E. O'Flynn moved a very hearty vote of thanks and suggested that a record of the motion be placed on the books.

Col. Ponton seconded this motion, and stated that he thought the best way of expressing the thanks of the Club was to say "Will ye no come back again?"

The assembly closed by the singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and the National Anthem.

AN EASY CATCH

New Brunswick is not going to be behind in the fish jumping contests. A motor boat with three men was approaching the wharf at Westfield when a salmon, in one of his jumps, lost his bearings, and landed in the boat. As the salmon weighed twenty pounds, he made a great fuss until one of the three succeeded in killing him. The men were elated with their easy catch, and the salmon was good eating despite the singular method of his capture. The previous record in New Brunswick was a ten pounder which flopped into a dugout a fisherman was poling up the Matapedia River.

THE DOCTOR'S QUESTION

MUCH SICKNESS DUE TO BOWEL DISORDERS.

A doctor's first question when consulted by a patient is, "Are your bowels regular?" He knows that 98% of illness is attended with inactive bowels and torpid liver, and that this condition must be removed gently and thoroughly before health can be restored.

Rexall Orderlies are a positive, pleasant, and safe remedy for constipation and bowel disorders in general. We are so certain of their great curative value that we promise to return the purchaser's money in every case when they fail to produce entire satisfaction.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy, they act quietly, and aid in producing a soothing, strengthening healing influence on the entire intestial tract. They do not purge, gripe, cause nausea, flatulence, excessive looseness, diarrhoea, or other annoying effect. They are especially good for children, weak persons, or old folks. Three sizes, 10c., 25c., and 50c. Sold only at our store—The Raxall Store—J. S. McKeown, Belleville.

Mechanical Equivalent of Heat.

The mechanical theory of heat regards heat as a mode of motion, and investigation has shown that there exists a definite relation between those two forms of energy, which is known as the mechanical equivalent of heat, or Joule's equivalent. That is, if, as in the experiments of Joule, a certain known amount of mechanical energy be expended, as, for instance, by the falling of a weight to operate paddles in a vessel of water, the increase in temperature of the water, due to agitation by the paddles will always be found proportional to the work done. This relation or proportion is expressed by the amount of work necessary to raise the temperature of one pound of water at 62 degrees Fahrenheit through one degree at atmospheric pressure, or, in other words, impart one British Thermal Unit to the water. The heat necessary to raise the temperature of one pound of water from 62 degrees to 63 degrees temperature was found by Joule to be able to perform work equal to the raising of 772 pounds one foot in height. The latest experimental determination of Rowland shows that the exact value is somewhat higher than 772, and 778 is the value now usually accepted as the correct mechanical equivalent.

"Dr. Grenfell, whose 'parish' includes as much of Labrador as he can circumvent, has observed that endemic diseases have up to recent years been practically unknown along that coast. The infections which the natives have contracted have been introduced mostly from regions to the south.

MERCURY AT COBALT

Provincial Officials are Endeavoring to Discover Ore Combinations

The discovery of mercury in the ore at the Nipissing Mines has led to an investigation by experts of the Bureau of Mines to determine in what combinations of mineral bodies it is found, and as to whether it exists in large enough quantities to make the discovery of commercial importance.

Mercury or quicksilver was found in silver ore at the Silver Inlet Mine, famous many years ago. Some time ago Professor Miller, Provincial Geologist, examined ore at Cobalt to find mercury, but without success. Since the discovery at the Nipissing camp investigations have been resumed. In ordinary ore the mercury runs about four pounds to the ton and in purer ore that resists crushing from twenty to forty pounds to the ton.

HYOMEI

THE BREATHABLE REMEDY FOR CATARRH.

The rational way to combat Catarrh is the Hyomei way, viz., by breathing. Scientists for years have agreed on this point but failed to get an antiseptic strong enough to kill catarrh germs and not destroy the tissues of the membrane at the same time, until the discovery of Hyomei, (pronounced Hyomei).

Hyomei is the most powerful yet healing antiseptic known. Breathe it through the inhaler over the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane four or five times a day, and in a few days the germs will disappear.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including the inhaler, costs $1.00 and extra bottles, if afterwards needed, cost but 50 cents. Obtainable from your druggist or postpaid from The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. Hyomei is guaranteed to cure asthma, croup, sore throat, coughs, colds or grip or refund your money back. Sold and guaranteed by J. V. Doyle.

Deposed Ruler of Herd Tries Conclusions Again and Is Killed.

Two bulls, monarchs of the buffalo herd at City Park zoo, at Denver, engaged in mortal combat. One was killed. The other is now king with a dozen subjects to pay him homage as ruler.

The bisons, as fine specimens as were in captivity, tried conclusions a year ago, when Pablo, imported from Montana and 9 years old, was bested by Colorado, a home product of the same size and pugnacity, after an all night contest full of gore and fierceness.

Loss of prestige did not set well with Pablo. He was never the same. Pulled from his throne in a night, he sulked and bided his time, just like the jealous ruler expatriated but ever mindful and determined to win back his throne.

Just how these two massive animals started their battle no one knows, save the others of the herd, and they are dumb. When Animal Keeper Hill made his usual inspection of his wards, lying in one corner of the buffalo lot he found Colorada, horned horribly and dead.

For fifty feet the earth had been ploughed up violently. It was also blood soaked. More than 100 feet away stood Pablo, docile, fatigued his mane clogged with gore and dirt, his horns discolored with Colorado's life blood. The dozen other members of the herd were gathered about the hay stack, eating as if nothing had occurred.

Like man, the buffalo must have his king. The difference is that the latter must win his [illegible] by sheer force of strength. Hereditary does not go among peoples of the plains. Since the herd was brought to City Park zoo a score of years ago the rulership has gone to him that wrested it from his predecessor.

There mey be people who are beneath flattery, but did you ever see any one who was above it.

Any man can secure an appreciative audience by letting his money talk.

BY CHARLES EDMOND WALK

He jammed his glasses down combatively astride his hawk-like nose, and squared his shoulders.

"I won't guess at all. Looky here: old Page switched 'em. That's what he did—switched 'em to show Maillot the real thing. Every time I converse with you, Swift, my theory about the equality of mind and matter receives a jolt; you have more brawn than brains, old sport."

Squinting at each newcomer, he bustled away before I had time to get back at him. I was rather touchy about my size; I couldn't help being a giant, and the little ferret of a sawbones knew it. I had only one means of revenge. He was a great stickler for maintaining the dignity of his profession, and I always called him "Doc."

While De Breen was getting his jurors in line, I disposed the two patrolmen who had accompanied him—one in the hall, to direct those who had business here this morning straight to the library, and to allow nobody, under whatever pretext, to wander to any other part of the house; the second was stationed just inside the library door. Stodger was to remain up-stairs until called for, when I would relieve him during the brief period required for his testimony.

Burke and Maillot arrived while I was thus engaged, and before I had time to enter the library the front door opened to admit a party of three—Miss Cooper and Miss Fluette, who were accompanied by a handsome, dignified man with white hair and a closely-trimmed beard which he wore parted in the middle and brushed straight back.

Instinctively I knew this man to be Alfred Fluette. And as soon would I have expected the attendance of the Caliph of Bagdad. I fell to watching him narrowly.

His features were not familiar to me, but certain details of his appearance were so striking that I could scarcely do otherwise than conclude that his bearing and countenance had quite recently undergone a marked change. He was a man, I imagined, who could hide his feelings with eminent success; yet, his upstanding figure, without being precisely bent, expressed an idea of drooping. The lines of his face gave it a haggard expression, while his eyes wore a furtive, hunted look at certain periods when he forgot to keep himself in hand. All these details taken together gave me food for sober reflection.

With the wax impression on the iron candlestick in mind, I bent my glance to his hands—to the right hand—but he wore gloves, and moreover, the long sleeves of his heavy overcoat came well down over his knuckles. A stirring of the library fire might persuade him to remove his wraps later on.

But something happened that banished everything else temporarily from my mind. The instant he stepped across the front door-sill his eyes sought the upper regions of the house—the balcony or the second story hall. The glance was feverishly eager. He looked away again quickly; but I could not help associating this brief episode with Burke's wistful look in the same direction the afternoon before.

CHAPTER XV.

A Woman's Scream

I turned from Alfred Fluette to encounter a sober, questioning look from Genevieve. Her sweet face was pale and still troubled, and while nothing would have pleased me better than to hasten to her side, I was obliged—for the present only, I made mental qualification—to content myself with a smile and a reassuring nod. Her cousin Belle's demeanor was haughty, even supercilious, and she quite frankly ignored everybody excepting her father, her cousin, and Maillot.

Nothing occurred to retard the inquest, which I shall refer to only as is necessary to keep bound together the thread of my narrative.

After Stodger had given his brief testimony and returned to his post in the upper hall, I descended to the library and took a seat beside Dr. De Breen at one end of the big library table. As I did so I observed that Mr. Fluette was taking stock of me with a keen sidewise look. I recognized in his regard, surreptitious as it was, that quality which is accustomed to estimatinng and judging the characters of other men,—usually with unerring exactness, I fancied,—but I affected to appear unconscious of the fact that he was noticing me at all.

Alexander Burke was the second witness. His testimony did not vary from his already familiar story, and after the deputy-coroner had put all the interrogations he could think of, I began to prompt the energetic and shrewd examiner. Thenceforward the whilom secretary's examination proceeded as follows:

"Did Mr. Page have a revolver?"

"Yes. But it is now in my possession. More than a week ago I was engaged with Mr. Page here until a late hour. It was necessary for me to go to his office to procure some papers; it was past eleven, and he handed me his pistol. I forgot to return it."

So much for the pistol. The weapon was immaterial.

"In pursuance of your duties as Mr. Page's confidential clerk, Mr. Burke, you had occasion quite frequently to come here to the house, did you not?"

"Not frequently—sometimes."

"Were you familiar with his habits about the house?"

"I suppose so—yes."

"Which rooms did Mr. Page use the oftenest?"

"This one—and his bedroom. He scarcely ever entered any of the other rooms—seldom ascended the stairs."

"How would you account for the door-hinges on all three doors between the alcove and the bedroom having been freshly oiled?"

He didn't attempt to account for it; he merely evinced a mild surprise that such should have been the case. So, impatiently, I requested Dr. De Breen to dismiss him.

I was anxious to have over with the real ordeal of the day, for I knew that I thus correctly characterized to myself Maillot's session in the witness-chair, and, if I was not much mistaken, whatever was to follow after he was through with his remarkable story. Correct as I was in a part of my assumption, everybody present was far from being prepared for the startling denouement.

Maillot began his account of Tuesday night's happenings in a straightforward way, and told it at length as convincingly as such an improbable story could be told at all. His injured eye was even worse discolored than it had been the previous day, and I—watching closely the half-dozen honest citizens with whom lay his immediate fate—observed that they noticed and commented upon it among themselves.

And my anticipations presently began to be realized. As the young man made plain the purpose of his errand to Mr. Page, as he again went over all the extraordinary particulars of his uncle producing the ruby and promising to give it to him to convey to Mr. Fluette, I saw the jurors exchange glances with one another; and then, as the enmity and ill-feeling between the two men became more and more apparent, the six faces gradually came to assume expressions of open incredulity.

If the young lawyer remarked the effect of his testimony, which he could scarcely help doing, the circumstance seemed not to dismay him in the least. But the worst was yet to come: plainly, whatever doubts may have lingered in the minds of the jury during this stage of his examination, they were definitely dispelled when the witness frankly admitted that according to the best of his belief he was Felix Page's sole heir.

But to me Maillot's testimony was scarcely more than a running accompaniment to Alfred Fluette's strange behavior. It was impossible to interpret the seething conflict of thought and emotion which his haggard visage hid only indifferently; he stared at the young man, fascinated; but dominating every influence, gripping his very heart and biting like acid, I could discern the evidence of a horror which must inevitably drive him, sooner or later, to some violent outburst. It was manifestly more than human nature could endure.

Why?—I asked myself—why? Why should he be so profoundly stirred by the experience of one against whom he entertained such a strong antipathy? And so promptly that it took me by surprise, he supplied the potential answer to my unspoken question.

With a sudden movement, as if to sit longer inactive had become an unendurable torment, he stood upright, flung off his heavy overcoat and then whipped off his gloves.

On the middle finger of his right hand gleamed a broad band of gold!

I glanced at the sweet, concerned face of Genevieve Cooper. From the intentness with which she hung upon my every action and change of expression, I knew that she was trying to plumb the farther depths and learn the trend of the hidden currents of this drama, which was of such vital moment to her. I was glad that I could still offer her the encouragement of a smile.

KING GEORGE AND THE BABY

Pretty Incident That Occurred Long Time Ago in Australia

A charming story of King George's kindness of heart has just been related by the Rev. Henry Howard, at a children's festival at Adelaide, Australia.

The occasion was the King's first visit to Australia as a cadet, with his brother, the late Duke of Clarence. In the course of this visit, the two Princes went to Melbourne by coach from Mount Gambier.

The young Princes sat on the box seat during the long and dreary drive The driver told them all about the kangaroo and the wallaby, and explained things they had never seen before, and his hrearers were greatly interested. He mentioned that he had a little two-months-old girl in his home near to Casterton, and Prince George expressed a desire to see the baby.

The coach was, therefore, pulled up at the rural home, and the infant having been shown to the Prince, he took it in his arms and kissed it. Having handed the baby back to her mother, Prince George took a sovereign from his pocket, and asked the coachman to give it to the girl when she grew older, and to tell her that Prince George had presented it to her.

Twenty-one years later Prince George, as Duke of York, was again in Australia. Having ascertained that the old coachman was alive, he sent a message that he was to come to Melbourne. The old man readily accepted, and found that his fare had been paid. The Duke met him at Government House, and immediately asked after the little girl.

The old man's eyes dimmed with tears and his lips quivered as he said that the child had died. The Royal visitor was distressed by the news, but consoled the friend of his boyhood, and insisted that he should remain for a week at Government House as his guest.

During that week, amid all the engagements for the Commonwealth festivities, the Duke of York, for one hour every day, gave his time to the old coachman.

Economy is all right, but don't waste a dollar trying to save a penny.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—The foreign demand for all grades of Manitoba spring wheat was very heavy, there being orders in the market for over 1,000,000 bushels, but owing to the limited amount of ocean grain now offering from all ports, the volume of business accomplished was not large. Cables from the United Kingdom were easier. There was an increased demand for oats, a number of orders being received from the lower provinces for car lots. The trade in other coarse grains was quiet. A steady feeling prevails in flour, with a fair amount of business passing. Demand for millfeed and rolled oats is good. Cheese is quiet but firm. Demand for butter and eggs good, with prices tending upward. Dressed hogs advanced 25c. Trade fair.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Dec. 4.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 85 carloads, comprising 1518 cattle, 524 hogs, 1482 sheep and lambs and 46 calves.

Exporters.

Alexander McIntosh bought 37 export steers, 1285 lbs. each, at $6.00, and 10 bulls, at $5 to $5.50. These were the only cattle reported as being bought for export. E. L. Woodward bought 59 good steers of export weight and quality, at $6.40, for the Swift Canadian Company, to be slaughtered for the local trade.

Butchers

Prime picked lots of butchers' cattle sold at $5.85 to $6 and one lot at $6.10; loads of good, at $5.60 to $5.80; medium, $5.20 to $5.45; common to medium, $4.35 to $5.10; cows, $3 to $5.25; canners, $2 to $3; bulls were bought for butcher purposes from $3.65 to $5.75.

Stockers and Feeders.

Feeders, from 900 to 1100 lbs. each, were quoted at $4.50 to $5.35; stockers, at $3.90 to $4.50.

Milkers and Springers.

A moderate supply of milkers and springers, sold at prices ranging from $40 to $75 each.

Veal Calves.

Veal calves were quoted and sales made at $3.50 to $8.50, but only choice new milk fed calves brought the latter figure.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep sold at about steady prices, but lambs were 10c to 15c per cwt. lower. Sheep, ewes, sold at $3.25 to $3.75; rams, $3; lambs, $5 to $5.35; with a few picked ewes and wethers reported at $5.00. The bulk of lambs sold from $5.25 to $5.35.

Hogs.

Selected hogs, fed and watered, sold at $6.50. This would mean $6.15, f.o.b., cars, at country points, and $6 to the farmer.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Dec. 2 were 1500 cattle, 1700 sheep and lambs, 1700 hogs and 350 calves. The offerings on the market this morning amounted to 775 cattle, 1000 sheep and lambs, 600 hogs and 125 calves.

The tone of the market for good butchers' cattle was much stronger than a week ago, and prices show an advance of 10c to 25c per 100 pounds on account of the fact that the supply was much less than half, of which the percentage of common and inferior grades was much smaller than it has been of late, which all tended to create a better feeling in the trade.

The top price paid for picked lots of choice steers was $6.10 per 100 pounds, and sales of full loads of good, useful stock were made at from $5.50 to $5.75.

In the small meat trade the feature was the strength in the market for lambs, and prices advanced 25c per 100 pounds. The demand was good, and sales of a few choice lots were made as high as $6 per 100 pounds, but the bulk of trading was done at $5.75 to $5.85. The market for sheep was firm under a fair demand, and small supplies. Calves were scarce, for which the demand was good at firm prices.

The tone of the market for hogs was stronger, and prices advanced 25c per 100 pounds, owing to smaller offerings, and the keen competition between some buyers for supplies. A few sales were made at $6.75 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars, but the bulk of the business was done at $6.50 to $6.65. The prospects now are that the tendency of prices will be to go higher, as the crop has been pretty well marketed, consequently receipts from now on will be smaller.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6 to $6.10; butchers' cattle medium, $5.25 to $5.50; butchers' cattle, common, $3.50 to $3.75; canners, $2 to $3; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50; butchers' cattle, medium, $4.50 to $5; butchers' cattle, bulls, $3.75 to $4.25; milkers, choice, each, $75; milkers, common and medium, each, $50 to $60; springers, $30 to $40.

Sheep, ewes, $3.75 to $4; bucks and culls, $3.25 to $3.50. Lambs, $5.75 to $6.

Hogs, f.o.b., $6.50 to $6.75.

Calves, $3 to $10.

The Mining Law

Among the first acts of the Whitney Government was to overhaul the Mining Law—a process that was much needed. The old law centralized everything in the Department at Toronto, and complaints of delay were rife. The new law placed a Recorder in every Mining District, and gave him power to accept applications for claims without reference to Toronto.

Under the old Act the grant or lease could be obtained at once, but the title might be cancelled if so much money was not spent on dvelopment work, or, in the case of a lease, so much rent paid every year. The new Act put the horse before the cart, and required a specific amount of work to be done pefore the Crown deed could be given. Thus when the deed issued, the tenure was secure, a most important fature in mining. Formerly, the prospector was not required to put up any discovery or other posts, but simply filed his application in the Department; the law obliged him to erect a stake at each of the four corners of his claim, and a post on the outcropping of mineral, with his name and the number of his license, thus giving notice to all coming on the ground that he had made a find and claimed the location.

The old law charged three or four different prices for mining lands, depending upon how far they were from a railway, whether in surveyed or unsurveyed territory, etc., and the prospector found it difficult to tell how much he would have to pay per acre. The new law divided the mining lands of the Crown into two classes only, surveyed and unsurveyed, and placed a price of $3.00 per acre on the former, and $2.50 on the latter.

Previously all disputes arising in connection with unpatented mining lands were settled by the Department. Whether rightly or wrongly, unsuccessful disputants were apt to attribute their want of success to political influence unfairly brought to bear against them. In reforming the Act the new Government determined to remove this cause of complaint, and provided for the settlement of disputed claims entirely outside of the Department. The Recorders were given power to decide in the first instance, and a new officer called Mining Commissioner was appointed, to whom an appeal from the Recorder might be taken. If the Commissioner's decision was not satisfactory to either side, an appeal might be had to the ordinary courts of the land. In any case, the Department was relieved of the onus of settling disputes between rival claimants, which are bound to arise under any conceivable kind of mining law.

The operation of the new Act has justified the changes which were made. The law on the whole works smoothly; localized administration and prompt, inexpensive settlement of disputes being undoubted boons to the prospecting and mining community. The appointment of a Mining Commissioner has been of the greatest advantage. The gentleman who occupies this important position has made a reputation for fairness and impartiality, and also for the soundness of his judgment; very few appeals from his decisions have been successful and they have practically ceased altogether.

In another direction the Whitney Government dispayed both wisdom and courage. It has now come to be accepted that the public domain should be administered with regard to the rights of the people as a whole, as well as of the individuals who are directly interested. The mineral wealth of the province, having been placed in the ground by the bounty of nature, it is only reasonable that a fair share of that wealth should accrue to the Public Treasury and assist in defraying the expenses of the Public Service.

A Clean Sweep

Political history is being made in Canada these days with remarkable rapidity—history of a character most satisfactory to the majority of the people of the Dominion, and which will be memorable for all time as a turning point in the destiny of the country.

By the complete rout, in September last, of the political forces which were making for a gradual change in our relations to the mother country, which had as its inevitable goal, according to President Taft and Mr. Champ Clark, Speaker and leader of the House of Representatives, the popular branch of the United States Congress, annexation to the neighboring Republic, Canada was saved for the British Empire for all time to come.

By the overwhelming victory for the Conservative Government of Ontario, as foreshadowed by the result of Monday's nominations, the corrupt organization which for over thirty years misruled this province, and which, under a new leader, has been making a desperate attempt to regain the power which they had abused to such an extent that an outraged people literally swept them out of office, the electors of Ontario have once more preserved their heritage from the grasp of the rapacious gang who flourished under Mowat, Hardy and Ross. Honesty and efficiency has characterized the Whitney Government's administration of our affairs, and the people have endorsed their administrative acts in the most emphatic possible manner.

In this endorsation of the Government and condemnation of its opponents, Hastings has taken the most conspicuous part of any county in the province by RETURNING UNOPPOSED THREE SUPPORTERS OF THE GOVERNMENT. This event is without precedent, for no other county in Canada ever returned by acclamation three representatives of the same political party in a general election. This event will become historical, and will long stand unequalled in the political annals of Canada. To the Conservative party of this county and to the able and popular men whom they chose as their candidate in each constituency belong the honor and glory.

The Liberals in each riding sought far and near for satisfactory candidates, but without success, and it is to the credit of the good sense of their leaders that contests in which they had no hope of succeeding were not forced upon the electors.

What They Would Have Sacrificed

Opposition Leader Rowell and his Opposition followers make considerable comment upon the development of New Ontario.

Opposition Leader Rowell and his followers are the same men who advocated and worked hard to carry through reciprocity.

Reciprocity would, if permitted its way, have sacrificed the [illegible] and timber lands of New Ontario to the corporate greed of U. S. ma[illegible]facturers, who were just waiting for the passing of the pact to come in and possess this portion of Ontario's natural heritage.

Aren't these Oppositionists a consistent bunch under the circumstances in affecting concern about the development of New Ontario, which they were quite prepared to sacrifice under the reciprocity pact?

And the Opposition candidate in Prince Edward was a supporter of reciprocity, and declares the cause is not dead yet. Enough said.

Swindler and "Revivalist."

At Llangollen William Rowlands, a gentlemanly-looking young man, was sentenced to six months' hard labour for obtaining money, board and lodgings from the Waverley Hotel by false pretences. Margaret Jones, the proprietress of the hotel, said the prisoner took rooms there, saying his parents were to join him in a week. He gave the name of an Anglesey farm owned by his father, from which letters were returned "not known." A long list of previous convictions for similar offences, in some of which the prisoner had masqueraded as a woman, was quoted. During his stay at Llangoellen, Rowlands appeared at Calvinistic Methodist chapels, announcing he had an inspired message to deliver, in one instance taking charge of the service and imitating revival methods.

Makes Hair Grow

D. M. Waters has an invigorator that will grow hair or money back.

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.

If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

And remember, it destroys the dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.

SALVIA is sold by D. M. Waters under a positive guarantee to cure Dandruff, stop Falling Hair and itching scalp in ten days, or money back. A large bottle costs 50c. The word 'SALVIA' (Latin for sage,) is on every bottle.

Pastor Russell's Sermon

BROOKLYN, Dec. 3.—The public was not made aware of Pastor Russell's presence in our city to-day. No notices were given out because the Academy of Music was not obtainable and the Tabernacle would not accommodate the crowds. As it was, however, the Tabernacle was crowded. The afternoon text was, "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved."—Jeremiah viii:20.

The pastor seemed especially to enjoy the semi-privacy of this meeting with the tabernacle congregation. As is generally known, he is about to start on a tour of the world in company of six gentlemen of affairs, of which he is the chosen chairman. The committee was appointed some months ago by the International Bible Students' Association to visit heathen lands and investigate conditions there and report to the association and to the public their findings along the following lines:

(1) Are the foreign missions being conducted along Christian business lines?

(2) To what extent are the methods used successful in reaching the heathen peoples and in bringing them to Christianity?

(3) What are the teachings, what the inducements to accept Christianity and how enduring are the results?

(4) What is the attitude of heathendom to missionaries and towards Christianity, and what are the prospects for foreign missions becoming self-sustaining?

(5) What, if any, changes could be made in teaching or in financial administration to make the foreign missionary work more successful in the future?

(6) What hope is there for the conversion of the world in this generation as proposed by the Laymen's Missionary Movement with its thirty-million-dollar endowment?

(7) To what extent do the moneys donated benefit the heathen and could any improvement along this line be arggested?

The report of this committee will be awaited with great interest by many.

Pastor Russell will visit classes of Bible Students en route and will address the public next Sunday in Los Angeles. Arrangements are perfected whereby we will be in touch with him throughout his journey. His addresses will be reported from Japan, China, Manila, Travancore, Madras, Calcutta, Cairo and Corinth.

Discussing his text the pastor declared that, as there was a harvest time, a reaping time in the end of the Jewish age, so also there is to be a harvesting in the end of the gospel age. The fruitage of this age will be gathered into the heavenly garner by the glorious change of the "first resurrection." The Lord's words were, "The harvest is the end of the age." By mistranslation His words were rendered, "The harvest is the end of the world," and thus many have been led into the fear that the second coming of Jesus will mean the end of all things for all except the saintly few.

Rather we should understand that as the Jewish age ended with a harvest and its ripe fruitage was gathered into the garner, so the garnering of the church in the close of this age will mean the inauguration of the new dispensation of Messiah's kingdom—a new age of blessing to the world in general—to all the families of the earth.

In harmony with the foregoing, Pastor Russell reminded his hearers that none should misunderstand his prospective visit to heathen lands to imply any expectation on his part that the heathen must be converted before this age will end. That the conversion of the heathen is a human impossibility is shown by the government statistics—the numbers of heathen having doubled in the past century.

What he does expect is that, as there are a few of God's "very elect" in all the denominations of Christendom now to be garnered, so also are there a few saintly ones amongst the heathen who accepted Christ—including some of the missionaries. The harvest must cover as wide an area as did the sowing of the gospel seed.

The text points out a lesson. Not all who have professed to be followers of Christ will be amongst the blessed ones of the harvest and be transported by the "first resurrection" to glory, honor, and immortality. The words of Jesus here cited in corroboration of this are "Many shall say unto Me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not taught many and in Thy name cast out devils, and done many wonderful works?" Many who thus hope will be disappointed—will be shut out of the kingdom class.

Another of the Redeemer's parables, the pastor said, pictures the consecrated saints of God in this harvest time as virgins. But some were wise and some were foolish. The masses of mankind—yes, the masses of Christendom, are omitted from this parabolic picture. Only the virgin class is dealt with at all, and it is divided into two parts. Only the wise, the faithful, the "more than conquerors," will have the honor of entering into the wedding with the Bridegroom and becoming the Bride, the Lamb's Wife. Then the door will be shut. No more will ever enter that door. No more will ever be added to the Bride company—the number of the elect will have been completed.

This parable shows that later on the foolish virgins pass through tribulation and obtain the oil and the light which they should have had before. But it will then be too late to be of the Bride company. They will knock, saying, "Lord, Lord, open to us," but the Bridegroom will declare, "I do not recognize you as members of My Bride.

The scriptures show that these "foolish virgins" passing through a great time of tribulation, will be called to the marriage supper of the Lamb and be present before the great King as the virgins, the Bride's companions and subordinate helpers.—Psalms xiv:13-15.

One lesson, said the paster, is that it is not sufficient that we say "Lord, Lord,"—that we publicly proclaim ourselves Christians—nor is it sufficient that we engage in good works, casting out demons and healing the sick and teaching the people. These things are good, but God has his own tests as respects those who shall be accepted as members of the "Bride, the Lamb's Wife." Obedience to the Word and Spirit of the Lord must be the attitude of those who would be His.

WHY SNIFFLE AND SNEEZE WITH CATARRHAL COLD?

BY BREATHING THE HEALING VAPOR OF CATARRHOZONE YOU GET RELIEF IN TEN MINUTES.

Every second person that you meet seems to have a sneeze and stuffed feeling in the forehead and nostrils. To cure promptly, say in half an hour, there is nothing worth using except Catarrhozone. You inhale its balsamic vapor and feel as if you were among the Norway pines. This is because Catarrhozone contains a healing medicine, light as pine air, which is breathed straight into the lungs and bronchial tubes. Away goes the cold; sneezing and catarrhal coughs cease; bronchial irritation stops; in short, you are cured of catarrh by a pleasant, simple remedy, free from sedatives and irritants.

That Catarrhozone is a swift, certain means of destroying colds and catarrh is proved by the following statement of Mr. Pulos, one of Brockville's best known merchants:

"In the fall of 1903," writes Mr. Pulos, under date of June 10th, 1910, "I developed vbgkqj vbgkqj vbgkqj z "I contracted a severe cold which developed into Catarrh. At that time I was living in New York state and treated with four different physicians, who afforded me no relief. On coming to Brockville I was advised by a friend to try Catarrhozone. I bought the dollar outfit, and was gratified by the results. I was completely cured by Catarrhozone, and nave used it since to check a cold with unfailing results. It is the grandest medicine in existence, and I hope my testimony will be of some use to other fellow-sufferers."

(Signed) George Pulos.

An ideal protection for the chest, lungs, nose, and throat is the frequent use of Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment (the large size), costs $1.00, medium sizes 50c., at all dealers, or the Catarhrozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

DRURY LANE MUSIC HALL

Hereafter in its Rebuilt Form it Will Have a New Name.

Familiar to the passing generation of Londoners as the "Old Mo," the Drury Lane music hall, widely known as the Middlesex, has just been reopened. During the summer the house was rebuilt, and the New Middlesex Empire as it will be called accommodates an audience of 3,000 with comfort, and will stage productions of nearly every kind. Extending 155 ft. one way and 115 ft. another, the new "Old Mo" has a larger frontage than any theatre in London. The auditorium has been built without columns on the Acel cantilever principle, and the features of the house will be saloons on each tier, bars, and a tea room.

False Teeth Lead to Suicide

At Bolton a verdict of "suicide during temporary insanity" was returned at an inquest on a young man who, it was stated, killed himself in a fit of depression resulting from a new set of false teeth not fitting properly and causing him discomfort.

Cheap Spectacles

The Willesden Education Committee decided to have the eyesight of the school children tested, and to provide those found to be defective with suitable glasses, the parents to repay the cost by instalments. A large number of children have been provided with spectacles, but none of the money thus expended has been refunded by the parents.

Where Crimean War was Planned

Broom House, Fulham, an historical interesting old Georgian residence with over nine acres of gardens and grounds, has been sold for £8,000. Broom House formerly belonged to Sir Evan Nepean, who had been Governor of Bombay, and was afterwards Chief Secretary for Ireland. Lord Palmerston was a frequent visitor at Broom House, and it is stated that the plan of campaign of the war in the Crimea was arranged at this house.

CHILD DIES UNDER HEALER'S TREATMENT

Christian Science Ministrations Only for a 5-Year-Old Diphtheria Victim

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Kathryn Mosbach, the 5-year-old daughter of Mrs. Margaret Mosbach, living at 2,845 Bainbridge Avenue, the Bronx, died without medical atention. Preliminary examination made showed that the child had died of diphtheria.

The investigation brought out that the mother is an earnest Christian Scientist and the child died after having been treated by Mrs. Marie Roberts of 1,934 Webster Avenue, leader of the Christian Scientists in the Bronx and head of the Tremont Christian Science School.

Mrs. Mosbach is a widow. She has been for years identified with the Christian Science movement, both in the Bronx and Brooklyn. She lived in the Bedford section. When the Coroner heard that the child had died without being treated by a physician he and Dr. Curtin went at once to the house. It is a three-family house, in which live half a dozen children.

A preliminary examination, the Coroner said, tended to show that the child had died of diphtheria under the ministrations of the Christian Science healer. Mrs. Mosbach confessed it. She said that her daughter had been ill several days. When she became convinced she was "in error" she called in Mrs. Roberts. The healer visited the house several times, and so did her husband, William Roberts, who is also a Christian Scientist. The mother added that she did not see the necessity for calling in a physician.

Little Kathryn, she said, had appeared to improve, and at 2 p.m. only an hour before she died, she was at the window watching the antics of ragamuffins in the street. She said that Kathryn did not look well, but was able to walk about the house. Shortly before three o'clock the mother got her to lie down, and in a very few minutes she was dead. Mrs. Mosbach said she had had two other children, but they died in infancy and before she became a believer in Christian Science.

As soon as Coroner Shongut heard her story he closed the house and notified the Board of Health. The fact that the little girl was about the house and the probability that friends called at the house while she was ill, in the opinion of the Coroner, is sufficient to warrant every precaution being taken to prevent the spread of the disease. To-day he will hold an inquest and determine what steps to take in the case.

Leaving the Mosbach home the Coroner and his physician went to see Mrs. Roberts. She admitted that she had given the child Christian Science treatment, visiting the house three or four times. The little one, she said, slept her life away because of a "slight error." She said that Christian Science treatment had once before saved her life and that she was very amenable to the treatment.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

Wm. Coleman, formerly of Halifax, died from injuries sustained when accidentally struck with a rock while working for the C.N.R. on Perth road.

Suit was filed at Cincinnati yesterday against the National Cash Register Co. of Dayton, Ohio, charging that the company is in a conspiracy in restrait of trade.

The Kingston (Jamaica) newspapers publish reports of summary executions outside of Port au Prince, Hayti. It is added that that section of the country is in a state of great excitement.

A bomb was thrown yesterday in a mosque at Istib, in the vilayet of Kossoxo, European Turkey, killing 12 persons and wounding 20. This is the fourth outrage in Macedonia within a few days.

The International opium conference has decided that its sessions shall not be open to the public. Queen Wilhelmina has telegraphed her hopes for the success of the humanitarian work of the conference.

Rev. J. T. Corby Morris, pastor of Park street Methodist Church, Chatham, fell down his basement steps Sunday morning and broke four ribs. The reverend gentleman is still in quite a critical condition.

After serving eight days in the St. Catharines' jail upon summary conviction by J. L. Heaslip, on a charge of horse stealing, George Rogers, a 17-year-old lad, was yesterday legally released by Crown Attorney Brennan, so soon as he learned of the magistrate's act.

Alleged Murderer Arrested.

Lethbridge, Alta., Dec. 4.—Behind iron bars at the police station, with a special guard in charge, is John M. Anderson, who is believed by the Calgary police to be an accomplice in the murder of John Middleton in Calgary a few days ago. His arrest was accomplished Saturday afternoon by Detective Egan of the city police, who has been working in conjunction with Sergt. Lamb, who was acting at the time as a plain clothesman for special purposes. He was picked up on Crabb street, where it appeared he was about to begin his work of peddling jewelry.

Chicago Packers' Ask Stay.

Washington, Dec. 5.—The Supreme Court of the United States yesterday took under consideration the application of counsel for the Chicago beef packers for a stay of their trial, in the U. S. District Court at Chicago, on charges of criminally violating the Sherman anti-trust law. A stay and bail was asked until the court could pass on the constitutionality of the Sherman anti-trust law as a criminal statute.

Good COFFEE at Last

Dalton's French Drip Coffee—made in Dalton's French Drip Coffee Pot —gives all the good of the Coffee, and always good Coffee—always.

First of all, let us tell you something about coffee.

Nature lines the Coffee berry with an inner coat, just as she covers grains and nuts. This coat contains tannin and other bitter principles which, when roasted and ground with the Coffee, (as is the usual process) makes Coffee bitter and causes Indigestion, Biliousness, Headaches and other injurious effects.

Dalton's French Drip Coffee is free of this bitter coating when it reaches you, because we remove it—leaving only the heart of the berry, rich in aromatic oils that lend to good Coffee its delightful flavor and satisfying qualities. Dalton's Coffee is properly roasted. The ordinary way of roasting Coffee is to put the berries in a revolving cylinder over a coke or gas fire and slowly roast them. This, of course, does roast the Coffee but gradual heat also drives off the volatile oils which are so necessary in a full flavored Coffee.

The Dalton way is to throw the Coffee through an intensely hot flame which roasts the Coffee in half the time and retains the essential oils. Same principle that every housewife recognizes in roasting meat. Good cooks know the oven must be very hot when the roast is put in, so the meat will be cooked quickly on the outside and all juices of the meat thus retained.

After Dalton's Coffee is roasted, a strong air-blast is applied in cooling it—which eliminates any dust which might be present. In the grinding process, another air-suction removes the inner shell.

We not only give you good, wholesome, delicious Coffee—we also give you Free the means of making the Coffee as it should be made.

Coffee making is just like bread-making. You can spoil the best materials in the making. In fact, the right way to make Coffee, is just as important as having the right Coffee.

This is the Coffee Pot we are giving away.

Read how to get this handsome French Drip Coffee Pot FREE

Two 50c. tins Dalton's French Drip Coffee.

Dalton's French Drip Coffee

There is only one way, to make good Coffee—this is, by the French Drip or Percolator Process. Heretofore, good percolators have been very expensive, and even then, did not work satisfactorily. We have secured sole rights for a French Drip Coffee Pot that is easy to clean—reliable—and thoroughly satisfactory for making Dalton's French Drip Coffee as it should be made.

You will more than appreciate the difference between Dalton's French Drip Coffee, made in a Dalton French Drip Coffee Pot—and ordinary boiled Coffee. Boiled Coffee is always bitter and indigestible. And it is exceedingly expensive too, because boiling drives off the flavor and you have to use so much Coffee to get any flavor at all.

This Dalton's French Drip Coffee Pot Free with

Dalton French Drip Coffee Pot extracts all the flavor—all the deliciousness—all the fragrance and aroma—of Dalton's Coffee—and there is no bitter taste because it has been removed by the Dalton process of roasting and grinding. It is the simplest and most satisfactory Coffee pot ever invented. It is impossible to make anything but good coffee with it, if you use Dalton's French Drip Coffee to begin with.

Every day—every meal—your Coffee will be uniform—never bitter because containing no tannin—never weedy because never boiled—never too weak or too strong—but always just as you like it, year in and year out. Dalton's Coffee costs 50c. a tin and is the most economical coffee on the market because TWO pounds of Dalton's French Drip Coffee made in Dalton's French Drip Coffee Pot, will make as many cups of delightful Coffee as THREE pounds of ordinary Coffee. The MILD Coffee is a soft, full-flavored blend, noted for its fine aroma—the STRONG is a rich heavy Coffee, especially suited for after-dinner Coffee and cafe noir. You can't tell which you will prefer until you try both.

Special Introductory Offer

We feel so sure that you will find either Dalton's Mild Blend or Strong Blend French Drip Coffee just the Coffee which you have been looking for, that we have authorized your Grocer to give you one of these handsome pots (worth $1.30) absolutely Free with your first purchase of a tin each of Mild and Strong Blend. LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

BORDEN KEEPS SILENT

Will Not Discuss the Manitoba Boundary Settlement.

He and Hon. Robert Rogers Recommend Opposition to Be Patient—Holding Up of the Work on the Hudson Bay Railway Is Hotly Assailed In Debate That Occupies Most of the Afternoon.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—Hon. R. L. Bofwen and several members of his Cabinet very skilfully skated around the thin ice of the Manitoba boundary question on which they were urged to disport themselves by the request of E. M. MacDonald (Pictou).

Mr. MacDonald wanted to know what about the financial settlement, what about the control of the newly-annexed lands, what about the Manitoba school question as regarded the new territory?

The Premier declared that Mr. MacDonald would find out when the Government brought down its measures. He did not intend to discuss the question till then.

Hon. Robert Rogers said that Mr. Borden would give Manitoba the justice for which she had vainly besought the Laurier Government for seven long years. They only wanted fair play. The settlement arrived at would satisfy everybody.

The afternoon session was almost entirely devoted to a discussion of the Hudson Bay Railway.

D. B. Neely (Humboldt) in connection with a motion for all papers, etc., in the case made a vigorous attack on Hon. Frank Cochrane for the suspension of work on the contracts awarded by the late Government for the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway. He claimed that it was a violation of the pledge given by Mr. Borden during his western tour to speedily complete the railway.

James MacKay (Prince Albert) said that Laurier in 1908 promised to have trains running to Hudson Bay in four or five years, yet the first contractor only arrived on the grounds two weeks before polling day in 1911. There would be practically no delay under the present administration.

J. G. Turriff (Assiniboia) declared it was absoluately necessary to get supplies in as soon as possible if the right of way was to be cut out this winter.

Hon. Frank Cochrane affirmed that the new Government would carry out all its promises made before it came into power, and particularly this one in regard to the Hudson Bay Railway. Representations had been made to the Government that the road did not start in the right spot, that the surveys were not right, and that the first 100 miles included a deep swamp. There would be no delay more than was necessary to check up these matters. The original estimates for surveys of the N.T.R. had been more than doubled. What reason was there to suppose that this might not prove the case in regard to the Hudson Bay Railway?

Hon. Frank Oliver thought Mr. Cochrane's statement revealed a serious situation ,which would mean a delay not of a month or so, but of one, two or more years.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said his interpretation of Mr. Cochrane's words was that the route determined by the old Government was to be given up entirely. This meant no release of the order for suspension of the work would be given this winter. It would mean that everything would have to be commenced anew. The people of the west would not stand for the delay.

Hon. Fronk Cochrane explained that it was possible to check the old surveys without making new surveys.

Premier Borden declared that it was the right and duty of the new Minister of Railways to give reasonable consideration to the route and not to accept it without question as settled by the late Government.

Commission to Meet.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—T. Chase Casgrain, K.C., C. A. McGrath and H. A. Powell, K.C., the three Canadian members of the International Waterways Commission, are in Ottawa, and will hold a conference here to-day with Rt. Hon James Bryce on matters relating to organization. This will be the first meeting of the Canadian commissioners since their appointment by the Imperial Government.

It is understood that the International Commission will not only deal with disputes relating to frontier waters, but is constituted a permanent court for the settlement of any disputes between the Governments of Canada and the United States, or between the Government of one country and any citizen or citizens of the other country.

G. T. R. Wreck Near Brentwood.

Barrie, Dec. 5.—Sixteen freight cars of the northern division of the Grand Trunk Railway are to-day piled up in the ditch about one mile south of Brentwood, on the Collingwood and Meaford branch, as a result of a wreck which took place early Sunday morning. Twisted iron, splintered lumber, corn, peas and other rough freight lies scattered all about the track. The freight train was a double-header, and was in charge of Conductor McNeil and Engineers Edwards and Ambach.

James Armstrong, a married man, residing in Allandale and employed on the G. T. R., received serious internal injuries while engaged with the wrecking crew.

Extending G.T.P. Charter.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—The bill introduced by Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways, in regard to the Grand Trunk Pacific, provided that the time for completing the construction of the prairie section shall be extended for a period not exceeding one year from Dec. 1, while the time for completing the mountain section shall be extended for a period not exceeding three years.

SEVENTEEN SEATS WON

Liberals Default in Twenty-Two Ridings in Ontario.

In Six Seats the Contestants Are a Conservative and Some Other Than a Liberal—Four Ministers Are Returned Without a Fight—Toronto Man Bobs Up to Fight Whitney In Dundas.

Toronto, Dec. 5.—Seventeen Conservatives elected by acclamation and no Liberals appear for five of the Toronto seats and Dufferin. This is the net result of the nominations for the Legislature which took place throughout Ontario on Monday. There are 106 seats in the Legislature.

Of the eight seats in Toronto, Labor candidates are contesting seven and only three Liberals are making the run. The Liberals are Joseph Oliver in North Toronto (B), Dr. John Hunter in West Toronto (A), and E. Fielding in South Toronto (B).

Four Cabinet Minister are re-elected without a contest, namely: Hon. Adam Beck, London; Hon. A. J. Matheson, South Lanark; Hon. W. H. Hearst, Sault Ste. Marie; and Hon. James Duff, West Simcoe.

Sir James Whitney, the Prime Minister, does not win his seat without a fight. At the last minute, R. S. Muir, a Toronto lawyer, bobbed up at Winchester Springs, and entered the contest.

The Opposition leader, N. W. Rowell, K.C., who is running in North Oxford, is opposed by Robert Lockhart. In West Kent, George Sulman is opposed by E. Hea, who is called an Independent Liberal.

Here and there in the list will be found a Socialist candidate who perhaps regards the opportunity as favorable for the spread of the society's propaganda.

The following Conservatives are elected by acclamation: Addington, W. D. Black; Carleton, R. McElroy; East Durham, J. J. Preston; Grenville, G. Ferguson; East Hastings, Sandy Grant; North Hastings, Robt Cook; West Hastings, W. Johnston; Kingston, Dr. Ross; North Lanark, Dr. Preston; South Lanark, Hon. Mr. Matheson; Lincoln, Dr. Jessop; London, Hon. A. Beck; North Renfrew, E. A. Dunlop; South Renfrew, T. McGarry; Sault Ste. Marie, Hon. Mr. Hearst; West Simcoe, Hon. J. Duff; South Simcoe, A. Ferguson; East Victoria, R. M. Mason.

In the following ridings the Opposition is presented by others than Liberals: Dufferin, East Toronto (A), East Toronto (B), North Toronto (A), South Toronto (A), West Toronto (B).

Rockefeller Resigns.

New York, Dec. 5.—John D. Rockefeller resigned yesterday as president and director of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

John D. Archbold was elected president in Mr. Rockefeller's place.

A majority of the officers and directors who for years have been associated with Mr. Rockefeller in the control of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, also handed in their resignations. These include Wm. Rockefeller as vice-president and director; C. M. Pratt, as vice-president; Wm. G. Rockefeller, as assistant treasurer; H. C. Folger, jr., as secretary, assistant treasurer and director; E. T. Bedford, as director. Mr. Archbold, the new president, also resigned as vice-president. The board of directors is reduced in number from fourteen to nine.

Extend S. A. Script.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—It is likely that the Government will extend for another year, or to Dec. 31, 1912, the period in which possessors of South African land warrants will be permitted to take up land in the west. Representations were recently made to the Government by a delegation representing the South African Veterans' Association, and consideration was promised by Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of the Interior.

Killed by Falling Wall.

Toronto, Dec. 5.—A man believed to be G. W. Taylor, but of whom little else is known, was instantly killed beneath the walls of a frame building opposite the Gayety Theatre yesterday noon. A wooden wall was being brought down, and all others had got to a place of safety.

Germany's Naval Plans.

[illegible]ew York, Dec. 5.—A despatch from [illegible]in says: The Post yesterday ad[illegible]tes that Germany lay down five capital ships yearly, saying that Great Britain will be unable, through lack of building dock facilities to continue her policy of "two keels to one." Germany should build ships, ships, ships.

Fall May Blind Child.

Belleville, Dec. 5.—Douglass Hollen of this city, grandson of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, a few days ago fell and injured his eye to such an extent that it is feared he will be totally blind, as when a child, he accidentally lost the sight of his other eye.

ASKS FULL CONFESSION

Counsel For Erectors Mistrusts Labor's Anger.

Walter Drew of New York Sends a Letter to State Attorney Fredericks Declaring That McNamaras Are Only Tools and Urging a Complete Probe Into Explosions—A Hundred Mysteries.

New York, Dec. 5.—In behalf of the National Erectors' Association, which employed Wm. J. Burns to run down the McNamaras in the dynamite outrages, Walter Drew, as counsel, issued a statement here last night urging that the prisoners "make a frank and full confession." Mr. Drew says among other things that he doubts the sincerity of labor's demands in urging extreme punishment in the name of justice, and indicates rather that those who take that attitude have an ulterior motive. Mr. Drew issued the statement in the form of a telegram to J. B. Fredericks, district attorney at Los Angeles. The telegram is as follows:

"Captain J. D. Fredericks, district attorney, Los Angeles:—

"I note the many statements from labor leaders repudiating the McNamaras and demanding the infliction upon them of the extreme penalty of the law. As you know, I am counsel for a group of employers who have been among the chief sufferers at the hands of these men and am, perhaps, as familiar as anyone with the series of dynamite outrages in which they took part. I deem it my duty to say to you, in order that in your discretion you may advise the court:

"First—No human life has been destroyed by any other explosion traceable to these men, nor do I know of any such explosion which was apparently planned with the purpose of taking life, though in some instances a disregard of such possible consequences was shown.

"Second—The National Erectors' Association does not join in the demand for the death penalty for the younger McNamara, believing him the weak, paid tool of others and his actions the natural consequence of the doctrines taught by men who now repudiate him. We believe the punishment of both these brothers secondary in importance to the conviction of the men behind them and we sincerely hope they will take advantage of the opportunity now presented to perform a signal service for society by making full and frank confession.

"Third—Inasmuch as some of the demands for extreme punishment come from men who must have known of the guilt of the McNamaras and one of them ,at least, I know to be implicated in several outrages with them. I sincerely doubt that such demands are being made with the sole desire of aiding the ends of full and complete justice.

(Signed) "Walter Drew."

Mr. Drew reiterated last evening that he believed that between twenty and thirty labor leaders would be indicted as the result of the federal investigation now under way at Indianapolis, and that the ramifications of the inquiry would extend from Boston to the Pacific Coast. As to Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, he would say nothing other than to repeat what he had said during the day—that, so far as he knew, Mr. Gompers had no knowledge of the dynamiting and no advance information that the McNamaras were to plead guilty.

100 Explosions to Probe.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 5.—"Some persons that have apparently been so astounded by the pleas of guilty of the McNamara brothers at Los Angeles may soon be still further amazed," said a representative of one of the employers' organizations watching the federal probe here into the alleged nation-wide dynamiting conspiracy yesterday.

"No one at all informed believed the McNamaras were alone in operations that covered one hundred explosions from coast to coast and cost an enormous sum of money."

Accountants and stenographers that proceeded yesterday with examinations of records and correspondence of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, in the federal grand jury chambers, were seeking evidence, it was learned, as to the exact disposition of certain funds of the association. According to the information compiled by the National Erectors' Association one hundred explosions directed against employers of non-union iron workers occurred between August, 1905, and December, 1910, in many states and it is the details of the organization and the financing arrangements involved that the United State authorities seek to uncover.

Specifically, the federal inquiry is as to whether or not the statute governing inter-state transportation of dynamite has been violated, but since the visit to this city yesterday of Detective William J. Burns, it is intimated that prosecutions on more serious charges may follow if the federal grand jury returns indictments against men alleged to have been "higher up" in the McNamara conspiracy.

Plans further to disclose the identity of these persons were formulated by Mr. Burns and U. S. District Attorney Charles W. Miller yesterday, and to-day operatives in the employ of Burns and the National Erectors' Association are active in several quarters of the investigation here.

Tell Their Stories To-day.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 5.—James B. and John J. McNamara will appear before the federal grand jury here today and tell their stories. They will go before that body immediately after having been sentenced by Judge Walter Bordwell. This declaration was made late last night on unimpeachable authority.

The moment sentence is pronounced, according to plans completed last night, the brothers will be served with a summons to appear before the federal inquisitorial body.

The decision reached by the McNamaras is regarded here as of vast importance. If there is a gigantic dynamiting conspiracy, which is what the grand jury wants to know about, the state last night was convinced that to-day's developments will place on record the name of every man connected with it. With this information, it is believed, the work of federal grand juries here and in Indianapolis will be comparatively simple.

TROUBLE OVER LOAN.

Chinese Prime Minister Has a Bad Tangle to Deal With.

Pekin, Dec. 5.—Premier Yuan Shi Kai is having great difficulty with the board of finance. He appointed a president to the board, who declined to serve. The vice-president left Pekin after informing his friends that the situation was hopeless. The acting president has now asked for a leave of absence on the ground of illness, but really because he was summoned before the National Assembly.

Considerable of a sensation has been caused by the discovery that the National Assembly, the Chinese Foreign Board and the board of finance hold three different texts of the $30,000,000 loan agreement, negotiated by Baron Cottu in behalf of a Franco-Belgian syndicate. This was discovered, it was said, when a representative of the Chinese Foreign Board appeared before the National Assembly in secret session. It is on this loan that China's future form of government practically depends.

A despatch from Tien Tsin says that the Chilli provincial assembly has telegraphed to the French Government protesting against the Cottu loan and declaring that the National Assembly's action with respect to this loan is illegal.

A message has also been sent to Pekin declaring that the Chilli assembly had decided to withdraw its representatives from the National Assembly which now musters few beyond the appointees of the throne. Sessions of the National House are being held with about one-third the total members in attendance.

Consular advices say that the three days' armistice at Wuchang terminates to-morrow morning, but that it probably will be renewed. Delegates from the rebel provinces are arriving at Wuchang and Yuan Shi Kai's representatives are already there.

Ottawa's Water Troubles.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—To carry out the $2,400,000 plan to supply Ottawa with water from McGregor Lake a dam would have to be built at the Blanche River, in Quebec. Yesterday, Dr. H. Amy of the Geological Survey, one of the most eminent geoligtss in Canada, says it would not be safe to do this, that the ground formation at McGregor Lake is of clay, and that both the landslides at the Blanche River and at Notre Dame de la Salle, where 32 lost their lives some years ago, were caused by damming up waters, thus causing the land to slide.

Four Millions In Berlin.

Berlin, Dec. 5.—The council of the "Four million" city of Greater Berlin, whose formation was approved by the Prussian Diet on May 16 last, held its first meeting yesterday. Plans were discussed for the future development of the city, which now includes all the suburban municipalities, making Berlin the third largest city of the world, ranking after London and New York. The names of candidates for the post of director of the council were also considered. He will be the executive head, with the direction of all municipal affairs.

GOLDEN WEDDING IN AMELIASBURG

Mr. and Mrs. Russell of Rednerville Celebrate the 50th Anniversary of their Marriage

RUSSELL—BRICKMAN: Married, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Elizah Babcock, in the township of Ameliasburg, P. E. Co., on the 1st day of December, 1861, by the Rev. John Black, George F. B. Russell, son of John Russell, Esq., to Catherine A. Brickman, daughter of Rynard Brickman, Esq., all of the same place." Fifty yeasr ago last Friday the above announcement was made among the friends and acquaintances of the newly married young couple ad the usual congratulations were extended to them for a long and happy married life. On Friday, Dec. 1st, 1911, the semi-centennial of the above marriage having been completed, the family of the happy couple determined to celebrate the occasion by inviting a few friends to join them in commemoration of the event. During the long term of their married life Mr. and Mrs. Russell have resided in the village of Rednerville and to-day only two persons remain who lived in the village at the time of their marriage. Mrs. Russell had almost fully recovered from a serious illness of some months ago and her family naturally looked forward to the Golden Anniversary of their parents' marriage with more than the usual amount of interest. Unostentations in every particular, but a quiet simple gathering of an "unbroken family" surrounded by a few personal friends composed a most happy and enjoyable company.

Mr. Stanley S. Russell, Superintendent of Car Service, Central Vermont Ry., St. Albans, Vt., came with his wife and daughter to cheer the hearts of his father and mother.

Mr. Fred W. B. Russell, a popular and successful farmer in Ameliasburg, accompanied by his wife, omitted nothing to make the affair a success.

John W. Russell, Assistant Manager in connection with the H. D. Taylor Hardware Co., of Buffalo, was present.

W. A. Russell, another brother and Chief Clerk in the Freight Department, G. T. P., of Winnipeg, was also in attendance.

The only daughter, Mrs. John Wilson, (Emily) and her husband, of Rawdon, completed an unbroken family circle, which many fathers and mothers are not permitted to enjoy the privilege of assembling together after 50 years of married life.

All the care and responsibility in connection with the preparation of a most excellent dinner ad accommodation of guests, etc., was looked after by the family, and a few intimate friends, and we question whether such system was observed 50 years ago.

The tables were nicely arranged and seated at the family table were the following: Mr. and Mrs. G. F. B. Russell, father and mother; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Russell, and daughter, Catherine; Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Russell, Mr. John Russell, Mr. W. A. Russell, Mr. Wm. A. Brickman, only surviving brother of the bride; Mrs. Wellington Russell, widow of deceased brother, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Russell, brother of the groom. This constituted the family, and a happier crowd would have been hard to find.

The guests' table was made up of the following: Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Chislett; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Vanvalkenberger, and daughter, who came from Buffalo, N. Y., to be present; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Anderson; Miss Aileen McKeown, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, Hillier; Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Rose, Mr. and Mrs. John Hall, Mrs. Mary Adams, and son Embury; Mrs. W. H. Brickman, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Grey and Miss Jessie Russell, of Roblin, Manitoba, the fourteen year old daughter of Lewis Brickman, half-brother of the groom, who was so anxious to have his family represented at his brother's golden wedding that he despatched his accomplished daughter, unaccompanied, to be present on the occasion, which she succeeded in doing the day before without any mishap, and a knowledge of travelling one would scarcely look for in one of her years. It is needless to say that Miss Jessie was the "Belle of the Ball" on this occasion.

Just before the company broke up in the afternoon, a nicely worded address was read to Mr. and Mrs. Russell by W. E. Anderson on behalf of the guests, expressing their thanks and appreciation for being present, also tendering congratulations to the happy couple upon being spared to celebrate the 50th anniversary of their marriage and assemble with their family unbroken in number. A kindly reference was made to the remarkable success of the sons in their various occupations and their strong attachment to the old home and their deep affection for father and mother, and the hope that the family might live for many years to enjoy each other's company.

Mr. Stanley Russell made a most feeling reply on behalf of his father and mother and the other members of the family. A number of costly and most beautiful presents, together with a large sum of "Gold Coin" will remind Mr. and Mrs. Russell of the kindly feelings and good wishes their friends upon that occasion entertained towards them. A kindness which Mr. and Mrs. Russell appreciated very much was the receipt the day before of a box of choice confectionery from the hand of Mr. Harry Chislett, of Winnipeg. The gathering broke up with the singing of "God be with you till we meet again."

SECOND DIVIDEND BY YORK LOAN COMPANY

Twenty-five Per Cent. More Sent Out—Checks Amounted to $741,000.

The second York Loan dividead of twenty-five per cent. has been sent out to the shareholders when 102,000 letters containing checks amounting to $741,000 were postal.

"Will there be any more coming to the shareholders?" was asked of Mr. Harrington, the liquidator.

"Yes," said he, "but how much and when it will go out, I cannot say There stil remains about forty thousand dollars' worth of property to be sold. Our greatest trouble is that there are ten thousand shareholders who have not yet sent in their pass books and certificates. The amount of the two dividends of twenty-five per cent. each is waiting for them, and as soon as they send in their books it will be sent out. Some of the shareholders destroyed their books and papers, thinking they were worthless. If, however, they will send in particulars, and we find they are on our books, we shall be pleased to remit the money to which they are entitled."

During the month of October there were seventy-nine arrivals and seventy-eight departures.

This is a splendid record for this season of the year.

"Say, Doctor, what you suppose ails me, anyway?

"Tea? Why, I've drank it 20 years, say Doc, quit chaffin', I'm feeling bad.

"Now there goes another of those infernal twists in my right side.

"Tea congests the liver, you say? So I've got to quit. Well, what do you know about this Postum?

(A month later) "Mornin' Doc, yes feeling fine, thanks. Say, you did give me a scare about my liver, but it was all true, I reckon.

"When I quit the tea and went on with Postum, I began to feel better in two days and now I've quit the army of tea cranks for good.

"Sure, I belong to the Postum army, and know where my comfort is."

WOMEN ADVOCATE POLICE DUTIES

Each candidate for the Provincial Legislature has been sent a copy of the platform adopted by the Toronto Local Council of Women, an organization comprising forty societies and a membership of 5,000 women. The platform recommends amongst others the following measures:

Separate trials for women in the police courts.

Women should be eligible to serve on juries, and as magistrates and justices of the peace.

Women physicians to conduct examinations in case of assaults and rape.

A branch of police women to deal with prostitutes and disorderly houses.

Provincial Juvenile Courts.

The council also recommends the compulsory establishment of juvenile courts in all parts of the Province.

A Provincial system of pensions for destitute minors.

Forbidding the employment of children under fourteen years of age after eight p.m. in trades and conditions not covered by the factory acts.

Separate Prison Farms.

The establishment of prison farms for women with proper opportunities for training in farming and in dairy and domestic training and the raising of vegetables, fruit and poultry.

Such prison farm to be entirely separate and removed from any prison farm for men.

All convictions to the Mercer Reformatory to be made uniformly for two years less one day.

Separate classes for defective children should be made compulsory in connection with public schools.

Medical inspection of school children should be extended to the rural districts of Ontario, and be made compulsory.

Women should be directly represented on the Advisory Technical Education Committee in the City of Toronto.

Homestead Rights for Women.

The right to hold homesteads in Ontario should be granted to women on the same terms as men.

That the Provincial franchise be extended to the women of Ontario of and above the age of twenty-one, who are British subjects, and who have either been born in this Dominion or have become duly naturalized.

NAPOLEON'S GHOST

The "Ugliest Woman in Paris" Tells of a Strange Apparition

Mlle. Polaire, long known as "the ugliest woman in Paris" and "the actress with the smallest waist," now proudly declares that since she has become the owner of a famous old mansion in the aristocratic Faubourg St. Germain, she has been honored by a visit of the spirit of the great Napolean, who first met Josephine Beauharnais within the walls of the mansion. Mlle. Palaire relates that towards sunset, a few weeks ago, she was reclining on a couch in her drawing-room. "Suddenly I became aware," she says, "that a man was approaching me in the half light. I looked at him steadily, with emotion but without fear. He was dressed in a strange, old-fashioned, military uniform. As I scrutinized him I recognized the features of the great Napoleon, as they have been made familiar to me by David's portrait of the Emperor as a youth. As the Emperor appeared to me, he was as beautiful as a young Greek god, full of love and fire. It is thus that he must have appeared at the time of his courtship with Josephine, on the eve of the second glorious campaign in Italy. As I looked at him I was thrilled with joy. I felt that I was in the presence of the greatest man that ever lived. His face was thin, with the pure outline of a Greek. His great deep, dark eyes radiated love, passion, world-embracing ambition. His beautiful face seemed to be appealing for love. He pressed his hands together, and bent forward, as if imploring me, but without saying a word. Three times the same apparition presented itself to me at the same hour and place. Was he brought back by memories of Josephine, or did he come to see me? I can hardly tell."

A French paper suggests that Mlle. Polaire try the cure.

CONSUMPTION OF PULPWOOD 1910

Official Statistics of the Trade—Value of the Output is Very Large

Nearly six hundred thousand cords of wood was ground into wood pulp by fifty-one pulp mills operating throughout Canada during 1910. Statistics compiled by the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior show that the total value of this wood was three million, five hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars, and that it was converted into four hundred and seventy-five thousand tons of pulp. Quebec is the premier pulpwood province of Canada because of its extensive spruce and balsam forests suitable for pulpwood. The twenty-five pulp mills in Quebec reported the consumption of fifty-seven per cent. of the total for Canada, or twenty-three thousand cords more than in 1909. Ontario likewise increased the amount consumed in its fifteen mills by over twenty thousand codrs and used over one-third of the total consumption, forming with Quebec ninety-two per cent. of the total. In 1910 the amount used was only 2 per cent. of the total. The mills of New Brunswick consumed nearly thirty thousand cords. New Brunswick used barely one-fifth as much as in 1909, contributing in that year fifteen per cent. of the total. In 1910 the amount used was only two per cent. of the total, due chiefly to the closing of one large plant. The average value of pulpwood in 1910 was six dollars per cord, and Quebec was the one province in which the price was less in 1910 than in 1909. The price in this province fell off thirty-five cents to five dollars and a half per cord. The highest price paid was in Ontario where it averaged seven dollars, while pulpwood from Nova Scotia at four dollars and sixty cents per cord was the cheapest.

SAFE FROM TYPHOID

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" THE BEST PREVENTATIVE

There is practically no danger of Typhoid Fever as long as you keep the bowels regular with "Fruit-a-tives."

Typhoid is an inflammation of the bowels, due to a germ. This germ enters the body in milk, water or food. If the bowels are constipated, the germ remains in the body long enough to attack the delicate lining and thus Typhoid begins.

"Fruit-a-tives" acts directly on the liver, kidneys and skin, and cleans the system of all impurities. "Fruit-a-tives" will not cure Typhoid—but it will cure Constipation, assist Digestion and tone up the system—thus preventing Typhoid.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

THE DANDRUFF GERM

AND THE GUINEA PIG.

When Drs. Lasser and Bishop made a pomade by mixing scales of dandruff and vaseline, which they afterwards rubbed on a guinea pig, they were contributing to science more than knew. The application of the salve caused the pig to lose its hair and become bald.

This was merely one of the preliminary steps which made possible the discovery of Newbro's Herpicide. Ate restablishing beyond question the existence of the dandruff germ, a remedy was needed to kill this parasite. There was nothing which would do this until Newbro's Herpicide was placed upon the market. Being the first recognized remedy for dandruff, it has long been called the "original remedy." Herpicide kills the germ, prevents falling hair and stops itching of the scalp. Don't take a substitute; you can always get the genuine article.

Herpicide is for sale at drug stores. Applications may be obtained at good barber shops.

One dollar size bottles are guaranteed.

Send 10c. in postage or silver for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.—Doyle's Drug Store, special agents.

LICENSE INSPECTORSHIP

Mr. A. R. Walker was officially notified by the Provincial Government yesterday that he has been appointed temporary License Inspector in place of his father, deceased.

SPENT NIGHT IN A WELL.

A horse owned by Mr. Leo Macklam, near Brighton, fell down a twenty foot well, and when rescued the following morning, uninjured excepting for a few scratches. An improvised derrick was used to hoist the animal.

PAID THE PENALTY.

Before Magistrate Masson yesterday afternoon a party named George Taylor was convicted of disorderly conduct on the street. A fine of $3 and $1.50 costs was imposed, which the accused paid.

BORNE TO THE GRAVE.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Thomas Pigden took place yesterday afternoon from the family residence, Ann Street. At the house the burial service of the Anglican Church was conducted by the Rev. R. C. Blagrave, rector of Christ Church. Interment took place at Belleville cemetery. The bearers were friends of the family.

LEE WAS ACQUITTED.

Yesterday afternoon the charge against Harry Lee, a Chinaman, of wounding a man named Nash, was disposed of. The accused was acquitted, as it was not proved that the celestial struck Nash and cut his head, as was alleged. The trouble occurred on Monday night in the Chinaman's restaurant. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown and Mr. J. F. Wills appeared for the accused.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

At the regular meeting of Oxford Lodge Sons of England last night the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Past President—Thos. W. Rainbird
President—H. A. Lennox.
Vice-Pres.—A. G. Coe.
Secretary—John Fenn.
Treasurer—F. D. Ford.
Chaplain—Geo. Evans.
1st Committeeman—R. G. H. Barlow
2nd Committeeman—J. L. Simpson.
3rd Committeeman—A. Jubb.
4th Committeeman—W. Stapley.
Inside Guard—Thos. Waymark.
Outside Guard—Jas. Riggs.
Surgeon—Dr. E. O. Platt.
Asst. Secretary—Geo. Edwards.
Grand Lodge Delegate—Geo. Edwards.
Auditors—Geo. Edwards, Dr. Tracy, W. J. Ridley.
Trustees—Robt. Oliphant, Geo. Edwards, Jas. Riggs.

THE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.

A delightful and profitable hour was spent last night by the members of the Women's Institute at the regular meeting, when Miss McGie gave an interesting talk on wholesome and dainty Christmas sweets for children, pointing out what to avoid, what to choose, and why, and how to make a number of delicious sweetmeats. She will be welcomed again by the members. Miss Mackay, in her usual humorous and pointed style, gave her experiences with children. The cigarette was one of the greatest foes with which the teacher had to contend in developing the child mind. She knew of one boy who could smoke five packets of cigarettes a day, and, what was to the discredit of our city, could get them to smoke. But the worst boy, at heart worshipped his mother and the remedy lay in the mother's hands. They could influence public men and shape public opinion. Motherhood had wonderful opportunities and compensations.

SIR GILBERT COMING LATER.

Sir Gilbert Parker has been compelled to cancel his engagement. A sudden indisposition is given as his reason for the change in plans. Sir Gilbert will go to the southern states until February, when he will return to Canada, and address several Canadian clubs, including Kingston, it is hoped.—Whig.

PREMIER CONGRATULATES.

On his return to Toronto from his nomination in Dundas County yesterday the Prime Minister of Ontario sent the following telegram to the member-elect for West Hastings:

"J. W. Johnson, Belleville, Ont.

"I congratulate you heartily on your election yesterday.

"J. P. WHITNEY."

DESERTED HIS POST.

Yesterday afternoon Sergt. Harmon apprehended Clive Bryant, who had deserted while on picket duty at Kingston. Bryant was attached to B. Battery of the Royal Canadian Artillery and evidently desired to be free, and left without permission. The military authorities at Kingston were notified of Bryant's apprehension and a corporal came up last evening and escorted the deserter back to the Limestone City.

OFFICIAL VISIT.

Mr. F. D. Diamond, of this city, D.D.G.M. of the Masonic fraternity, last evening paid an official visit to Deseronto Lodge. He was accompanied by a number of the brethren of this city. After the business of the lodge had been concluded, a banquet was held. The D.D.G.M. was most cordially received. After supper had been partaken of, speeches and songs were given by a number of those present. The proceedings were of a most pleasing nature.

POTATO GROWERS.

A co-operative Potato Growers' Association was organized on the evening of Nov. 30th at a meeting of the L'Amable Farmers' Club. The members have already subscribed for 125 bushels of one variety of potatoes to be planted in that section next year. Other branches of this Association will be formed throughout the county this winter in all likelihood. For full particulars and information apply to the Department of Agriculture, Stirling.

SIDNEY CONSERVATIVES.

A largely attended meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association of the Township of Sidney was held on Tuesday, the 5th inst., at Sidney Town Hall. Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., was present and spoke at some length on the political topics of the time, and Mr. Chas. Ketcheson, who retired from the presidency of the Association after two years of active and most efficient service, made an excellent speech, in which he indicated how this county could be benefited by legislation. A resolution expressing confidence in the local representatives in the Dominion and Ontario Parliaments and in the Borden and Whitney Governments was adopted amid much enthusiasm. Mr. John Hess was elected President in succession to Mr. Ketcheson and Dr. Malone was re-elected Secretary, which office he has filled in a most capable manner. A copy of the resolution and the list of officers will be published in a subsequent issue.

Damage amounting to $30,000 has been done to the engineering departments of Mossend Iron and Steel Works, Bellshill.

AN OLD MISER'S ESTATE VANISHES

Left $50,000 on Paper, but it Included Ontario Bank Stock and Securities

MONTREAL, Dec. 5.—A legacy of thousands left by a miser turned into a deficit by the failure of the Ontario Bank, was the disclosure to-day when the motion to appoint a curator in the case of the late Neil Brodie was up.

He had lived and died a miser, reputed enormously wealthy. When he died of starvation, his estate of $50,000 included 125 shares of the Ontario Bank, worth then about $15,000, also bought on margin. All is wiped out, and there is a deficit.

Brodie was an Auld Kirk minister, and a leader among the Gaelic people of the Maritime Provinces, till he came to Montreal and engaged in stock margining. The heir was a niece in Scotland, who, when she heard of the miserly way in which the supposed $50,000 had been gathered, renounced all claim on the estate.

VALUABLE HORSE [illegible]ANGLED

George Cornell, of Lyn, a well known breeder of shire horses, is mourning the loss of an animal for which a few days ago he refused an offer of $800. On Thursday night the animal was tied in a stable along with another horse and next morning Mr. Cornell found it dead through strangulation. Mr. Cornell placed a value of $1,000 on the horse.

Great Hurricane Sweeps the Caribbean—Three Steamers are Reported Missing

(Intelligencer Special.)

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 6.—Three United Fruit Co. steamers, having on board six hundred members of the American Bankers' Association with their families, have been caught in a hurricane which swept the Caribbean Sea last night. The vessels are all equipped with wireless outfits, but they cannot be located, and no communication has been received from them.

ANXIETY FOR ROYALTY

(Intelligencer Special.)

PEKIN, China, Dec. 6.—Prince Chun, the Regent, has been deposed and two guardians appointed for the boy Emperor.

STEAMERS ARE SAFE

(Intelligencer Special.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Wireless messages received here report the three missing steamers of the United Fruit Co. to have safely weathered the hurricane.

ADMITTED TO BAIL

(Intelligencer Special.)

TORONTO, Dec. 6.— Messrs. McPherson, Bennett and Adamson, the three men accused of robbing the C. P.R., were to-day admitted to bail of a thousand dollars each and were remanded for a week.

G. P. GRAHAM FINDS A SEAT

RENFREW, Ont., Dec. 5.—The re-election of T. W. McGarry by acclamation in South Renfrew means the return of Hon. Geo. P. Graham to the Commons via the same route, owing to the fact that W. G. Mohr, of Ottawa, who was to have run against Mr. McGarry as an independent Liberal, changed his mind at the last moment.

Mr. Mohr's exit was as unexpected and sudden as his first intentions some ten days ago to oppose Mr. McGarry at the polls on December 11.

The individual members of the two parties got together a few weeks ago and an arrangement was reached whereby Hon. Geo. P. Graham was to take Mr. Low's seat in the Commons by acclamation and Mrs. McGarry was to enter the Provincial Legislature again unopposed. Mr. Mohr, himself, signed this agreement. Then the rumor came down from the upper portion of the riding that the Conservative members would have to contest the riding. Mr. Mohr sent requisition papers down to Arnprior and to all intents was ready for a campaign. The whole affair came to a head yesterday with the foregoing results.

Mr. McGarry pointed out after the nomination that it was chiefly to purify election contests in this riding that such an agreement was made three weeks ago whereby he was to be returned by acclamation and Hon. Geo. P. Graham was to be allowed the Dominion representation of this riding in the same way. He stated that the Conservatives had lived up to the agreement absolutely and were prepared to carry it out to the letter.

LATEST NEWS OF THE RAILWAYS

C. P. R. to Build New Line to Toronto Paralleling Lake Shore

It now begins to look as though the Canadian Pacific Railway would shortly begin work on its proposed new line from Montreal to Toronto, via the Lake Shore route. The route of the new line, which has been under consideration for many years has been filed with the Railway Commission, and it only waits for their approval for work to be started. Canadian Pacific officials state that the route, which has been surveyed, is a very advantageous one. Compared to the grade on the present line, the new route is particularly good, as the grade is only a 4-10 one. It is also a trifle shorter than the present route. The projected new line leaves the present Canadian Pacific Railway main line at Glen Tay, just west of Perth, about fifteen miles from Smith's Falls. This part of the main line of the C. P. R. has recently been double-tracked, which would give the new line double track from there to Montreal, a distance of 144 miles. Leaving Glen Tay, the proposed line travels southwesterly to Belleville. There it strikes almost due west for a few miles and then follows the shore of Lake Ontario to Toronto. It is about two hundred miles from Glen Tay to Toronto by the route surveyed, and it is expected that if the new line is constructed it will enable the Canadian Pacific to considerably lower the time for its Toronto-Montreal service.

Last week a party of railway officials went over the Montreal & Southern Counties Railway and the Montreal & Province Line, for an inspection, with a view to the electrification of the latter, and making it a part of the Southern Counties road. In addition to President E. H. Fitzhugh, and some of his staff, the party included Mr. Powell, vice-president and general manager of the Montreal & Southern Counties, and Mr. Bion J. Arnold, of Chicago. Mr. Arnold is one of the leading electrical engineers of America. He is ex-president of the Society of Engineers, is now at the head of a Chicago street railway company, and it was his firm that looked after the electrification of the St. Clair tunnel for the Grand Trunk, which has been so successful. Returning to Montreal there was a conference in Mr. Fitzhugh's office, after which the president directed Mr. Arnold to make a report upon the matter of the electrification of the Montreal & Province Line, which is a part of the Central Vermont System, leaving the main line at St. Lambert. It will be remembered that the Southern Counties road has a proposition pending before the city for the extension of that system via Bonaventure Station and Dominion Square to Metcalfe and St. Catherine streets. With the people of the seventeen counties which this road will serve petitioning for this extension and the business men of Montreal favoring the scheme, this becomes one of the most important matters now pending before the Board of Control.

A prominent member of one of the large wholesale dry goods houses of Montreal, who has just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast, including Vancouver and San Francisco, writes the Grand Trunk as follows: "On our trip to the Pacific Coast and return we travelled over ten different railways, making use of the dining car service on each, and would like you to know that we did not find in any case that the service on the dining cars of other lines was superior to the Grand Trunk Railway, and in many cases it was very much inferior. I take this opportunity of informing you as to what we think of the service you are giving on our great Canadian Railway."

Change of Time in Kingston-Cape Vincent Steamer Service.

Commencing Monday, December 11, the Cape Vincent steamer will leave Kingston at 1.30 p.m., and will arrive at Kingston at 10.45 a.m. daily except Sunday. This is a material change from the timetable under which the steamer has been operated, and will result in improved through service. Connections will be made, as usual, with the New York Central Railroad at Cape Vincent.

CURRENT COMMENT

Four months ago Premier Laurier did not think of defeat. Now he thinks of nothing else.—Brockville Times.

Will our contemporaries please note that the name of the M. P. P. for East Hastings is Sandy, not Alexander, Grant. He was christened "Sandy."

A Vancouver husband offers $10,000 for the authorship of a malicious story directed against himself and his wife, which shows that the story rates for fiction are still away ahead of those for truth.—Hamilton Spectator.

The French Government expects to get from sixteen to twenty cents each for a million or so of obsolete rifles and carbines, which cost from sixteen to twenty dollars each. The waste of preparation for war is only second to the waste of war itself, so far as money is concerned.—Montreal Gazette.

A greater optimist than that fellow who wakened up in Hades with the remark "No more worry over coal bills," has at last been discovered. He is the editor of that Western Ontario paper which recently remarked "On Dec. 11th the Liberals will sweep the province clean from Prescott to Windsor and from Pelee Island to the Rocky fastnesses of the Lake of the Woods."—Ottawa Journal.

This from the Kingston Whig (Grit). Thirty odd years in office at Toronto, and fifteen years at Ottawa have spoiled the party. They have been too long at ease. The old heads are gone, or have become silent in office. Those that remain have been too long in the sunshine of power. They have become unfit for the strenuous life. Hence when a serious reverse comes they are content to rest and glorify the past.

Eighteen ministerial supporters were returned unopposed at Monday's nominations in connection with the election to the Ontario Legislature. This represents 18 per cent. of the total membership of 106. When the dissolution of the membership was announced, it was remarked by an Opposition journal that for the first time in forty years the Liberal party of the province would have to make its fight without the aid of a Liberal Government in power either at Ottawa or Toronto. Perhaps this situation is what took the heart out of the party. It seems to be gone.—Montreal Gazette.

This from The Ontario (Grit). It looks like a tall proposition to expect time to make any change in the Tory party in Belleville or the County of Hastings. The party is now so preponderant, so overwhelmingly confident, so spotlessly pure, so animated by lofty ideals, that it would look almost like an electoral crime to hint that a change might be better. The Liberal party held office for thirty-three years continuously in Ontario, and that over-long period of power was one of the worst things that ever happened to the Liberal party. It would have been vastly better for the party, had some Whitney arisen ten years sooner and encompassed their defeat.

A feeling of distrust of the Franco-German convention respecting Morocco appears to be growing in France. It is pointed out that if the treaty of two years ago, in which Germany recognized certain French rights in Morocco was of no avail in preventing the developments of the recent trouble, which narrowly missed resulting in war, there is no reason to expect that the new treaty will be any more forceful. There is something to this argument, though it should be remembered that Germany receives through this treaty certain territory which she coveted. However, if Germany wants to go to war with France, she will find a pretext of one kind or another.

JACK JOHNSON IS A MASON NOW

The Black Pugilist Admitted to the Great Secret Body in Scotland

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Representatives of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Free Masons for Forfarshire have held an enquiry, on the instructions of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, into the circumstances attending the initiation of Jack Johnson as a member of the Forfar and Kincardine Lodge of Dundee. The Grand Lodge specified eight interrogations to which they wished replies.

At the enquiry the Right Worshipful Master of the Fife and Kincardine Lodge admitted that neither the proposer nor the seconder of Johnson knew him personally. It appeared that his initiation was proceeded with on the recommendation of Brother McLagan, of Newcastle, who is connected with the theatrical profession. Brother McLagan professed to be well acquainted with Johnson, and supplied particulars which the proposer and seconder and other officials of the Dundee Lodge regarded as satisfactory. At the request of McLagan the sudden change of the hour of meeting was made.

The Right Worshipful Master said that on changing the hour he went around the town in a taxicab with the view of insuring the presence of as many members as possible.

All the other regulations are stated to have been complied with, and Johnson made the necessary declarations.

A letter was submitted from a colonel in the British army who stated that he had travelled to this country with Johnson, and found him a "genial, kindly gentleman, entirely worthy of being admitted to Freemasonry."

The Provincial Grand Lodge will now report to the Grand Lodge, which will decide as to future procedure.

MURDERER CUMMINS HAD A LONG WAIT

MONTREAL, Dec. 5.—While a fruitless search was made for his missing disposition papers, which had been lost or misplaced, John Cummins, self-confessed slayer of his wife, was forced to stand in court this morning for an hour and fifteen minutes, facing the curious scrutiny of a crowd of spectators.

The care-free and hardened attitude which marked his early incarceration after shooting his wife down on the street, is entirely gone, the small blue eyes of the pale and drawn-faced man were shifty and embarrassed this morning. He paled and flushed as scores of eyes studied his face.

After more than an hour's search, the missing papers could not be located, and Cummins had to be taken back to his cell until a new set can be made out. He will not come up again until Thursday.

That Cummins felt his position more keenly by far than on his previous visit to court was plainly evident. At no time did his glance linger more than a few seconds on any object, moving rapidly from one face to another. His face, white and drawn upon entering court, was flushed on leaving.

Mr. Gregor Barclay, counsel for Cummins, made several attempts to have his client heard, the court in the meantime searching unsuccessfully for the missing papers. Failing to locate them, Judge Bazin fixed Thursday, Dec. 7th, for his appearance.

CLERICS BARRED FROM FRANCHISE

Had Taken Religious Vows of Perpetual Poverty

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—Judgment was rendered to-day by Mr. Justice Chrabonneau to the effect that members of a religious order, having taken vows of perpetual poverty and obedience, were disqualified from making use of the electoral franchise, and the names of sixteen person, attached to the Order of the Clerics of St. Victor, engaged in teaching at the Rigaud Roman Catholic College, must be struck from the electoral lists of that district. The action to have the names taken from the lists was brought by an elector of the municipality of Rigaud.

The Court, in giving his decision, said that, despite the qualifications of the sixteen clerics to vote owing to their culture and education, the law must be maintained, and that they must be disqualified on the grounds of earning capacity , asthey had no income.

He said that in taking the vows of the order they had given up all hope of earthly reward to devote themselves wholly and solely to the work of the Creator in particular and all humanity in general, and ruled that their vows of perpetual poverty clearly showed that they had not the income necessary to qualify for the franchise.

The defence pointed out that the sixteen clerics involved received board, lodging, clothing, etc., and that this was fully worth the $300 necessary to qualify; but the Court considered that this could not be looked upon as remuneration for services.

The case establishes a precedent in Quebec jurisprudence and may cause actions throughout the province.

WATER POWERS ACQUIRED

To be Used in Connection with Electrification of C. P. R.

In connection with the probable ultimate electrification of a portion of its line in the Rocky Mountains, the Canadian Pacific Railway acquired a water power on the Adams River, which flows out of Adasm Lake, and experts have reported that it is capaable of developing a hundred thousand horse-power at two different points between the lake and its confluence with the South Thompson. It is in a heavily timbered country where extensive lumbering operations are now being carried on.

The late Mr. John Wm. Thomson, Elgin, left, in addition to real estate, personal assets valued at $127,110.

SHOULD WOMEN VOTE

No one who keeps posted on the great work being done by women in professional and business life, and, most important of all, in the American home, can for a moment doubt that they would vote wisely.

If they would only guard their own health as carefully as they do their children's they could accomplish even more.

One woman who knows how necessary it is to stay well is Mrs. Harman of North Birmingham, Ala. Her daughter, Miss Nona, says in a letter: "We have used Vinol in our family for four years. Whenever my mother gets a bad cold or feels run-down she always uses Vinol and it makes her well again. She says Vinol gives her strength and builds her up."

This delicious cod liver and iron remedy without oil is so certain to cure up chronic coughs, and build up weak, run-down, sickly people of all ages, that we sell it under a positive promise to give back your money if Vinol does not satisfy you. Try Vinol.—Red Cross Drug Store, J. S. McKeown, Belleville, Ont.

CHEAPER CUTS OF MEAT

Butchers should endeavor to correct the impression of customers that only the high-priced meats are valuable as food. On the contrary, the cheaper cuts are often more highly flavored and fully as nutritious.

The chuck is one of the cheapest portions of the beef, but when cooked slowly in a small amount of water, either with or without vegetables for seasoning, is a most excellent dish.

In stewing meat, if too high a temperature is used, it will toughen the fibre. Another mistake is to overcook the meat until it falls to shreds. The skirt steak sells for 2 to 3 cents a pound less than the others, but if properly cooked is just as good. Lay the steak on a meat board and score it well with a chopping knife. Then dredge with flour and put it into a smoking hot frying pan that has been greased enough to keep the meat from sticking to it. When well seared over on both sides, pour over it a little boiling water and allow it to simmer slowly for two hours. Season to suit the taste. A bit of carrot or onion or bay leaf and a little vinegar to soften the fibre will add to the flavor of the meat.

First British Woman to Fly

The distinction of being the first woman of purely British nationality to fly belongs to Miss Gertrude Bacon, daughter of the famous aeronaut who was really one [illegible] pioneers of ballooning. Miss [illegible] went up with Mr. Sommer in a [illegible]man biplane during the Rheims aviation meeting of 1909, and in her book, "How Men Fly," which has recently been published, she provided a fascinating narrative of the sensations of flying. She quotes the unfortunate Mr. Rolls as saying that his "first impression of flying was like trying to drive a motor-car which was skidding in all directions at once."

In one week lately between 30,000 and 40,000 sheep and 20,000 cattle were sold in Stirling marts.

THE Paternoster Ruby

BY CHARLES EDMOND WALK

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press Limited, Toronto.

My attention was directed to Maillot when one of the jurors began interrogating him.

"While Mr. Burke was absent," inquired the juror, "did you see the ruby?" His reference was to Burke's absence when he went to notify the police of the crime.

"I did not," was the reply. "I saw it no more after Mr. Page returned it to the jewel-case; I never even thought of it during the time of which you speak."

"Were you near the concealed safe?"

"Yes, sir—although at the time I didn't know that the open trap-door in the closet led to a safe. I saw that the small cavity was empty, and that was all I did observe about it."

"When did you first learn about the safe?"

"When Burke showed it to Mr. Swift yesterday morning."

"Why, then, in your testimony, did you say the deceased went to the safe after the ruby for the purpose of showing it to you?"

Maillot frowned and considered a moment.

"I did not make the assertion from knowledge of the act co-existent with the performance of the act itself," said Maillot at length, with a great show of deliberation. A man can't be utterly hardened who can quiz another at such a time. "I advanced it as the most likely theory by which to account for all of his actions during the time I waited here in the library, explaining the antecedent occurence with knowledge subsequently acquired. Do I make myself perfectly clear?"

The inquisitive juror stared a moment, then subsided. Dr. De Breen turned to me with a broad grin.

"That all?" he whispered.

I nodded. "Let the axe fall; I'm curious to see what effect it will have."

Everybody's attention was abruptly diverted by Genevieve Cooper. Without a word to any one, she rose precipitately, glided noiselessly across the room to the alcove, and disappeared behind the curtains. Blank bewilderment brought me to my feet. What could have impelled her to this extraordinary move at such a critical stage? I started to follow her, but at that very instant the foreman started to announce the verdict.

Silence fell instantly. Maillot sat plucking aimlessly at the margin of a newspaper, the tiny fragments floating unheeded to the floor; while Miss Fluette, strikingly handsome with her transparent complexion, her red-brown hair, and clear hazel eyes, sat imperiously beside him, alone in her assurance as to the outcome.

The young man seemed to have forgotten her presence, so deep was his abstraction. In a little while he pushed the paper on one side, and began feeling idly in a pocket of his vest. His mood was distrait, and in a moment he produced something that glittered; something that made me start and rivet my attention upon him.

The something was a broad gold ring. He toyed with it for a moment, apparently wholly absorbed. Then he slipped it upon the middle finger of his right hand!

The ring seemed to fit perfectly. He turned the hand over and back a number of times, inspecting the ornament from different angles of vision. After which, seemingly satisfied with his critical survey, he removed it from the finger and returned it to his pocket.

I studied the young man in perplexity. Here I had two rings on two different right hands: what was I to conclude from—

But events were moving swiftly, almost to the verge of confusion.

"We, the jury," read the foreman, with the tremulous, irresolute air of a man unaccustomed to forensic exercises, "find that Felix Page came to his death from a blow on the head, administered with some blunt instrument in the hands of—"

He got no further. At that instant a piercing feminine shriek rose in some remote part of the house. Coming as it did at such a juncture, when all present were hanging in suspense upon the words as they fell from the foreman's lips, it produced much the same effect as might have followed the explosion of a bomb in the company's midst. Miss Fluette gasped, and her face went as white as ashes. Maillot and Fluette were both instantly upon their feet, startled and tense.

The scream was a thrilling, prolonged note of horror. For one electric second my blood seemed to chill in my veins. The cry swelled in a quavering crescendo, lingered with the persistence of terror, then abruptly ceased, like the cutting off of a shrieking steam-jet.

For one awful moment everybody sat or stood as if petrified. If a bomb had exploded it might have passed unnoticed. Then, with a wild, unnerving recollection of Genevieve, I rushed to the door.

"Don't let a soul stir from this room!" I hoarsely shouted to Dr. De Breen.

In the next instant I had plunged into the hall, brushed aside the stupefied policeman there, and was taking the stairs four at a time.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Face in the Alcove

The first thing I noticed as I sped up the stairs was the absence of Stodger from his post in the upper hall, where I had last seen him. Only a few minutes previously I had peeped into the lower hall to satisfy myself that everything was right; at that time he was leaning on the balustrade, engaged in a desultory conversation with Officer Morrison, stationed below. But in a moment I understood.

The bath room door stood wide open, and on the floor lay Miss Cooper—lifeless, was my first horrified thought. Stodger, with the best of intentions and the least possible capacity for carrying them out, knelt helplessly beside her, under the delusion that he was rendering first aid.

Instantly I lifted the still form from the floor and pillowed the sunny brown tresses in the hollow of my arm. How light she was! How soft! How lovely and tender! It was wonderful—a sublime revelation—thus to feel the actual contact of her warm, yielding body.

But, Heaven knows, I didn't stop to analyze my feelings at the time. For a while I was shaken, panic-stricken, utterly unable to do more than stare numbly down at the sweet pale face, framed in its nimbus of wavy brown hair. I got a grip on myself, though, and Stodger was sent flying to fetch Miss Fluette.

She came quickly enough, wondering and alarmed; and when she beheld me holding her cousin, would have snatched her from me—with what biting words I can only imagine.

But for once in her life, at least, that proud, wilful young lady bowed without a murmur to the tone of authority; for one brief moment she stared at me astounded, and in the next, as comprehension dawned, melted. It is hard to say which of her two attitudes was the more impressive: the flaming anger provoked by the sight of the unconscious girl in my arms, or the tenderly sweet manner with which she presently turned to minister to her. The voice which bade me leave Genevieve to her care was actually gentle. Very reluctantly, I withdraw with Stodger into the hall. Before I closed the door, however, I tersely charged Miss Belle to give me as soon as possible the explanation of the mystery.

Light Water Craft

A Parisian inventor has devised a craft for getting over the water, which is so light and compact that it can be folded up and packed into a box no bigger than an ordinary suit-case. The case part unfolds and joins together to form the main framework or hull of the boat, which is of the catamaran order. The two cigar-shaped floats are made of waterproof canvas. When packed up they occupy little space, and when in use they are blown up with a bicycle pump. The framework is fastened between them by means of ribs and straps, and when you have fixed a three-jointed, double-bladed paddle together and put a folding seat in place you are all heady to set out on your marine travels.

The Man at Fault

While angling the other day a full-size man was pulled overboard by a 12-lb. flounder, and narrowly escaped drowning. In fixing the blame a newspaper gravely points out that it should be clearly seen the man was at fault rather than the fish, for he could have let go, but the fish couldn't.

Lord Polwarth, chairman of the Roxboroughshire County Council and convener of the County, has resigned.

Facts About Motherhood

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at the time of child-birth, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when the strain is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

It isn't as though the experience came upon them unawares. They have ample time in which to prepare, but they, for the most part, trust to chance and pay the penalty.

In many homes once childless there are new children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy, and strong.

Any woman who would like special advice in regard to this matter is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. Her letter will be held in strict confidence.

THE GIRL WITH A GROUCH

She is always selfish, unhappy and discontented.

The most selfish girl in the whole world is the girl with a grouch. The most unhappy girl in the whole world is the girl with a grouch. The effect would not be so disastrous if it ended with her own feelings; she not only injures herself, but she injures every one about her, because she seems to enjoy her grouch most when she sees those about her most unhappy. With some girls, this disposition is chronic—the attacks last from four days to four weeks. Girls subject to the grouch, spend nearly all their time thinking of themselves. They also spend much of their time smoothing out with cosmetics the wrinkles that these grouches plow into their faces. They cannot, however, change the facial expression that this disposition cultivates. Elsie Janis, who is famous for her youthful beauty, says: "A sweet disposition does more toward promoting good looks than any other thing. Never think unkind thoughts of anybody, never sulk, never get into a temper. You can't have a nice, frank expression half of the time, if, during the other half of the time you are wearing a frown. Keep your temper and think kind thoughts. Temper is a great wrinkle producer, and a sour expression adds years to one's looks." It is considered as much an asset nowadays for a young lady to have a good disposition as beauty. Lady Diania Manners, who is a recent London debutante, has been named Lady Perfect Manners, because of her beautiful disposition.

Buffalo's Bellowing

The Buffalo newspapers—The Express in particular—cannot forgive the people of Canada for rejecting a miscalled "reciprocity" pact, the net effect of which would have been that Buffalo and other lake ports of the United States would have secured the oysters, and the shells would have fallen to the share of Canada. Buffalo rejoiced at the prospect of securing, without any adequate return, the pulpwood of our forests for her manufactures, the wheat of our western provinces for her flour mills, and the biggest share of our water-borne carrying trade for transhipment to Erie canal barges en route for New York. The Buffalo Chamber of Commerce proclaimed itself "100 per cent. for reciprocity"; but reciprocity—of the sort which Buffalo so ardently desired—was, so to speak, nipped in the bud by the verdict of the people of Canada on September 21st last, and now Buffalo is disgruntled in consequence. As a result, The Express never loses an opportunity of taking an unfriendly fling at this portion of the British Empire. In a recent issue it said:—

> The one clause of the Canadian reciprocity act which did not depend on Canada's approval was the section relating to pulp and paper. Pulp and paper from Canada became entitled to free importation as soon as the law was adopted. This feature was called to the attention of Congress while the bill was pending. The President, however, argued for it, and Congress approved it. The clause, therefore, was not an accident or an error, but expressed the deliberate intention of Congress and the President at the time of its adoption. There was, of course, the expectation that Canada would grant the reciprocal concessions called for by the agreement. Canada's failure to do so has had the effect of making free pulp and paper a special privilege granted to a single country. The United States has 28 commercial treaties with different countries in which it pledges each that it shall receive as favorable treatment in the importation of its products as any other country. Several of these nations, particularly Norway, Sweden, Germany and Great Britain, have called the attention of the State Department to the matter and have asked that their pulp and paper receive the same treatment as pulp and paper from Canada. They are clearly entitled to that under the terms of the treaties.
> The question has been raised, whether the treaties are self-enforcing or must await action by Congress before they can be given effect. If they must await action by Congress, they are worthless. The logical assumption is that when the upper branch of Congress ratified the treaties, it granted all necessary authority for their execution. Canada certainly has forfeited the right to any special favors. The way to prevent her from enjoying them is to give other nations also the right to free importation of pulp and paper. The law of July 26, 1911, must stand till it is repealed, and the executive department cannot assume that it is ever going to be repealed.

Seeing that Canada has not been seeking any "special favors" from the United States—that the free admission of pulp from the Dominion to that countr was limited to pulp made from wood grown on privately owned lands, and that the alleged "favor" had as its object the forcing of the Provincial Governments to abrogate the restrictions which had been placed by them on the exportation of pulpwood—The Express' remarks are purely gratuitous.

Even more conspicuous as evidence of the ill-will of The Express, and we presume its constituency, is the following, which is herewith reproduced from a later issue of our contemporary:

> Canadian grain production appears to have grown completely beyond the capacity of the transportation systems. Carloads of wheat from the Northwest are said to be rotting en route, owing to the blockade of traffic.

The foregoing is a falsehood pure and simple, the very assertion that wheat is rotting on the cars en route being sufficient evidence on that point. The idea that wheat would rot in transit during weather so cold as has been prevalent is too absurd for credence by any one other than an uninformed and reckless Buffalo newspaper man.

It may comfort the disgruntled Buffalonians to learn that the wheat which they so much desire will not be allowed to rot, because there will within a short time be sufficient means afforded by the completion of the Transcontinental, the Canadian Northern and the Hudson's Bay Railway, in addition to the Canadian Pacific, not only to prevent such a consummation, but to keep pace with any possible increase of production in our great wheat growing area.

School Books

One of the most palpably dishonest of the many unfounded attacks which have been made by the Grit party on the Whitney Government is in connection with the cheapening of the school books.

Opposition critics say that these low prices for good books, under the Whitney Government, are explained by the fact that the Province paid the cost of preparing the new readers and the plates from which they are printed. As a matter of fact the Province paid less for the new and large series than the Ross Government did for the old. The cost of the new Readers, for which Dr. Pyne arranged, was $9,841, while the old Readers, arranged for by Mr. Ross, cost $13,516. In other words, the savings to purchasers of new Readers in the first six months were more than seven times the total cost of the new series to the Province.

These facts can hardly have been unknown to the Grit orators and editors who have been dilating on the subject; but it is not facts that such people care for when they imagine that they can attain a political object by suppressing or distorting the truth.

Here is a comparison of prices:

	Former Price.	Price now.

Second Reader	20c.	9c.

LUMBER CUT OF ONTARIO FOR THE YEAR 1910

Ontario still produces a little over one-third of the quantity of the lumber cut annually in Canada, but its annual cut, while increasing, is increasing more slowly each year. Ontario's 1909 cut was 17 jer cent. greater than in 1908; its 1910 cut was only 7.5 per cent. more than in 1909. The Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior has compiled statistics showing that 1,642,191,000 feet of lumber, worth $30,011,000 was cut in Ontario during 1910, but that British Columbia will be Canada's premier lumber province in a short time. The diversified forests of Canada have enabled us up to the present, as illustrated in 1910, when the chief cut of seventeen species came from Ontario. White pine to the value of $17,743,074 came from Ontario forests and formed 85 per cent of Canada's white pine cut. Nearly half of the hemlock cut in Canada in 1910 was cut in Ontario, as was over 90 per cent. of the red pine Ontario contributed 70 per cent. of the hardwoods. Of the total, made up by 23 species cut in Ontario, over one-half was white pine. Red pine contributed 10 per cent., hemlock, 12 per cent., leaving 25 per cent., to be equally divided among the hardwoods and less important conifers. To arrive at the correct amount cut by lumber mills of Ontario in 1910, there must be added to the above lumber cut, 1,976,000,000 shingles worth $3,557,211 and 851,953,000 lath worth $1,943,544.

The estate of Stainrigg, of about 500 acres, in the parish of Eccles, has been purchased by Miss Ramsay, Islay.

ABOUT THE UNSPEAKABLE TURK

The Once Mighty Ottoman Empire is Gradually and Steadily Decaying

Once the great eastern power, Turkey's downfall began two hundred years ago, but the "unspeakable Turk" has managed by diplomatically playing the jealousy of one European power against the other, to hold remnants of his once great empire.

The first setback was in 1683 when the porte, as the Turkish government is called, took up the cause of Tokoli, the leader of the Hungarians in their revolt against Leopold I of Austria. The Moslem invasion rolled up to the gates of Vienna.

The fate of central Europe hung in the balance, but, after two months of seige, King John Sobieski, heading a Polish and Germany army, went to the rescue, and in a heroic battle put the Turks to flight.

Austria, Poland and Venice then made an onslaught upon Turkey. They drove the Turks out of Austria, Moldavia, Wallachia and Morea. In 1695 Peter the Great wrested Azov from them and the Austrians annihilated a Turkish army at Zenta. In the peace of Karlowitz, in 1689, Turkey was forced to give up all of Hungary between the Danube and the Theiss.

In the early part of the seventeenth century Turkey again captured Moldavia and Morea. In 1715, however, they were beaten by Prince Eugene of Austria, who forced them to give up a part of Servia and Austria.

In 1678 Sultan Mustapha III ventured a war on Russia which proved disastrous. Turkey was forced to renounce its suzerainty over Crimea and the Tartar territory in the region of the Black Sea.

In 1798 Napoleon wrested Egypt from Turkey and a little later Servia secured partial freedom.

In 1821 the people of Greece, who had revolted time and again during three centuries, raised the standard of revolt and in a ten years' memorable war won their independence. This was a heavy loss for Turkey in Europe.

In 1833 Russia forced upon Turkey the treaty of Skelessi, which closed the Black sea to vessels of war of all nations except Russia.

In 1840 the quadruple alliance alone saved the entire downfall of the Turkish empire. Again, in 1854, when attacked by Russia, Turkey was saved only through the intervention of England and France.

Numerous insurrections between 1854 and 1871 raised the Turkish debt by $600,000,000, and in 1874 the porte was driven to a partial repudiation of its obligations.

In 1876 frightful massacres of Christians took place in Bulgaria. These were followed by the opposing of Abdul-Aziz. In the same year Servia and Montenegro declared war, but Turkey whipped them.

But at this stage Russia took a hand and declared war against Turkey in 1877. The Turks were beaten after three years of fighting, their own superb defence of Plevna being the principal feature.

Great Britain practically nullified Turkish sovereignty in Egypt in 1883 by establishing a control there.

In 1895-96 Turks in different parts of the empire massacred thousands of Christians. Then the people of Crete rose in revolt and Greece took their part. Turkey easily beat Greece in the war that followed.

During the past thirty years Turkey has been the scene of constant fighting, massacres and revolutions. These culminated about two years ago in the overthrow of Abdul Hamid and the usurping of the throne by the Young Turks.

TIPSY TRAMP SLEPT NEAR BIG BEAR AT KINGSTON

KINGSTON, Dec. 5.—How would you like to sleep all night on a pile of straw, just two feet away from a bear?

No doubt you would not, but this is what Arthur Ross, a young German, a stranger in the city, did on Monday night. He had been drinking and did not want to go to an hotel for the night. He secured an entrance to the stable at the rear of the street car barns, where the bears, which spend the summer at Lake Ontario park, are kept. Ross was just two feet away from the big bear of the party; had he been just a little closer to the cage, the bear would have been able to have got hold of him, and no doubt would have torn him to pieces.

However, the bear was unable to get at Ross, and the latter had a good night's sleep, but a rude awakening, as when he opened his eyes two members of the police force were on the scene, and he was walked to the police station.

GRIEF ROBS HIM OF SPEECH

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 4.—Grief over the loss of his two little daughters, Ethel and Flossie, who were killed Sunday when their sandpit playhouse caved in, has destroyed the power of speech of Andrew Hutchinson of Kansas City, his physicians believe.

Hutchinson, then a well digger, suffered from an injury several years ago and for the last year has only worked a part of the time. When the cave-in occurred he ran to the sandpit and looked at the bodies of his daughters. He has been mute since.

Telegraphic advice has been received at Grand Trunk Headquarters to the effect that the main line of steel on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway had passed the Great Divide between Alberta and British Columbia. Rapid progress will now be made with the line in British Columbia, as this extension carries the work well into the mountain division and completes 1,044 miles of main line track west of Winnipeg.

The Great Divide is 250 miles west of Edmonton.

AN ALL-ROUND GENIUS.

He can make a mission table
That looks really as it should;
He can make a speech that's able—
But he cannot quite make good.

He can write an essay clever,
Or a verse with tender touch,
But I'm much afraid he'll never
Write a check for much.

He can tell to-morrow's weather,
Or the true height of Pike's Peak,
But he cannot tell you whether
He can pay that bill next week.

He can win a child's affection
Or a well-played game of chess
He can win a lodge election—
But he cannot win success.

With the talents Nature gave him
He might earn distinction high,
But somehow he can't, to save him,
Earn enough to feed a fly.

As a ready-money getter
He's a failure, flat, indeed,
But I really like him better
Than most fellows who succeed.

Two Minute Talks About
PANDORA RANGE
for Coal or Wood

Its Long Life

THE Pandora Range is for those who desire to make a permanent investment. The high quality of the materials and the superior method of construction assure long life.

The Body of the Pandora is very heavy. The Rods and Bolts are on the outside where they cannot burn or rust out. The Expansion Rings of the cooking section provide ample allowance for extreme expansion and contraction and eliminate the possibility of the metal cracking.

The Cooking Top is Burnished which toughens the surface of the metal and increases its strength. McClary Oil Cement is used between the joints. Unlike cheap, ordinary cement, it will not dry out and need replacing. The Nickelling will not tarnish and is many times more durable than the single coat of nickel on ordinary ranges.

The Semi-Steel Fire Box Linings are twenty per cent. heavier than cast or gray iron linings. Sulphur fumes, so destructive to cast iron, cannot penetrate the hard, smooth as glass surface of Semi-Steel. The Grates have Three Faces, which allows the wear to be distributed on three sides, insuring triple durability.

If you want a range of guaranteed quality get the Pandora. It's built to give you lasting service.

CAUSE FOR ALARM

LOSS OF APPETITE OR DISTRESS AFTER EATING A SYMPTOM THAT SHOULD NOT BE DISREGARDED.

Appetite is just a natural desire for food. Loss of appetite or stomach distress after eating indicate indigestion or dyspepsia. Over-eating is a habit very dangerous to a person's good general health.

It is not what you eat but what you digest and assimilate that does you good. Some of the strongest, heaviest and healthiest persons are moderate eaters.

There is nothing that will cause more trouble than a disordered stomach, and many people daily contract serious maladies simply through disregard or abuse of the stomach.

We urge all in Belleville who suffer from any form of stomach derangement, indigestion or dyspepsia, whether acute or chronic, to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, with the distinct understanding that we will refund their money without question or formality, if after a reasonable use of this medicine, they are not perfectly satisfied with the results. We recommend them to our customers every day, and have yet to hear of any one who has not been benefitted by them. We honestly believe them to be without equal. They give very prompt relief, aiding to neutralize the gastric juices, strengthen the digestive organs, to regulate the bowels, and thus promote perfect nutrition, and eradicate all unhealthy symptoms.

We urge you to try a 25c. box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, which gives 15 days' treatment. At the end of that time, your money will be returned to you if you are not satisfied. Of course, in chronic cases length of treatment varies. For such cases, we have two larger sizes, which sell for 50c. and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store.—J. S. McKeown, Belleville.

Deny Italian Atrocities.

New York, Dec. 6.—Il Giornale Italiano of this city has received a cablegram from Tripoli, that has a bearing on the allegations of Italian atrocities at that place. The message is dated Dec. 5, it is signed by the correspondents of two English and two French newspapers and is as follows:

"The correspondents whose signatures follow witnessed the events in Tripoli from Oct. 23 to Oct. 30, and they affirm that the Italian soldiers have not been guilty of the atrocities they have been accused of by some newspapers; also that the executions ordered have been but the necessary repression of a pre-arranged revolt among the Arabs, who had previously submitted to the Italians. The undersigned affirm further that Moslems perpetrated on Christian prisoners and wounded atrocious tortures and mutilations.

Job Harriman Routed.

Los Angeles, Dec. 6.—Alexander, good Government candidate for mayor, was re-elected yesterday by an overwhelming majority over Job Harriman, Socialist. The count of ballots at 8.30 o'clock in 76 precincts out of a total of 217 gave Alexander 27,999, and Harriman 10,551.

This shows a gain for Alexander of about 3 to 1, compared with the primary vote.

Chicago Packers Ask Stay.

Washington, Dec. 5.—The Supreme Court of the United States yesterday took under consideration the application of counsel for the Chicago beef packers for a stay of their trial, in the U. S. District Court at Chicago, on charges of criminally violating the Sherman anti-trust law. A stay and bail was asked until the court could pass on the constitutionality of the Sherman anti-trust law as a criminal statute.

Fear for King's Safety.

London, Dec. 6.—Much anxiety is reflected in official circles in London over the coming Durbar ceremonies. Before the King left England there were many people in whose opinion the King's visit to India did not seem advisable, owing to the many outrages which have occurred recently in that country. This feeling has been revived by the news of fires in Delhi, although there is no proof yet that the outbreaks were of incendiary origin.

Delhi, India, Dec. 6.—During a rehearsal of the King's state entry yesterday, still another fire occurred. A large store on the banks of the River Junna, filled with fireworks, was completely destroyed.

Montreal's Labor Party.

Montreal, Dec. 6.—The abolition of the property qualification for aldermanic candidates will be the principal plank in the platform of the local Independent Labor party which is preparing to contest five city wards in the forthcoming municipal elections.

Steel Trust Enquiry.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The Stanley Steel Trust investigating committee probably will be called together tomorrow, to discuss the continuance of its inquiry, in view of the Government suit against the United States Steel Corporation.

BANK OF ENGLAND NOTES.

Interesting facts about the inside working of the Bank of England were explained by Mr. Frederick Huth rights of issuing notes, he said, is one of the most important functions of the Bank of England. One rarely sees a dirty Bank of England note. That is because the Bank never reissues a banknote. Even if anyone went into the Bank and demanded a five-pound note in exchange for five sovereigns, and then crossed to another counter and changed the same note back into gold, that note would be destroyed. The system is expensive, but by its means the Bank avoids many of the risks of forgery.

LUNACY STATISTICS

Interesting Figures of the British Commissioners—Unemployment as a Cause of Insanity

Some figures of interest to life insurance are contained in the sixty-fifth report of the British Commissioners on Lunacy. Their returns show that alcohol is responsible for about 16 per cent. of the cases reported, while 20 per cent. were traced to unemployment. One of the commissioners thinks that lunacy will be largely lessened directly some method is found of increasing the general prosperity of Great Britain.

It is pointed out in the commissioners' report that in 9.6 per cent. of the cases has mental stress alone been the assignable cause of attack, though it is also explained that prolonged mental strain has been associated with nearly every other assignable factor in the category of causes. In confirmation of the assertion that insanity is an hereditary disease, the report states that:—

"Our statistics show—and since their introduction, upwards of fifty years ago, have shown—that there is a family history of insanity in persons admitted to asylum care amounting, on an average, in the case of males, to 19 per cent., and of females to 23 per cent., of the total yearly admissions. This is probably an under-estimate, for there is always a considerable residuum concerning whom it is impossible to obtain positive information on this point."

But the report states that to ignore the factor of inheritance because three times the number of insane apparently come of sane stock would be unwarrantable. It is gratifying to note, further, that:—

At marriagiable ages—twenty-five and upwards—the proportion of the unmarried of both sexes is considerably higher amongst the insane than it is in the general population, and to a slighter extent also in the widowed. Considerabl ymore single than married or widowed persons were admitted to care.

It also appears from the report that the proportions of the sexes certified yearly as insane are exactly the same, so far as relation to the number of persons in the country is concerned. There are, it is well known, more females than males in the country, and the estimated proportion per 1,000 in the general population for the middle of 1910 are—males, 482.8; females, 517.2.

The proportions amongst the insane annually admitted to care are practically identical—males, 484.0; females, 516.0. Concerning readmissions to care, it is stated that they form from 17 to 18 per cent. of the total admissions, and may be considered to consist mainly of those who, in previous years, have been discharged as "relieved" or "not improved," and also of patients who, having left an asylum "recovered," are admitted with a current attack. So far as asylum statistics go, the proportion of such occurrences is about one-fourth of those originally discharged as "recovered."

HUSBAND DYING IN ROOM NEARBY BUT WOMAN DIDN'T KNOW

Aged Wife Run Over in Montreal as She Searched for Partner Similarly Hurt

MONTREAL, Dec. 5.—Separated from her dying and speechless husband only by the partitions of the General Hospital, fate in a cruel manner robbed venerable Mrs. Patrick Mulvey of a last opportunity to see her aged life partner before he passed away.

It was on Wednesday morning that Patrick Mulvey, 75 years of age, veteran of the Crimean war and the Indian Mutiny, who lived at 37 Eleanor street, disappeared from his home. He had been paralyzed on one side by a stroke, which had also affected his vocal organs, and made it impossible for him to speak, but he was able to go out, and take very slow walks in the neighborhood.

On Wednesday morning when he did not return, the family became anxious. The aged lady, more and more worried at her husband's failure to arrive, could stand the suspense no longer, but started out in the streets to look for him.

Meanwhile, the old man had been struck by a passing rig, in Chaboillez square, and so seriously injured that he was hastily removed to the General Hospital. There, being unable to speak, he could not give his address, and the hospital authorities could find no means of identification.

That evening Mrs. Mulvey, who was wandering about the streets distracted, seeking for her old helpmate, was herself knocked down by a passing team, and also removed to the General Hospital.

She passed within a few feet of where her husband was lying. She had not been so seriously injured as was he, and with her mind obsessed by the idea that he must be still wandering about the street absolutely refused to remain in the hospital, but said she must continue to look for "her Patrick," and left with tears of despair rolling down her cheeks—little knowing that she was leaving the last chance she would have to see her loved one alive.

Yesterday morning Patrick Mulvey passed away. It was only when the body had been removed to the morgue and the family learned that an old man who had been knocked down in Chaboillez Square was dead, that they discovered that it was he, and that the body was identified.

It appears that fate was not wholly to blame for this tragedy of errors. The police had been notified as soon as the old man disappeared and given a description. The report was, it is declared, turned over to the detectives.

But the old man was not found, though he lay in the hospital from Wednesday to yesterday morning—the most probable place to look for him under the circumstances.

Detectives Walsh and Gratton were assigned by Chief Carpenter of the Detective Office, to investigate the disappearance of Patrick Mulvey as reported by Captain Fennell. They investigated in the vicinity of the canal on the strength of information received to the effect that a man answering his description had been seen in the vicinity on Wednesday. They did not go to the hospitals because of assurances from the veteran's son and brother-in-law that they had duly visited the hospitals and found no trace of the missing man.

THE FIRST CARPET-MAKING

Carpet-making, as a modern industry, was first developed in France. That country had large factories and a monopoly in Europe of the art of carpet weaving when a rush-strewn floor was the rule even in the Royal palaces of Britain. But the edict of Nantes, that great disperser of French artisans and artitry, caused many of the carpet craftsmen to cross the Channel. They settled at Bristol, Axminster, and other places in the southwest of England. From there the secrets of the industry spread to Glasgow, Kidderminster, and the towns of Yorkshire. These places are still the great carpet-weaving centres of Great Britain.

Liverpool Skyscraper

Liverpool's skyscraper, the Royal Liner building, which has just been opened, is of seventeen storeys, 300 feet high, and weighs 80,000 tons. It has a clock bigger than Big Ben, London; each dial is 25 feet in diameter, the minute-hand 14 feet long, and at one point 3 feet wide. The clock never needs winding, but is propelled by electricity, being connected with Greenwich by post office wire. Special mechanism prevents the hands being interfered with by wind, snow or rain.

The largest known bird's egg is that of the extinct aepyornis of Madagascar, of which the museum of New York has now a specimen. It has a capacity of two gallons, measures 26 inches round the middle, and the shell is ⅛in. thick. The largest egg of a living bird is that of the ostrich, which is equal to about 36 hen's eggs.

STILL AT RECIPROCITY

Opposition Harps on Cost of Agricultural Implements.

Hon. Frank Oliver and Dr. Neely of Humbolt Talk of Outrages on the Farmers of the West, But Major Currie Reminds Them That Ontario Is Also a Farmers' Province, Bigger Than All the West.

Ottawa, Dec. 6.—Reciprocity's requiem was sung in the debate on the address. Yesterday's session developed largely into an "in memorium" service, in honor of the fiscal corpse.

Hon. Frank Oliver again talked of the "tyrannical burden of trusts, mergers and combines," and Dr. Neely raved of a conspiracy on the part of the manufacturers of the east. The latter champion of the "embattled farmers of the west" brandished an argument that vividly recalled the "chops and tomato sauce" incident in the famous Bardell-Pickwick case in Pickwith. He read a circular sent out by the Massey-Harris Co., accompanying a catalogue and another cancelling the former.

"Now, Mr. Speaker," said the member for Humboldt, "there is no mention of elections here, but we can read between the lines."

"There were interests in this country," he declared, "that have no friend, no patriotism, no citizenship, and no country."

The royal assent was given yesterday afternoon to the supply bill and to two bills extending the term of completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific, which has almost expired, the term to be fixed by order-in-council, and permitting the Government to make a new contract with the G.T.P. company.

W. M. Martin (Regina) called the attention of the Government to the serious car shortage in the west. It was said that grain had even had to be dumped and was rotting beside the tracks. Something should be done.

In reply to a question by an Opposition member, Hon. F. D. Monk stated that the only delay in the prosecution of public works was where complaints had been made, which seemed to be well founded, that the works were unnecessary.

In some of these cases, though money had been voted to begin them and it would require a considerable sum to complete them. They were, therefore, held up till the Government was fortified by further information.

W. F. Cockshutt (Brantford) resented as an attempt to set the farmer of the west against the manufacturer the statement of Hon. Frank Oliver, that while the Cockshutt Plow Co. sold a steam gang plow in Peoria, Ill., for $525, and in Minneapolis for $502, after paying 15 per cent. duty and freight, while in Western Canada it cost the farmer over $600. He was deing what was done during the election, attempting palpably to mislead the public by quoting the wholesale against the retail price.

"If he is prepared to buy as many plows as our one customer in the United States, he will probably get the same rates," said the member for Brantford.

Outside of the United States, said Mr. Cockshutt, there was no country in the world in which implements were sold as cheaply as in Canada. The Wilkinson Plow Co. of Toronto had been driven out of business by the fierce home competition and the last straw had been the threat of reciprocity.

Mr. Oliver declared that a protest was only to be expected when a large number of eastern manufacturers lined up their employes before election and told them how to vote. This was an act of tyranny.

D. B. Neely (Humbolt) declared that the retail price of the Cockshutt plow gave the Minnesota farmer the advantage.

Mr. Neely complained bitterly of the Manufacturers' Association passing a resolution that the time was not ripe for an increase in the British preference. These were the men who talked of loyalty in the late election.

Major Currie warned the Liberals that so long as they went on attacking Ontario, they would remain in Opposition. They talked about the farmers of the west, but they seemed to forget that Ontario was an agricultural country. It produced $47,000,000 more field products than the whole of the west combined, and these farmers of Ontario had voted almost to a man against reciprocity.

No Deal With Hon. Mr. Graham.

Ottawa, Dec. 6.—When asked yesterday if the report was correct that an agreement had been reached to allow Hon. George P. Graham to be elected by acclamation in the federal constituency of South Renfrew, Hon. J. D. Reid and Hon. Frank Cochrane both denied that any such arrangement had been made. If such a compact was entered into, it was without the knowledge or consent of the Government.

Infanta "Awaits Punishment."

Paris, Dec. 6.—The Infanta Eulalie sent the following telegram yesterday to the Spanish Premier, Senor Canalejas:

"I await punishment, but as I am contemplating a voyage I request you to transmit it as soon as possible."

In communicating a copy of the message to The Temps, the princess explains that by the word "you," she means King Alfonso and the Minister.

Farmer's Wife Suicides.

Petrolea, Dec. 6.—Mrs. A. McLellan, aged 37, of Moore Township, who has been despondent for several days, was seen by one of her children to take a dose of Paris green yesterday. The child ran to her father, who was in the barn. When he arrived at the house she denied taking the poison. A few minutes afterward he found her outside the house unconscious. A doctor was called but she died.

CUT IN CABLE TOLLS.

Half-Price For Messages Is Conceded By Three Companies.

Ottawa, Dec. 6.—Important reductions in press cable rates were announced last night in a cable to Premier Borden from the Canadian High Commissioner in London. The announcement was communicated to Lord Strathcona by the British Postmaster-General and transmitted at once to Ottawa.

"His Majesty's Government are in cordial sympathy regarding the easy communication of information of common interest as of prime importance in strengthening the cohesion of the Empire. I have been in correspondence with the Western Union Telegraph Co. of the United States in connection with the leasing by that company of the cables of the Anglo-American Telegraph Co.," he cabled. "The cables of the Atlantic companies are fully employed during a few hours of the day, but less fully during the remaining hours.

"I am glad to be able to announce that, in view of this fact, the three companies referred to have consented to accept press messages which are not of urgent character and which may be postponed for more urgent traffic, at one-half of the present rates. For the present the deferment may be less, but will not be more than nineteen hours, reckoned from the time of acceptance in the country of origin to clock time of delivery in the country of destination, except that, where cables are congested, some further delay may be unavoidable. I have also obtained the consent of the Pacific Cable Board and of the Australian Government to a similar reduction of their charges for press messages of this class.

"The tariff of the New Zealand Government is already very low and a further diminuition is not asked. The effect will be that the rates on these deferred press telegrams between the United Kingdom on the one hand and Canada as well as the United States on the other, will be twopence halfpenny a word, instead of fivepence as now. And between the United Kingdom and Australia and New Zealand the rate will be fourpence halfpenny a word, instead of ninepence.

"I am in communication with the Commercial Cable Co. also on this question, but I regret I have not yet been able to arrange for a similar reduction in cablegrams to and from India and South Africa, but the Eastern Telegraph Co. has consented to carry Australiasian cablegrams at the reduced rate in the event of interruption to the Pacific cable. The service will come into full operation on the 15th inst., but the W. U. Anglo and direct United States companies will be prepared to accept press telegrams at the reduced rates at their own offices on and from to-morrow.

Lord Strathcona goes on to explain the new arrangement of the W. U. Telegraph Co., in regard to night and weed-end letters.

"I am glad to say that negotiations which have been proceeding for some time with the cable companies for reducing by one half the rates for plain language on urgent cablegrams between the United Kingdom, India, the Dominion, the crown colonies and the United States, have proved successful, and the new arrangements will take effect on January 1 next."

Other Rates Cut Down.

London, Dec. 6.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In addition to his announcement that the cable rate to Canada would be twopence halfpenny a word, instead of fivepence, Postmaster Samuel stated that the Australian rate would be between the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand fourpence halfpenny instead of ninepence. The new rates would come into full operation on Dec. 15.

The Western Union intend instituting a system of night letters and week-end letters to Canada and the United States for delivery on the morning of the second day after being handed in at quarter the usual rates. A minimum charge of six shillings would be accepted Saturday for delivery at one-fifth the present rate.

Rowell at Brantford.

Brantford, Dec. 6.—The Liberals of South Brant were addressed here last night by N. W. Rowell, Liberal leader, at a meeting in the Grand Opera House. Mr. Rowell did not supplement his previous addresses with anything new, dealing with what he regarded as main issues of the campaign, including New Ontario developments, reconstruction of educational system by re-establishing county model schools, taxation reform and the bilingual school question.

Other addresses were delivered by Charles B. Heyd, Lloyd Harris, ex-M.P., and the candidate, Ald. Harris. John Muir was chairman. The attendance at the meeting was good and the speakers were well received.

300 Horses Burned.

Jersey City, N.Y., Dec. 5.—Fire early yesterday swept the plant of the United States Express Co. here. Stables and other buildings occupying nearly a full city block were burned, 200 wagons and auto trucks were destroyed and 300 horses perished. Two firemen were seriously injured before the blaze was under control at 4:45 o'clock. The loss will probably reach $400,000.

TAFT'S MESSAGE.

President Wants Federal Body to Regulate Trusts.

Washington, Dec. 6.—President Taft's third annual message to Congress, devoted exclusively to the Sherman Anti-Trust Act and the trust question in general, was read in Congress yesterday.

The feature of the message is the recommendation for the establishment of a federal corporation commission, and after noting that the drafting of the recent decrees in the dissolution of trusts, with a view to their reorganization into legitimate corporations, has made it especially apparent that the courts are not provided with the administrative machinery to make the necessary enquiries preparatory to reorganization. The President says:

"I do not set forth in detail the terms and sections of a statute which might supply the constructive legislation permitting and aiding the formation of combinations of capital into federal corporations. They should be subject to rigid rules as to their organization and procedure, including effective publicity, and to the closest supervision as to the issue of stock and bonds by an executive bureau or commission in the Department of Commerce and Labor, to which in times of doubt they might well submit their proposed plans for future business.

"It must be distinctly understood that incorporation under a federal law could not exempt the company thus formed and its incorporators and managers from prosecution under the Anti-Trust Law for subsequent illegal conduct, but the publicity of its procedure and the opportunity for frequent consultation with the bureau or commission in charge of the incorporation as to legitimate purpose of its transactions would offer it as great security against successful prosecutions for violations of the law as would be practical or wise."

YOUNG MEN ARRESTED

Youths Charged in Connection With Express Robbery.

Douglas Chilman and Joseph Acheson, Aged 12 Years, Are Arrested Early in the Morning and Taken Before Police Court, Where $18,000 Bail Is Fixed — Detectives Have Little to Announce.

Hamilton, Dec. 6.—Two further arrests were made yesterday in the mysterious Canadian Express robbery, when Douglas Chilman, 140 Bold street, was taken into custody at his home at seven o'clock yesterday morning, by Plain Clothesman Goodman, while at about the same hour, Joseph Acheson, a friend of Chilman, living at 124 Duke street, was arrested by Constable McKay.

Both men were in bed when arrested, and as soon as they could dress, were taken to the central police station. They appeared before Magistrate Jelfs in the police court a few hours later, and were remanded for eight days, at the request of Crown Attorney Washington, who stated that the police were not quite ready to go on with the case.

Bail in the sum of $18,000 was set in the case of each prisoner.

Chilman was at one time a clerk in the Canadian Express Co.'s offices, and was employed there temporarily a short time before the robbery was committed. He has been under surveillance for several weeks, by a Thiel detective, brought into the case at the instance of Deputy Chief of Police Whatley, who has been quietly working on the case ever since the charges against Hughes and Kennough fell through.

Acheson has also been closely watched by the Thiel operative, and two women detectives are also said to be engaged in trying to trap the two suspects. Monday afternoon the deputy chief decided that he was in possession of sufficient evidence to justify the arrest of the suspected men, and warrants were accordingly sworn out.

The police are extremely reticent about the evidence they have against Chilman and Acheson, and will say but little about the case.

The accused men are each twenty-two years old, and both are well known in the city. Chilman is the proprietor of the Regal confectionery on King street west, which he bought, soon after severing his connection with the express company. Acheson recently resigned a position as traveler with the Simmons Fuel Co., to engage in the electrical supply business, but a few weeks ago disposed of this business, and at the time of his arrest was employed with the Canadian Reflector Co. Chilman was also a friend of Constable Goodman, who arrested him yesterday.

The prisoners were unable to raise the heavy bail named by the crown, and spent the night in the central police station cells. C. W. Bell represented the accused men in the Police Court yesterday, and he and Geo. Lynch-Staunton, will defend then when their cases came to trial.

The crime in question was committed on the morning of Sept. 28 last, and consists of the theft of more than $8,000 from the vault in the local office of the Canadian Express Co. When one of the drivers arrived at the office on the morning of that day, he discovered George Kennough, night clerk for the company, bound and gagged, lying on the floor in the vault.

To the police Kennough said that while sitting at his desk he had suddenly been seized by three masked men, and that after the men secured the package containing the money, he was bound, gagged ,and thrown into the vault. He could give no satisfactory description of the alleged robbers, and certain discrepancies in his story led to his arrest, for complicity in the theft. John W. Hughes, another ex-employe of the company, was also arrested on a nominal charge of vagrancy, in connection with the case. After two remands, both men were discharged for want of evidence against them, but Kennough was convicted on another charge of stealing $15 from the company, and sentenced to three months in jail.

C.N.O. to Change Line.

Toronto, Dec. 6.—Negotiations are now underway between the C.P.R. and the Canadian Northern, in which the latter company are endeavoring to acquire further running rights on the C.P.R. tracks at Orillia, which would enable them to travel around the north end of the town where they wish to branch off and run a line north connecting with their main line at a point near Sparrow Lake. The C.N.O. have already had a route map of this line approved of, and it is almost certain that when this section is completed it will become a part of the Toronto-Parry Sound line. The section from Udney to the point which the new line intersects will in all probability be used only for freight traffic.

Kingston's Four Bylaws.

Kingston, Dec. 6.—At municipal elections Kingston ratepayers will have four bylaws to vote upon. There is a bylaw to cut liquor licenses from 25 to 15, to grant locomotive works a fixed assessment of $100,000, to grant certain concessions to the Box & Envelope Co., and one to give council authority to open negotiations with Hydro-electric commission.

During the season of navigation just closed, 16,040,262 bu[illegible] of grain passed through Kingston [illegible] route for Montreal.

Another Durbar Fire.

Delhi, India, Dec. 6.—The magnificent pavilion in the Durbar camp, with its massive silver supports and brilliant decorations, in which the Kng-Emperor was to be received by the Indian princes on his arrival here, was burned down yesterday.

This is the second disastrous fire of unknown origin in the Durbar camp within a week, and the occurrence has caused a sensation.

BROTHERS SENTENCED

James Gets Life in Prison and John Gets Fifteen Years.

Prosecuting Attorney Fredericks Asks Clemency For Men Who Confessed to Dynamiting Outrages and Judge Consents — Brothers Have Given Information That May Lead to Arrests Further Up.

Los Angeles, Dec. 6.—James B. McNamara, confessed murderer, was sentenced to life imprisonment here yesterday by Judge Bordwell.

His brother, John J. McNamara, secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, who confessed to the dynamiting of the Llewellyn Iron Works, was sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary.

Twenty-one persons lost their lives in The Times' disaster. No one was killed in the Llewellyn Iron Works affair.

Imprisonment will be in San Quentin penitentiary.

For both men District Attorney Fredericks desired clemency—life imprisonment for James and a sentence of between fourteen and twenty years for John.

With the announcement of the proposed plea for clemency came the information that the brothers had furnished information of great value in the investigation of an alleged far-reaching dynamiting conspiracy, and that the plan was to serve them immediately after sentence with summonses to appear before the federal grand jury.

Two hours before court opened several hundred curious men and women assembled about the corridors of the hall of records to get a last glance of the prisoners.

The McNamara brothers faced the prospects of sentence with more than equanimity. They were in good spirits and made rapid work of a big breakfast. James smilingly met the greetings of his guards, while John appeared to be more concerned about his personal appearance than usual.

Oscar Lawler, formerly assistant attorney-general, and a prominent figure in the Ballinger-Pincher investigation, yesterday received word of his appointment by Attorney-General Wickersham as special prosecutor in the grand jury enquiry into the alleged dynamiting conspiracy. Lawler has been assisting Attorney Fredericks for the last two months.

In a dead silence Mr. Fredericks read the following confession of Jas. McNamara:

"I, James B. McNamara, defendant in the case of the people, having heretofore pleaded guilty to the crime of murder, desire to make this statement and this is the truth:

"On the night of Sept. 30, 1910, at 5.45 p. m., I placed in Ink Alley, a portion of The Times building ,a suitcase containing 16 sticks of 80 per cent. dynamite, set to explode at one o'clock the next morning.

"It was my intention to injure the building and scare the owners. I did not intend to take the life of anyone. I sincerely regret that those unfortunate men lost their lives. If the giving of my life would bring them back, I would gladly give it. In fact, in pleading guilty to murder in the first degree, I have placed my life in the hands of the state.

(Signed) "James B. McNamara."

Judge Bordwell commented upon McNamara's declaration that he did not intend to destroy life.

"The circumstances are against that statement," he said. "A man who will place sixteen sticks of dynamite in a place where you; as a printer, knew gas was burning in many places, where many were toiling, must have no regard for life; must have been a murderer at heart and undeserving of clemency."

For reasons other than such a plea of non-intent, Judge Bordwell declared he would impose the penalty of imprisonment for life.

John J. McNamara came next. The Llewellyn Iron Works indictment was read to him by the judge.

He said he had nothing to say.

District Attorney Fredericks, however, said that as in the other case, the plea of guilty permitted consideration, but pleaded that the defendant, John J. McNamara be given a "few years of freedom at the end of his life."

Judge Bordwell declared that the strictures against Jas. B. McNamara would also apply to him. Clemency, he declared, was not because of merit as to intent.

The McNamaras were taken from the court room back to the jail. Their counsel left the room almost immediately, and the crowd filed out laughing and chatting.

Gompers Well Pleased.

New York, Dec. 6.—"I am glad a death sentence was not imposed. I am opposed to capital punishment under any circumstances. I think the sentences received by both men were appropriate to the crime."

This was the comment of Samuel Gompers last night when asked if he was satisfied with the punishment meted out to the McNamara brothers in Los Angeles yesterday. Mr. Gompers and Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, expected to return to Washington last night after a conference with A. B. Parker, their counsel in the Bucks Stove and Range case, for which both men will have to answer to the court several days hence.

"I would like to make one statement," continued Mr. Gompers, "concerning the strictures made by District Attorney Miller of Indianapolis, as to the wisdom of my leadership of the American Federation of Labor. I want to say that if Miller has a case to prosecute against me or anybody else, let him go ahead and prosecute, but it is not for him to say whether my leadership is wise or not. I consider his criticism a gratuitous and unwarranted impertinence. Miller has no right to set himself up as my guide. I propose to stand true to the men of labor."

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Higher, Chicago Lower—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—(Can. Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Dec. 5.—Cables from the United Kingdom and the continent on Manitoba spring wheat came weaker, and the prices bid showed a decline of 1d to 3d per quarter, but at this reduction the demand was good, and, as prices in Winnipeg closed lower, a fair amount of business was worked. The demand from foreign buyers for oats is increasing, but the bids are out of line. In sympathy with the weakness in Winnipeg during the past two days, prices on spot have declined ⅜c to ½c, but at this reduction the demand was fair.

A fair business continues to be done in flour for city account, but the demand from outside and foreign sources is limited. Some of the millers advanced prices for bran and shorts $1 per ton. The export demand for bran is good. Cheese is quiet. Butter is fairly active and strong at a further advance in prices of ½c per pound. Potatoes scarce and in good demand at 2½c to 5c per bag advance.

Corn—American, No. 2 yellow, 84c.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 48c to 48½c; Canadian western, No. 3, 46½c to 47c; extra No. 1 feed, 46c to 46½c; No. 2 local white, 47c; No. 3 local white, 46c; No. 4 local white, 45c.

Barley—Manitoba feed, 61c; malting, 96c to $1.

Flour—Manitoba spring wheat patents, firsts, $5.60; do., seconds, $5.10; do., strong bakers, $4.90; winter patents, choice, $4.75 to $5; straight rollers, $4.25 to $4.70; do., bags, $1.95 to $2.05.

Rolled oats—Barrels, $5.25; bags, 90 lbs., $2.50.

Millfeed—Bran, $22; shorts, $25; middlings, $27 to $28; moullie, $29 to $34.

Hay—No. 2, per ton, car lots, $14.50 to $15.

Cheese—Finest westerns, 14½c to 14¾c; finest easterns, 13¾c to 14¼c.

Butter—Choicest creamery, 30½c to 31c; seconds, 29c to 30c.

Eggs—Fresh, 45c to 50c; selected, 28c to 29c; No. 1 stock, 25c.

Potatoes—Car lots, per bag, $1.25 to $1.27½.

Dressed hogs—Abattoir killed, $9 to $9.25; country, $8.25 to $8.50.

Pork—Heavy Canada short cut mess, barrels, 35 to 45 pieces, $24; Canada short cut backs, barrels, 45 to 55 pieces, $23½; Canada clear, barrels, 30 to 35 pieces, $22.50.

Lard—Compound tierces, 375 lbs., 8¾c; wood pails, 20 lbs. net, 9¼c; pure, tierces, 375 lbs., 12c; pure, wood pails, 20 lbs. net, 12½c.

Beef—Plate, barrels, 200 lbs., $14.50; do., Plate, tierces, 300 lbs., $21.50.

Martin and the Niche.

London, Dec. 6.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In reply to a question of Joseph Martin in the House of Commons, Hon. Winston Churchill said the previous service of Lieut. White and Lieut. Grahame had been excellent. The strict rule of naval service had inflicted on them the punishments awarded by the court-martial. "I would have thought that under the circumstances the questioner would not desire to aggrevate the consequences of their mistake by further publicity."

Martin—"May I ask whether the Admiralty did not consider their social position rather than professional competence?"

Churchill—"That question didn't arise either with the Admiralty or the Canadian Government." (Cheers.)

An Ill-Fated Home.

Toronto, Dec. 6.—Since Thursday three children from the Dovey home, 3 Manchester avenue, have been buried. Diphtheria has been the trouble. On Thursday Muriel, aged 4 years, was buried in the Necropolis; on the following day Minnie, aged 7 years, died in the Isolation Hospital, and yesterday Norman, aged 18 months, passed away and will be buried today. The father, Albert Dovey, is a carpenter.

OPENING SESSION OF THE COUNTY COUNCIL

Congratulatory Address by Warden Dryden—Report of the Opening Proceedings

The County Council met at 2 p. m. on Tuesday, December 5th, with Warden Dryden in the chair.

The Warden, in opening the proceedings said it was pleasing for him to meet again all the members of the Council. All were to be congratulated on the fact that the crops this year were good while in the towns and villages there was prosperity. The Council during the year had not endeavored to see how much money it could spend, but how well it could spend the money raised by taxes. The Council had guarded well every expenditure. He felt that he was placed in a unique position to-day owing to the fact that there were his superiors in the Council, namely, two M. P. P.'s, whom he congratulated upon the position they occupied. There would be a number of matters of more or less importance to be attended to at this session.

The minutes of the last sittings of the June session were read and adopted.

Mr. McIntosh, the Provincial Government representative at the Agricultural class at Stirling, addressed the Council in reference to the County of Hastings having an exhibit of fruit at the Provincial Fruit Show. Hastings County has many fine orchards and the County could next year make the finest show in the Province. The Council should make a grant for the same. He also referred to the short courses which would be held at the High School at Stirling this winter. These courses were all of interest to the farmers and farmers' sons.

The Warden stated that the matter spoken of by Mr. McIntosh would be brought before the incoming Council in January.

A number of communications were read.

A communication was read protesting against the establishment of a school section in the 1st concession of Marmora Township.

A motion prevailed that no action be taken with regard to same after Mr. Maloney had spoken in reference to it. He stated that he was not aware that there was any protest entered against the establishment of the school section.

In the Grand Jury report a paragraph appears that two persons of unsound mind were in the County jail, one of whom had been in there for some months.

The Warden thought it was not right that the County should be taxed to support this person, who came from the Indian Reserve.

Mr. Vermilyea thought that the man should be taken care of by the Province, and not be a burden on the County. The County receives no taxes on the Reserve.

In answer to an enquiry, Mr. Colling, turnkey of the jail, stated that the man had been in jail for over a year.

The matter was referred to the Finance Committee to deal with.

A communication proposing to send a delegate to Ottawa re. improvement to highways was referred to the Ways and Means Committee.

The mater was referred to the Finance Committee.

Council adjourned until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

Council resumed at 10 o'clock, Warden Dryden presiding.

After the reading and confirming of the minutes of yesterday's session a statement was presented from the County Treasurer showing in detail the receipts and expenditures up to December 1st of this year.—Received and filed.

Mr. Thompson, Chairman of the Finance and Public Property Committee, presented a report which showed that the improvements to the shire hall, consisting of placing in a lavatory, providing a committee room, repairs to Council chamber, etc., amounted to $1083, while the appropriation was $1500. The report referred to the fact that up to the present time the city of Belleville had not paid its share towards the erection of the boundary bridge between the city and the county. The committee are of the opinion that the city should not only pay same but also the interest.

Mr. Vermilyea said that not a dollar had been wasted, everything having been done most efficiently by the Chairman, Mr. Thompson and the Finance Committe.e

The Warden stated that the Committee had been ably assisted by the county officials who had done everything in their power to assist in the work.

The report was referred to the Ways and Means Committee.

NOTICE OF BY-LAWS.

Mr. Vermilyea introduced a by-law to appoint two county auditors.

Mr. Ketcheson introduced a by-law to deviate a piece of road in Sidney township near the village of Frankford.

Mr. Hubbell introduced a by-law to assume as a county road, a portion of McGill street in the village of Marmora.

These by-laws were referred to the Committee of the Whole on By-laws.

Mr. Hanley thought the township of Tyendinaga was entitled to interest from the fact that that township pays its taxes early into the county treasurer.

Several of the members spoke upon this matter, the majority of whom thought the township was entitled to interest.

Mr. Vermilyea was of the opinion that any municipality which pays its taxes early should be allowed interest.

It was decided to have a by-law introduced, dealing with the matter.

FRIARS BRIDGE.

In answer to an enquiry from Mr. Hubbell, in reference to a rumor that the new Friars Bridge in Mormora township was lower than the old bridge, Mr. Cook stated that the new structure was on the same level as the old bridge and there was room for more volume of water to pass under it by reason of the removal of the piers. It would cost $100 to raise the bridge and possibly $1,000 to raise the abutments.

Mr. Hubbell said that he understood that the Pearce Company were of the opinion that the bridge was too low and might interfere with their floating their logs under the bridge.

Mr. Clarke was of the opinion that this matter could be looked into and it might be possible to have the bridge raised and the Pearce Company might be induced to contribute something towards the expense.

Mr. Cook thought there was no grievance to the Pearce Company in this matter.

Mr. Maloney said that a member of the Pearce Company had informed him (the speaker) that he heard the new bridge was 3 feet lower than the old bridge was. It was about 12 feet from the bridge to the bed of the river. The new bridge was no doubt lower than the old bridge, as the latter structure was crowning in the centre, making it higher in the centre than at the ends.

Mr. Vermilyea thought this matter might properly be referred to the Committee to consult with Mr. Pearce and see if satisfactory arrangements could not be made with regard to the bridge.

Mr. Thompson said that some members of the Pearce Company might meet the members of the Bridge Committee at the bridge and see what could be done, if anything necessary was to be done.

Mr. Cook moved that Mr. Maloney Mr. Hubbell and the engineer be appointed to look into this matter with the Pearce Company.

Mr. Tummon suggested that Mr. Cook, Chairman of the Bridge Committee be added to the committee.

Mr. Clarke said there was no doubt that a report was current that the new bridge was lower than the old bridge and this matter should be investigated.

Mr. Cook withdrew his motion.

It being after the noon hour, the Warden left the chair.

LOCK MAKERS WENT DOWN TO DEFEAT

The Y. M. C. A. Team were Altogether too Good for their Opponents

By a score of 47 to 16, the Y.M.C.A. team last evening defeated the Springer Lock Works team at an indoor baseball game. There were a great many spectators present who seemed to enjoy the game despite the fact that it was too much one-sided. In the second inning the Y.M.C.A. players took a decided lead, no less than 17 runs being scored before the third man was retired. Alexander and Dingman were the battery for the winners and French and Smith for the losers. Mr. Wm. Hudson, jr., was umpire and Mr. Wm. Cochrane judge on bases. The line-up of the teams was as follows:

Y.M.C.A.—Dingman, Hayes, Finkle, Ketcheson, Alexander, Tedman, Hitchon, Panter, Mallory.

Springer Lock Co.—Smith, Goyer, Knott, Gunter, McDougall, Duesberry, Bell, Bowden, French.

Score by innings:—

A DEEPER WELLAND CANAL IS URGED

Big Deputation Interview Premier Borden and Other Ministers at Ottawa

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 5.—"We will deal with this business from the standpoint of a business Government, but I cannot promise you immediate action," was the reply of Premier Borden to an important deputation from the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade, which waited upon him and his colleagues this morning to ask for the immediate deepening of the Welland Canal.

"But," added Mr. Borden, "our object is to keep Canadian trade in Canadian channels and to continue as much as we can the policy of making that trade run east and west. We have already received a similar deputation in regard to the Georgian Bay Canal, and I can assure you that the whole question of transportation will be given the most careful consideration.

"We would not even embark upon the construction of a navy without due consideration and I am sure that as business men you would not ask us to pledge ourselves to any definite policy of so heavy a character without due consideration.

"We have only been in power for a few weeks, though to some of us it seems a very much longer time, and you must therefore pardon us if we do not give you an answer off-hand. The whole question of transportation will be carefully considered."

This was the answer given by Hon. R. L. Borden to the influential deputation which this morning asked him on behalf of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade to proceed with the deepening of the Welland Canal as soon as possible.

Those present, in addition to the Ministers and Senator Derbyshire, Claude Macdonnell, M.P., E. A. Lancaster, M.P., and Edmund Bristol, M.P., were W. J. Gage, Toronto; H. Chatham; J. J. A. Hunt, London; H. J. Sims, Berlin; L. Clarke Raymond, Welland; R. G. W. Connolly and W. B. Burgoyne, St. Catharines; H. W. Richardson, Kingston; Col. W. N. Ponton, Belleville; D. W. Carter, Port Colborne; N. C. McLaren, Brockville; R. S. Gourlay, G. T. Somers, and F. G. Morley, of Toronto; J. W. Lyon, of Guelph.

The Tenderfoot Farmer

It was one of these experimental farmers, who put green spectacles on his cow and fed her shavings. His theory was that it didn't matter what the cow ate so long as she was fed. The questions of digestion and nourishment had not entered into his calculations.

It's only a "tenderfoot" farmer that would try such an experiment with a cow. But many a farmer feeds himself regardless of digestion and nutrition. He might almost as well eat shavings for all the good he gets out of his food. The result is that the stomach grows "weak" the action of the organs of digestion and nutrition are impaired and the man suffers the miseries of dyspepsia and the agonies of nervousness.

To strengthen the stomach, restore the activity of the organs of digestion and nutrition and brace up the nerves, use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is an unfailing remedy, and has the confidence of physicians as well as the praise of thousands healed by its use.

In the strictest sense "Golden Medical Discovery" is a temperance medicine. It contains neither intoxicants nor narcotics, and is as free from alcohol as from opium, cocaine and other dangerous drugs. All ingredients printed on its outside wrapper.

Don't let a dealer delude you for his own profit. There is no medicine for stomach, liver and blood "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery."

KILLING OF NAVY DOES NOT AFFECT DRY DOCK SCHEME

Vickers Maxim Plans for a Great Floating Dock at Montreal Will be Carried Out According to Original Proposals

MONTREAL, Dec. 5.—Despite the cancellation of the plans for a Canadian navy drydock and shipbuilding plans proposed for Montreal will not fall through but will be carried out in full, according to a cable received to-day.

The cable says:—

"Despite the abandonment of the baby navy proposals, the Vickers ship repairing plant and floating drydock scheme is proceeding. The drydock will probably be completed next summer. The shipyard will probably be completed on the original plan outlined."

Mr. F. Orr Lewis, who has taken a leading part in forming the Canadian Vickers-Maxim Company, and in carrying through the scheme for establishment of the floating drydock and shipbuilding yards at Monteral, is now in Europe where he has been conferring with the heads of the Vickers-Maxim Company.

Mr. Lewis was the president of the Canadian Vickers-Maxim Company, and he told a Star representative just prior to his departure for Europe that an initial outlay of five million dollars would be made by the Canadian Company. Thirty-five acres of land adjoining the riverside at Molson's Creek Maisonneuve, has been asquired for the shipyard, and in addition the basin will occupy five acres.

The floating drydock is now being built in England, and considerable progress has now been made upon it. It will be 700 feet long, and will have accommodation for vessels up to 25,000 tons.

The erection of the workshops, he said, was to be put in hand at an early date, with a view to completion during the year 1912, and it was expected that the first ships would be launched in 1913. The plant, which would employ 3,000 men, would be capable of accommodating battleships and merchant vessels. As yet the company has received no orders for battleships.

FOUND A WATCH IN A BIG GOBBLER'S CROP

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Joseph German, chef at the Cafe Boulevard, 156 Second Avenue, was preparing a huge 30-pound turkey sent from Vermont for the oven at noon yesterday, and when he split open the crop he heard the jingle of broken glass. Long experience had taught him to expect to find almost anything in the crop of a turkey, but he was surprised when out tumbled a small silver watch, the crystal of which he had broken with his knife.

When Proprietor I. H. Rosenfeld examined the watch he found that it was in good condition except for the broken crystal, and a few turns of the stem started it ticking. It had stopped at 12 o'clock.

A SUGGESTION

Belleville, Dec. 5, 1911.

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Sir,—I beg to call your attention to a building being erected on one of our best corners on Front St.—the corner of Victoria Avenue and Front St. In most of our progressive cities in Canada building inspectors are appointed to whom plans are submitted for their approval, as to design and materials to be used in the building, and the above are to be made to the satisfaction of the inspector, or inspectors, as the case may be. I have been informed that a two story building is to be erected on that corner by the owners. I have no hesitation in saying that will be a mistake, less than three stories high will not be uniform with the buildings adjoining, and will be an injury to property in that locality. If not too late I hope our Council will look into the matter, and prevent an unsightly structure from being erected on that corner.

Yours truly,
WALTER ALFORD.

THE PRIEST WAS SHOWN THE DOOR

NeTemere Decree in Operation in Northern Ontario—A Family Insulted

Under the caption of "Wrecking the Home," the Christian Guardian this week shows that the Ne Temere decree is at work in Northern Ontario. After discussing the decree, the article says:—

"Only last week we were informed of three cases in two small towns. In the first case the husband was a Roman Catholic, and the wife a Methodist, and the wife and children were attending the Methodist church. The priest visted the man and told him bluntly that he was not married, that his children were illegitimate, and that his wife was simply his mistress. This was a little too much for the man, who promptly showed the priest the door, and bade him never to show his face inside the home again.

"In another case the wife was a Presbyterian, and the same tactics were resorted to, but without result. In the third case, however, the husband actually left the wife and children, and for nearly a year he has never contributed a cent for their support. The wife and children are Methodists."

Anæmic Mothers Here is Relief

YOU CAN ENRICH YOUR WORN-OUT BLOOD AND QUICKLY RENEW YOUR HEALTH WITH DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS.

Sufferer of Twenty Years States Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a Real Cure.

"I cannot remember any time during the past 20 years when my head wasn't aching. If I bent over, dark specks would come before my eyes, and it seemed as if all the blood in my body wanted to rush to my head." Thus opens the letter of Mrs. Enoch S. Spry, of Putnam, P. O., and continuing her interesting statement she says: "Work or exertion made my heart beat terribly, and going upstairs caused such shortness of breath that it fairly frightened me. My doctor told me that if that was the cause Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the greatest blood renewer on earth. I tell you how I feel to-day and you can understand what a great cure Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made. I feel strong enough now to work like a man, as for going upstairs on the run, it doesn't bother me at all. I eat, and sleep as well as any person ought, and as for dizziness which used to frighten me so much it has entirely disappeared. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a wondreful woman's medicine. They helped me in other ways too, and I know every woman that uses them will have comfort and good health. Refuse anything offered you instead of Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c. per box. All dealers or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ontario.

BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish. W. FIVE MEN FACE MURDER CHARGES IN MONTREAL

Donato Manconi Staggers Into Court Accused of Murdering Armiglio Santino—Two Compatriots also Accused of Crime—Cummings, Alleged Wife Murderer, Still Bright in Spirits, Contrasting With Ross

MONTREAL, Dec. 6.—"Well, I am glad that I won't have to make any more trips in this black waggon," said John Cummings, the self-confessed murderer of his wife, when he entered the jail yesterday afternoon, after having been fully committed at the Court House before Judge Bazin, to stand trial for murder in the first degree at the March assizes.

"These rides in this closed carriage certainly give me the creeps," he told Constable Lamarre on the way down to the jail.

For the first time since his incarceration he showed an inclination to depart from the absolute silence with which he has surounded him-self since his confession to Chief Carpenter.

He does not appear to realize the seriousness of his position and the casual visitor unacquainted with the prisoner would form the opinion that he stands charged with some minor offence.

In sharp contrast to the behavior of Cummings, Charles J. Ross, who is indicted for the murder of Robert Fitzsimmons, presents a most contrite and pitiful appearance. He has refused to be comforted by the numerous visits of his counsel, Mr. F. Callaghan, and although well educated does not seem to be able to concentrate his mind on the reading matter that has been furnished him. His meals are sent from a neighboring restaurant, but so far he has eaten very sparingly.

Five Charged With Murder.

Although the term of the King's Bench is still more than four months away, there are already five men who stand charged with murder and will probably have to stand trial—John Cummings, Charles J. Ross, Colombo Champini, Jaconi Tholli and Donato Manconi.

The latter was arraigned before Judge Bazin this morning. He is charged with the murder of Armiglio Santino, killed in a row on St. James street, St. Henry, three weeks ago.

The accused has been in the Western Hospital since the fight, as he was badly cut up himself and was only released from the institution last night. He was so weak when arraigned this morning that he had to hang on to the railing in the prisoner's dock for support. He carries his right arm in a sling yet. Champini and Trolli, who took part in the row and are also charged with murder in company with Manconi, were to appear for preliminary inquiry to-morrow, but owing to the state of health of Manconi, the date was fixed for the 13th inst., so as to give the latter a chance to recuperate. A physician explained that Manconi would not be strong enough to stand the strain.

Complaint Over Cummings' Plea.

Manconi was simply charged this morning and was not allowed to plead. In murder cases it is not necessary for a man to plead when arraigned. The Clerk of the Court is not allowed to ask him then, whether he be guilty or not. A plea of not guilty is automatically registered and the preliminary inquiry fixed. This mode of proceeding was not followed in the Cummings case, when the presiding Magistrate allowed the Clerk of the court to ask the prisoner to plead. Cummings not being represented by counsel entered a plea of guilty. The matter has been referred to the Attorney-General by Mr. Leopold Houle, who complained that the questioning of the prisoner by the police and the course followed in the police court were irregular.

NEW CABINET FOR PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Dec. 5.—The new Conservative Cabinet was announced to-day as follows:

Premier and Attorney-General—J. A. Matheson.

Commissioner of Pubilc Works—James A. McNeil, Summerside.

Commissioner of Agriculture—Murdoch McKinnon, Montague.

Without portfolio—John McLean, Souris; Charles Dalton, Tignish; J. A. Macdonald, Cardigan; A. E. Arsenault, Wellington; Murdoch Kennedy, Breadalbane.

All of the above, except Messrs. Stewart and Dalton, have seats in the House. At the meeting of the party to-night it was decided to have the general election in the second week in January. At present the parties stand: Conservatives, 16; Liberal 14.

WOMEN ATTACK OWNERS OF FACTORY WHERE 146 BURNED

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—A mob of three hundred women survivors of the Triangle Waist fire in which 146 girls lost their lives, attacked Isaac Harris and Max Blanck, proprietors of the Waist Company, when the men appeared in court to-day to stand trial for alleged manslaughter.

The women waylaid Harris and Blanck and their counsel in the corridor of the criminal courts building and set upon them so savagely that all the court officials in the building and the police reserves were called out to check them.

With torn clothing and disheveled hair, the defendants were finally released from their assailants and escaped under heavy police protection to the court room. The women had been summoned as witnesses for the prosecution.

TWO MURDERERS PAID THE DEATH PENALTY

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Dec 6.—Hary Jobes, who killed his wife on August 20 last, and Ikr'shi, a Japanese who murdered a fellow countryman in Northern British Columbia, were hanged here yesetrday. The execution was devoid of unusual incident. Jobes shot his wife following a long series of quarrels. He was sixty years of age and he and his wife had two grown sons.

And one touch of fashion makes a lot of women freaks.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

WEDDED AT FOXBORO.

Mr. Clifton Walter Rush and Miss Annie Turner, both of the Township of Sidney, were married on November 25th at the Methodist parsonage, Foxboro, by Rev. A. L. Brown.

AT PLAINFIELD.

At the village of Plainfield last night the Johnstone Clan of this city gave an entertainment which was highly appreciated. It took place in the hall, which was filled to the doors. It was held under the auspices of the C.O.O.F. and Mr. J. W. Boyd, D.D G M., of this city, occupied the chair.

SERIOUSLY INJURED.

F. Daly was seriously injured at the Steel Co.'s plant yesterday afternoon. He was engaged at the shear taking away material, when he stooped down and placed his left hand on the lower blade. The shear came together, severing the third and fourth fingers of his left hand. The injured man was taken to the hospital. To-day he was reported as doing as well as can be expected.

PLEASING CONCERT.

The pupils of Miss Emberson last evening at St. Agnes School Hall gave a programme of vocal and instrumental seceletions which was much admired. All proved themselves to be clever, and demonstrated that they were apt pupils, reflecting credit upon themselves and teacher. Those taking part in the programme were Misses Bessie Benjamin, Jean Wright Gene Caldwell, May Evans, Marjorie Kerr, Jessie McIntosh, Alice Lazier, Ruth Howard, Hilda Ackerill, Edith Fenn, Kate Dulmage, Jean Clinton, Gladys Mayo, Norma McFarlane, Phyllis Bogart, Doras and Thelma Vermilyea and Gordon Robertson. Miss Jean Wright, who is a pupil of Mrs. Wilmot, took part.

DECEMBER NUPTIALS.

On Wednesday evening, Dec. 6, 1911, Miss Violet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sweet, was united in marriage to Mr. William John Yateman, at the home of the bride's parents, Sidney Township, by the Rev. A. R. Sanderson, in the presence of many of the friends of the bride and groom. The bride was giv[illegible]away by her father, and was be[illegible]ngly attired in grey broadcloth, a[illegible]as also the bridesmaid, Miss Anna Duesberry, of Belleville. The groom was supported by his friend, Mr. Wilson Bird, of Belleville. The presents were numerous and useful. After the ceremony the guests were invitd to the large dining room, where oysters, roast duck and many other good things were disposed of. Mr. and Mrs. Yateman will reside near Shannonville.

BURIED IN HUNTINGDON.

The funeral of the late Mrs. W. A. Ketcheson took place yesterday afternoon from the family residence, first concession of Huntingdon, and was largely attended. Services were held in the Methodist Church at Moira, being conducted by the Rev. Mr. Tonkin. Many beautiful floral tributes were contributed by relatives and friends. Interment took place at Vantassel's cemetery. The bearers were: Messrs. A. Herity, B. Sayers, W. T. Walsh, G. Hollinger, D. Thompson and W. J. Donnan.

A FINE MEETING.

One of the finest political meetings ever convened in Ameliasburg was held in Rednerville last night in the interest of Mr. Norman, the Conservative candidate for the Legislature. The hall was filled with representative men from all parts of the township, and the greatest enthusiasm was manifested. Stirring addresses were given by Mr. Harry Corby, ex-M.P., Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., Mr. Dempsey, President of the Township Conservative Association, Mr. Herman Weese, Mr. W. W. Anderson and Mr. Harry Dempsey. Ameliasburg will give the usual large majority for the Conservative candidate on Monday next.

A MANITOBA WEDDING.

On Tuesday afternoon a very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. William S. Card, of Almasippi, when his granddaughter, Lillian M. Carrol, was united in marriage to Mr. Arthur Lawrenson, of Graysville. Owing to the illness of Mrs. Card only the immediate relatives of the young couple were present. The bride, who looked charming in a pretty cream costume, trimmed with crysanthemums, entered the drawing room on the arm of her uncle, Mr. Wesley Card, of Almasippi, to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss M. J. McCullough. The service was performed by Rev. F. W. Cox, of the Church of Christ, Carman. The bride was attended by the groom's niece, Miss G. McCullough, while the groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. W. R. Lawrenson. The young couple were the recipients of handsome and valuable presents. They intend starting in a few days on a wedding trip to Saskatchewan, where they intend spending several weeks. They will then return to their home near Graysville.

NO FAST TO-MORROW.

In virtue of a recent decree of the Hold See, bearing upon the general law of fast and abstinence, all holy days of obligation falling upon any day of fast and abstinence are excepted. Hence the fast and abstinence of to-morrw, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception, is dispensed with.

KING AND QUEEN ARE AT DELHI

Highly Loyal Reception Without a Single Unpleasant Incident

(Intelligencer Special.)

DELHI, India, Dec. 7.—The reception of the King and Queen here today by the natives was a most gratifying exhibition of loyalty. No unpleasant event marked the ceremonies.

SWINDLER SENTENCED

(Intelligencer Special)

TORONTO, Dec. 7.—Joseph Riopel, a young man with a long record as a swindler in the west, was this morning sentenced to eighteen months imprisonment for passing useless cheques. His record shows that he swindled many persons in Brandon, where he posed as Sir Frederick Borden's son-in-law, with a contract to build a provincial asylum.

PROBABLE STRIKE

(Intelligencer Special)

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 7.—Britain is now threatened with a general strike of postal servants during the height of the Christmas season.

McNAMARA WON'T ANSWER

(Intelligencer Special)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 7.—Clarence Darrow stated to-day that John J. McNamara would refuse to answer any questions in the Government's probing of dynamiting cases, even if his information could be traded for favors.

DROWNED AT KINGSTON

(Intelligencer Special)

KINGSTON, Dec. 7.—Fred Rush, wheelsman on the steamer Prince Rupert, fell into the slip at the foot of Princess street during the night and was drowned.

MAY SUE CHURCH: HEBERT MARRIAGE

Damages to be Asked, and Validity of Ecclesiastical Decision Attacked

MONTREAL, Dec. .—The Hebert marriage annulment case entered upon a new phase yesterday afternoon when Mr. George V. Cousins, acting in the interest of Mrs. Hebert, entered an inscription for final judgment ex parte on the opposition entered against the ruling of Mr. Justice Laurendeau some months ago. The opposition asks that the judgment be definitely nullified and set aside; that the marriage contracted before Rev. Mr. Timberlake be declared legal and valid, and that the court ruling annulling it be judged unfounded in law.

It is promised that other developments will follow closely upon the presentation of the inscription, it being stated unofficially that the next step in the proceedings will take the form an attack on the validity of the ecclesastical decree itself, whereby the marriage was declared null and of no effect, whilst an action for damages against the ecclesastical court which promulgated the decree, is also spoken of as a possibility.

Madame Hebert's counsel says:

"We claim that the desistment of the husband has not the effect of annulling the judgment in so far as that judgment denied the status of wife to Dame Hebert. This can be brought about only by a final judgment on the opposition now asked for, and which should prove once and for all the validity of the marriage."

LENNOX COUNTY MEETING.

A large and enthusiastic meeting in support of T. J. Carscallen, the Conservative candidate in Lennox, was held last night at Sillsville. The meeting was addressed by the candidate, Uriah Wilson, ex-M.P., and W. C. Mikel, K.C.

A cheerful liar is more entertaining than a gloomy truth teller.

THE INTELLIGENCER JOB DEPT.

IS UP-TO-DATE IN EVERY RESPECT

Daily Intelligencer.

Some idea may be had of the difficulty of stamping out the liquor traffic in Northern Ontario, when men will pay $5 and $10 for a small flask of liquor—and likely cooking whisky at that.—Hamilton Spectator.

The Prince Edward Island Government has formally resigned and opened the way for the formation of another Conservative administration. Separated from power and prestige at Ottawa, the Liberal idea seems to be that for a while the woods are the proper retreat.—Montreal Gazette.

The police of Hamilton have been instructed to prevent children from sliding on the sidewalks. Such a regulation would be very desirable in Belleville if it were enforced, but here the youngsters do as they please on the hills, sliding, coasting with express wagons and sleighs and skating as they see fit.

Some usually well-informed American newspapers, as for instance the Philadelphia Press, seem to be under the illusion that there has been a change of sentiment in Canada on the subject of reciprocity since the rejection of the pact by the Canadian people. This opinion has been formed, no doubt, through reading Canadian newspapers that fought strongly for the pact, and now "admit" that Canada made a mistake in not heeding their advice. Canada never had so few advocates of reciprocity as she has to-day.—Ottawa Journal.

Seventeen acclamations in Ontario reduce the question before the electors next week to a mere matter of the size of the Opposition. The Whitney Government will have—as it deserves—another term. It has been a progressive Government—a Government in the popular sense of the term—and there is no indication that our sister province would make any gain by calling in the discouraged and timid opposition. The new Liberal leader has not yet found himself; and practically asks for a term in Opposition to hammer out his real policy. Sir James himself would probably prefer a virile opposition. There is nothing like it for keeping the "hold-up" men at bay.—Montreal Star.

A correspondent of an English paper, who spent a night with the Italian troops in the trenches at Tripoli, says that, without exception, they are all, officers and men, heartily sick of the war and longing to be home again. And the correspondent adds that it is impossible not to sympathize with them. Fighting in the ertnches against a relentless, resourceful and unscrupulous enemy is quite a different thing from parading to the music of bands and the cheering of multitudes. And it would be no evidence of either cowardice or lack of patriotism if the Italian soldiers were beginning to ask why they were fighting and where is the noble cause that will sanctify their sufferings.

In their anxiety to get at Canada's natural resources by baiting the hook with free admission of pulp made from wood cut on private lands in the Dominion, the United States has got into a nice mix-up. A despatch from Washington states that Denmark, through its Minister in Washington, has asked under the most favored nation clause in her treaty with the United States, that pulpwood and print paper from Denmark be permitted to enter the United States free of duty in the same manner as has been accorded to Canada. Germany, Norway and Sweden have already requested the same privilege. President Taft who is in a quandary, is considering what course shall be adopted and has had reports from the State and Treasury Departments on the matter.

The Government has decided to transfer the charge of the annuities service administration from the Department of Trade and Commerce to the Post Office. The Post Office is the natural department for such work, as it is the one with which the people most come into contact, and so can secure the needed publicity and do the work with the most efficiency and least cost. The annuities service as a means of borrowing money for the Government's use began badly. It was loaded with a lot of politicians who wanted jobs, and their pay and expenses constituted a load quite out of proportion to the receipts. The situation threatened to make the money cost twice as much as it could be had for in other ways. A change is necessary if the service is to justify itself.—Montreal Gazette.

AMUSEMENTS

FUN AT GRIFFIN'S.

There was a large attendance at the Griffin Opera House last evening to witness the varied programme presented by Prof. McEwen, the king of conjurors and hypnotism. In the first part of the entertainment the Professor demonstrated his ability to disengage himself from handcuffs. Although three and four pairs were tightly locked upon his wrists with but little exertion he was able to loosen them. At one time his hands and feet were securely fastened together with several pairs of handcuffs but in a much shorter time than it took to place them on the professor freed himself from them. This part of his performance was received with much favor. He awakened at the house a subject which he had placed under hypnotic influence at the noon hour. The final part of the evening's performance was both amusing and interesting. The programme is changed nightly.

"DEAR OLD BILLY."

The critics, the public and theatrical managers of reputation and experience, who saw William Hawtrey and his excelent company in "Dear Old Billy" during their four months' run in Chicago, part of which endured through a hot wave that succeeded in closing the doors of all but three theatres in that city, unhesitatingly declare that a more capable or better balanced company has not been assembled in twenty years. To assist Mr. Hawtrey in presenting one of the cleanest, crispest and most wholesomely funny farces that has ever been brought to America, Mr. A. G. Delamater has selected a company that includes E. H. Kelly, formerly leading man with Bertha Kallsch; Bernard Fairfax, formerly with John Drew; Harry Redding, formerly leading juvenile with William Faversham; Harry Lonsdale, formerly with E. S. Willard; Miss Jane Burby, eight seasons with May Irwin; Miss Cassie Jamieson, formerly with Beerbohm Tree; Miss Ruth Tomlinson, formerly with the Mary Mannering Co., and Miss Laura Clement, for the past three seasons with Billie Burke. "Dear Old Billie" comes to Griffin's Wednesday, Dec. 13th.

DEATHS.

MRS. SHAW.

Mrs. Eliza Shaw, an estimable aged lady, died this morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Paul Deshane, of Point Ann. Deceased had been in ill health for some time. Mrs. Shaw, who was 85 years of age, was born in Scotland. She lived in Madoc Township for a long time and for a short period was a resident of this city. She was a member of the Presbyterian church. Her husband preceded her to the tomb some years ago. One daughter, Mrs. Paul Deshane, survives.

LARGEST EGG IN THE WORLD

The Aepyornis Surpassed the Ostrich, the King of Modern Birds

The largest egg in the world has recently been exhibited in the Museums of Natural History of New York and some other cities. It is the egg of the gigantic extinct bird called Aepyornis, which formerly lived in considerable numbers on the Island of Madagascar. This was a huge wingless creature, the largest and most formidable bird of prey that ever trod the earth. In life it has been variously estimated to have stood from seven to twelve feet in height, possessing massive and powerful limbs. This great bird surpassed the ostrich, the king of modern birds, both in size, herculean strength and build. The Aepyornis egg is six times larger than that of the ostrich, having a capacity of 150 hen eggs. Here are some of the astounding dimensions of the big egg: The shell is about one-eighth of an inch thick, the lengthwise circumference is two feet eight inches, and two feet two inches around the middle. Though termed a fossil egg, it is not petrified or turned to hard stone as in the case of dinosaur bones. It is in a surprisingly perfect condition, unbroken, and has a yellow color, although finely pitted in places. The contents have not been removed, as they have turned to fine dust, which comes out when handled through a small natural perforation on one side. The Aepyornis that laid this colossal egg has not been seen in the life of the present generation of the inhabitants of Madagascar. In former times, several centuries ago, they were quite abundant. Several incomplete fossil remains of the bird have been discovered, but no complete skeleton has yet b[illegible]und. These show that the bird wa[illegible]nly of massive proportions, but [illegible] winged, and has been classed as a distant relative of the Moas and the Apteryx, fossil birds of New Zealand. The natives of Madagascar have for many years used the great eggshells for various domestic purposes, for carrying water and as jars for storing and holding food. Only two or three of these huge eggs have been obtained by Europeans and these were usually found in the sand beds of torrents. The present egg is said to be one of the largest and most perfect ever brought into civilization.

RULES OF GREAT WORTH

Before going to bed that night the discouraged girl had committed to memory these rules for being a good clerk which the older woman had prepared in the form of an acrostic, daintily colored and framed:—

Make light of hardships, forget annoyances, and keep cheerful.

Avoid quarrels, close intimacies and gossip.

Keep alert, interested, attentive and progressive.

The door closed, I turned upon my unoffending associate rather angrily I'm ashamed to say; but Stodger's good-nature was imperturbable. He could tell me absolutely nothing that threw light upon whatever terrifying experience Miss Cooper had undergone.

He had remained at the spot where I had last seen him, he said; a position he had assumed purposely, because from there he had a view of practically the entire second floor. He had opened all the doors so that the slightest sound or movement in any of the chambers could not fail to attract his attention. Immediately behind him by simply turning his head, he could see through the bath room, across the landing at the top of the rear stairs and into the small sewing-room beyond. To right and left—east and west—the corridor extended the width of the house, and an intruder could have gained access to any of the rooms only by passing the watcher.

The sudden piercing scream, Stodger protested, had startled and astonished him as much as it had anybody. He wheeled rounnd to find the bath room door so nearly closed that it was impossible to glimpse what lay beyond until he had again opened it, which he had done promptly, he declared, to behold only Miss Cooper. She was lying on the floor in a dead faint.

Miss Belle called to me, after a minute or two of anxious waiting, and I hastened into the bath room. Genevieve was so far recovered that she was able to look wonderingly up at her cousin. Her face was white and drawn. Her cousin was upon one knee, supporting her upon the other and holding her tightly.

I knelt upon the other side, taking one of the little hands in mine. Almost at once I was gladdened and relieved by seeing the sweet face break into one of its lovely smiles.

"What was it?" I asked, anxiously enough. "Have you been hurt?"

"No, no," replied she, quickly, "not hurt—not in the least; only frightened within an inch of my life." She shuddered, and made as if to rise.

"Let me up, Belle; I'm all right now—just a wee bit trembly from the shock, maybe, but I can stand."

She tried to laugh and to make light of the matter, but the pale lips and quivering muscles belied the attempt. I lifted her to her feet. Her cousin remained close to her, keeping a supporting arm around her waist and watching the white countenance with a passionate solicitude that made me glance curiously at her.

Every action, almost every word, of this vivid, high-spirited girl seemed to be an echo of her impetuous, wayward temper. Even a concern as natural as that excited by her cousin's present plight, was charged with an intensity which made me wonder what the effect might be if her feelings were ever ruthlessly stirred. While her affections were stamped with an immoderate fervor, one might readily enough fancy her resentment, fired by a word perhaps, striking with a blind vehemence that recked not at all of consequences. Her emotions, apparently, knew no happy, tranquil, steadfast medium.

As we stepped into the hall, Genevieve was saying, "I'll go with you to the library. I merely got what I deserved, I suppose, for presuming to think that I might accomplish something single-handed. But—oh, it was dreadful!"

"What was?" bluntly demanded Miss Belle. "What silly notion ever made you jump up and sail out of the room that way?"

Genevieve turned to me with a faint smile.

"The face at the curtains," said she.

"Face!" echoed Miss Belle, manifestly believing that her cousin's mind was not normal. "For goodness' sake Genevieve, what do you mean?"

But the girl continued to address me.

"You didn't see it?"

We had paused at the head of the stairs, two of us nonplussed and very curious. I shook my head.

"When you left the room," said I, "I was too occupied otherwise to be heeding the curtained alcove. I wondered, though, what sudden impulse moved you—why you should have gone into the alcove at all."

"I knew that you could not leave the room right then," she explained, the color coming quickly back to her cheek; "I remembered our pact, and I thought I saw an opportunity of being really of assistance. It is not to be wondered at that nobody else saw what I did. It all happened so siwftly. By the merest chance I glanced toward the alcove, and at that very instant the curtains parted sufficiently for me to see a face." Again she shuddered.

"Mr. Swift, it was the most hideous face I ever looked upon. Had I been alone in the library doubtless it would have terrified me even then. But instantly it disappeared, and without a thought of being afraid, I hastened to investigate.

"As I got to the conservatory I saw the door at the farther end just closing. It didn't slam—there wasn't a sound—but simply closed quickly before my eyes. Never for a moment did it occur to me that I ought to be cautious; that closing door only made me run the faster to learn who or what had closed it.

"Well, when I opened it, and the same thing repeated in the bedroom beyond—a door closing, apparently from its own volition. The same thing happened with the door opening into the rear hall.

"It was maddening to be just so far behind and unable to gain the fraction of a second which would enable me to find out who was fleeing from me in such haste—maddening to be rewarded with no more than a procession of closing doors.

"The chase continued on up the rear stairs, to the landing between the bath room and the small room at the back; there for the first time I felt a misgiving, and I hesitated. I was out of breath, my heart was pounding until my ears roared; everything else was so deathly still.

"A glance told me that the rear room was empty of any living presence. Cautiously I pushed open the bath room door; but it was too dark to see inside."

"Was the door into the hall shut?" I interrupted quickly, remembering that Stodger believed it to be open.

"Yes. I entered a bit timidly; all my assurance had somehow evaporated. Then—then, before I had time to make another move, two hands seized me.

"I was thrown violently against the wall, and one of the hands tried to grasp my throat. I was fighting as hard as I could; but—I was helpless.

"Then I screamed. I put my whole soul into it. Everything slipped away from me, I knew nothing more until Belle was holding me in her arms and I felt her dabbing my face with water. . . . Dear girl, don't look so tragic; I'm all right now."

While Geneive hung close at my side, the inquest waited until I had searched the place from cellar to garret. But never a trace of the mysterious intruder did I find. When I became satisfied that he had safely made his escape I asked Genevieve to describe the face.

"I'm afraid I can't," she returned hesitatingly. "I had such a lightning-like glimpse of it. Still, in a general way, it was very swarthy and wrinkled—quite ape-like. The lower part was covered with a short, curling, sparse black beard; the eyes were like"—she searched for a simile—"like a snake's."

"That's graphic enough," I said; "but the description fits no countenance that I can now call to mind."

"What can it mean?" she asked wonderingly.

"It means," I grimly replied, "that I guessed right: the ruby is in this house. And I'm going to have a time keeping it here, too, until I find it myself."

The one mistake of the intruder, whoever he might be, had been in peeping between the alcove curtains; of course he had been reconnoitring only; but a person who could move through the house so noiselessly might easily have accomplished, without discovery, whatever errand brought him there.

The idea was positively uncanny and far from pleasant to dwell upon. Stodger's hearing may not have been remarkably acute, but if my life depended upon shutting the door so close behind him and not attracting his attention, why, I should have hesitated long before essaying the performance. To have the ruby lifted from under the very noses of the watchers—while they were wide awake, too—would in all truth be a sorry ending of our search for it.

For the nonce, however, the mysterious face, introduced only an additional problem; one upon which I had but little time, just at present, to bestow thought. The drama in the library had been interrupted at its most crucial stage. It was all-important that at least one phase of the case be brought to a termination, however unsatisfactory that termination might be, before anything else should be undertaken.

Land Shows

Thoroughly aroused at last through the immigration reports of the Canadian Government, showing conclusively that the tide of immigration that formerly helped to populate and build up the American West has been diverted, and is flowing to the Canadian West in ever-increasing numbers, the States of the American northwest have at last decided upon concerted action looking toward checking this startling exodus from the eastern States to the Dominion.

With this end in view, practically every western and northwestern State is participating, on a larger or smaller scale, in the many land shows that are being held in the east at this time. Through the medium of the excellent exhibits of the States' resources are ocular substantiation of the claims set forth by the literature and statistics distributed at these shows, the individual States hope to prove to the people of the east that the opportunities presented to them in their own west are greater than those offered to the homeseekers who move to Canada.

Immigration statistics show that the United States is losing its population at the rate of 200,000 persons each year, this being the number of homeseekers who are drawn from the crowded centres of population in the eastern United States to western Canada by the promises of marvellous harvests on cheap lands, ocered by the Canadian immigration agents, and which promises have been amply fulfilled.

This is the state of affairs which has led to the holding of the numerous land shows. As a fitting climax to the advertising campaign inaugurated by the West, the northwestern States and Colorado and California have united in what is said to be the most unique method of advertising their resources that has ever been conceived. The plan is the sending of a special train, bearing comprehensive exhibits of each State participating, on a tour of the principal cities of the East, at each of which stops will be made for the purpose of displaying the exhibits and telling the progress of the West, both from an agricultural and industrial standpoint.

While this method of displaying the resources of the West is not in itself new, the unique feature of the tour will be the fact that the Governors of the various States will accompany the exhibits as the official representatives of the States. It is said that the present is the first time in the history of the United States that a congress of chief executives have banded for any similar purpose.

Canada has forced their hands, but they have entered on a hopeless contest. The western provinces of the Dominion have proved that they can produce more grain to the acre, and that of a higher quality, than can be produced in any portion of the United States.

LIBRARY FOR THE BLIND

Last spring a brief article on the Canadian Free Library for the Blind appeared in these columns. In that article it was stated that the Library then at Markham, Ont., was to be removed to Toronto. The removal has since taken place, and the C. F. L. B. now occupies quarters at 105 Annette St., Toronto, Ont.

The Canadian Free Library for the Blind is attempting to reach and benefit all the Blind of Canada, but it is encountering serious obstacles in the realization of this hope from the difficulty of securing names and addresses of those without sight, from the necessity of canvassing for funds to defray the expenses of maintenance. The Board of Management therefore requests all readers of this journal who are acquainted with blind persons not now enjoying the benefits of the library, to send in such names and addresses to the Secretary, S. C. Swift, M. A., 8 Washington Ave., Toronto, Ont. It also makes a direct appeal to the generous Canadian public to contribute, at this joyous season, some small portion of the wealth with which it has been blessed during the past year. All contributions should be sent to the treasurer, B. W. Hermon, Esq., 37 Balmuto St., Toronto, Ont.

It is the desire of the C. F. L. B. to establish a printing department for the purpose of printing texts in embossed type for the use of the Canadian Blind. There is at present no such establishment in Canada, with the result that Canadian literature is practically unavailable to our sightless citizens. Thirty thousand dollars are required to secure a sufficient income to make the plan feasible. Less than a thousand of this amount is in the treasury of the C. F. L. B. The Library asks the Canadian people this Christmas to help it to realize this plan so worthy of assistance.

Latest reports received from Prince Rupert, the Pacific Coast Terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, indicate that shipping from that point is ever on the increase.

During the month of October there were seventy-nine arrivals and seventy-eight departures.

This is a splendid record for this season of the year.

YOUR MONEY BACK IF YOU'RE NOT SATISFIED.

We pay for all the medicine used during the trial, if our remedy fails to completely relieve you of constipation. We take all the risk. You are not obligated to us in any way whatever, if you accept our offer. That's a mighty broad statement, but we mean every word of it. Could anything be more fair for you?

A most scientific, common-sense treatment is Rexall Orderlies, which are eaten like candy. Their active principle is a recent scientific discovery that is odorless, colorless and tasteless; very pronounced, yet gentle and pleasant in action, and particularly agreeable in every way. They do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, flatulence, griping, or any inconvenience whatever. Rexall Orderlies are particularly good for children, aged and delicate persons.

If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Remember, you can get Rexall Remedies in Belleville only at our store. 12 tablets 10 cents; 36 tablets 25 cents; 80 tablets 50c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store.—J. S. McKeown, Belleville.

Remarkable Grandeur of the Scenery Along the Grand Trunk Pacific

Mr. A. O. Wheeler, director of the Canadian Alpine Club, states in his last report that the territory in the vicinity of the head waters of the Athabasca and Whirlpool rivers offers a field for exploration and research, mountaineering and camping, that is absolutely new, and of which practically nothing is known. This group of mountains, through which the Grand Trunk Pacific railway will pass, is magnificent. It rises approximately to 12,000 feet above sea level, and shows contours of the wildest and boldest possible forms. Immense snowfields and huge glaciers are everywhere. Boldest and most inaccessible rise the awful black precipices of Mount Geikie, the central point of the group. Again to the south are an endless array of peaks, towers, pyramids, domes, castles and ramparts, in bewildering confusion. An attempt was made to identify the much talked of giants, — Columbia, Bryce, Lyall, Forbes, etc.—but in the chao[illegible] whole it could not be done with any [illegible]ainty. The Grand Trunk Pacific [illegible]ion formerly known as Fiddle Creek, mile 997.8 west of Winnipeg, has been changed to Mietto Hot Springs. It will be in this locality that the first of the Grand Trunk Pacific mountain hotels will be erected, and is within seven or eight miles of the famous Hot Springs that are situated just beyond the famous Roche Mietto Mountain which looms up to the west of this station.

$250,000,000 INDUSTRY

The Great Rubber Enterprises of Ceylon and Malaya

At the present time it is estimated that the vast rubber industries in Ceylon, Malaya, and other places in the East are responsible for the employment of $250,000,000 capital, and this vast industry owes its conception to the enterprise of one man—i. e., Mr. H. A. Wickham, who, on behalf of what is known as the Middle Eastern rubber industry, was recently presented with a cheque for a thousand pounds and a certificate for an annuity on account of the great services he has rendered in this particular field of commerce.

It was Mr. Wickham who, in 1876, brought from Brazil to Kew Gardens the seeds from which have sprung the vast rubber forests of the East. He was commissioned by the India Office to introduce rubber from Brazil into Ceylon; the difficulty was how to do it. He went to the Topagos Plateau on the Amazon, a remote locality, seized the opportunity of chartering a steamer which happened to be there, hastily collected, with the aid of the Indians, his baskets of seeds from the deep forests, and got them to the coast. As the Brazilian Government would have confiscated the seeds, Mr. Wickham was obliged to smuggle them aboard—70,000 seeds being packed in a few crates.

The seeds would not survive the journey direct to Ceylon, so they were taken first to London. They arrived at Kew Gardens during the night, and were planted out at once. They were too perishable to risk delay until the morning. Seven thousand rubber plants grew from the seeds, and 1,700 of these were sent in miniature hothouses to Ceylon. There they grew into large trees—12 feet in girth—and gave seeds of their own.

Such was the remarkable beginning of an industry now responsible for the employment of $250,000,000 capital in the East.

A SPOILED CHILD WHO WAS BEATEN

Believers in the ancient rule that sparing the rod spoils the child, and those who so frequently lament that teachers in the public schools are no longer permitted to beat their pupils should read with attention the evidence presented at the murder trial now going on in Springfield, Mass.

Spencer, the young prisoner at the bar, has shown since early childhood the traits of character which all advocates of corporal punishment credit the rod with the power to control. He has not governed his temper, he has treated his elders and superiors with insolence. He has been idle and thievish, and as the culmination of his undisciplined career, he has shot dead a young woman who by her screaming imperilled his safety while he was committing a burglary—the last of many in the house where she was living.

But Spencer's father, a respectable Sunday School superintendent of the old New England type—the type that accepted Solomon's dictum as worthy of the wisest man—went on the stand, and in evident self-satisfaction, told how he had pounded his son with a severity that might be called ferocious were it not also conscientious. Every fault had been thus "corrected" and—every fault had thus remained, and increased steadily through infancy and youth, to blossom into robbery and murder in early manhood.

Of course this one case does not prove that children should never be beaten, that none of them profit from being beaten in due measure on discreetly chosen occasions. It does prove, however, that the rod is not invariably a cure for bad morals and bad manners, and that it takes more than pious intention on the wielder's part to assure good results in any case. It is more than probable that what young Spencer became was the result of his father's cruelty, and that the father would not be out of place if he sat in the dock beside his son, or even if he sat there alone, while the son went to a hospital for that treatment of his psychic and physical wounds which he has long needed.

In his case, certainly, the rod was not spared and the child was spoiled. That the relation between the unsparing and the spoiling was that of cause and effect, in the sense that no other causes had to do with producing the effect, it would be rash to assert, but surely this episode in social history of our time must decrease such little confidence in flogging as a disciplinary and remedial measure as still lingers outside the circle of those who take a morbid and perverted joy in bringing the lash down on the shrinking flesh of his little children.—New York Times.

A Simple Treatment that Will Make Hair Grow Now Sold In Canada

Every up to date woman should have radiant hair.

There are thousands of women with harsh, faded, characterless hair, who do not try to improve it.

In England and Paris women take pride in having beautiful hair. Every Canadian woman can have lustrous and luxuriant hair by using SALVIA, the Great American Sage Hair Tonic.

Every reader of The Intelligencer can have an attractive head of hair in a few weeks by using SALVIA. D. M. Waters sells a large bottle for 50 cents and guarantees it to banish Dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in ten days or money back.

SALVIA is a beautiful, pleasant, non-sticky Hair Tonic.

After Forty Years

A remarkable meeting took place at Stuart town, in the Wellington district, between a man named Flowers and his son, who had never seen each other, though the son is forty years of age. Mr. Flowers, senior, left America for Australia forty years ago; his wife remained behind, intending to follow later, but she died in giving birth to a son, who was cared for by an aunt.

The driver's aim should be to manipulate the reins with a light but firm and steady hand.

A roll after a hard day's work is greatly appreciated by the horse. It takes the place of extra feed.

The value of salting the work horse regularly is often underestimated by horsemen. It is a good practice to keep the material before them at all times.

Remember that sudden changes of food may cause colic. New hay, new oats, green corn, etc., are often used. Make the change gradually, and no harm will result.

A horse that is extremely tired should not be given a heavy feed until he has had a little rest. Some feeders act on the supposition that a large amount of feed is what is needed to replace the lost energy. It must be remembered, however, that a horse so exhausted cannot digest food as well as one that is fresh, and, therefore, should be fed accordingly.

Silence is often the best argument.

An Interesting Letter

"Zam-Buk has proved a great comfort to me as it is now something like two months since it cured my little girl of eczema from which she suffered for a year."

THIS is but a fragment of a very interesting letter received by the Zam-Buk Co. from Mrs. E. Cossett, of Joggin Bridge, Digby Co., N.S. The letter continues: "When the sores first broke out I called in a doctor; but his treatment did no good. I tried salves and lotions and washes of all kinds, but the sores still spread. The disease finally became so bad that the child's face and shoulder were completely covered with sores. Imagine the pain the poor child (not a year old) had to suffer!

"One day a friend advised me to try Zam-Buk. I did not have much faith at that time that Zam-Buk would be able to work a cure, but as there could be no harm in trying it, I obtained a supply. At that time the disease had defied all remedies I had tried for over a year. By the time I had tried one box of Zam-Buk there was a marked improvement. I continued the Zam-Buk treatment and day by day the sores showed signs of improvement, until the eczema was confined to the child's shoulder, one sore on which had been particularly deep. By degrees this, also, was healed, and finally Zam-Buk banished every trace of the disease.

"I have waited several months before mentioning this case to you, in order to see if there was any return of the eczema. There has not been any return; the cure being permanent, and there is no scar or trace of the disease from which the child suffered so long. You may publish this information if you wish, so that every mother may know the value of Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk is just as good for cold sores, chapped hands, piles, blood-poison, ulcers, bad leg, varicose ulcers, scalp sores, frost bite, baby's chafed places, etc. Also as an embrocation for rheumatism, sciatica, etc. All Druggists and Stores, 50c box or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

Princess Pat at Halifax.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 7.—The steamer, Empress of Ireland, aboard of which is the Princess Patricia, is not likely to reach Halifax before seven o'clock to-night. In order to reach port at this hour the steamship must make 18 miles per hour, which she is likely to do. The Princess Patricia will leave by the eight o'clock train Friday morning. The car Cornwall will be reserved for the princess' use.

Fire In Gas Works.

Woodstock, Ont., Dec. 7.—Fire broke out in the gas works last night. Before it was extinguished by the fire department several hundred dollars' damage was done. There was danger from explosion for a time, and many barrels of oil in a woodyard nearby narrowly escaped burning.

Four Killed In Wreck.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 7.—Four men were killed and a score injured, a number of them seriously, shortly before eight o'clock yesterday morning in a wreck of two freights and an express train on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Devil's Bend, one-half mile east of Manor, Pa.

J. W. Knight Arraigned.

Huntsville, Ala., Dec. 7.—The case of John W. Knight, charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud, was called in the U. S. District Court here yesterday.

Knight, head of the defunct cotton firm of Knight, Yancey & Co., of Decatur, Ala., was arrested after the failure of his firm for several million dollars. He was indicted November 22, 1910, and held under a $20,000 bond.

The C.P.R.'s Line.

Ottawa, Dec. 7.—The plan filed with the Railway Commission yesterday by the Canadian Pacific Railway, for its lake front line, shows that it leaves the main line one mile west of Agincourt and runs therefrom southeasterly to Whitby, and through Oshawa, Cobourg, Belleville to Glen Tay on the main line a short distance west of Perth.

Will Force It Through.

London, Dec. 7.—Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon that the Government would use all the constitutional means at its disposal to pass a home rule bill for Ireland during the lifetime of the present Parliament.

Mr. Asquith declared this in reply to a question from William O'Brien, member for Cork city, who expressed concern at a recent report that Mr. Asquith was trying to get the House of Lords to throw out the home rule bill when it reaches the Upper House.

The Premier by his announcement yesterday means that he undertakes to force the home rule bill through three consecutive sessions if necessary, thus making it become effective in spite of the opposition of the peers.

Job Harriman Routed.

Los Angeles, Dec. 6.—Alexander, good Government candidate for mayor, was re-elected yesterday by an overwhelming majority over Job Harriman, Socialist. The count of ballots at 8.30 o'clock in 76 precincts out of a total of 317 gave Alexander 27,999, and Harriman 10,554.

This shows a gain for Alexander of about 3 to 1, compared with the primary vote.

Give a small boy a piece of chalk and he will proceed to make his mark in the world.

FURTHER CHARGES.

Philadelphia and Denver Blame McNamaras For Outrages.

Philadelphia, Dec. 7.—The McNamara brothers were responsible for explosions in this city which damaged structural iron works on several building operations, according to Wm. J. Burns, the detective, who yesterday arrived from Cleveland.

"Yes," he said, "I am positive that both of them were responsible for all the explosions in this city on structural iron work during the last few years, and others are implicated."

"Will the future arrests include any past or present members of the structural ironworkers union?" he was asked.

"I do not care to say, but I will say this—the National Board of the association appropriated certain sums to John J. McNamara, and in my opinion they knew the money was to be used for dynamiting purposes."

Burns Agents In Denver.

Denver, Col., Dec. 7.—Hoping to clear up some of the mysterious dynamitings in Colorado in recent years, agents of Wm. J. Burns arrived yesterday to conduct the investigation. It is said that the detectives will base their inquiries on the confession of Harry Orchard, now serving a life sentence for slaying Governor Steunenberg of Idaho, and evidence given in his confession.

The investigation is said to be a part of the federal inquiry conducted by Special Assistant Attorney-General Oscar Lawlor, now in Los Angeles in connection with the McNamara case.

Four Die In Fire.

Philadelphia, Dec. 7.—Four bodies, a man, two women and a child, have been taken from the ruins of the Marie apartment house. They have not been identified, but it is believed they are the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Balfour, their child, and Miss Baker, who were first reported to have escaped. About twenty persons, several of them women prominent in society, were in danger.

The burned building was a four-storey stone residence, which had been converted into an apartment house. Most of the occupants, a majority of whom are women, had retired for the night when the flames were discovered on the second floor.

Several women received injuries by jumping from windows, and four firemen were overcome by smoke. The loss was $100,000.

Men Go Back.

Berlin, Dec. 7.—The lockout of metal workers which began on Nov. 30 and affected between 50,000 and 60,000 men ceased yesterday. A majority of the strikers were opposed to a compromise between the masters and men, which was drawn up on Tuesday, but as a technical ruling of the trade unions requires a two-thirds' majority to reject compromise proposals and to refuse to return to work, and this majority was not obtained, the lockout has come to an end.

Turks Attack Bulgarians.

Constantinople, Dec. 7.—Serious rioting has taken place at Istib, a town in European Turkey, about 90 miles north of Saloniki, consequent on the bomb outrage in a mosque there on Dec. 4, when 12 persons were killed and 20 wounded.

The Turks in revenge attacked the Bulgarians, whom they accused of being the perpetrators of the outrage, killing 14 and wounding 157 of them in the affray.

15 YEARS A DYSPEPTIC

Forced to Live on Stale Bread and Porridge.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" CURED HIM

AVONDALE, N. B., October, 15th.

"I have been a great sufferer from Indigestion for fifteen years. I was forced to deny myself all such hearty foods as beans, meats, potatoes and could not drink tea or coffee. For the past two years, I lived on porridge, stale bread, etc. I had treatment from two doctors, and tried nearly every kind of medicine, but got worse.

"Finally I saw a testimonial of "Fruit-a-tives" and concluded to give them a trial. I took nearly four boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" and they have made me feel like a new man. I can eat all kinds of hearty foods without suffering, and am no longer constipated."

LEMUEL A. W. BROWN.

Many people look on "Fruit-a-tives" as a miraculous medicine. It has indeed performed what have seemed like miraculous cures in hundreds of cases of chronic Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Constipation and Biliousness.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fresh fruit juices and valuable tonics. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

DO YOU KNOW HOW TO BREATHE?

Not One in Ten Adults Know the Correct Way.

A gentleman gave good advice to a young lady who complained of sleeplessness. He said: "Learn to breathe, and darken your room completely, and you won't need any doctoring!"

"Learn how to breathe! I thought that was one thing we learned before coming into the world," the insomnic said, ruefuly.

On the contrary, not one in ten adults know how to breathe. To breathe perfectly is to draw the breath in long, deep inhalations, slowly and regularly, so as to relieve the lower lungs [illegible] noxious accumulation.

I have overcome nausea, headache, sleeplessness, seasickness, and even more serious threatenings, by simply going through a breathing exercise pumping from my lower lungs, as it were, all the malarial inhalations of the day by long, slow, ample breaths. Try it before going to bed, making sure of standing where you can inhale pure air, and then darken the room completely. We live too much in an electric glare by night. If you still suffer from sleeplessness after this experiment is fairly tried, I shall be surprised.

MAN OF THE PAST

Sir James Grant Refers to Some Canadian Pioneers

Sir James Grant, Ottawa, addressing the members of Zetland Masonic Lodge, Toronto, said in part: "Canada cannot boast of historic temples, ancient monuments or archaeological developments, but she has a pride in the men of the past century who, throughout the country, have taken an active part in making Canada the great centre of attraction in the civilized world. In 1850 I entered McGill University in Montreal as a student of medicine, and resided with the late Mr. Allan Macdonald, ex-chief factor of the Hudson Bay Company in the Northwest. He was a gentleman of high culture and refinement of taste, and was a remarkable example of the intellectual ability common amongst the factors of the Hudson Bay Company." Sir James spoke of the days he spent with Sir George Simpson and other Hudson Bay factors at the home of the late Mr. Macdonald, and how the conversations always turned to the wonderful work of the Hudson Bay Company from the Atlantic to the Pacific in the fur trade. Mr. Macdonald lost his eyesight two years after Sir James first met him, and the latter was asked to take charge of the bulk of Mr. Macdonald's correspondence, and Sir James said that in this way he was in a position to learn a great deal about the workings of the historic fur-trading company, and of the extent of its influence on the future of Canada's commerce. He said that in 1863 he delivered in the city of Ottawa, where he moved in 1854, an address on the desirability of closer union between the different Provinces of the Dominion, and of the early construction of the Trans-continental Railway. Sir Jonh Macdonald asked the speaker where he got so much information relative to these subjects, and Sir James's reply was that he got most of it as a result of his close associations with the factors of the Hudson Bay Company.

FUEL FROM POTATOES

In the Form of Denatured Alcohol They Will be Valuable

Culled potatoes will be furnishing the power for the gang plow and the engine on the farm before many more years go by.

A bushel of culled potatoes is worth fifty-six cents. Turned into denatured alcohol they would be worth seventy-two cents. The process of extracting the alcohol is not one that every farmer can carry on, but the alcohol is there all right.

Alcohol is produced by the fermentation of sugar. Potatoes contain starch that may be converted into sugar by the addition of malt and then fermented. The potatoes are steamed until the starch is cooked thoroughly. Then the malt is added. When the starch has been converted into sugar a yeast mash is added and the sugar is fermented. What is left from the potato mash can be fed to cattle. Experiments have proved that the mash has a high feeding value.

Denatured alcohol is used for heating and lighting, in chemicals, in varnishes, in explosives, and as a fuel for engines. For some years the tax laws were such that alcohol was too expensinve as fuel for engines. For this reason machinery has not been adapted for using denatured alcohol. But it is coming into use.

The United States Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin recently on this subject. Denatured alcohol is being extracted from potatoes in other countries with success.

A distillery for this sort of work might be conducted by a farmer's coöperative association or as a private enterprise. A plant with a daily capacity of eight thousand pounds of potatoes would cost approximately $12,000. This is larger, considerably than would be practicable for a coöperative enterprise. The plant would have to be in a potato growing country with good railway facilities.—Kansas Industrialist.

USING WOOD SCRAPS

Tag Ends Left from Big Work Not Wasted Nowadays

In these days of high-priced lumber the utilization of the small pieces of wood formerly considered of little or no value assumes considerable importance. The Woodworker gives a number of uses for these scraps.

Brush manufacturers have made some headway in using waste from furniture factories, but the pieces are of so many sizes and of such irregular shapes that success has been only partial. A small porch chair shop has been able to draw a considerable part of its raw material from the waste of boat factories.

Wheelwrights save the ends cut from spokes and shape them in lathes for chisel, gimlet, auger and other small tool handles. Wagon builders occasionally make use of scraps of hardwoods for lining brake blocks. Sash and blind makers save their scraps for the match factories, or if the pieces are large enough they are worked into corner blocks, rose blocks and balusters.

Coopers recut broken or defective staves of the larger sizes and make kegs or smaller vessels of them. Small headings are economically manufactured in that way. Occasionally defective staves and headings are made into dowels. Basket makers save the cores from which veneer has been cut and saw them into thin slats for baskets and crate covers.

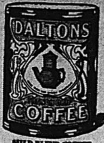
Some of the makers on interior finish work their odds and ends of soft woods into small boxes and the hardwood scraps are made into parquet flooring. Planing mills work scraps and broken pieces, unsalable in that form, into boxes for apples medicines and other articles and into brackets, balusters, rose blocks and small quarter-round moulding.

Every woman would study geography if the boundary lines were all hemstitched.

There is seldom any money in the helping hand a man is willing to lend.

Does Your Husband

Drink Tea at Home and Coffee at the Hotels?



MILD BLEND COFFEE

HERE IS THE ONLY SECRET OF GOOD COFFEE?

It is not because a French chef makes the coffee at the big hotels—nor only because they use expensive coffee—that it tastes so good. It IS because the chef makes the coffee the right way.

Boiling ruins coffee. Such coffee is always bitter and weedy, and the longer coffee is boiled, the less flavor it has. Boiling drives off the fine aroma and flavor and leaves in the grounds and woody fibre, which are responsible for so much indigestion among coffee drinkers.

Dalton's French Drip Coffee Pot means all the good of coffee and always good coffee—and it means that you can make a cup of delicious coffee with ⅓ less coffee.

We give this French Drip Coffee Pot absolutely free in order that you will be able to prepare

Dalton's French Drip Coffee

as it should be made. And Dalton's Coffee is worth making right. It is entirely different, and better,—a Coffee you can drink every day, as much as you like, without fear of the effects of ordinary Coffee. By our special processes of selecting the raw Coffee—in cleaning, blending, roasting and grinding it—we take out the bitter skin which lines the Coffee berry. It is this skin, roasted and ground up in ordinary Coffee, that produces the ill-effects so common to drinkers of ordinary Coffee.

When you make a cup of Dalton's French Drip Coffee, in a Dalton's French Drip Coffee Pot, you get the delights of the finest Coffees in the world—with none of the faults of ordinary Coffee.

This French Drip Coffee Pot Free with one tin each of Dalton's MILD and STRONG Coffee at 50c. a tin.

Dalton's Coffee is better, very much better, than ordinary Coffee and you can drink it for every meal, all the year round. Only—it should be made properly. This is why we make this special offer.

SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER

We feel so sure that you will find either Dalton's Mild Blend or Strong Blend French Drip Coffee just the Coffee that you have been looking for that we have authorized your Grocer to give you one of these handsome pots (worth $1.30) absolutely Free with the first purchase of a tin each of Mild and Strong Blend. You buy two 50c. tins of our Coffee—one of each blend—to give it a fair trial and we give you the means of testing it FREE, satisfied that you will use nothing but Dalton's French Drip Coffee thereafter.

NON-JURY SITTINGS HAVE BEEN CLOSED

Summary of the Cases and their Disposition Before Hon. Justice Middleton

The non-jury sittings of the High Court of Justice were concluded yesterday afternoon. The Hon. Justice Middleton presided. The following cases were disposed of:

Kincaid v. C. N. O. R.—Plaintiffs are farmers in Sidney and sued to compel the Railway Co. to put in and maintain a cattle pass under their railway crossing the plaintiffs' farm, and to pay compensation for land taken for railway's right of way. Defence was that railway did not agree to put in cattle pass only if it was practicable, which it was not. Judgment declaring that defendants must build and maintain a standard cattle pass and pay $350 without interest for land taken and pay plaintiffs' cost of the action. G. F. MacDonald, Toronto, for railway; Porter & Carnew for plaintiffs.

VanMeer v. Reave.—Claim by plaintiff for improvements made in defendant's farm during the time plaintiff has been a tenant of same. Defence denied all liability. Action dismissed with costs. Wills & Wright for plaintiff; Porter & Carnew for defendant.

Simpson v. Simpson.—Plaintiff and defendant are mother and son, and reside in Trenton. Plaintiff (mother) was the owner of a valuable property in Trenton and in 1902 the plaintiff's husband conveyed the property to the son (although the father had no title) the mother joining in the deed to bar her dower. The mother claimed that she did not know it was a deed she signed and did not have the matter explained to her. After deed was made the son paid off a mortgage on the property amounting to $583 and built a bakery and shop upon the premises. All parties occupied the house together. Action by plaintiff to set aside deed and put defendant out of possession. Defendant claimed $1188 for improvement and mortgage paid. Judgment setting aside deed and declaring plaintiff entitled to possession and ownership of land; plaintiff to convey to defendant so much of land as is covered by the bakery on payment of $150 value of that part of land; plaintiff to pay defendant $217, being amount paid by defendant on the mortgage after charging him with rental during the time he occupied the premises. No costs to either party. Porter & Carnew for plaintiff; Wills & Wright for defendant.

Youne v. Dennon & Rogers.—Plaintiff, Italian workman, was engaged in work blasting rock on the site of the Trent Canal by defendants who are contractors on part of the work of construction. By the premature explosion of a charge of dynamite put into the rock by plaintiff he was injured, having his thumb blown off, arm broken, and other injuries. Plaintiff claimed that explosion was caused by negligence of defendants in using or allowing to be used an unsafe system of loading the holes when drilled in the rock, and not sufficiently instructing the plaintiff so he could perform his work safely. Defence—No negligence on part of defendants, and contributory negligence on part of plaintiff. Judgment for plaintiff for $1500 with costs of action. Porter & Carnew for plaintiff; Clarke, K.C., Bowes, & Serabey, Toronto, for defendants.

MR. W. B. NORTHRUP M.P. WAS ENTERTAINER

Member for East Hastings Entertained Conservative Presidents at Bancroft

A most successful banquet was given at Kennedy's Hotel, Bancroft, on Tuesday evening last by Mr. W. B. Northrup, M. P., to the officers of the Conservative Associations of the seven northern townships of Greater East Hastings.

The dining room was well filled with the stalwarts of that part of the constituency, and the menu of Mine Host Kennedy was all that could be wished. Mr. Northrup thanked his friends for their generous support in the last election, and their acceptance for that evening, and then handed the toast list over to Mr. Eby, of Bancroft, whose irresistible wit and humor made this, which is generally the most trying patr of the evening's programme, a continuous success, without a single dull moment.

After the toast of The King and the Governor General had been duly honored, the company singing "God Save the King" to the first, and "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" to the second, the Toast Master proposed the toast of "Canada" which was responded to at some length by Mr. Northrup, who dwelt not only upon the blessings and potentialities, but also the responsibilities of Canada. His denunciation of the selfish craven spirit heretofore displayed by the Canadian Government and his expressions of the duty that devolved on the greatest of King George's over-seas dominions met with a reception that showed that his constituents will support their member in the advocacy of any measure intended to preserve the supremacy of our Empire's navy and befitting the dignity, wealth and loyalty of Canada.

The toast of "Our Mining Interests" brought to their feet Mr. Morrison, Manager and one of the proprietors of the marble quarry near Bancroft, and Mr. T. C. McConnell, who gave valuable information touching the mineral and other deposits of Hastings.

Mr. Morrison pointed out that the new Standard Bank in Toronto admittedly the finest bank building in the city, is entirely decorated with marble of various kinds taken from his quarry, where the quantity is practically inexhaustible, and the quality is far superior to any other yet found in America.

The toast of "Our Riding" brought up Mr. Price, Mr. Geo. Adams, Mr. Jno. H. Hawkins, and S. Edwards, who naturally spoke with confidence and pride both of the past and future of the County of Hastings.

"The Press' found an able champion in Mr. Morrison, proprietor of the Bancroft Times, who briefly but eloquently upheld the interests of the Fourth Estate.

"The Ladies" found able champions in Mr. E. T. Lumb and Mr. Quirk, and the "Host and Hostess" closed the list.

Guest after guest having suggested that the success of the evening would justify it being made an annual affair, Mr. Northrup, acceeded to the request and it was agreed that in the future such a gathering will be held every year.

The meeting broke up with cheers for the King, the Governor General and Mr. Northrup.

Mechanical Equivalent of Heat.

The mechanical theory of heat regards heat as a mode of motion, and investigation has shown that there exists a definite relation between those two forms of energy, which is known as the mechanical equivalent of heat, or Joule's equivalent. That is, if, as in the experiments of Joule, a certain known amount of mechanical energy be expended, as, for instance, by the falling of a weight to operate paddles in a vessel of water, the increase in temperature of the water, due to agitation by the paddles will always be found proportional to the work done. This relation or proportion is expressed by the amount of work necessary to raise the temperature of one pound of water at 62 degrees Fahrenheit through one degree at atmospheric pressure, or, in other words, impart one British Thermal Unit to the water. The heat necessary to raise the temperature of one pound of water from 62 degrees to 63 degrees temperature was found by Joule to be able to perform work equal to the raising of 772 pounds one foot in height. The latest experimental determination of Rowland shows that the exact value is somewhat higher than 772, and 778 is the value now usually accepted as the correct mechanical equivalent.

CHINESE REGENT QUITS

Prince Chun Resigns Tries to Save Throne For Son.

Repentance Is Believed, However, to Have Come Too Late — Premier Yuan Shi Kai Looks to Britain to Mediate Between Imperialists and Rebels—Latter Well Pleased With Affairs.

Pekin, Dec. 7.—An edict announcing the resignation of the Regent, Prince Chun, was issued yesterday by the Empress Dowager. It is signed by the members of the Cabinet, and points out that the administration has been unpopular and that a constitutional government has not yet been established, explaining this by the fact that complications arose, the people's hearts were broken and the country was thrown into turmoil. The Regent regrets that his repentance came too late and feels that if he continued in power his commands would soon be disregarded.

The Regent has been granted 50,000 taels annually from the Imperial household allowances.

The Regent sacrificed himself in a last effort to save the throne for his son, but unless all evidences fail, it is too late. Premier Yuan Shi Kai has let Pekin know that he has taken the British Minister, Sir John Jordan, into his confidence. He has told the Minister his plans, and says that he hopes much from the Minister's mediation.

On the other hand, the rebels last night confidently stated that Yuan Shi Kai is their man. They describe him as a master statesman, because he is accomplishing the transition from the Manchu dynasty to a Republican without a massacre or an attack on the legations.

Sheldon In Good Spirits.

Montreal, Dec. 7.—Chas. D. Sheldon, the financial wizard, who is doing time in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, for doing the public out of a million or so, was called as a witness yesterday in the case taken by the curators to recover money he paid in dividends the last day the office was open.

He was the same old Sheldon with the ministerial air, the smile and the out-stretched hand. His health is good, "as," he said, with a laugh, "prison has its good points as well as its bad ones."

He was asked what his plans were for the future. "Well, if the people of Montreal will only have a little more faith in me when I get out I could pay back——" and then the guards took a hand in the conversation.

Denial By Belcourt.

Ottawa, Dec. 7.—Senator N. A. Belcourt writes to The Ottawa Journal as follows:

"My attention has been called to the statement made by J. U. Vincent at the Conservative meeting held in St. Ann's Hall, that the French-Canadian Educational Association, its officers, Liberals, had laid down the principle that the French should always vote for one of their own.

"As president of the association, I deny categorically and emphatically that the association has ever laid down such a principle, and I may add that the association has never preached or practiced such a narrow, bigoted and foolish course."

Mutually Pleased.

Washington, Dec. 7.—On the introduction of a night lettergram service on the cables between Great Britain and the United States yesterday, Postmaster-General Hitchcock exchanged felicitations with Postmaster-General Samuel at London. To the U. S. official was granted the distinction of sending the first message, which was merely a conveyance of good wishes. Mr. Samuel, in reply, said he welcomed the new service because "each new facility for communication between the two countries, by increasing mutual knowledge, will strengthen mutual good will."

Passengers All Safe.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 7.—Wireless communication has at last been established with the United Fruit Co.'s vessels for the safety of whose 600 passengers much alarm was felt. The report states that the vessels weathered the storm safetly and that all are well.

Tremendous damage is reported to the banana crop, some estimates placing the injury done at sixty per cent. of the growth.

U. S. Packers Steal March.

London, Eng., Dec. 7.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—The reported purchase of Nelson & Co.'s Argentine meat plant by Armour & Co. for two and a half million dollars is generally credited here and has filled English salesmen with some apprehension as they foresee the complete manipulation of British transatlantic importing trade by American interests to the detriment of Canada and England alike.

"Please Postpone All Deaths."

New York, Dec. 7—James E. Hewes, clerk to the New Rochelle Board of Health, has sent out appeals to all the physicians in New Rochelle requesting them to keep their dying patients alive until the first of the new year, so as to keep the death rate down. Last year New Rochelle had 33[illegible] deaths, which gave a rate of 11.8 a thousand.

Nearly a Tragedy.

Kingston, Dec. 7.—In a fire early yesterday morning the home of Mrs. Margaret O'Neil, Sydenham street, was destroyed, while Mrs. O'Neil's daughter, Kate, and her son, Joseph, had narrow escapes from death.

Appeal to Taft.

Geneva, Switzerland, Dec. 7.—The Persian students resident in Switzerland have cabled an appeal to President Taft asking him, in the name of humanity and liberty, to protect Persia against foreign aggression.

GREY DEFENDS BRYCE

Ex-Governor-General Speaks at Dinner in London.

The British Ambassador at Washington, Says Earl Grey In Address at the Canadian Club In England, Could Not Refuse to Comply With the Wishes of the Laurier Government Regarding Tariff.

London, Dec. 7.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At the Canadian Club last night, Earl Grey was the chief guest, Lord Strathcona presiding. Earl Grey responding to the toast of the Dominion, humorously remarked that for seven years he had to balance himself on the tight-rope of platitudinous generalities, but the success which friends were kind enough to say he achieved was only a fraction of the success which the Duke of Connaught would achieve. Canada was the belle-ball of the Empire, and there was plenty of evidence she was now receiving all the bouquets. After seven years residence, he returned, convinced that Canada, like her wheat, was number one hard.

Speaking of her juxtaposition to the United States, Earl Grey eulogized the Canadian clubs of the Dominion, declaring the directors were only too glad to let the clubs be pulpits for good American preachers. He was vain enough to say that the United States obtained equally as much advantage from its juxtaposition, and Canada hope more and more every year to set an example of high living which might have good results on her powerful neighbor.

He continued: "I hear the British Ambassador has been attacked for the part he played in the reciprocity arrangements. The people who criticise the ambassador don't know what they're talking about. Ambassador Bryce has no more to do with reciprocity than you. The British Ambassador is the unpaid ambassador of the Canadian people. Have you ever reflected what a note of indignation there would have been if he had refused to represent the views of the Canadian Government in his official capacity? You would very soon have had a demand on the part of Canadians for an ambassador of their own.

Alluding to the emigration of Americans to the western provinces, Earl Grey said in his opinion it had only just begun. Canada was getting the pick of Americans who became as loyal citizens of Britain as they had been of the United States. His opinion had always been that only the complete union with the other side would be when Canada absorbed the United States.

Canada must believe in herself. Had she done so a little earlier, she would not have allowed the buying of Alaska by the U. S., or the Imperial Parliament giving a mail contract to line steamers going to New York, when Canada had a port miles nearer Liverpool. He hoped Lord Strathcona would live to see the accomplishment of the all red route.

Three Blacks Lynched.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 7.—Two negroes and one young negress were burned to death by a mob of white land tenants, who object to the occupancy of land by negroes, near Savannah, Tenn., Tuesday, according to meagre reports received here yesterday. The lynching is said to have occurred ten miles from Clifton, Tenn.

The three negroes were traveling to a gin with a load of seed cotton. They were waylaid and tied to the wagon load of cotton, it is said, and the mob, after making a fire of the wagon, stood guard until the negroes were cremated.

Fire In Toronto.

Toronto, Dec. 7.—Fire, and the attendant flood from twenty lays of hose, through which the streams were held at high pressure by several engines, damaged W. A. Dunn's lumber yard and planing mill, 106 Davenport road, the Old Woman's Home, 53 Belmont street, and surrounding buildings to the extent of $60,000. The fire was a stubborn one to fight, owing to the exceedingly inflammable nature of the materials at hand, and to a defect in the roof construction of the home building, and the insufficient water pressure at the start.

Building Collapse Kills Four.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 7.—Under the glare of searchlights, police and firemen last night searched for the bodies of four persons caught in the wreckage of a three-storey concrete building, which collapsed yesterday at noon, killing four workmen and injuring 21. The building was being erected for the Presto-Lite Co. and the contractor believes that owing to the recent cold weather the concrete had not set properly.

A Chance to Reply.

Washington, Dec. 7.—J. D. Rockefeller and Rev. Fred D. Gates, manager of Mr Rockefeller's charities, were yesterday invited by Chairman Stanley of the House Steel Trust Investigating Committee to appear before the committee next Monday, if they care to do so, to reply to the charges by the Merritt brothers, of Minnesota, concerning the $20,000,000 Mesaba ore properties in Minnesota.

Peonage In Sugar Fields.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Depicting conditions in the sugar beet fields of Colorado approaching peonage, James Bodkin of Mead, Colo., yesterday told the so-called "sugar trust" investigating committee of the House, that city derelicts, recruited from the slums, were kept practically in a state of bondage.

Explosion In Mint.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 7.—Two employes were killed and forty injured by a gas explosion in the gold testing department of the imperial mint yesterday. The whole plant was destroyed, and the building very seriously damaged.

DISMISSALS ASSAILED

Liberals Charge "Spoils System" Against Government.

Premier and Postmaster-General Reply That Civil Servants Who Have Been Discharged Have Broken Rule Concerning Partizanship—Hon. Mr. Foster's Grain Act — Under-Secretary System May Be Established.

Ottawa, Dec. 7.—"No one is more averse to dismissing an official than I, but when an official is guilty of wilful infraction of a rule laid down by this House, what other alternative would a Government have in a case of that kind?"

In these words Hon. R. L. Borden dealt with the charges of wholesale application of the spoils system brought against the Government by A. K. McLean (Halifax). The debate which was precipitated, was one of the liveliest of the present session. Mr. Borden expressed the hope that the civil service act would soon be extended to a considerable portion of the outside service.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in his reply, criticized the action of the Government in superseding his nominee for the International Boundary Commission. He was answered by Mr. Foster, who held that the confidential nature of the commission's work made it absurd to have three political opponents of the Government in power composing it.

The Postoffice and Public Works Departments were chiefly under fire. In the former, said F. B. Carvell (Carleton, N.B.), the spoils system was in full swing, but when one came to the Department of Public Works it was carried almost to the extent of petty larceny.

A. E. Lancaster (Lincoln), declared that it was not a question of spoils, but of restitution. The action of the Laurier administration in dismissing 180 Welland Canal employes in 1896, was worse than petty larceny; it was grand larceny.

Hon. L. P. Pelletier came valiantly to the championship of his Department, and announced his intention of righting some of the wrongs which he said were wrought by the late Government.

"Every man, who has been cut off by my friends on the other side of the House, if he comes to me for relief, he will get it," he declared.

"I have had to dismiss quite a few postmasters and I will dismiss more, but I will do so with a due regard to justice and along the lines of the rule laid down by this Parliament."

When asked by Mr. Carvell, if when the papers were brought down, he found he had made an error in the case of the postmistress of Bath, N.B., he would not sanction her dismissal, he said: "Most decidedly. I shall not be a party to injustice."

Shortly after the commencement of yesterday's session, the House went into committee to consider the following resolution, proposed by Hon. George E. Foster:

"Resolved, that it is expedient to consolidate and revise the Manitoba Grain Act, chapter 83 of the revised statutes, 1906, and part II. of the Inspection and Sale Act, chapter 85 of of the revised statutes, 1906, to establish a board of commissioners to administer the grain trade of Canada, and to provide for expenses in connection therewith, and to charge the board with the operation and management of such terminal elevators as may be constructed, leased or acquired by the Government of Canada."

Mr. Foster explained that the bill which it was proposed to introduce, founded on the resolution, was practically the same as one passed by the Senate at last session, but which did not go through the House. To this the Government itself intended to introduce some amendments. The resolution was passed and the bill introduced.

The adoption of the plan of under secretaries as followed in England is being seriously considered by the Government. At present it is practically impossible for the Ministers to give the necessary attention to details. As the country expands the work has kept increasing until it means now that a conscientious Minister, to keep pace with his Departmental duties, must labor day and night.

It is felt that the appointment of under secretaries would relieve the Ministers, and would lend general efficiency. The under secretaries as in England, would be members of Parliament, but not members of the Cabinet.

It is suggested for the present there be under secretaries to the Ministers of Interior, Militia, Marine and Fisheries, Public Works, Railways and Canals, and Agriculture.

While it is doubtful if anything will be done this session, when the general reorganization of the Departments take place the plan will be thoroughly discussed and investigated and enquiries will be made as to how the English plan works.

Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General, has just concluded new parcel post arrangements, the general outline of which is as follows:

Under the parcel post in existence at present all parcel post parcels from France come to Canada via England. Canada had no direct arrangement with France, but made arrangements through England, and when parcels left France and reached London they became, in so far as Canada was concerned, British parcels and the charges were settled on this basis. Under the new arrangements parcels will come direct from France to Canada [illegible] go direct from Canada to Fra[illegible] Canada using the Allan Line steamers, which now carry on a service from Canada to Cherbourg and is a line subsidized by Canada.

W. A. Dube Suspended.

Quebec, Dec. 7.—The Minister of Railways has suspended Mr. W. A. Dube, superintendent of the Montreal-Ste. Flavie section of the Intercolonial, and has ordered an inquiry into his political conduct anterior to the 21st of September last.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Wheat sank today under liquidating sales by high priced holders. One local capitalist alone cut loose from a line estimated at 1,500,000 bushels. It was a nervous close, varying from the same as last night to 3-8c down. Latest trading left corn unchanged to 1-4c up, oats at a decline of 1-8c to 3-8c, and hog products within 2 1-2c either way, from 24 hours before.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ¼d lower than yesterday on wheat and ¼d to ½d lower on corn. Berlin closed ⅝c lower on wheat, Budapest ½c lower, Paris ½c to ⅝c lower, and Antwerp ⅜c lower.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Dec. 6.—There continues to be a good demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, and a fair amount of business was done, notwithstanding the fact that prices bid showed a further decline of ½d to 3d per quarter. Exporters state that if it were not for the scarcity of nearby ocean grain room considerably more sales could be made.

American corn is weaker and 1c per bushel lower, with sales of new No. 3 yellow to arrive at 71c track. Demand for oats is fair. Flour is steady, with a fair trade passing, but the demand from other sources is limited. A good business is reported in all lines of millfeed. Cheese is firm. Butter fairly active. Eggs in good demand. Potatoes strong and tending higher.

Corn—American, No. 2 yellow, 84c.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 48c to 48½c; Canadian western, No. 3, 46½c to 47c; extra No. 1 feed, 46c to 46½c; No. 2 local white, 47c; No. 3 local white, 46c; No. 4 local white, 45c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 6.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the offerings to-day were 350 cattle, 1200 sheep and lambs, 1250 hogs and 100 calves. The tone of the market for cattle was steady, but, as there were no choice steers offered, the top price realized was $5.75 per 100 pounds.

The supply was ample to fill all requirements, as butchers and packers in cases have still large stocks on hand, and, as the weather has turned mild again, they do not care to increase their stocks any more at the present. Consequently the demand for top grades was only fair, while the trade in common and inferior cattle was slow, and the market on the whole was quiet.

A good trade was done in sheep and lambs, and, as the supply was not in excess of the demand, a firm feeling prevailed in the market. The demand was principally for lambs, and some choice lots sold as high as $6 per 100 pounds. The demand for calves was good, and prices for good to choice stock were higher.

At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the offerings of live stock were 500 cattle, 400 sheep and lambs, 1100 hogs and 100 calves. The trade in cattle was quiet, but the demand for other lines was fair, and prices show no change, selected lots of hogs selling at $6.50 to $6.75 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6 to $6.10; do., medium, $4.50 to $5.50; do., common, $2.75 to $3.50; canners, $2 to $3.25; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50; do., medium, $4.50 to $5; do., bulls, $3.75 to $4.25; milkers, choice, each, $75; do., common and medium, each, $50 to $60; springers, $30 to $40.

Sheep, ewes, $3.75 to $4; do., bucks and culls, $3 to $3.50; lambs, $5.75 to $6.

Hogs, f.o.b., $4.50 to $6.25.

Calves—$3 to $12.

Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson will be placed on trial at Boston on Jan. 15, charged with the murder of Miss Avis Linnell, his former sweetheart.

The military dirigible balloon Adjutant Reau beat the world's altitude record for dirigibles yesterday at Paris by ascending to a height of just over 7,053 feet.

The officers of the Montreal garrison are giving a dinner on Dec. 20, in the Windsor Hotel, to Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defence.

An Englishman named Groves leaped from a train running 25 miles an hour near Vankleek Hill yesterday. He was picked up with only a slight scratch on his face.

Premier Borden tendered Rt. Hon. James Bryce a luncheon at the Rideau Club yesterday afternoon, when the British Ambassador met members of the new Cabinet.

Desperate from starvation, Edward Roberts, aged 26, ex-convict from the Kingston Penitentiary, was caught burglarizing at Watertown, N.Y. He was discharged last Wednesday after completing a five-year term.

Controller W. E. Brown of Ottawa has issued a writ for unstated damages for alleged defamation of character against J. F. Orde, K.C. The action arises out of a meeting of the Civic Improvement League at which the lawyer criticized Brown's appointment to the Board of Control.

Rats Dined on His $2,565.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 7—The life's savings of Jack Simpson of Aitken, Minn., amounting to $2,565, securely hidden from burglars, were reduced to pulp by hungry rats and mice, and in a letter received by President Taft he appeals for the redemption of the pulverized fragments by the federal treasury.

His wealth, accumulated to buy a farm, Simpson explained, was placed in a box and deposited between the "upstairs floor and ceiling." No human being disturbed it, but when he took it from its hiding place, he found it reduced to dust by the ravages of rodents. The President has referred the matter to the Treasury Department for investigation.

"Plain Warning," 'Tis Said.

Paris, Dec. 7.—The Paris newspapers give great prominence to the German Chancellor's speech in the Reichstag on Tuesday. While they greet his utterances with satisfaction as marking a welcome close to the long series of negotiations and conversations, which at times threatened the peace of Europe, they are of the opinion that the Chancellor's speech does not altogether dissipate "the nightmare of an impending European cataclysm" in view of the plain warning to any who may venture to stand in the way of the policy of German expansion, which the Chancellor proclaims for the future.

Ottawa Official Dead.

Ottawa, Dec. 7.—Geo. W. Seguin, tax collector for the city of Ottawa for a number of years, and one of the most popular officials in the civic employ, died yesterday at his residence, succumbing to an attack of pneumonia, after an illness of only a few days. He was at the time secretary-treasurer of the Ottawa Electric Railway, and of the Hull electric line, afterwards accountant on the contract for the lift lock at Peterboro, and several years ago became tax collector for Ottawa.

A man's natural bent seems to be crooked.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE BY THE COUNTY COUNCIL SO FAR

Business of Ordinary Consequence—Estimated and Actual Cost of Bridges—Interesting Report from the County Engineer—Careful Management Shown in all Departments—City to be asked for Interest on its Share of Cost of Moira River Bridge

Wednesday Afternoon.

Belleville, Dec. 6th

Council resumed at 2 p.m.

Mr. Ketcheson gave notice of a by-law to have the C.O.R. construct a crossing over the line near Frankford.

A motion prevailed that the Dominion Government be authorized to take steps to remedy a sluiceway near the new bridge at Frankford.

Mr. Hubbell stated that he had called upon Mr. H. Pearce in reference to Friar's bridge and he intimated he would drive out and see the bridge and possibly some member of the firm would wait upon the Council. The company, Mr. Pearce claimed, had the usual lumbermen's stautory right to have a dam below the said bridge.

Mr. L. Allen, County Engineer, explained explicitly the new Friar's bridge, which was at the ends higher than the old bridge, but in the centre it might possibly be a few inches lower than the old bridge.

Mr. Clarke said that he was more convinced, after Mr. Allen had spoken, that the bridge was too low.

The matter was left in abeyance in the meantime.

On motion, the Council went into Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means, Mr. Mather in the chair.

The following accounts were passed:

Schuster Co.	$973.50
Tweed News	2.50
G. L. Sills	9.89
S. Masson	293.27
C. B. Scantlebury	21.05
Wm. McGie	133.43
Dr. McKechnie	5.00

A communication was read from Mr. Kennedy, of the Good Roads Association in reference to Hastings County appointing a delegate to form one of a deputation to wait on the Dominion Government as to obtaining Federal aid for good roads.

Mr. Vermilyea considered that it would be a wise idea if the Good Roads Association would define what it intended to lay before the Dominion Government before the deputation went to the Government.

Mr. Hanley was in favor of a deputation being appointed and he moved the Warden and Mr. Cook be appointed.

Mr. Thompson moved that Messrs. Hanley and Tummon be added to the committee, as there were other matters the committee might look into to.

Mr. Cook asked to be relieved from the committee.

A motion prevailed that the committers the committee might look into. Messrs. Ketcheson, Hanley, Thompson and Tummon.

The committee rose and reported progress, and asked leave to sit again. —Granted.

Bridge Report.

Mr. L. E. Allen, County Engineer, presented the following report in reference to bridge work done this year:

Robert Cook, Esq., chairman Bridge Committee, County of Hastings.

Dear Sir.—I beg to transmit to you a report of the bridge work carried out by the county this season.

At the close of last year there were several bridges in course of construction, which could not be completed until this season, but at the present time every bridge uncompleted last season or commenced this season have been fully completed and opened for traffic.

During this season, the concrete sub-structures, as well as the reinforced concrete bridges have all been built directly by the county. The concrete mixer was received in May, and has been in operation until about the middle of November. With the exception of a little trouble in getting the engine to running properly at the start, and the breakage of three of the truck wheels, which have since been replaced without cost by the makers, the mixer has given the best of satisfaction, and in my opinion is none too large for the work required of it.

Approximately 1,500 barrels of Portland Cement have been used during the season, and there has been placed about 1,200 cubic yards of concrete at an average cost of $6.50 per cubic yard, including all labor, forms, excavating, pumping and fully completing the work. The contract price for this work, based on last year's work, done by contract, and on customary contract prices for concrete work in this vicinity would not be less than $8.50 per cubic yard, which represents a saving over contract price of $2.00 per cubic yard, or a total saving on the 1,200 yards of $2,400. This will more than meet the cost of the concrete mixer and equipment now owned by the county, and which will be good for many years with careful handling. In calculating the cost per yard of concrete, no allowance has been made for the form work, and lumber remaining, which is considerable, and much of it can be used another season.

I would suggest the advisability of the county building or securing a permanent shed or store house, located in a central place, to properly store the concrete mixer, equipment, and tools used in concrete work, and that an inventory of same be made at the close of each season's work, and a proper amount be written off the equipment for depreciation and wear and tear.

There have been constructed this season seven reinforced concrete bridges, varying in length from 18 to 40 foot spans. These bridges are now all opened for traffic and represent the most durable and permanent type of bridge possible to construct. In every case, the best of foundations were secured, and in one or two cases considerable excavating had to be done to secure good foundations, but the durability of the finished bridge fully justifies the extra time and expense incurred. The first cost of this type of bridge compares favorably with that of steel for spans up to 50 feet, and for longer bridges the arch type of reinforced bridge may be used where conditions are favorable. Concrete guard walls were used on all of these bridges, which not only add to the appearance of the bridge, but also to its strength, and entirely does away with the necessity of painting as in the case of metal pipe guard rails. The concrete floor or slab is covered with six inches of gravel which protects the floor from wear and adds to the utility of the bridge.

The sub-structure of the Moira Lake bridge, which was put in last winter during very cold weather, was found to be frosted on the surface, and the contractor was instructed to remove all the damaged concrete and reface the work, which was done, and the work is now perfectly satisfactory.

The Frankford bridge, plans for which were prepared last year and work started, has now been completed, and represents the most modern and strongest type of highway bridge in the county. The heavy fill between the county bridge and the canal bridge has been made, but should in the spring receive a good surfacing of gravel. A retaining wall was built on the west end of the bridge and the small wooden bridge removed and the channel filled up. To complete the work, a concrete retaining wall should be built on the south side of the approach as originally planned.

In accordance with the amendments to the Act governing the construction of county bridges, the plans and specifications for all the bridges constructed this year have been filed with the Ontario Department of Public Works for their approval. I append herewith a statement showing the cost of the various bridges in detail, together with the estimated cost of these bridges as submitetd at the April 1911, session of the Council.

Respectfully submitted,
LUCIUS E. ALLEN
County Engineer.

Belleville, Dec. 5, 1911.

The bridges built during the year, the cost of same and estimated cost were as follows:

	Cost.	Est. cost
Boundary	$13,631.04	$13,000
Fairfield and Ross	13,988.57	12,000
Moira Lake	10,058.50	11,000
Frankford	39,229.06	39,500
Empey's	4,128.34	3,785
Kellar's	4,764.41	5,100
Fair's	10,441.72	12,000
Williams' Mine	2,758.12	2,800
Squire's Creek	810.09	650
Trout Creek	643.62	450
Trout Creek	754.73	595
Trout Creek	774.26	500
Marmora Station	507.18	750
Thomas	1,286.49	1,300
Total	$104,291.53	$107,220

The Warden and Mr. Vermilyea spoke of the necessity of erecting a building for the storing of county machinery.

The report was received and adopted.

Mr. Vermilyea stated that there was need of erecting other bridges in the county. There was a considerable sum due the county from the Dominion and Provincial Governments. An inspection should be made.

A motion prevailed that the County Superintendent, Mr. Thompson, and Mr. Vermilyea be a committee to select a place for the storing of county machinery.

Messrs. Tummon and Vermilyea referred to the fact that planking and timber were being taken away where new bridges are being constructed.

The matter was referred to the High County Constable to look into.

Council adjourned until 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

Martin and the Niche.

London, Dec. 6.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In reply to a question of Joseph Martin in the House of Commons, Hon. Winston Churchill said the previous service of Lieut. White and Lieut. Grahame had been excellent. The strict rule of naval service had inflicted on them the punishments awarded by the court-martial. "I would have thought that under the circumstances the questioner would not desire to aggrevate the consequences of their mistake by further publicity."

Martin—"May I ask whether the Admiralty did not consider their social position rather than professional competence?"

Churchill—"That question didn't arise either with the Admiralty or the Canadian Government." (Cheers.)

FIVE MEN TO DIE IN CHAIR

Bandits who Murdered Woman are Sentenced—Had Quick Trials

WHITE PLAINS, Dec. 6.—The five bandits who descended on an isolated form house near Croton Lake on November 9th and murdered Mrs. Mary Hall, the young wife of a superintendent of work on the New York aqueduct, were all sentenced by Justice Tompkins to-day to death in the electric chair during the week of January 15th.

The chain of five convictions for murder was completed to-day, when the jury returned a verdict of guilty in the case of Angelo Guisto.

Justice never came swifter in the state to so many murderers. Within two days after the crime, the five bandits were arrested, and their trials began on November 27th. In all of their cases the jury was out barely fifteen minutes. Those previously convicted were Vincenzo Corna, Felipe di Marto, Lorenzo Cali and Santa Zanza.

It was proved at the trials that the five men left Brooklyn on the night of November 8th for Croton Falls, swearing to keep eternal silence among themselves to take punishment and blame of all if one were caught, to rob the Griffin farm house, where Mrs. Hall was stopping, and where they expected to get from $3,000 to $5,000.

The chief witness at to-day's trial was Sadie L. Murray, a stenographer, who had taken down remarks by Guisto, in Italian, which amounted to a confession that he was one of the robber band.

DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION FOR ECZEMA

The most advanced physicians of this country and Europe are now prescribing a wash of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other soothing and healing ingredients for the cure of Eczema, Psoriasis and all other forms of skin trouble. This compound is known as the D.D.D. Prescription.

Dr. Holmes, the well known skin specialist writes:—"I am convinced that the D.D.D. Prescription is as much a specific for Eczema as is quinine for malaria. I have been prescribing the D. D. D. remedy for years."

We ourselves vouch for the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema and absolutely know that it will take away the itch the instant you apply it.

Drop into this store and get posted on this wonderful remedy for Eczema and all other skin troubles. Or write the D.D.D. Laboratories, Dept. H.I., 4 Colborne St., Toronto, for their free sample bottle. They will be glad to send it immediately.—J. S. McKeown, Belleville.

IDEAL PROTECTION AGAINST INROADS OF CATARRH

BY BREATHING THE RICH BALSAMIC VAPOR OF CATARRHOZONE YOU PREVENT AND CURE ALL HEAD, NOSE, AND AND THROAT DISEASE.

Remember this: You don't take drugs when using Caatrrhozone; you simply inhale a healing vapor that cures every type of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, throat and nose soreness and irritation.

No medicine brings such prompt relief, exerts such an invigorating influence, or so thoroughly and speedily cures throat troubles as "Catarrhozone." Doctors, hospitals, sanitariums, all say that those who suffer from changeable weather, for those who are predisposed to catarrh, lung trouble, deafness, or bronchitis, no treatment is so indispensible as "Catarrhozone."

VICTIM OF CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.

I contracted a sever cold while following my occupation of furniture travelling, and eventually it developed into Catarrh. The desultory mode of life I was following gave me very little chance to attend to the Catarrh condition, and at last I became a victim of Chronic Catarrh. I bought a large package of Catarrhozone, used it according to directions, and have never been bothered since. I will be only too glad to give any information I posses to any person suffering from the disease that was the bane of my life two years.

A. H. SCHWARTZ, Brockville, Ont.

For certain cure, for relief in an hour, use Catarrhozone, the only direct breathable medicine. Two months' treatment guaranteed, price $1.00, smaller size 50c., at all druggists, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont., and Buffalo, N. Y.

NARROWLY MISSED BEING MONARCHS

Royal Personages Who Came Nearly Having to Direct the Affairs of a Nation.

Whenever Royal blood is recognised it is treated with universal respect. Nevertheless, it is an indisputable fact that there are in Great Britain to-day literally thousands of persons with Royal blood in their veins who occupy humble and, in many cases, menial positions. And it is quite reasonable to assume that there are in our slums and workhouses many men and women who might be leading persons at Court.

It has actually been ascertained that there are no fewer than 11,723 persons living who can be proved to be direct descendants of Henry VII., our monarch in 1485.

Using these figures as the basis for a simple mathematical calculation, we arrive at the astounding conclusion that, from the death of Henry VII. to the present day, there must have been living at least 36,735 persons directly descended from the King.

It is quite easy to follow the means by which the "family" has become so numerous, and there is no need to wrestle with complex genealogical tables. Henry VII. had two daughters, the elder of whom married James IV. of Scotland, becoming thereby the grandmother of Mary Queen of Scots. The younger daughter, Mary Tudor, married, in the first instance, Louis XII. of France.

The marriage had been entered upon against her will, and, immediately on regaining her freedom, she contracted a second marriage with Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk.

The descendents of Mary Tudor number, at the present day, some 10,000 persons in a direct line, and by an extraordinary string of circumstances have kept almost entirely distinct from those of her elder sister, Margaret.

From the latter sprang the Stuarts, who later occupied the throne, and to her all the crowned heads of Europe, except those of a few small semi-civilized states, can trace their descent. From this it will be seen that all European monarchs are related.

When Queen Elizabeth successfully revoked the will of Henry VIII. there two daughters of Mary Tudor living, who each married a nobleman. Their children also married into other noble families, and that is how the wide diffuson of Royal blood was started.

Although many of the descendants of Mary Tudor occupy, as has been stated, more or less fitting positions, there are a great number who are scatered amongst the very humblest positions in life. The record of how some of these have come down in the world remains.

Sir Richard Moore, after a stormy and adventurous career, spent the latter part of his life in the humble capacity of a turnkey.

NEW YORK JEWELLER MURDERED AND ROBBED

Thieves After Hard Fight Tried to Burn I. S. Vogel's Body in Furnace

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—With a fractured skull and many cuts and bruises about the face and shoulders, the body of I. S. Vogel, a wealthy dealer in jewellery, was found to-day in the engineroom of a downtown loft building. The condition of the roof indicated that Vogel had made a desperate fight for life. Small articles of jewellery were scattered over the floor but gems of considerable value and a sum of money he is thought to have had in his pocket are missing.

The police believe Vogel was enticed into the basement last night by thieves who knew he had purchased a quantity of jewellery recently and intended to take them to Trenton today.

Vogel's head was resting on the ashpan of the furnace and its position gave rise to the theory that the thieves had tried to burn the body. Two attendants at the building were detained pending investigation.

The value of the jewellery which Vogel is known to have had with him last night is placed by the police at $10,000. None of this, with the exception of one or two articles of little value has been found.

The Coroner's opinion that the thieves attempted to burn the body in the furnace and were frustrated because the door was too small is also supported by the discovery of a large blood stain on the floor, traces of which had been partially removed by mopping.

An old carter named [illegible] Clifford, of Wellington, Shropshire who had grieved over the death of a horse to which he was greatly attached, was found dead with his throat cut.

Mr. Grahame White Fined

Mr. Claude Grahame White, of 199, Piccadilly, was, at Marlborough Street, fined $10 for driving a motor-car without a license. It was explained that the aviator had inadvertently neglected to renew the license.

PRESERVE THE TREE

Reports of Untold Timber Wealth is the Far North are Exaggerations.

An interview with an engineer given recently in a western paper to the effect that there is abundant timber on the line of the Hudson Bay Railway is an illustration of the misapprehension in regard to this matter that exists in the public mind. Because there are large areas of land in the north on which there is timber of some kind, the conclusion is reached that it is all of present value and that the country has an unlimited supply. As a matter of fact a careful inspection of the timber along the line of the Hudson Bay Railway of the Department of the Interior, shows that there is not enough mature timber along the line of that railway to build the road. There are no prairie districts of any extent along the route, there are trees everywhere, but owing to repeated fires the forest is, except on the merest fraction of the area, too small for commercial purposes and unless it can be protected from fire until it reaches maturity, will never be of any use to the country. Explorations in other parts of the northern forested districts tell the same tale. Everywhere fire has worked havoc, and the forest is a mere wreck of what it might have been if fires could be prevented. And unless adequate measures are taken now to protect the young and immature forests which form the major part of the stand, the outlook for the future is none too good. If the northern forests are to continue to be a permanent source of wealth to the country, it is absolutely necessary that the fire ranging system should be extended and that proper methods of management of the forest should be applied, and public education to the value of the forest is even more necessary. In Sweden, which has large extents of northern forest practically uninhabited, similar to those in northern Canada, has about eliminated the fire danger in such districts mainly by educating her people to the value of the forests.

TOWER OF PISA THREATENED

The leaning tower of Pisa is in great danger of falling. So imminent is the danger that the authorities have ordered that the bells in its cupola shall keep silence until its foundations have been made secure, it being feared that the vibration caused by their ringing might shake the architectural marvel down.

THE BOY SCOUTS OF ONTARIO

The Provincial Secretary Gives Interesting Information to the Public

In most parts of the country Boy Scouts have now become a familiar sight, but comparatively few people seem to know that there is a meaning underlying their games and organization. Although the movement is yet in its infancy, results are even now beginning to show themselves. Parents, schoolmasters, businessmen and clergymen write of the change for good wrought in the boys. A number of splendid cases of life-saving, for which the Scouts have received their rewards, have taken place throughout the Province. During the year 1912 we expect to see the movement throughout the Province of Ontario doubled. This can only be accomplished by every Scout putting his shoulder to the wheel, working and aiming to take an interest in the other fellow by bringing him into the organization, but to continue our work and to place it upon a permanent basis for good, we need two things: Firstly, we want men to act as Scoutmasters, that is, to take the training of the boys or organizing locally the movement. There must be a large number of young men to whom it has never occurred that by devoting to such service some of the time now spent at recreations, they have it in their power to do valuable work for our country. Secondly, We want all those who are prejudiced against our movement to give a few minutes each day to a study of the Boy Scout movement.

What is the worst thing that a man has to face in this life? The worst thing is when the close of life is in sight and you can only look back on an empty wasted time—when you reflect too late what you might have done. The great thing that I see in this scouting for boys is that not one of our Scoutmasters will have to face that—the worst ordeal than can fall to a man.

The Boy Scouts of the Province of Ontario have resolved to try and endow three cots at the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives for the year 1912 by selling Xmas stamps. Let every Scout do his be[illegible] every friend of the Scouts su[illegible] this worthy object by purchasing the stamps and showing your sympathy with the boys in this their undertaking.

To those who desire information in connection with the movement, if they will please write the Secretary, Mr. H. G. Hammond, room 501 Lumsden Building, Toronto, such information will be forwarded with pleasure.

Silence is often the best argument.

As a man's mind is bent, so is his tongue inclined.

TERRIBLE FAMINE IN RUSSIA

Government Refuses Aid and Prohibits Relief Measures

(Intelligencer Special.)

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 8.—Famine conditions are so terrible in Ufa and Samara Provinces that the people are eating dogs and the bark off trees. Thousands have been living on acorns and supplies are almost exhausted. The Government not only refuses to send aid, but prohibits the organization of private relief measures.

TRIED TO KILL HARWICH FARMER

Immigrant Coveted Man's Wife and Brutally Attacked Him

CHATHAM, Ont., Dec. 6.—Thinking if the husband were dead he might induce his employer's wife to marry him, George Senior made a cowardly, unprovoked attack on John W. Robertson, a well-known farmer of Harwich. Senior now faces a charge of atempted murder. Senior, was at work beating carpets in Robertson's farm when Robertson passed him on his way from the barn to the house. Without a word of warning Senior slipped up behind his employer and dealt him a stunning blow on the head with a spade. He then proceeded to beat up the prostrate man with a club. The shrieks of Robertson's wife brought neighbors to the rescue, who pulled Senior off just as he was about to cut up Robertson with a knife. Senior, who is an English immigrant, who has already served a term in the penitentiary, told the constable who arrested him that he wanted to put Robertson out of the way so he could have his wife. The woman had never encouraged the prisoner's attentions. Senior pleaded guilty to a charge of assault preferred against him, and was remanded for a week. In the meantime a charge of attempted murder is being preferred against him, and it is on this latter charge that he will be tried.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

A CHILD'S DEATH.

James Arthur Loucks, two years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Albert Loucks, residing in the Township of Thurlow, died last evening. The little one had been ill for some days.

AGAIN REMANDED.

Jacob Ricketts, who has been twice up on remand for sentence on the charge of theft, was up again this morning. The Magistrate remanded Ricketts to jail for 30 days, and in the meantime, if he is able to furnish bonds, he may be released on a suspended sentence.

A WIFE BEATER.

Richard Cornel, laborer, who resides on South John Street, was yesterday afternoon before the Magistrate on a charge of assaulting his wife. He pleaded guilty and had to pay all the costs and give bonds to keep the peace and to appear at any time within a year for sentence.

A TYPHOID CASE.

Several cases of typhoid fever have been reported during the past week. Mr. Thomas Cross, a victim of the disease, was sent to Belleville hospital on Monday. It is thought the disease is caused by impure water. The Board of Health has caused the water in some of the wells to be examined and it was found to contain typhoid bacilli.—Campbellford Herald.

REGIMENTAL CHANGES.

Owing to the retiring of Co. Stewart from command of the Fifteenth Regiment, promotion and other changes have recently taken place within the Regiment, being as follows:

Major Marsh, commanding officer.
Major Barragar, to be senior Major.
Capt. Brown, junior Major.
Capt. F. Wallbridge, Adjutant.
Capt. Allen, command of A. Co.
Capt. Wilson, command of B. Co.
Lieut. Hudson, to be Captain of C. Co.
Lieut. Holton to be Captain of D. Co.
Capt. Cook, command of E. Co.
Capt. McFee, command of F. Co.
Capt. Doyle, command of G. Co.
Capt. Carman, command of H. Co.
Dr. MacColl, Surgeon and also ranks as Captain.
Rev. G. R. Beamish, Chaplain, and Honorary Captain.
Major Vermilyea to be Quartermaster.
Major Morden to be Paymaster.

Several new Lieutenants will be created in the near future.

It is expected that in January a provisional school will be established here for officers and non-commissioned officers.

BALL GAME TO-NIGHT.

At the Armories to-night an indoor league baseball match will be played between the Hardware Company and the Marsh & Henthorn Company teams. A good game is anticipated.

MARRIED IN CHURCH.

Mr. George Carr and Mrs. Davenport, both of Thurlow Township, were quietly married in Christ Church on Wednesday evening at 5 o'clock. The rector, Rev. R. C. Blagrave, officiated. The couple were attended by two friends. Mr. and Mrs. Carr will reside in Thurlow.

HIS FRIENDS SETTLED.

Last evening the police answered a call to the Chinese restaurant and placed under arrest a man named E. Parkes, a stranger, who was under the influence of liquor and had refused to pay for a meal which he had ordered. The matter was subsequently settled by friends of Parkes.

CHARGES ASSAULT.

Henry Renfrew last evening went to the police station and reported that he had been assaulted. His appearance indicated he had been struck, as he was bleeding from the nose and mouth. He was requested to ascertain, if he could, who his assailant was and lay a charge against him. Later in the night Renfrew was found sleeping in a barn and locked up on a charge of vagrancy.

LODGE ELECTION.

Downey L.O.L. No. 425 held their annual meeting on Dec. 5th with the following result:

W.M.—A. Downey.

C.N.O.R. NOTES.

No doubt many of our citiezns have noted the numbers of the C.N.R. engines doing ballasting work west of our town. It will interest them to know that engine No. 159 is one of the company's first engines, doing duty as a construction engine for years in the northwest, and is yet doing good service for its owners. The ballasting of the Canadian Northern from here to Shannonville is progressing rapidly, and all indications point to freight trains running through here soon. The company are not going to wait for the steel for the bridge near Shannonville, but have put up a temporary wooden structure. It is expected that ballasting will be finished in about a week.—Deseronto Post.

Montreal's suburb, Westmount, has checked the census returns and found that it has one-seventh more inhabitnats than the government census credited it with. If this percentage held good throughout the Dominion it would just make the difference of the missing million.—Ottawa Citizen.

The citizens would like to know why the city has not paid its share of the cost building the boundary bridge over the Moira, the cost of which is to be borne equally by the city, the county, and the Ontario Government. The result of the city's failure to pay is that the county is now demanding interest on the unpaid amount.

There were one thousand desertions of ship stewards, firemen and seamen from vessels in the port of Montreal. This is not because they loved marine life less, but they loved Canada more, and it is a most flattering testimonial to the irresistible attractions of our country. "Canada," remarks that it reminds one of the condition of things at the time of the gold discoveries in Australia, in the late 'fifties.—Montreal Herald.

It will prove welcome news indeed if the statement is well founded that an effective vaccine has been discovered against dread typhoid. Wonderfully successful tests in an U. S. army station by two well-known medical authorities, furnish details that such is in all probability the case. Thus, slowly but surely, is scientific research relegating once human scourges to the realms of preventible diseases, or, at least, minimizing their effects to the non-danger point.—Hamilton Spectator.

No wonder the judge at Los Angeles refused to take J. B. McNamara's word for it that he "did not intend to take the life of any one" when he deposited the suitcase loaded with sixteen sticks of dynamite in a portion of the Times building. The miscreant who planted a suitcase full of dynamite timed to explode at an hour when a newspaper plant would be full of workers displayed a contempt for other people's lives that was only equalled by his respect for his own cowardly neck.—Toronto Telegram.

The Government is rapidly scraping off the barnacles which have fastened themselves upon the ship of state during the past fifteen years. Mr. Lemieux was informed in the Commons that nine agents, inspectors and clerks in the immigration branch of the Interior Department have been dispensed with, as follows: Franklin Tier, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.; J. A. Osborne, Fort Francis, Ont.; George Ruffell, Moose Jaws, Sask.; A. Hallonquist, Winnipeg, Man.; James Cummings, St. Andrew's N. B.; N. S. Dow, McAdam Junction, N. B.; Dr M. Chishom, Halifax, N. S.; C. H. Brannen, St. John, N. B.

The improvements recommended by the Market and City Property Committee at last night's meeting are such as should receive public approval. By the removal of the repair shop for the gas and water works departments from the basement of the city building a large reduction could be made in the insurance—more than enough, it is said, to cover, within a short time the cost of erecting an isolated fire-proof building for that purpose. As to the lighting of the clock, that has long been a matter of necessity. Ald. Parks and the committee over which he presides, are entitled to credit for their action in the matter.

If Britain could be guaranteed tomorrow against German attack, bonfires would burn from John o' Groats to Land's End, and a mighty sigh of relief would go up from the United Kingdom. Permit Britain to continue to "have what she holds," and she will never break the world's peace. She is satiated with land—if you like to put it that way; and has "all the place in the sun" that she can do with. Surely it must be absolutely clear to everyone who looks the facts in the face, that Britain is not the aggressor. Every time she moves she moves on the defensive. She did not ask for a place in Morocco or a bit of the Congo for herself. All she asked was that a nation which has openly challenged her naval supremacy should not be allowed to establish a strong naval base at a pivotal point. She simply said—"Don't make me any worse off than I am; and I have nothing to say."—Montreal Star.

HER SICKLY CHILD

IS NOW STRONG AND HEALTHY —VINOL BUILT HER UP.

Every mother wants her little boy or girl to have a fair chance in the world. Make your children strong and healthy and they will grow up able to make their own way.

For ailing children there is nothing so good as Vinol, our delicious tonic, for it gives them a fine appetite, makes their blood rich and puts roses in their cheeks again.

"I have been giving Vinol to my little daughter," says Mrs. G. Elsaeser of Hackensack, N. J. "She was very delicate and I worried about her. Vinol has built her up fine. She is strong and healthy now, with a good healthy color in her face which she never had before. It only took one bottle of Vinol to do this for her. She likes taste f Vinol, too."

We could tell you of many others right in this town—but give Vinol to your puny child and see how fast it improves. We give you back your money if Vinol does not do all we claim.—Red Cross Drug Store, J. S. McKeown, Belleville.

SIX MILLION GERMS FOUND ON ONE FLY

Dr. Gordon Hewitt of Ottawa Tells of Dangers of Common Pest

"The House Fly and its Relation to Public Health," was the subject of an address by Dr. G. Hewitt, the prominent entomologist of Ottawa. Had a large number of pictures thrown on the canvas to illustrate the different points of his discourse. By the aid of these he showed the hairy nature of the fly's legs abdomen, which, he explained, could not fail to collect filth and bacteria wherever they were met with. Photos of culture plates were shown over which flies had passed, and large colonies of typhoid, tubercular and other bacteria had subsequently formed. Far more germs find lodging inside of a fly tan hwithout, and, according to Dr. Hewitt, these may be taken in by the fly or the egg may have become innoculated by the usually filthy substance in which it is deposited. After a few hours the maggot emerges, already infected, nor does it recover when passing through the pupa stage. And so you have your fly born innoculated. Throughout the various transitions from the laying of the eggs till the full-fledged flies are ready to propagate no more than nine or ten days transpire in hot weather. Now a fly deposits from 120 to 150 eggs at a time, and repeats this performance six or eight times during the season. A fly captured in a living-room was allowed to stroll over a culture plate. Thirty colonies of six different species of germs developed. Another captured in a dining-room walking over a culture plate gave rise to 46 colonies of seven varieties, and yet another found in the flies' Elysium, the putrefying garbage heap, deposited in the plate the nucleus of 116 colonies of ten varieties. Over 6,000,000 germs have been found on onefly. Some of the pictures graphically set forth the facility with which the fly passes from the garbage can, stable refuse, excretia, and sputa of the victims of typhoid and tuberculosis, to the kitchen, the dining-room, and the nursery with attending deleterious results. Primarily the cause is untreated or unprotected filth, for without these the fly could not propagate. Effective cures must then deal with these. To banish the fly, the putrifying garbage heap, the exposed manure piles, and various other breeding places must be treated, destroyed or enclosed.

Summer diarrhoea, the most copious source of infantile mortality in summer, is due in no small degree to fly contamination. According to Dr. Hewitt the annihilation of the fly is of the utmost importance. We can succeed, he states, in the same way as the United States Government did in banishing yellow fever by abolishing the mosquitos by destruction of the breeding places.

DEATHS CALL

MRS. WM. EDGE.

Mrs. Jane Edge, widow of the late Mr. Wm. Edge, died at an early hour this morning. Deceased, who was 84 years of age, was born in Ireland and had lived in Belleville for over half a century. Mr. Edge preceded her to the tomb some three years ago. Mrs. Edge was a member of the Presbyterian church and was a fine aged lady, respected by a large circle of friends. The surviving members of the family are two sons, James and Albert, of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Jesse Harris, of this city.

AN ARCTIC NIGHT

A Dark Curtain That Shuts Out Warmth and Light, and Depresses

We were at the foot of Humboldt Glacier when the sun bade us a final adieu for a long winter night, not to appear again for many months to come. As though to leave us with pleasant memory of his visit, his going was in an effulgence of glory, and, reluctant to go, he lingered for a little while below the horizon, lighting the sky with a mass of marvellous coloring—red, purple and orange, reaching upward from the white earth into the deep blue of the high heavens. For a time a prolonged twilight remained, but that, too, was presently lost behind the dark curtain that shut from our world all warmth and light.

No words can adequately describe the awful pall of the Arctic night. It is unreal and terrible. Even the moonlight is unnatural, casting on the snow and ice, the wind-swept rocks, and the people themselves, a shade of ghastly, indefinable greenish yellow. Shifting shadows flit among moving ice masses like wraiths of departed spirits. A death-like silence prevails, to be broken only by the startling and unexpected crackling of a glacier with a sound of mighty thunder clap, or the smashing together of great ice floes with a report like heavy cannon.

In spite of one, depression takes possession of the soul—a hopeless kind of unreasoning depression. Intense and severe as the cold may be, any active man can stand it without serious suffering, when a little experience teaches how, for that acts only on the physical being, and can be guarded against; but the prolonged sunless night has a direct effect on the human mind which only exercise and diversion can counteract.—From "Hunting From the Eskimos," by Harry Whitney.

HON. WALTER SCOTT

Sketch of the Career of a Typical Western Canadian

Like other prominent Canadian politicians, the Hon. Walter Scott entered politics by way of journalism. Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself gained much of his facile power of expression during the year in which he edited Le Defricheur. Alexander Mackenzie, the only other Liberal Prime Minister that Canada ever had, was also an editor, while the Hon. W. S. Fielding grew politically wise while wielding the editorial pen of the Halifax Chronicle.

A very humble position introduced Mr. Scott to journalistic life, for it was none other than that of printer's devil. The young "devil" rose quickly. He was soon at the "case," and a year or two later saw him mechanical foreman. With mechanical foremanship he combined leader writing, for in those days there were no nice distinctions between the different departments of Western newspapers. Ten years after "hitting" the West, Mr. Scott was editor and proprietor of two newspapers. There is cause for gratification in the fact that men like Mr. Scott are constantly rising from the ranks to give States and Provinces and nations just laws and good government. Upon this fact the world depends for its guides and leaders. The old idea that a single class, an hereditary, or patrician class of the community could supply a succession of competent law-givers has hopelessly broken down.

HON. WALTER SCOTT

Mr. Scott grew up as the son of pioneer farmers in Old Ontario. His father died when he was a baby, and for that reason Mr. Scott had to work perhaps a little harder than other boys. He milked and ploughed and did every common task incidental to the raising of stock and the growing of grain. In the summer time he went, like other children, barefooted to the common school, and in the autumn, when the mornings were chilly, he learned the trick of warming his feet on the patches where the cows had been laying.

The spring of 1885 saw him, a gaunt lad of seventeen, pack up his traps and set out for the Canadian West. He felt in his bones that he was not destined to spend his life upon the farm. He got off the train at Portage La Prairie, one of the small towns west of Winnipeg, on the Canadian Pacific Railway, which was then pushing through the Rockies to the Pacific Coast. For five months he drove a tradesman's cart, and then, following a true instinct, he entered the office of the Manitoba Liberal, and became a printer's devil. The proprietor evidently thought him a bright lad, for about a year afterwards the two went together farther west, and started a new paper in Regina, then the capital of the North-West Praries. The next fifteen years were spent by Mr. Scott in Regina, and intermittently in the neighboring town of Moose Jaw, in active newspaper work. He did everything there was to do about a newspaper. He often wrote a leading article and set it up in type himself. It is one of his boasts that he is still a union printer. The years brought their return. In 1894 Mr. Scott bought the Moose Jaw Times, and the following year the Regina Leader, both of which are to-day prominent among the daily newspapers of Western Canada.

If a man smokes in the house and his wife is afraid her curtains will be ruined, he should be obliging and take them down.

CHAS. J. SYMONS

THE Paternoster Ruby

BY CHARLES EDMOND WALK

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press Limited, Toronto.

After explanations had been made and order restored, the foreman did not proceed, as might have been expected, by reading the verdict. Instead he jerked his head sideways toward Miss Cooper.

"Mr. Coroner," he said, "we'd like to ask the young lady some questions."

He was a poor specimen, that foreman; one of your little, officious, merdling busybodies, as aggravating as the buzzing of a persistent fly.

"If they are pertinent to the inquiry," said Dr. De Breen, "it is not only proper, but your duty to ask them. The young lady will be sworn."

At this unexpected demand she darted a startled glance from the foreman to Dr. De Breen, and then looked at me—as I joyfully fancied, for guidance and support.

I nodded—she couldn't avoid the ordeal—and she bowed in acknowledgment of the oath, which the doctor rattled off as if it were all one long word.

And just here I am unable to refrain from pointing out how small an incident will sometimes afford the turning-point for a momentous crisis; such an illustration is presently to follow.

When interrupted by Genevieve's shriek of terror the foreman had been in the very midst of pronouncing the concluding phrase of the verdict. Had it not been for the strange face, had the venturesome girl not followed the face's owner, who could say how differently events might not have turned out? For I know now that the first verdict was quite different from the one finally read.

The catechism which Genevieve was required to undergo follows:

"What is your name?"

"Clara Genevieve Cooper."

"How old are you?"

"I was twenty-one in December."

"We would like to know, Miss Cooper, what relation, if any, you bear to the witness Maillot?"

"Merely that of a friend.'

"How about him and the other young lady?"—an interrogation which instantly made Miss Belle flush and bridle. But the witness was fully equal to the occasion.

"I would n't undertake to speak for them," she replied composedly.

The succeeding questions brought out the relationship between the two girls, and also established Miss Fluette's identity. Something akin to a sensation prevailed in the jury-box for a few seconds after the six good men and true realized that the handsome gentleman with the white hair and dark beard was no other than the celebrated "wheat king." Their manner toward his niece underwent a sudden transformation; their attitude became more respectful.

Miss Cooper was dismissed, and Maillot was recalled. He denied any formal engagement between himself and Miss Fluette; but it soon became apparent, both from his manner and her growing vexation, pretty precisely what the relations between them really were. The jury learned that the young man's quest of the Paternoster ruby had not been undertaken without the stimulus of a very warm-hearted devotion.

Maillot was left sitting in the witness-chair while a new verdict was made out. It formally charged the young man with the murder of his uncle.

I afterward learned, by questioning the self-important foreman, that the first verdict had been an open one. The demand for Miss Cooper's testimony had been prompted by the "diversion"—I am using his own word—she had occasioned when she left the room, and afterward threw the proceedings into wild disorder by her scream. The interrupted verdict had failed to hold Maillot only by the narrowest margin; Miss Cooper's adventure had served to turn the scale against him.

"Look here," I demanded warmly, "don't you believe what she said?"

He smiled with an air of such superior knowledge that I very nearly cuffed his ears.

"Oh, I don't blame the young lady!—dear me, no!" he said, with a smirk. "Loyalty, you know. What do you think of it?'

I had turned to move away, much disgusted; but I lingered long enough to look him over curiously.

"What's your name?" I bluntly demanded.

"Griggs—Samuel B. Griggs."

"I think, Mr. Samuel B. Griggs—if you really want to know—that you're a damned idiot."

CHAPTER XVII.

Prison Doors

As I recall the scene that brilliant winter morning in the Page library, one detail stands out so much more prominently than all the rest, that the really important aspects are quite overshadowed in my memory, and notwithstanding the surprising nature of Alfred Fluette's deportment, I am obliged to produce a reasonably correct portrayal of what actually transpired. But one's memory is apt to play strange and unaccountable tricks, and mine is no exception. The best mental image I can recall is distorted, all out of drawing, as the artists say; I can see only Belle Fluette.

After the accusation fell from the foreman's lips, I quite suddenly became aware of the fact that she was standing rigidly erect, one hand strained to her bosom, the other clenched tightly against her cheek. Every vestige of color had flown from her face, leaving it as white as marble.

But her eyes! It is her eyes that still haunt me. They burned with a light of dispair so profound that no mere human note could even feebly yield a hint of it; and behind the despair, plucking and tearing at her heart-strings, lay a misery unutterable. She alone had remained serenely confident of the outcome, and now, being the least prepared for it, the shock to her high-strung susceptibilities was more keenly poignant than human flesh could endure. She presented the appearance of one stunned, of one beaten and buffeted to stupefaction, yet through it all still sensible of an anguish that wrenched her very soul.

There was no outcry, no spoken word; but in a moment a tremor ran over her slender form, her knees gave way, and with one last desperate effort she tried to reach Maillot. Even as she turned to him, before a move could be made to sustain her, she tottered and fell prone upon her face. One extended hand clutched once at the young man's foot, then relaxed and grew still. It was as if her last conscious thought had been governed by a flitting impulse to seek the support of even so mean an assurance of his presence.

In a flash the lover was kneeling at his sweetheart's side, pressing her white face to his bosom in a wild embrace. He called to her frantically, coaxed her with endearments, wholly oblivious of his shocked audience. He assured her in choked, incoherent phrases that all was well with him; but he spoke to deaf ears.

Dr. De Breen, direct and practical, brought him to his senses with a sharp command.

Maillot reluctantly yielded Belle to Genevieve and the doctor. Not for a moment did a thought of his own trouble enter his head, I am sure, and he did not remove his tense look of anxiety from her face until Dr. De Breen convincingly declared that she was only in a swoon.

"Best thing for her, just now," said he, crisply; "she can't think. Furthermore, she needs a sedative to keep her from thinking for a while." Then to her father:

"Here, you, you take her home on the double-quick. Have in your physician. Let her cousin get her in bed."

It is likely that Alfred Fluette had not been addressed for many a day with such cavalier brusqueness, and overpowering indeed must have been his emotions now that he did not notice the Doctor's abrupt manner. Even his daughter's condition seemed to produce only a momentary impression upon him; for by the time Maillot and Dr. De Breen had conveyed the limp girl to a divan, where Genevieve continued to minister to her, he was excitedly striving to catch the doctor's attention.

ROWELL AT ST. THOMAS.

He Says Premier Whitney Is Evading School Question.

St. Thomas, Dec. 8.—N. W. Rowell spoke here last night. The audience filled the Grand Opera House, many persons standing, and the hearing given the provincial Liberal leader was keenly appreciative.

"Sir James Whitney has mistaken his own bluster for courage; he is evasive in the face of a difficult question, declared Mr. Rowell, in the course of his address last night in the Grand Opera House here, when dealing with the bilingual school question.

"What is the condition,' he asked, "with reference to bilingual schools Sir James says there are none. Mr. Hanna, at his nomination meeting the other day, said there are 380 bilingual schools in Ontario. Mr. Foy says that under the law there can be no such thing, and if there are any they must cease to exist. Dr. Reaume says Mr. Foy speaks only for himself, while he professes to give Sir James Whitney's own opinion in saying there are bilingual schools in Ontario in which the teachers are entitled to use the French language for purposes of instruction, if need be, and when parents and trustees desire it to teach French as one of the school subjects. If Sir James sides with Mr. Foy he thinks Dr. Reaume will lose the French-Canadian vote, which is influential in some places; while if he sides with Dr. Reaume he knows it will lose Mr. Foy several vote in a strong Orange and Protestant constituency. Is that honest? Is that straightforward dealing? Is that fair and honorable conduct for the Prime Minister of this province? Some of his Conservative friends have told me they were shocked at his utterances. They say he must have known that there are such schools."

Ship Broker a Spy?

Leipsic, Saxony, Dec. 8.—The trial of the English ship broker, Max Schultz, and his four German associates, who were arrested at Hamburg on March 18, on a charge of espionage, began here yesterday before the imperial court.

Max Schultz is accused of having used his profession as a cover for corrupting shipyard workmen to betray naval secrets. He was kept under close observation for a considerable time by Government detectives while passing between Hamburg and Bremen, where at the time ten warships of different types were under construction.

It is said that the incriminating material found in his possession at the time of his arrest was not of a grave character, but it is believed that he succeeded in communicating a number of documents to the people by whom he was employed. He is regarded by the naval authorities as a most dangerous espionage agent.

The proceedings are taking place in secret.

Hydro Bylaw In Paris.

Paris, Dec. 8.—At a general meeting of the Board of Trade yesterday, the advisability of securing Hydro-electric service for Paris was discussed. Harry Acres, Government engineer, was present and gave an estimate of some $13,000 to install the system in Paris. It is probable a bylaw will be submitted to the ratepayers in the near future.

Government by Commission

Just now, while the public mind is searching for the best system of municipal government, the following information, furnished by a contemporary, as to the results of the commission system where it has been tried, will be read with interest:

In the elections in the United States last month there were five cities which adopted the commission plan of government and three which rejected it. The cities which accepted the new plan were: Lawrence, Mass., population, 85,892; Lowell, Mass., population, 106,294; Sacramento, Cal., population, 44,696; Stockton, Cal.; Lexington, Ky., population 35,099. Those which voted against the plan were: Cambridge, Mass.; Salem, Ore., and Irvington, N.J. There are now 170 cities in 33 different States which have commission governments. They represent a total population of nearly 4,000,000.

The reform is not invariably accepted wherever it is offered, but there is yet to be recorded an instance of a city which has once adopted the commission plan returning to the old system. A claim of this nature has been made for Chelsea, Mass., but as a matter of fact Chelsea never had a real commission government. When the great fire occurred in that town in 1908, the old aldermanic government broke down, as happened in Galveston after the great flood. Aldermanic government usually does prove unequal to any serious emergency. To meet the extraordinary situation, an act was hastily adopted by the Legislature providing for a board of control of five members, to be appointed by the Governor of the State. For the time being local government was taken entirely out of the hands of the people. It was provided, however, that as the terms of commissioners expired after 1909 their successors might be re-elected until 1911, when the question of retaining the board permanently should be submitted to the people. This proposition was rejected at the election on November 7th. That was quite different from the rejection of a commission charter.

The charter adopted by Sacramento is quite remarkable in that it provides for the shortest ballot to be found anywhere in the United States. The only elective officers are the five commissioners and only one of these is to be elected each year. Even the School Board as a separate body is abolished and its duties are taken over by the city commission. This is an example which is of some interest in Belleville, as we have for a population of ten thousand people a top-heavy Council of 22 members and a ponderous Board of Education of 21 members.

In addition to the separate cities which have adopted commission governments, the State of Idaho has enacted by referendum a law similar to that of New Jersey, under which any city may have a commission charter. The form of charter prescribed provides for commissions of five members to serve for terms of four years each. The terms of three of the commissioners expire at one time and the terms of the other two expire in the alternate years. This reduces the number of candidates who will be chosen at any single election, following out the principle that the more public attention is concentrated on two or three men the better will be the character of the officials.

Lexington, Ky., also adopted its charter under a general law of the State applying to second-class cities. Lexington and Newport are the only towns which have taken advantage of it as yet. The law provides for a mayor and four commissioners, but after two years a police judge is to be elected, instead of a mayor. This act also provides that the organization, existence and powers of the Board of Education shall not be disturbed.

The commission plan is the first system of government ever devised to fit American cities, adds the contemporary from which we quote. Other plans of city government are growths and adaptations from town, village, county or state governments. The familiar bicameral system is a crude attempt to apply to the small area and compact population of a city the plan devised for the Government of the United States. It is a Federal system imposed upon a territory where, in most cases, there is nothing to federate. The simplicity of the commission plan and the excellent results attained under it wherever it has been tried account for its rapid growth. At present New York is one of the backward States which have not permitted any of their cities to try the reform.

There is much food for profitable thought in the foregoing.

United States Banks Help Germany.

Vienna, Dec. 8.—The Berlin correspondent of Die Zeit says [illegible] during the height of the Anglo-German crisis, the French and English banks having withdrawn their credits from the German banks, the latter appealed to American banks for aid. This was forthcoming, adds the correspondent, after the American bankers were assured that there would be no war. This assurance, the Germans were able to give after consultation with the Government.

Must Pay Italian $1,500.

Belleville, Dec. 8.—An Italian named Youne, employed on the Trent Valley Canal, received a verdict for $1,500 for the loss of a thumb and a broken arm from the premature blast of dynamite. It was alleged the contractors, Dennon & Rogers, were negligent in the matter.

A COMFORTABLE ROAD

TRAVELLER IN WEST GIVES UNSOLICITED PRAISE TO NEW RAILWAY.

A world-wide traveller, having just returned from a visit to Western Canada, has written to one of the chief officials of the Grand Trunk System, his unsolicited opinion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and how it serves the travelling public. He says:

"I had the pleasure of travelling from Edmonton to Winnipeg on the new line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, and I would like to say that of the 7000 miles travelled on railways during my last journey the time I spent on the Grand Trunk Pacific was the most comfortable of my entire trip.

"The road-bed is evidently a fine piece of work, the cars clean and comfortable, the men in charge were most polite and obliging, and my questions asked of them were answered in a most gentlemanly manner.

"I would like to refer specially to the dining car service and its equipment, which is the best I have seen. it was in fact a revelation to me after having travelled so far on other roads—the meals being specially good, combined with pleasant surroundings and beautifully served.

"I beg to say that if it gives you as much pleasure to read this letter as it gives me to write you, you will perhaps pardon the liberty I have taken in addressing you."

This is but a specimen of the many letters that are being received by the Grand Trunk Pacific officials, praising the exceptionally fine road and service that is now being operated in Western Canada.

THE DESTRUCTION OF LOS ANGELES WAS PLANNED

Hithero Unpublished Part of McManigal's Confession Reveals Determination of the McNamaras to Carry Out Acts of Terrorism Unprecedented in America—Closing in on the Dynamiters

LOS ANGELES, Dec. —"If another dose of dynamite doesn't unionize Los Angeles we'll burn up the waterworks and explode enough mines to burn the city! We can give them till their proposed Panama Canal Exposition in 1915, and if they haven't mended their ways by then we'll make that place an example the world will always remember."

This, according to a heretofore unpublished portion of Ortie McManigal's confession, was the substance of a threat made by the McNamaras after they had blown up the Los Angeles Times and murdered twenty-one of its employes. The plan was discussed, McManigal said, in connection with his trip to Los Angeles last Christmas, when he dynamited the Llewellyn Iron Works—the crime to which John J. McNamara pleaded guilty of being the instigator.

McManigal, who was James B. McNamara's chief assistant in more than a score of dynamite outarges, was sent here to "give The Times a second dose." Undeterred by the appalling loss of life in the Times disaster, the McNamaras determined to break the defiant spirit of General Harrison Gray Otis, owner of that paper by placing a bomb under the auxiliary plant in which the paper was published after the main building was destroyed. McManigal confessed that he came fully intending to blow up the auxiliary plant.

"But whne I got here," explained McManigal, "I found the place so closely guarded that I couldn't do anything without taking some lives. So far as I am aware my stuff never killed anybody; I was always careful to set my clocks when there would be nobody on the job. And I wasn't going to be a murderer even to 'get the Times,' so I took the suitcase bomb which I had brought with me on a passenge rtrain from Chicago and left it at the Llewellyn Iron Works."

It has not been the intention of the prosecution to make public many of the details of the McNamara's campaign of destruction until after they are sentenced. As District Attorney Fredericks stated, he does not believe that his duty is to solve the greater social problems that have been raised by the McNamara's confession that they resorted for years to dynamite as organized labor's weapon of industrial warfare. Capt. Fredericks considers his duty done when he has dealt with the specific cases of murder and attempted murder for which the men are to be sentenced.

The degree of the McNamara's guilt is not, therefore, to be judged legally by McManigal's confession, although it attributes to the confessed dynamiters zeal that would destroy the entire city and endanger perhaps hundreds of lives, following the first sacrifice of twenty-one.

As McManigal related the plan which he says was discussed by the McNamaras it designed simultaneous explosions of the McNamara clockwork bombs, one at a vital point in the city's water supply, which would leave the entire town without protection, and four or five other big mines under biuldings in widely separated sections so as to encompass the city's complete destruction by fire.

Los Angeles is for the most part a city of wood. Only in recent years has there been any considerable brick and concrete construction, excepting in the business section. Apartment houses of two and three stories entirely of redwood and pine are still being erected. The hills which give such a charm to the city's residential districts are covered with frame bungalows. A fine town for a conflagration!

It appears from what McManigal is known to have told in his confession, that the McNamaras, while alarmed by the unexpected loss of life in the dynamiting of The Times, were surprised and chagrined by the failure of that outrage to break the defiance of unionism of Gen. Otis and the Los Angeles Merchants and Manufacturers' Association. It did not seem to occur to them that their weapon was ineffective and their idea, according to McManigal, was that the campaign must be kept up until the city was terrorized into surrendering.

CLOSING IN ON DYNAMITERS

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 6.—The examinations of the letters and other records taken by the Federal authorities for presentation to the Grand Jury in the dynamiting cases is bringing to light new and startling evidence of the scope of the conspiracy every hour. By comparing letters with the dates of entries on the books, and with other letters written by John J. McNamara, many of the expressions in them are made plain, and show what is believed to be a distinct chain connecting McNamara and others with the many outrages committed in various parts of the country. Some of the expressions thought to be innocent enough when looked at disconnected from others, are full of import when placed alongside of others, and out of these the Government is weaving a strong net of circumstantial evidence against the conspirators.

A State officer who saw some of the letters said to-day that he had seen enough to convince any court that McNamara and certain other men ought to hang for the crimes boldly hinted at, and added: "Great care was exercised in each letter to protect the writer and the recipient from any possible implication in case the letter came into the hands of any official, but the careful ones overlooked one thing. They forgot that the entire series of letters might be taken, and the series of letters makes most damning cases against certain men of both national ad international reputations."

One leter in particular was spoken of which was addressed to John J. McNamara at Indianapolis. This letter was from a man in a large eastern city in reply to a letter from the Executive Board of the union, demanding an accounting for $500 of the iternational associatio's funds. The man's reply contained simply a clipping from a paper telling of a mysterious explosion, pinned to a sheet of ordinary paper upon which had been scrawled: "Ain't this enough. The money was used in fighting scab labor."

CANADA'S CHRISTMAS STAMP

The Campaign for 1911 is on, and Needy Consumptives all over Canada are Rejoicing

As Archdeacon Cody expressed it at a meeting of the Citizens' Christmas Stamp Committee in Toronto, a few days ago, the Christmas Stamp, now issued each year in aid of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, has become one of the institutions of the country.

Three years ago the movement was set on foot in Canada by the National Sanitarium Association, following the idea that first originated in Denmark, which was a year later taken up in the United States, and quickly spread to Canada.

The idea itself is very simple, though the results show how true it is that "great oaks from little acorns grow," $11,000.00 being realized from the sale of stamps in 1910, a sum sufficient to care for forty patients at the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives. This year it is hoped that $25,000.00 may be realized to assist in this great life saving work which is ever becoming more urgent.

The cut in the corner of this article shows the design of the stamp for 1911, though the original is in three colors.

This stamp does not carry any mail. One wants to remember this, though, as it has been epigrammatically expressed, any mail will carry it. The idea is for everyone to use this stamp in their correspondence between now and the end of the year. This plan will serve the two-fold purpose of helping to realize the $25,000.00 for the aid of needy consumptives, and will besides possess an educational value that can hardly be overestimated.

The stamps are on sale to-day in book stores, drug stores, and elsewhere in almost every town and city in Canada. Clergymen, Public School teachers, Sunday School teachers, Bible Class workers, Daughters of the Empire, and organizations of many different kinds are assisting in the work of spreading the sale of this little stamp. Each stamp costs only one cent, so that it becomes possible for everyone to have some part in this great battle against consumption.

We have every pleasure in urging our readers to make much use of this little messenger of healing for the next thirty days.

Clergymen to Testify.

Montreal, Dec. 8.—A Protestant minister and a Roman Catholic priest will be the principal witnesses on Monday when hearing takes place on the formal inscription for judgment following the desistment of Eugene Hebert from defending the judgment originally annulling the marriage of himself and Emma Marie Clouatre under the provisions of the ne temere decree.

Rev. Mr. Timberlake, the Methodist pastor, who married the Roman Catholic pair will be the Protestant minister and Rev. Father Callaghan, chancellor of the Roman Catholic diocese, will represent his church, producing as a portion of his evidence a copy of the famous decree under which the wedding was declared null and void.

Both ministers were present at court yesterday morning when the case was adjourned until Monday. They are expected to make proof of the marriage and the stand of the defendant, based upon the decree.

Not content with getting judgment formally, following the desistment of the husband, who retired from the fight because of lack of funds to fight his wife's opposition, George V. Cousins, the attorney for Mrs. Hebert, wants the testimony taken, owing to the principle at stake.

It takes a bride with a vivid imagination to go on believing it is still the honeymoon when she is busy at the wash tub.

HOUSE IS ADJOURNED

Commons Rises to Assemble Again on January 10.

Debate on the "Spoils System" and Alleged Cases of Its Operation on Both Sides Continues Most of the Day—Lemieux Says Credit for Cable Cut Is His—Tariff Commission Is to Be Created.

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—"This House stands adjourned till February, January 10."

Speaker Sproule corrected himself before it was too late, and the Parliamentary advocates of the vaster vacation heaved a sigh as they realized that their aspirations which had not dared look beyond January 17, had trembled on the brink of being more than realized.

The concluding instalment of the debate on the "spoils system" yesterday degenerated largely into a frequent repetition of the "you're another" style of argument. Orators declaimed of the swing of the axe and the fall of the razor edge blade of the guillotine, and J. H. Sinclair of Guysboro even traced its gory trail back into the mythical age of Tory iniquity "before 96."

Hon. Wm. Pugsley again brought up the case of the boundary water commission. The late Government's recommendations, he said, had been approved by the British Government. The commission was a tribunal, not to act for either Government, but to do justice as between the Governments of Canada and the United States.

When the House met the Premier read a letter from Lord Strathcona telling of the proposed cut in cable rates, and Hon. L. P. Pelletier read a cable from Postmaster Samuels informing him that the cut would go into effect on January 1, 1912.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemiuex congratulated his successor on reaping where he himself had sown. It was only the first instalment, he said. There was a movement on foot in Britain for a bolder step.

"We should have a Government-owned cable. I think the time has come when the cable monopoly should be restrained by the construction by the Government of a state-owned cable."

In answer to a question by C. A. Wilson (Laval) as to whether the Canadian Copyright Bill would be founded on the bill just passed by the Imperial Parliament, Hon. Martin Burrell said that the latter bill had not been received, but when it was, it would be given careful consideration.

Hon. J. D. Hazen, in answer to a question of J. H. Sinclair (Guysboro), said he believed the outside fisheries service might be reorganized with benefit to the service. For instance there were defects in the present method of appointing fisheries inspectors. He was collecting information with a view to action.

Hon. R. L. Borden announced that the Government intended to introduce the measure to establish a tariff commission at the present session.

Hon. Jacques Bureau raised a laugh by asking whether the Minister of Justice was aware that, according to newspaper report, the notorious Bill Miner was in the vicinity of Ottawa and whether steps would be taken towards his capture.

The ex-Minister was twitted by the Premier with his new-found zeal in the matter.

The House agreed to refund the fees, less cost of printing and translation, of private bills undisposed of at the last session, owing to the sudden dissolution.

A bill of Robert Bickerdck (Montreal-St. Lawrence), to amend the Juvenile Delinquents Act, received its second reading, with an amendment. The bill provides for the same protection to the children of other religious denominations as to the children of Roman Catholics and Protestants, the Jews being the class aimed at. The amendment gives the court discretion as to the suitability of the committee of three of the same race and religion as to the child appointed under the act. In the discussion the committee (H. B. Ames, Montreal, St. Antoine) objected that the terms of the measure were too wide. There were a great many religious denominations. What about Armenians, Chinese or Hindus. Mr. Bickerdike thought the wider the measure the better.

ROYAL PAIR AT DELHI.

Sumptuous Oriental Welcome Marks Their Arrival.

Delhi, India, Dec. 8.—The roar of an Imperial salute of 101 guns welcomed the King-Emperor and Queen-Empress on their arrival here yesterday.

Equipages passed along the roads crowded with Indian princes, military officers and Government officials, and streams of natives went the same way.

After a series of presentations, Their Majesties proceeded to a pavilion within a wall of the fort, where 150 ruling chiefs were introduced. Meanwhile the provincial legislators had gathered on the ridge by the durbar camp to greet the royal party.

Then began the great procession to the camp four miles away. Throughout India a holiday had been decreed, and hordes of natives had gathered.

As Their Majesties approached, the command to present arms was passed along the line of troops. European spectators took off their hats and the natives bent deep towards the ground. The King, the Queen and the Viceroy bowed right and left in acknowledgment.

The bodyguard of Indian princes, who followed immediately after, outshone in splendor all that had passed.

Their Majesties entered the city through the Ging's gate, now opened for the first time since 1857, when the King of Delhi went to public worship.

All along the route the impression seemed to be profound, and the reception was a cordial one. On arrival at the camp the troops filed past the Imperial carriage, receptions followed, and the King was presented with a brief address of welcome, to which he replied.

Their Majesties and the viceregal party then repaired to their camp, of which Circuit House, built by Lord Curzon in 1903, is the centre.

The vast camp stretches along the great trunk road in long symmetrical rows of white tents, almost blinding in the vertical Indian sun, while the whole place when Their Majesties entered blazed with the bright hues of the east.

About a quarter of a million persons have taken up their quarters, in the canvas city, which is broken up by green lawns, polo grounds, fountains and avenues of trees.

The great day of course will be on Tuesday, Dec. 12, when the most notable ceremony of all will take place. As a unit the vast multitude will head toward the two amphitheatres that have been erected on the spot where in 1877 Lord Lytton formally announced to the Indian Empire Queen Victoria's assumption of the title of "Empress of India."

Thus probably a hundred thousand people will be enabled to witness the proclamation of his Imperial Majesty as King-Emperor of India.

DRURY LANE MUSIC HALL

Hereafter in its Rebuilt Form it Will Have a New Name.

Familiar to the passing generation of Londoners as the "Old Mo," the Drury Lane music hall, widely known as the Middlesex, has just been reopened. During the summer the house was rebuilt, and the New Middlesex Empire as it will be called accommodates an audience of 3,000 with comfort, and will stage productions of nearly every kind. Extending 155 ft. one way and 115 ft. another, the new "Old Mo" has a larger frontage than any theatre in London. The auditorium has been built without columns on the Acel cantilever principle, and the features of the house will be saloons on each tier, bars, and a tea room.

THAT NUMBER "13"

The Duke of Connaught is Apparently Not Afraid of It

It is to be presumed that His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada, is not superstitious. If he were, or if Her Royal Highness, the Duchess, had any personal aversion to the much-maligned number "13," it is doubtful if their Excellencies would have consented to set foot on Canadian shores on Friday, the thirteenth day of October. For even royalties are human, and human frailty is at no time more visible than when old acquaintances, in the guise of time-honored superstitions, are brought to mind.

Apparently men are no more exempt from a dislike to the tabooed number than women; and in hotels the average between guests of both sexes who refuse to be placed in a room labelled "13," is struck pretty fairly. Cases have also come to the notice of hotel managers, in which new "bell-hops" have objected to wearing upon the surface of their spick and span liveries the little badge of metal by which they were expected to become known to the office as "No. 13."

In police circles the robust individuals who are known to the public as the "arms of the law" take the unhappy number as philosophically as they march the newest victim of funny water off to the cooler; but civilians who have found themselves inside the fast-locked door of Cell No. 13 have been known to consider themselves exceedingly unlucky.

Great Britain's barley acreage has decreased by 130,734 acres this year.

INSURANCE BILL PASSES COMMONS

The Final Clauses Rushed Through by the Guillotine Method

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George's National Insurance Bill passed its third reading the House of Commons tonight. The final clauses were rushed through in the last few days by what is popularly known as the guillotine method of choking off debate.

The Unionists to-night moved an amendment approving the principle of the bill, but condemning certain parts of it, and declaring that it had not been adequately enough discussed or understood, and demanding further consideration for the measure.

This amendment, after a long debate, was defeated by a vote of 320 to 223, and the bill was read a third time and passed, 324 to 21. Only 11 Unionists voted, the remainder of the 21 votes in the negative being made up of seven O'Brienites and three Laborites. The bill was immediately sent to the House of Lords, where it was read the first time.

The bill is not a life insurance measure, but provides insurance for the sick and the unemployed. It provides for compulsory deductions from the wages of the employed class, contributions from employers, and further contributions by the State. It is estimated that about fifteen million people will be affected by the measure. There will also be an appropriation of $562,600 for the establishment of sanitary hospitals throughout England for the purpose of fighting the spread of tuberculosis.

AMUSEMENTS

THE BOX TRICK.

At the Griffin Opera House last evening a good audience was present to witness the performance of Prof. McEwen. The latter opened the proceedings by introducing his famous box trick. The box was constructed by a local man, and from every appearance was most substantial. The Professor, after being placed in it, had the covering securely nailed down and ropes were then tied tightly about the box. In less than a minute he had freed himself from the box without removing a board or unticing the ropes. The second part of the programme was intensely amusing and instructive, demonstrating his abilities as a hypnotist. The programme is varied each evening.

"DEAR OLD BILLY."

Big Success in Toronto.
(From Toronto Globe.)

"Dear Old Billy," a typical English comedy, deals with the adventures of old Billy Smith in a seaside boarding-house. Mr. Hawtrey's work as old Billy shows that he is rightly classed among England's cleverest character actors. His humor is never coarse, but it is telling, and he has but to amble across the stage to start the audience laughing. Mr. E. H. Kelly has, next to Mr. Hawtrey, the chief fun-making role, and his efforts were decidedly effective. Mr. Bernard Fairfax and Mr. Harry Redding were a pair of amusing lovers. Miss Laura Clement as "Mrs. Smith," Miss Jane Burby, as the landlady, Mr. G. S. Christie as the bridegroom, Miss Mary Morrel as the bride, Miss Cassie Jamieson as the maid, and Miss Ruth Tomlinson as Billy's troublesome ward, completed a capable cast.

HORSES

Crushed oats are easier digested, and therefore more profitable than whole oats.

The driver's aim should be to manipulate the reins with a light but firm and steady hand.

A roll after a hard day's work is greatly appreciated by the horse. It takes the place of extra feed.

The value of salting the work horse regularly is often underestimated by horsemen. It is a good practice to keep the material before them at all times.

Remember that sudden changes of food may cause colic. New hay, new oats, green corn, etc., are often used. Make the change gradually, and no harm will result.

A horse that is extremely tired should not be given a heavy feed until he has had a little rest. Some feeders act on the supposition that a large amount of feed is what is needed to replace the lost energy. It must be remembered, however, that a horse so exhausted cannot digest food as well as one that is fresh, and, therefore, should be fed accordingly.

MUCH BUSINESS WAS DONE BY THE COUNTY COUNCIL

Careful Consideration Given to the Matter Brought Before Them

December 7th, 1911.
MORNING SESSION.

Council resumed at 10 o'clock, Warden Dryden presiding.

The minutes of Wednesday's session were read and confirmed.

Mr. T. W. Hamilton, of Madoc township, who is incapacitated from doing manual labor asks the Council to grant him a peddler's license free of charge.—Referred to the Ways and Means Committee.

A number of by-laws were read a first time and referred to the Committee of the Whole on By-laws.

Mr. Tummon referred to the fact that the G.T.R. company, in building abutments for a steel structure near Moira Lake, crowded somewhat upon the County Highway. The G. T. R. had agreed to compensate the County to the extent of $300, which money could be expended in widening the roadway.

The matter was left in the hands of Mr. Tummon with authority to act on behalf of the County.

Mr. White moved, seconded by Mr. Ketcheson, that the G.T.R. Company be requested to make some necessary repairs on the roadway leading to the overhead bridge on the town line.—Carried.

Mr. Vermilyea moved, seconded by Mr. Cook, that Mr. Newton, chairman of gravel roads, and the County Superintendent are hereby appointed to examine such county bridges as the various Reeves report to them at this session as in their opinion needing to be replaced during the year 1912 by new bridges.—Carried.

Mr. Ketcheson moved, seconded by Mr. White, that notices be placed in various parts of the County forbidding the placing of rubbish on the sides of the county roads.

Mr. Vermilyea spoke in support of the motion. Sometimes parties used the night for dumping rubbish on the side of roads and lots.

Mr. Clarke stated that notices had been put upin Limerick township forbidding the placing of any material on the side of roads, and it had done good.

After some other members had spoken in reference to the motion, it was unanimously adopted.

Moved by Mr. Clarke, seconded by Mr. Nugent, that a committee consisting of the Clerk, Treasurer, the Reeves of Elzevir, Tudor, Wollaston, Marmora and Lake, Limerick and Monteagle be appointed to draft changes in the Assessment Act to be submitted to the Government with a request from this Council that said changes be made.—Carried.

Mr. Nugent spoke in support of the law being changed in reference to the sale of non-resident land. His opiion was that each municipality should be invested with the power to sell such lands. To his mind it would save a lot of trouble.

Mr. Thompson moved, seconded by Mr. Gunter, that the name of Mr. Newton be substituted for that of Mr. Thompson re. committee to provide a place for County machinery.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Newton, seconded by Mr. Grant, that the Reeve of Huntingdon and Supt. of Roads be a committee to deal with the G.T.R. re. the grievance by erecting and building cement abutments crowding on the roadway at Moira Lake, ad that the Clerk notify the G. T. R. that the County will not be responsible for any damages arising therefrom and that unless some satisfactory arrangements are arrived at immediately, that the G. T. R. be notified to remove the obstructions. Council adjourned until 2 o'clock.

December 7th, 1911.
AFTERNOON SESSION.

Council resumed at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Hanley gave notice of a by-law fixing the charge of interest on County rates.

The special committee appointed at the June session re, telegraph and telephone poles and guy wires on County roads which were in some cases, it is alleged, placed in such a position as to be dangerous to the travelling public.

Communications were read from the telegraph and telephone companies that they were unaware that any poles or guys were placed in a position to be an obstruction to the travelling public.

Mr. Thompson said the idea of the committee was to bring this matter before the proper companies. It was intended to have the guy wires removed.

Mr. Ketcheson said there were poles placed in such a position as to be in his opinion obstructions. The matter had been brought before the companies.

Mr. Clarke said that a pole placed within 66 feet of a road allowance was an obstruction. The Council was responsible for this space of the road allowance.

The report was adopted.

Mr. Vermilyea moved, seconded by Mr. Montgomery, that the chairman of Bridges, Messrs. Maloney and Hubbell be a committee to visit Fair's bridge and confer with such persons as have local knowledge of conditions as to spring freshets, etc., and to undertake such work in reference to this bridge as may be deemed necessary.

Mr. Thompson moved, seconded by Mr. Gunter, in amendment that the matter be referred to the Bridge Committee and Messrs. Maloney and Hubbell, with power to act.

Mr. Cook said that there could be nothing done until the ice was sound and the matter could be taken up at the spring session.

Mr. Thompson withdrew his amendment.

Mr. Vermilyea's motion prevailed.

Sheriff Morrison made an explanation in reference to the Indian man, Brant, who is, and has been, in the jail for some time. The Government officials had positively refused to take him to an asylum. A report has to be made to the Government each month as to the inmates. The doctor refused to give a certificate to allow this man out of jail as he was not a safe person to be free. The man might possibly, as Dr. Bruce Smith suggested, be sent to the House of Refuge.

Mr. Vermilyea and the Warden objected to having the man sent to the House of Refuge, as he was at times dangerous.

The Sheriff was thanked for the explanation of the affair.

Council adjourned until Friday morning.

December 8th, 1911.
MORNING SESSION.

Council resumed at 10 o'clock; Warden Dryden presiding.

Mr. J. S. Dench, an ex-Warden of the county, was invited to a seat within the bar.

REPORTS.

Mr. N. Vermilyea presented a report of the special committee re. the Bellevile hospital, as follows:

Your committee appointed at the June session to consider and report upon matters appertaining to the hospital at Belleville submits its report.

We recommend now that the County patients are no longer discriminated against in the matter of charges that $100 per quarter be paid to the hospital at Belleville payment to be made on Jan. 1st., April 1st, July 1st, and October 1st, the first payment to be made on January 1st, 1912.

Mr. Vermilyea paid a tribute to the ladies who managed the hospital. They had done so for years and worked most faithfully for that institution. Recently a large addition had been made to the building and the county should take an interest in it. All the advantages possibile were now being given to the County. He suggested that an entertainment be held yearly in the various municipalities and the proceeds applied to this worthy institution. He moved that the report be adopted and referred to the Ways and Means Committee for an appropriation.

Mr. P. P. Clrak endorsed Mr. Vermilyea's remarks. He thought the county of Prince Edward might assist in this matter.

The Warden thought the rate for County patients in the hospital should be $2.50 per week. Prince Edward County should be asked to give a grant.

Mr. Ketcheson was of the opinion that the County should not ask to have County patients placed in the hospital at $2.50 per week as it costs more than twice that amount to keep a patient in that institution. He seconded the adoption of the report.

The report was adopted.

A report was presented by the special committee re, having changes in the Assessment Act made. The committee recommended that the changes be as follows:

Whereas it is desirable that non-resident lands should be charged for statute labor the same as resident lands;

Resolved that this Council petition the Ontario Legislature to repeal sub-section 3 of section 9, Chap. 25, 4 Edward VII. 904, page 212; an Act respecting statute labor.

Whereas we have reason to believe that certain telegraph and telephone companies are being exempt from their proper assessment by having their wires strung on other companies' said poles or owned by some other companies' poles;

Resolved, that sec. 14, clause 2, Chap. 23- 4 Edward VII. be amended by adding thereto: "And when two or more companies shall be using the same poles, each company shall be liable for assessment at the rates set forth in this sub-section for a first second and each additional line, whether said companies are the owners of said poles or owned by some other company.

Your committee would recommend that the delegation dealing with the Model School at Madoc interview the Government re. above named changes in the Assesment Act.

After some members had spoken of the necessity of the change, the report was adopted.

Moved by Mr. Newton, seconded by Mr. Ketcheson, that the Warden and Clerk be authorized to sign and submit to the Minister of Public Works of the Province of Ontario the petition of the corporation of the County of Hastings showing that during the period from January 1st to December 1st, 1911, there has been expended upon the County highway system the sum of $112,541.49, and requesting a grant of one-third of that amount as provided by the Act to aid in the improvement of highways.—Carried.

Council went into Committee of the Whole on By-laws, Mr. White in the chair.

A by-law was read to appoint County Auditors.

A by-law was read to assume a portion of McGill street in the village of Marmora as a County road.

A by-law was read to provide for the straightening and widening of the County road running south from the village of Frankford on the west side of the Trent river towards Glen Miller in the township of Sidney and for the acquiring the necessary land for that purpose.

A by-law was read to grant permission to the Central Ontario Railway to cross the county road on the west side of the Trent river on lot 2, concession 4, Sidney, with a spur line into the power house of the Sidney Electric Power Co., Ltd.

A by-law to regulate the terms of payment of the county rates.

The by-laws were read a second time.

Council adjourned until 2 o'clock

WON'T MIX.
BAD FOOD AND GOOD HEALTH WON'T MIX.

The human stomach stands much abuse, but it won't return good health if you give it wrong food.

If you feed right you will feel right for proper food and a good mind is the sure road to health.

"A year ago I became much alarmed about my health, for I began to suffer after each meal, no matter how little I ate," says a Denver woman.

"I lost my appetite and the very thought of food grew distasteful, with the result that I was not nourished and got weak and thin.

"My home cares were very heavy, for beside a large family of my own, I have also to look out for an aged mother. There was no one to shoulder my household burdens, and come what might I must bear them, and this thought nearly dorve me frantic when I realized that my health was breaking down.

"I read an article in the paper about some one with trouble just like mine being benefited by Grape-Nuts. Food, and acting on this suggestion I gave Grape-Nuts a trial. The first dish of this delicious food proved that I had struck the right thing.

"My uncomfortable feelings in stomach and brain disappeared as if by magic and in an incredibly short space of time I was again myself. Since then I have gained 12 pounds in weight through a summer of hard work and realize I am a very different woman, all due to the splendid food, Grape-Nuts."

TO HAVE SPUR LINES

Sir James Announces Plans For the T. and N O.

In Address at Orillia, the Premier Says That the Extension to Elk Lake Is Only the Start In the Series of Radiations—Gets a Fine Reception—Deals With Compensation For Workmen.

Orillia, Dec. 8.—That the spur line which the T. & N.O. Railway intends to build to Elk Lake next summer, as announced Wednesday by J. L. Englehart, chairman of the commission, is only the initial step in a series of spur lines reaching right and left along the whole route of the main line of the T. & N. O., and tapping that part of the province with a chain of Government railway extensions was definitely stated by Sir James Whitney last night. "The plans contemplated would," said the Premier, "go a long way towards opening up the entire northern part of the province for settlement."

The opera house was jammed to the doors, and dozens of people crowded into the aisles and stood on the backs of seats to get a view of the platform.

Sir James was particularly emphatic in commending the investigations that were being made previous to formulating the Ontario act for compensating injured workmen. "I have no doubt that we will get the best compensation for injured workmen act of any country in the world," said Sir James, after explainng that Chief Justice Meredith was investigating similar acts of compensation in different countries.

Sir James referred to the T. & N. O. Railway as the living link that connects the transcontinental Grand Trunk Pacific with the railways of old Ontario going to the tide waters and thence to the Old Land.

The Premier then referred to the numerous spur lines which were contemplated and of which the one which would be run to Elk Lake next summer was the first.

Fight To a Finish.

London, Dec. 8.—At the opening at Bootle, Lancashire, last night of the Unionist campaign against home rule, the Opposition leader, Andrew Bonar Law, said that his party had determined to fight the proposal to the last gasp. Many people, he said, favored home rule because they were tired to death of the Irish problem and glad to see it out of the way. The duty of the Unionists was to convince them that it would bring Ireland no peace, but the sword. Ireland wanted less politics and more industry. Mr. Redmond and his friends were promising Ireland more politics and less industry.

They were wise in trying to get home rule while they could, continued the speaker. This was their last chance, as every year the demand for it was diminishing in Ireland. Another ten years and the agitation will have died out. He declared that it was utterably impossible to pass the bill in this Parliament.

Must Protect Falls.

Washington, Dec. 8.—"Vandalism will continue until checked, unless a national reservation is established at Niagara Falls," declares a report which President Taft yesterday sent to Congress from the committee for regulation and control of the waters of the Niagara River and the preservation of Niagara Falls. The report tells of many improvements accomplished, but declares that the committee has been powerless to cope with deplorable conditions on the American side, north of the falls.

"Apparently," it is asserted, "the situation is beyond control, except through the creation of the national reservation recommended in the 65th Congress."

FRIENDLY TO GERMANY.

President Taft Wants to Secure Arbitration Treaty.

Berlin, Dec. 8.—The Tageblatt publishes under a Washington date what purports to be an interview with President Taft on the subjects of international arbitration, armanents, Mr. Shuster and the trusts.

According to the correspondent, the President is most anxious for an arbitration treaty with Germany, of whose love of peace he is firmly convinced. He foresees that all nations which sign arbitration treaties with the U. S. will duplicate these among themselves. An international tribunal, he thinks, can be based on this structure, with the necessary executive power to enforce its decisions. The first decision of such a tribunal would give the signal for a successive limitation of armaments, for which there is no other prospect.

President Taft, says the correspondent, believes that the Panama Canal by bringing the nations commercially closer together will work for peace. The canal will be open to all nations, with a natural limitation in the case of war.

After giving the opinion of the President in regard to the trusts which covered much the same ground as the recent message, the correspondent says that the President is convinced that reorganization is necessary, and that this should be effected without the disturbance of commercial progress.

The President recognized in the course of an interview that a tariff which was too high favored the building up of monopolies and was a continual temptation to form small trusts, which were often more oppressive to the consumer than the big ones. He was, says the correspondent, conscious that he was elected upon the expectation of an honorable tariff commission.

President Taft suggested that the law courts offer a remedy to German importers who are protesting that Canadian paper arrangements constitute discrimination.

Referring to the position of W. Morgan Shuster, the American, who is acting as treasurer-general in Persia, President Taft said that he went to Persia in his private capacity and that intervention by the U. S. was excluded.

President Taft throughout the interview showed unmistakably that his sympathies were with Germany.

Will Dynamite Pekin.

Pekin, Dec. 8.—The rebels are levying tribute on and obtaining subscriptions from Pekin officials who draw Imperial salaries, but fear to sympathize openly with the revolution. The rebels freely state that they intend to dynamite and attack Pekin. Some arrests have been made, but the Government is practcally powerless owing to the timidity of the official class. The student class is powerful in China and is forcing extreme demands because of the racial timidity of the elders, who would be content with the limitations the members of the court have already imposed upon themselves. Precautions are being taken to prevent a rising of the Manchu troops because of dissatisfaction over the Regent's seemingly compulsory retirement and the prospect of all the Manchus, in consequence of this, losing their pensions.

Wuchang, Dec. 8.—While absolutely oppposed to the retention of the Manchu dynasty and personally favoring a republic, Gen. Li Yuen Heng and the other revolutionary leaders have decided to accept a constitutional monarchy, with Yuan Shi Kai, or some other satisfactory Chinese, as ruler, under a constitution and Parliament, if a majority of the people prefer this settlement.

Princess Reaches Halifax.

Halifax, Dec. 8.—The steamer Empress of Ireland arrived in the harbor at 1.15 this morning and docked at 1.30. The Princess Patricia, daughter of the Duke of Connaught, is a passenger. The princess proceeded to Ottawa by the regular train at eight o'clock this morning.

M'MANIGAL ON STAND

Informer Spends Day Before Grand Jury.

He Persists In His Story That the McNamaras Were Not Alone In Outrages and Conspiracies — Will Help to Find the Men Behind the Prisoners—A. F. of L. Issues a Statement Repudiating Knowledge.

Los Angeles, Dec. 8.—"I've got hundreds of thousands of dollars and the American Federation of Labor back of me. It took only $30,000 to clear Vincent Altman of Chicago, and if they could not convict him they can't convict me."

This boast, attributed yesterday by Detective Malcolm McLaren to James B. McNamara as the latter was being taken on a train from Detroit to Chicago on the night of April 12 last, caused Ortie E. McManigal, then also under arrest, to become angered with McNamara for his independent statement and was the first circumstance that led McManigal to break from his companion, and eventually to confess his connection with various dynamiting explosions throughout the country.

The federal grand jury heard McManigal's story all day and will hear more of it to-day, laying the foundation for the probe into the alleged dynamiting conspiracies that extend from coast to coast in the last three years. The McNamaras were not brought before the federal grand jury yesterday, and it may be that McManigal's story will be regarded as sufficient and the other two will be taken to San Quentin without interrogation here.

Details of what McManigal knows of the alleged conspiracies was given to the grand jury yesterday. That his story implicates other men in the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers became known through various sources.

McManigal alleges that persons other than John J. McNamara, the secretary and treasurer, paid him for the twenty "jobs" of dynamiting which he says he accomplished in 1907.

The story of McManigal will be of great value to the Government's investigators, and the state will not try him on the indictments against him until the federal authorities are through. Even then, it was stated last night on good authority, District Attorney Fredericks will recommend his discharge on account of signal service rendered.

Malcolm McLaren, the detective who arrested J. B. McNamara and McManigal, stayed outside the grand jury chamber yesterday waiting for McManigal. While thus waiting, McLaren gave a new version, new in important details, of the evidence and circumstances which led up to the arrest of McManigal and McNamara in Detroit.

A. F. of L. Statement.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Organized labor in America has no desire to condone the crimes of the McNamaras, according to a statement authorized last night by the American Federation of Labor. The statement, which was issued at the close of three-hour meeting behind closed doors, denounces the McNamaras and continues:

"It is cruelly unjust to hold the men of the labor movement either legally or morally responsible for the crimes of an individual member. Insofar as we have the right to speak, we welcome any investigation which either federal or state courts may undertake. The American labor movements and its friends are loyal Americans and seek to obtain the abolition of wrongs and the attainment of their rights within the law."

Watching Gompers.

Indianapolis, Dec. 8.—That the Federal Government has been watching closely the movements of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, was made known here Wednesday night, when U. S. Attorney Miller told of a secret Washington conference held between the labor head and Prosecutor Baker of the county about six weeks ago.

The visit was made about the time the county officials were attempting to prevent the federal authorities from gaining possession of the books and records obtained in the offices of the International Ironworkers, when McNamara was arrested. Baker says he will see Gompers again in January.

Gompers Attacks Burns.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Sampel Gompers has issued a formal statement saying:

"Detective Burns evidently believes that if he repeats a falsehood often enough, it may become truth. On no other theory would he repeat the falsehood that I knew that the McNamaras were guilty."

Brantford's New P.O.

Brantford, Dec. 8.—George Ross, postoffice superintendent, and C. H. Hunter, Public Works Department, were here yesterday looking over sites for Brantford's proposed new postoffice. An official report will be submitted and it is confidently expected this city will secure the new Government buildings. The late Government offered to provide a new building if the city provided a site, but nothing materialized. The Borden Government is being urged to expropriate a building site for that purpose.

Montreal 'Phone Users Satisfied?

Montreal, Dec. 8.—According to City Attorney Archambault, little interest is being taken by users of telephones in the civic petition now before the Board of Railway Commissioners to order telephone rates lowered. Only fifteen complaints have been filed, and in view of the thousands of telephones in use in the city, the attorney hardly thinks that the board will act on such meagre evidence.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Lower, Chicago Higher—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—After wavering between strength and weakness, the wheat market to-day was steadied by covering to anticipate a possible surprise in the government crop report, due just at the closing minute of the session. The surprise came all right—an official estimate that the United States has planted 2,272,000 acres less winter wheat than a year ago.

The Liverpool market closed to-day unchanged to ⅛d lower on wheat, and ⅜d higher on corn. Antwerp closed unchanged to 1¼c higher on wheat, Berlin ½c lower, Buda Pest ¼c higher.

FRIDAY And SATURDAY SINCLAIR'S FRIDLY And SATURDAY

Infanta Is Contrite.

Madrid, Dec. 9.—King Alfonso has received a letter from the Infanta Eulalia asking him to pardon her, and saying that she had acted in a moment of forgetfulness. "She had," she said, "no intention of wounding the royal family nor from a political motive. She begs to have an opportunity of showing that she is an affectionate aunt and a true and loyal Spaniard."

The trouble arose from the publication of a book relating her experience of court life, which the King forbade her to publish.

Graham Fund Availed Not.

Brockville, Dec. 8.—The publication of the election returns of the two candidates of the Brockville riding in the recent Dominion campaign shows that the Hon. G. P. Graham's exceeded those of John Webster, nearly three to one, and yet he was defeated. The ex-Minister of Railways and Canals spent $2.186 and his successful opponent only $304.

Beaten by U. S. Sheep.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—Canadian success in capturing first honors in sheep judging at the International Stock Show, came to an end yesterday after years of triumph, and American sheep raisers garnered most of the blue ribbons.

Victor, the world's champion steer, owned by the Iowa Agricultural College, was sold at auction yesterday to a department store for ninety cents a pound. Only once has this price been passed. The first year of the exposition, a Pittsburg company paid $1.25 a pound for Advance, the prize winner of that year.

When "Work" Becomes "Labor"

There's Something Wrong.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Will Right It.

Thousands of Women feel just like this.

When it seems as if you simply could not bear up any longer it is high time to look for the cause of the trouble—and the remedy. In an astonishingly large number of cases the real cause of woman's misery is found to be constipation, and the remedy that always cures is Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Neglect of the daily movement of the bowels, so necessary to health, soon poisons the whole system from the impurities retained in the body. Headaches, indigestion, biliousness and lassitude follow, and often more serious female disorders are brought on or aggravated.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills not only regulate the bowels, but they stimulate kidneys and skin as well to throw off waste matter and purify the blood. The result is quickly apparent in the disappearance of the headaches and biliousness, and the return of health and vigor. Thousands of women all over the world owe their present good health to Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

POPULAR MADOC BOY DIED AT WINNIPEG

Was Operated on for Appendicitis and the End Came Suddenly

Edward Elliott, youngest son of Mr. Henry Elliott, of this village, a young man 23 years of age, died suddenly on Sunday evening at Winnipeg, after undergoing an operation for appendicitis two days previously. The sad and unexpected news came to Mr. Elliott in a telegram early Monday morning, following the announcement on Friday evening that the operation had been successfully performed.

"Ed." Elliott was one of Madoc's most popular young men, and left here to enter railroad work on the C.P.R. some three years ago. Last year he entered the employ of the Canadian Northern Railroad, in the auditor's branch at Winnipeg, in which department his brother Harry held an important position. Edward's duties called him to Milford, Sask., where he was taken ill about two weeks ago. He remained in the hospital there for a week, and was then taken by his brother the 500 miles journey to Winnipeg in order to have an expert physician operate for the disease. This was successfully performed on Friday last, and every hope was held out for his recovery, but he suddenly weakened on Sunday and died the same evening. The remains were taken to Douglas, Man., and buried beside his mother, who died there about 20 years ago.

The sincere and heartfelt sympathy of this community will be extended to the bereaved father and sister in this village in their great sorrow. The brother, Harry, and two sisters, Misses Annie and Florence, were with the deceased during his illness until the end.—Review.

QUEBEC APPLES BEAT THE KING'S

Como Farmer's Exhibit of Fameuse Excelled Those from Royal Orchard

STE. ANNE de BELLEVUE, Que., Dec. 7.—Great interest was displayed at the annual winter convention of the Pomological and Fruit-growing Society of the Provice of Quebec by a comparative exhibit by Mr. R. W. Shepherd, of Como, in which exhibits of Fameuse apples from his own orchards excelled in size, quality and color apples of the same variety from the King's orchard, in England, and some from British Columbia.

The English apples were grown in the King's own orchard from fifty Fameuse trees shipped to the royal household some fifteen years ago by Mr. Shepherd at the command of the late King Edward, but they looked very anaemic articles beside the blushing beauties from the Quebec orchard; while the British Columbia product also suffered from the same lack of color. The contrast between the fruit was most marked. The explanation given was that neither in England nor in British Columbia was there sufficient sun to produce the ruddy hue which is the glory of the Fameuse. While the English sample was well shaped and of good flavor, the British Columbia type was deficient in both qualities. The feature of the exhibition proved of particular interest to the apple growers, all of whom are engaged in shipping their choicest Fameuse to England, where this fruit is very highly prized and priced.

The meetings were held in Macdonald College, and great interest was displayed in the addresses telling fruit-growers how to make war on insects and fungus foes. "Watch and spray" was the burden of their massage.

BELLEVILLE CAN AND BELLEVILLE WILL

Lord Strathcona Will Give $5,000 for the Y. M. C. A. Building Conditionally

On Coronation Day, at the laying of the corner stone of the new $50,000 building on Campbell Street for the Young Men's Christian Association, the President, Mr. D. V. Sinclair, announced that the directors had enlarged and improved on the plans of the building as originally intended at the time of the campaign, and that it would necessitate a further effort to raise a modest addition to the building fund, as well as to provide a liberal amount to both appripriately and adequately furnish the splendid building. This involved altogether approximately $15,000 more. The campaign did not provide for any furnishings whatever.

It being the ambition of the directors to be able to enter the new building with all indebtedness provided for, they on Tuesday cabled Lord Strathcona, asking his aid on condition of securing the necessary balance.

Yesterday Lord Strathcona cabled the President of the Association that he would become responsible for the last $5,000 in this final effort, provided the citizens of Belleville would by their co-operation make possible the opening of the new building with "all building and furnishing" indebtedness provided for.

Can Belleville get this five thousand dollars?

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion lands Agency or Sub-Agent for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

LACROSSE IN THE COMMONS.

Speaking of lacrosse players, there are several famous players in the house besides Sam Hughes. Richard Blain, member for Peel, comes from Brampton, and Brampton has always been famous for its lacrosse teams. Dick, in his early days, was the backbone of the team. Then there is W. M. Martin, the member for Regina. He was also a lacrosse player of note in his day—and his day was not so long ago, for he is only thirty-five now—and at Toronto University he starred on the varsity team.

There is nothing more convenient than occasional absentmindedness.

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N.Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for woman's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and strengthen Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

"ORDER! ORDER!"

Commotions Caused in the Commons When Excitement has run High.

The almost unparalleled scene—or, perhaps, it would be more correct to say, series of scenes—which took place in the House of Commons a short time ago, suggest the question whether Parliament is not deteriorating.

Such scenes are not only discreditable, they lower the tone of our legislature, and give rise to doubts whether our law-makers are as level-headed to-day as they have had the reputation of being for so many centuries.

It is only fair to state, however, that, from the point of view of mere disorderliness, the recent "scene" was a much tamer affair than the one in the House of Commons in March, 1901.

The trouble on that occasion was created by some of the Irish members, and it was rightly described at the time as without parallel since the time of Cromwell, when soldiers cleared the House at the point of the bayonet.

As a matter of fact, most of the "scenes" which have taken place at Westminister must be laid at the door of the Irish members. There was a sensational incident in the last decade of the nineteenth century over the vexed question of Home Rule.

On that occasion members actually came to blows, but very little damage was done except to the prestige and dignity of the Mother of Parliaments. It must be said, too, that members were heartily ashamed of their conduct, and showed that they were when their hot blood had cooled down.

Thirty years ago there was an indescribable uproar in the House of Commons when thirty-five members of the Irish party were forcibly removed, in addition to being suspended from attendance.

That scene was almost paralleled in the following year, 1882, when the House sat at a stretch for the lengthy period of twenty-eight hours. As many as twenty-five Irish members were suspended on that occasion, most of them for refusing to leave when the House was about to be cleared for a division.

The name of the late Charles Bradlaugh is associated with more than one diorderly scene in Parliament, on account of his "conscientious objection" to take the oath. Perhaps the one that occasioned the most excitement was when he essayed to take his seat by sheer force.

On that memorable occasion the House was treated to the eddifying spectacle of the hon. member for Northampton struggling desperately with half a dozen burly policemen, who forcibly ejected him from the Chamber. It was a most painful scene to all who witnessed it.

The British Parliament is, however, "not in it" wth foreign legislatures for the creation of scenes. The French Chamber has provided not a few, some of the worst being in connection with the Dreyfus question, which agitated the whole of France, not to say Europe, some thirteen years ago.

In the course of a "full-dress" debate on this question, one speaker called another "a liar and a coward," receiving the next moment a smashing blow in the face for his pains. Nothing more was needed to set the whole Chamber in an uproar, and free fights became the order of the day. Before the disturbance could be quelled, not only police, but foot and mounted soldiers had to be called out.

Perhaps the Austrian Parliament is the most unruly of all the legislatures of Europe. There even Ministers, who were members of the same Cabinet, have hammered each other on the floor of the House, and day after day it has been the scene of rough-and-tumble encounters.

FORTUNES MAY BE YOURS

How to Become as Rich as a Rothschild or a Rockefeller

There is no doubt that a fortune, and probably a large one, awaits the man who shall solve certain problems. Surgery, for instance, has made wonderful strides of late years, and its allied art of dentistry has become an almost exact science; but, though the dentist can furnish the mouth with new and wonderfully efficient instruments of mastication, yet the surgeon has hitherto entirely failed to replace the worn-out organs of digestion, says Tit-Bits.

He can remove, wholly or in part, almost every organ of the body, but he can do very little towards their artificial replacement. It is said that Mr. Rockefeller has offered half a million dollars to anyone who will supply him with a new digestive apparatus, but up to the present we have not heard that anyone has drawn the cash.

The same gentleman is bald, and although he is probably less perturbed about his bald pate than about his dyspeptic stomach, yet doubtless he would be willing to endow that man with a pension for life who would rethatch his roof. Many hair-washes there are which have admirable qualities in the direction of stimulating the growth of the hair and preventing it from falling out, but even the manufacturer of those articles of the toilet would frankly admit that a real and infallible cure for baldness has not been discovered. The man who could rise up and demonstrate to the world that he can make hair spring up on a patch of pate as smooth as a billiard ball would be a millionaire in six months.

Many diseases, like leprosy, the plague, cholera, and smallpox, have been wholly or nearly eradicated from Western Europe, America, and the British Colonies, yet rheumatism continues to cripple tens of thousands, and is considered by most doctors as practically incurable. The man who can find a genuine cure is likely to be a millionaire in life and to have his statue in every city after he is dead.

The same remarks apply to cancer. Investigators are engaged on the problems involved in the cure of this disease in every quarter of the globe. It is no exaggeration to say that millions of pounds have been spent on research work in connection with it, and yet its ravages remain unabated.

So far as consumption is concerned, all the above remarks apply; but in this case a more rational treatment of the patients and their more careful isolation have done something to reduce its ravages. There are teeming thousands of men and women who would be willing to shower all their treasures at the feet of the man who, one fine morning, could step forth and say, "Here is a certain cure for consumption," or, "I hold in my hands the antidote to cancer." Aye, the world would beatify him.

No one has ever found a cure for sea-sickness, yet there is a fortune awaiting the man who will do so. Many sailors even, of whom the "Mighty Nelson" was one, are victims of sea-sickness if the weather should be at all rough. It has been a human experience ever since man ventured to embark upon the ocean. Yet nobody has ever found a remedy for it.

Just as, when you have a cold, every person you meet will give you a new and infallible cure, so, when you are going for a voyage, short or long, everyone will give you a simple panacea for sea-sickness. If the sea is as calm as a mill-pond the nostrum acts, but in the chops of the Channel it proves a tragical failure. There is a lot of money in an infallible cure for sea-sickness.

TURPENTINE NOW A LUXURY

No Longer the Cheapest Thing a Householder Can Buy

The time was when turpentine was about the cheapest thing a housekeeper could buy. The biggest bottle in the house was sent for five cents' worth of turpentine. Now your sewing-machine oil bottle is big enough for that much. Indeed, turpentine has so grown in value that unless when you call at the paint dealer's and do not specify that you want the genuine article he will hand you out a substitute made largely of crude gasoline. Some years ago turpentine retailed for 20 cents a gallon, and now sells for 10 cents a half-pint.

Turpentine is a southern product, and, while the demand has largely increased, the output has largely fallen off. The value of the output in 1910, though much smaller than the previous year, was 40 per cent. greater than in 1909, all of which shows that the south has a very valuable industry and one that demands scientific and careful handling of the pine forests that produce the resin and the turpentine to prevent the destruction of the trees. The old forests are already giving out and new areas are being worked. The product is taken from the tree by chopping holes in the bark and sap, through which it oozes. The trees have been overworked, and many large areas that were valuable have been killed by the greed of the turpentine companies. The trees are natural growth and cannot be restored by replanting. Their value will steadily increase, and it would be the sheerest folly to keep up the old methods of destruction.

Huge Haystacks Burnt

The burning of two haystacks, 30 feet high and 36 feet long, on Hinge's Farm, bordering the aerodrome at Hendon, is attributed to incendiarism.

PULLMAN CAR TRAVEL

A Britisher Writes His Impressions Concerning It

Yet I confess, writes an Englishman in Harper's Weekly, even bankruptcy seems welcome as an escape from the horrors of a Pullman, where you travel by day with two or three score of people, at least one of whom is certain to be a squalling infant and another a ubiquitous youngster with lungs and legs in an equal state of activity; where you have to rouse yourself every few minutes to resist the carboy's pestiferous attentions; and where the buzz of an incessant movement and conversation makes reading and dozing alike impossible. But even that pales before the trials that await one at bedtime.

A Pullman car at night is the most uncivilized thing on the American continent, and one of the most indecent. It quite fascinates my blushes. I sit enthralled as the darky porter strews my seat with other people's belongings, holds a pillow-case in his teeth and squeezes the pillow into it, and hurls sheets and mattresses about, and pulls at chains and sliding doors and levers and curtains. And what can be more enchanting than to hear husband and wife discussing how they shall dispose of themselves for the night, whether they shall share the lower berth or whether he shall be banished to the nest above?

And what pleasanter than to be made conscious by the writhings and heavings and vigorous protuberances of the curtains that just across the aisle some good lady is engaged in the fearsome struggle to undress. To walk the length of a Pullman car at about 10.30 p.m., when most of the berths are made up, and when the curtained contortions of those who are in the agony of "retiring" are at their worst, and when you butt into strange projections of humanity, and stumble over shoes and watch someone scaling the heights of an upper berth, is on the whole the most delirious experience I have ever encountered.

Glut of Money

Sir Joseph Ward, speaking at the New Zealand banquet in London, said that there was so much money in the banks in New Zealand that depositors could not find investments for their wealth, and that there could be no better sign of a country's prosperity than that.

MEN WHO DON'T EXCERCISE

SUFFER FROM INDIGESTION, HEADACHES, POOR APPETITE, SLEEPLESSNESS.

NOTHING SO SURE TO "SET UP" A MAN, MAKE HIM FEEL BRISK AND VIGOROUS AS DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS.

Lack of exercise and overwork were the causes that combined to almost kill Samuel S. Stephens, jr., one of the best known citizens in Woodstock. In his convincing letter Mr. Stephens says:—

"A year ago I returned home after a long trip, completely worn out. I was so badly affected by chronic biliousness, so much overcome by constant headaches, dizziness, that I despaired of ever getting well. I was always tired nad languid, had no energy and spirit, found it difficult to sleep more than five hours. My appetite was so fickle that I ate next to nothing and in consequence lost weight and strength. I was pale and hard dark rings under my eyes that made me look like a shadow.

"It was a blessing that I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. In one week I felt like a new man. The feeling of weight and nausea in my stomach disappeared. My eyes looked brighter, color grew better, and, best of all, I begun to enjoy my meals. The dizziness, languor and feeling of depression passed away and I fast regained my old-time vigor and spirits. To-day I am well—thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

For health, strength, comfort and good spirits there is no medicine like Dr Hamilton's Pills. Beware of substitutes, and don't let any other dealer palm off some other pill on which he can make more money. 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, by mail from The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

CONFIDENCE QUEEN TO BE FREE AT 82

The Woman is too Old to do Much Harm Now it is Thought

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Eighty-two-year-old Ellen Peck, many times photographed for the Rogues' Gallery and whom Inspector Thomas A. Byrnes called the "queen of confidence women," will be released from Auburn Prison soon. She has served for swindling, and Gov. Dix, in commuting sentence yesterday, said that he thought Ellen Peck was now too old to be any longer a menace to society.

Robert J. Haire, the lawyer, and others in New York have been seeking a commutation of sentence since Mrs. Peck's committal. When a petition for her release reached Gov. Hughes in 1909 he refused to grant it, saying "old age is no excuse for crime."

Mrs. Peck was born in Woodville, N.H., and was formerly Nellie Crosby. As a young school teacher in New York, and Connecticut, she was once described as "demure in manner and faultless in face and form." She married Richard W. Peck, of this city, and is the mother of three children.

Inspector Brynes has said that Mrs. Peck's swindles brought her $1,000,000.

Mrs. Peck was first heard of in 1880 when she was accused of swindling B. T. Babbitt, the soap manufacturer, of about $20,000 in cash. Mr. Babbitt had lost a package of bonds and Mrs. Peck persuaded him that she was a good detective. Mr. Babbitt's good money did not bring back the bad, however. In 1887 she was accused of preying upon the easy nature of Dr. Jason Marks of this city and was believed to have relieved him of $20,000 in money and jewels. An attempt was made at the same time to connect her with a swindle concerning Jay Gould.

In 1894 Mrs. Peck posed as Mrs. Mary Hansen, the wife of Admiral Johann Carl Hansen of the Danish navy. She lived luxuriously in Brooklyn and borrowed money freely on the unsuspecting Admiral's good name. Shortly after, by a like system, Mrs. Peck swindled Dr. Christopher Lott, a physician of Reid Avenue, Brooklyn, out of $10,000 in various instalments. Miss Nellie Shea, a trained nurse with a bank account, was another easy victim.

In 1897 Judge Cowing, in General Sessions, sent her to Auburn Prison for five years, but still people trusted her. John D. Grady, a diamond merchant, lost $21,000 to Mrs. Peck. He had given her diamonds to keep for him. Twenty-five indictments were found against her, but she escaped punishment. Another jeweler, a Cuban, was a victim in the sum of $12,000. Furniture dealers, money lenders, and other extenders of credit fell into the same net shrewdly cast by Mrs. Peck.

She met Julius Columbani, who had served time in prison in 1884. Mrs. Peck inserted an advertisement in the newspapers for a loan on diamonds. Columbani answered her advertisement, but in lieu of cash offered Richmond County bonds in payment. Mrs. Peck accepted the offer and discovered subsequently that the bonds were those which had only previously been stolen. She told her tale to Inspector Byrnes and set a trap for Columbani in a room over a Sixth Avenue saloon. When the detectives made their appearance Columbani drew a gun and refused to be taken alive. Mrs. Peck also drew a revolver and Columbani jumped through an open window and was later captured.

Between 1885 and 1905 Mrs. Peck was unusually active. Age seemed to sharpen her wits. She used nomes of men of undisputable reputation to despoil other men who knew these men personally.

Her last offence was in 1909, when she was convicted of swindling Normand, Wilson & Schubert, a real estate firm of this city, out of $2,400 in a land transaction, and sentenced to ten years. She obtained money on false titles of land in Kentucky. The family home was at Sparkhill, N.Y., and there she was respected generally for many years during her criminal career, her friends refusing to believe the reports about her.

Instead of hiding his light under a bushel nowadays, the average man mistakes his little one candle flame an arc light.

WOMAN BLED FOR YEARS TO PAY SON'S DEBT

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—For fifteen years Mrs. John H. Murphy made payments to a money lender trying to rid herself of a debt of $25 incurred by her son. In that time she paid the loan agent more than $450, and when the payments were finally stopped after his death she still owed nearly double the original amount.

Mrs Murphy struggled to get together money to make the monthly payments, and when she did not have it she renewed the notes.

When the loan agent died a few days ago his son called at the Murphy home and demanded payment on the remaining notes. Through the action taken by the Legal Aid Society the notes were cancelled yesterday.

P. M. DESPATCHES

SAILORS ON ROYAL SHIP PUNISHED

Many Court Martialed for Mutinous conduct during the voyage to India

(Intelligencer Special)

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 9.—Fifty-four sailors of the steamer Medina, on which the King and Queen went to India, are to be courtmartialed for mutinous conduct, which the Government claims was due entirely to dissatisfaction on the part of the men with the quarters provided for the crew on the vessel. In some quarters it is rumored that the men were concerned in a plot against Their Majesties.

RENFREW ELECTION

(Intelligencer Special.)

TORONTO, Dec. 9.—Claiming that South Renfrew Liberals violated their agreement in attempting to have Mr. Moore oppose T. W. McGarry for the Legislature, prominent Conservatives here to-day expressed the belief that an opponent will be found for Hon. Mr. Graham, probably Dr. Maloney.

CHINESE TROUBLE

(Intelligencer Special)

SHANGHAI, China, Dec. 9.—The revolutionists have raised nearly a million dollars for war munitions in the past few days. Pekin despatches state that the Imperial soldiers there are on the verge of a mutiny because no pay is forthcoming.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

COLD WEATHER.

One year ago to-day the thermometer registered 4 below zero, and on the following day, December 10th, it was 6 below zero.

MEETING TO-NIGHT.

Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., will speak this evening at Roseneath in the interest of Capt. McCullough, the Conservative candidate for West Northumberland.

SOLD WITHOUT LICENSE.

Samuel Domenico, a foreigner, was this morning summoned before the Magistrate charged with selling cut tobacco, etc., without a license. The accused admitted the charge and a fine of $8 and $3.60 costs was imposed.

COUNTY COUNCIL ADJOURNS.

The County Council concluded its business last evening and the members left to-day for their various homes. The greater majority of the present members will, we are informed, seek re-election.

GOOD ADVICE.

Agnes Carter was to-day accused before Magistrate Masson of assaulting a little lad named Merritt. The evidence in the case being conflicting, the Magistrate dismissed the charge without costs, advising all concerned to endeavor to be peaceful as neighbors.

A BUDDING COMEDIAN.

The annual concert of Trinity Church, Shannonville, was held in the Workman's Hall of that village on Tuesday evening, Dec. 5th, with great success. A splendid programme was provided. As a comedian Mr. Horace Wright deserves high praise. In his song "Now I Have to Call Him Father," he made a most charming young lady, and the song, "Sea Shells," was a big hit and well given. The hall was filled and the good round sum of eighty dollars taken.

FARRELL—BUCKLEY.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Charles Church, Read, Rev. Father McCarthy officiating, on Monday, November 27, when Miss Elizabeth Buckley, only daughter of Mrs. Catherine Buckley, Myre Hall, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony with Mr. Joseph Farrell, also of Myre Hall. The bride looked charming dressed in a travelling suit of navy chiffon broadcloth, with real Irish crochet blouse and navy toque with white osprey. Miss Margaret Buckley, niece of the bride, was the bridesmaid, dresed in old rose silk dress with navy coat and hat to match. Mr. Jerome Lebane, of Rosalia, Wash., did duties of best man. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome set of mink marmot furs, to the bridesmaid a sunburst pin, to the groomsman a scarf pin. After the wedding ceremony was performed the bridal party drove to [illegible]ome of the bride's mother, where [illegible] sumptuous wedding breakfast was [illegible]taken of, thence to this city, when the happy couple left amidst showers of rice and good wishes for a honeymoon trip to Montreal, Ottawa and Kingston. Upon their return a wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's mother. The bride was the recipient of many useful and costly presents, showing the high esteem in which she is held. The young couple will reside in Myre Hall, where the groom is a prosperous farmer.

OUR CHRISTMAS NUMBER.

To-day's issue of The Intelligencer consists of sixteen pages, among the contents of which will be found a large quantity of matter of a character appropriate to the Christmas season, in addition to a full budget of local and general news. It will be found one of the best issues of a newspaper ever published in Belleville.

CONCERT AT BAPTIST CHURCH.

An appreciative audience assembled at the Baptist Church last night and listened to an excellent concert given by the popular Symphony Orchestra, assisted by some of Bellevile's choicest musical talent. The entire programme was enthusiastically received and the singers proved themselves to be Arcadians skilled in song.

SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR.

Last evening the young ladies of Mrs. Wm. P. Yerex's Sunday School class in connection with Holloway St. Church had a bazaar in the Sunday School room, which proved to be a successful affair. A large number of articles made by the members of the class were disposed of, also refreshments and sweetmeats. A good sum was realized, which will be used in furnishing the class room.

BURIED AT REDNERVILLE.

The remains of Mr. Fred Rush, the wheelsman on the steamer Prince Rupert, who on Wednesday night lost his life at Kingston by drowning, arrived here last evening and were taken to Mr. Allison's residence on Dundas Street. The funeral took place this afternoon at the house, being conducted by the Rev. Dr. Bishop, pastor of Bridge Street Church. Interment took place at Rednerville cemetery, the services at the grave being conducted by Rev. Mr. Sexsmith.

ELECTION RETURNS.

An invitation is given to everybody to hear the election returns on Monday night next. The City Hall has been rented by Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., for that evening. He has secured the services of an expert telegrapher and he invites everybody to be present to hear the election returns. Mr. Johnson has made similar arrangements for Trenton, having secured the opera house there, with telegraph service.

THE NEW ARENA.

The new arena, built by Mr. Richard Arnott, and which is of the same size as the structure purchased by the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway Company, has been completed and will be open for the use of his patrons for the usual kind of winter amusements in a few days. The rink is one of the largest in Ontario, and is a credit to all concerned.

HURT WHILE PLAYING.

A young man named Frank Barton, while playing last evening at the indoor baseball game as a member of the Hardware Company team, received injuries which necessitated his retirement for the remainder of the game. In running to first base he collided with a player and was thrown violently to the floor. His injuries fortunately were not of a serious nature.

QUIET WEDDING.

A quiet wedding took place at Moodie Cottage on Thursday last, when Mr. J. Charles Cobb and Miss Ada Louise Griggs pledged their troth each to the other and were united in holy wedlock by Rev. A. L. Geen.

CAMPAIGN IN LENNOX.

At Selby Town Hall last evening a large and enthusiastic meeting was held in the interest of Mr. T. G. Carscallen, the Conservative candidate for Lennox for the Provincial Legislature. The speakers were the candidate, Mr. W. J. Paul, M.P. for the riding, and Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., of this city. The hall was filled to its capacity by an audience which listened attentively to the addresses from the various speakers.

CHRIST CHURCH BAZAAR.

The annual bazaar held on Thursday, Dec. 7th, in the Parish Hall was one of the most successful ever held in connection with Christ Church. Nearly all the very large display of fancy and useful articles were sold and the financial result was most satisfactory. This function was under the auspices of the Parish Guild very ably assisted by generous donations from the congregation. The hall was beautifully decorated with flowers, flags and bunting, and presented a very striking appearance. Mrs. MacColl's orchestra was in attendance and as usual rendered a most pleasing programme.

CURRENT COMMENT

Since 1907 the Salvation Army has placed 10,153 immigrants as farm laborers in Canada, and has received in bonuses from the Government $11,716.

On the 7th of December Premier Sifton, of Alberta, submitted a bill to raise a loan of $5,000,000 on the general revenue of the Province. Of this money one million dollars will be used for roads and bridges and the other four million for extensions to the Government railway system.

Canada will in a short time equal, if not rival the United States in her shipping. On the 7th inst Lord Strathcona, in an interview, stated that a service of twenty-five-knot steamers between Liverpool and Montreal would shortly be an accomplished fact, "sooner than the people imagine," the High Commissioner significantly added.

It augurs well for the future of the Intercolonial Railway to have a Minister, not afraid to do his duty. W. A. Dube, superintendent of the Levis-Ste. Flavie division of the Intercolonial Railway, has been suspended pending an investigation. Now the Minister, judging from the past, has to fight local and political influences to restore him, no matter what his guilt.

It is amusing to witness the tactics of the Grits who are now in opposition. Here is a specimen: Mr. N. W. Rowell said at Waterford that his telephone policy was one which every European country of importance had adopted long ago by taking over the trunk lines. The Laurier Government refused to follow this example—and Mr. Rowell, as a partizan, supported it. Now he flops, and wants it done. Such is present day Liberalism.

It is about time that Canada built a new Governor's residence worthy of the Dominion. A return just laid before parliament shows an expenditure of $488,680 upon improvements at Rideau Hall since 1896. The lowest amount in any one year during the period was $14,466, spent in 1898-9. The expenditure in 1895-6 was $64,838; in 1896-7, $60,460; and in the present year to date, $51,860, and even now Rideau is more like a great would pass a similar law in relation ernor.

Gordon Russell, a Toronto Solicitor, was on the 7th of December sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. Two weeks ago he received a similar sentence from Judge Denton for forgery and uttering a forged document. The sentences will run concurrently. Why should they run concurrently? A man of a solicitor's education and position should be punished to the fullest extent. His guilt is much worse than if committed by an ignorant man.

That the census taken under Fisher is little less than a fraud is proven by the demand made nearly every day for a new enumeration. Here is another: At a meeting of the Maisonneuve Council it was decided to send a letter to Mr. Archibald Blue, of the census department, Ottawa, protesting against the official figures regarding Maisonneuve. It was claimed last night that the population of Maisonneuve is between 25,000 and 26,000. A demand will be made to have the census re-taken.

A telegram from Ottawa of the 7th says: At the opening of the House Mr. Speaker Sproule announced the resignation of Mr. T. H. Low, Liberal member for the electoral district of South Renfrew. Hon. George P. Graham will be the Liberal candidate to succeed Mr. Low, but will probably be opposed in spite of the understanding among the local politicians to the contrary. It will be to the credit of the honest politicians of South Renfrew to repudiate any arrangement entered into by which the seat was sold, for it is nothing less than a sale.

The Ontario suffragists have been feeling the pulse of the candidates who are seeking seats in the Ontario Legislature, as to their views upon the question of woman suffrage. Mrs. Flora McD. Denison, secretary of the Canadian Suffrage Association of Toronto, gives the names of the following who have expressed themselves as favorable to the principle: W. H. MacFarlane, Conservative, Centre Bruce; S. Nesbitt, Conservative, East Northumberland; J. A. Ellis, Conservative, West Ottawa; W. R. James, Labor, South Toronto; W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal, South Ontario; R. Rankin, Liberal, Nipissing; Joseph Oliver, Liberal, North Toronto; A. Studholme, Labor, East Hamilton; E. Zeller, (withdrew); H. S. McDiarmid, Liberal, West Elgin; David Bullock, Labor, East Toronto; J. W. Johnson, Conservative, West Hastings; W. A. Henderson, Liberal, West Lambton; E. Hawthorne, Liberal, East Peterboro. The names are not sufficiently numerous to give our suffragists much encouragement.

Bonar Law, the new Unionist leader in England uttered some true things in a speech at the opening at Bootle, Lancashire, on the 7th inst., of the Unionist campaign against Home Rule. He declared his party had determined to fight the proposal to the last gasp. Many people, he said, favored Home Rule because they were tired of the Irish problem, and glad to see it out of the way. The duty of the Unionists was to convince them that it would bring Ireland no peace, but the sword; Ireland wanted less politics and more industry. Mr. Redmond and his friends were promising Ireland more politics and less industry.

The Montreal Gazette of the 7th inst says: "The information was given out yesterday that fully 20,000 electors this year would be dropped from the voting lists for default of paying their water taxes before December 1. Among the charter amendments which are being drafted for the City Council, is one by which an elector would not suffer the loss of his franchise if he failed to pay his water dues on the date mentioned. Similar requests have been asked before of the Legis'ature, and as often refused." If the Ontario Legislature would pass a similar law in realtion to all municipal elections, it would save trouble and expense in the collection of taxes.

Sir James Whitney uttered the sentiments of true patriotism and statesmanship when he told the people of Guelph in discussing the question of public affairs, that the Government will continue in its course with respect to the city of Guelph, no matter who may be elected in South Wellington. It does not intend to descend to the level of some of our opponents by promising things in order to bribe the electors. This principle is so different to that of the policy of the opposition that it should thrill the soul of the Leader of the Opposition, after his long endurance of public bribery by his friends at Ottawa and in Ontario.

The Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Post Master General, has already proved himself to be a business and practical man. He has just concluded new parcel post arrangements, the general outline of which is as follows:—Under the parcel post arrangement at present in existence all parcel post parcels from France come to Canada via England. Canada had no direct arrangement with France, but made her arrangements through England, and when parcels left France and reached London, they became, in so far as Canada was concerned, British parcels and the charges were settled on this basis. Under the new arrangement parcels will come direct from France to Canada and go direct from Canada to France.

RECORD PRICE FOR POTATOES

The Tuber Sold Today Up to $2 per Bag—Other Prices Also Very High

While the atendance upon the market this morning was fairly large, and much produce was offered for sale, prices were by no means lower, but in some cases higher.

Fresh butter sold readily at 26c. per basket lot and 28c. per single ro'l.

Fresh eggs are certainly a luxury. They were sold at 40c. per dozen by the basket lot and in some cases 45c. was paid for a single dozen. Packed eggs realized 30c. and 35c. per doz.

Potatoes are a scarce commodity, and if prices cont'nue to advance but few will be able to partake of them.

In a few cases some were sold at $1.75 per bag, but the ruling price was $1.90 to $2.00 per bag.

During the week there has been a slight advance in the hog market, live porkers bringing $6.10 and $6.15 per cwt. Dressed pork has also advanced in proportion.

In the grain, hide and fur markets there are no changes to note.

Our quotations are as follows:
Fall wheat—75c. to 80c.

CHEAP LIGHT IN WINNIPEG.

WINNIPEG Dec. 8.—At a special meeting of the City Council it was decided to adopt a three-cent flat rate for electric lighting. The decision was practically unanimous. The rate for manufacturing power has not yet been definitely announced, but it is understood that equally low prices will be decided upon. Wilford Phillips, general manager of the Winnipeg Electric Railway, which company has been in the field for years and charging ten cents per kilowatt hour, stated that the company would meet the city's prices.

GROOMS LEFT AT THE ALTAR

Strange Instances of Interruptions Which Cancelled the Marriage Ceremony

A recent society wedding sensation, where the bride failed to appear at the altar at the eleventh hour, is not without parallel. Only a short time ago a lady on arriving near the church to be married ordered her coachman to drive her home again. Although astonished at this extraordinary request for the bridegroom was actually waiting in the church, he complied with his mistress's orders. It transpired afterwards that she had merely turned back because the crowd which had gathered to cheer her frightened her away.

In Bristol, some years ago, a marriage failed to take place at the last moment, in the most dramatic circumstances. The bride had been previously engaged. For some reason or other the engagement was broken off, and her fiance sailed for Canada. After some time she became engaged to a local insurance agent. All arrangements were made, and the happy couple were to be married on an Easter Sunday. A large number of people were assembled to witness the ceremony which was just about to begin when the first lover appeared on the scene. The bride fainted, and on regaining her senses she refused to be married to the insurance agent. Since then she has become the wife of her former lover, who has taken her to his homestead in Canada.

On the morning that another happy pair were to be married the bridegroom, who had a moustache and beard, determined to be clean shaven for the ceremony. Why he made up his mind to do such a curious thing on his wedding morn is not known. However, when he was shaved his friends all congratulated him upon his improved appearance. The ceremony was timed for eleven o'clock, and punctually to the moment he appeared at the church. When the bride saw him, however, she had a fit of hysterics, and it was not till some hours too late that she recovered her composure. She then announced that she would not marry her lover in any circumstances, declaring that he was betrayed by his mouth, previously hidden by his moustache and beard, and that he looked to her to be cruel!

Many will remember the sensation caused twelve years ago by the stopping of a fashionable wedding at the very last moment. The bridegroom was an exceedingly well-known figure in the world of sport, and the bride was the widow of a wealthy man. The curious part about it was that the lady was the only one who believed in her lover. Everyone else knew that his reputation was far from spotless, but they could not, nevertheless, convince the charming widow. Everything was ready for the ceremony. The church had been profusely decorated with flowers, and many well-known and prominent people had taken their places.

The dramatic moment came when the couple met at the altar. The bride noticed that her intended husband was wearing a particularly valuable diamond tie-pin. Suddenly she cried out: "Take me home! Take me home! I cannot say anything more now!" To the consternation of all was stopped. So overcome was the bride that she fainted and had to be carried to her carriage. Later it transpired that this identical pin had been stolen some months before from the widow's rooms.—TIT BITS.

Abrogation, Only Solution.

Washington, Dec. 9.—For two hours yesterday President Taft and his Cabinet wrestled with the Russian passport question, and at the conclusion it was acknowledged that a solution that would satisfy American Jews and at the same time not embarrass either the United States or Russia, still was undiscovered. While the negotiations of American Ambassador Guild at St. Petersburg have not been abandoned, it looks as if there could be but one outcome—the abrogation of the treaty of 1832 with Russia.

Russian Workmen Drown.

St. Peterburg, Dec. 9.—Between 150 and 200 workmen were yesterday plunged into the Volga River through the collapse of a railroad bridge near Kazan. The bridge was under course of construction and was carried away by the pressure of ice. Only four corpses thus far have been recovered.

It is hoped that some of the victims will be able to save themselves by clamboring on ice floes. All the towns along the lower part of the river have bene warned to keep a sharp outlook for survivors.

Militia Department Sues Welland.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 9.—The Welland County Council is threatened by the Militia Department with a suit for $772 for services of the militia at Bridgeburg during the Grand Trunk strike. The militia was requisitioned by Warden Mackenzie, but County Solicitor Raymond gives it as his opinion the county cannot be forced to settle.

"Listen to me, sir," he commanded, his voice trembling, "you are the one in authority here; this young man must not be remanded to jail."

Dr. De Breen stopped short and fixed him with a look of surprise. And I was not a little surprised myself. Knowing how bitterly opposed he had been to Maillot's attentions to Miss Belle, what was I to think? Did the manner in which the shock had prostrated her—had literally felled her to the floor—open his eyes to the depth of their attachment, and at the same time touched his heart with pity? His concern could not have been more pronounced if the young fellow had been his own son placed in similar jeopardy. Or,—and here was my predominating thought—did he have the best reasons for knowing that Maillot was innocent?

During the brief pause in which Dr. De Breen coolly surveyed him—for the perverse glasses observing their proper function—he recovered something of his equipoise.

"See here, Doctor," he went on more calmly, "I am not familiar enough with the procedure in—er—in criminal cases to know just what I want to say. But is the next step imprisonment for Mr. Maillot?"

"It is," snapped the doctor.

"Then I will go his bond—in any amount; but he must not go—"

"My dear sir," Dr. De Breen interrupted, with asperity, "a prisoner under charge of first degree murder cannot be admitted to bail; not even by the court having jurisdiction if his case, much less I. The police are now responsible for the young man's movements."

He deliberately turned his back upon the millionaire speculator, and strode away. Years after that scene, Dr. De Breen confided to me that Fluette had given him the impression that he was hinting at a bribe.

The words, however, seemed to strike Mr. Fluette like a physical blow. He winced perceptibly, and his face worked with agitation. But he rose splendidly to the occasion. In a second or so his customary commanding dignity returned, and his keen glance. He wheeled upon Maillot at the instant that much distressed young man was persuaded by Genevieve to leave Belle's side.

"Maillot," said he, in a firm voice, "I sincerely regret any hard feelings I may have entertained for you in the past. You are not only a courageous young man, but an innocent one, and one, therefore, that is being made to suffer a grievous wrong. I wish to say so here publicly; I wish, too, to say publicly that I mean to see that you have at your disposal the best legal talent procurable."

Maillot's reception of this offer was peculiar. He looked the man of money squarely in the eyes for an instant; then his lips twisted into a mocking smile. He nodded his head ever so slightly, but the movement was unmistakably a curt rejection.

"Thank you," he said dryly, his voice low and even. "But I intend getting out of this scrape myself, Mr. Fluette; I don't wish to occasion you any future embarrassment. Please don't mistake my meaning."

Fluette made no further effort, and it was impossible to determine just how the rebuff—it was no less—affected him; he had himself well in hand, now. He began preparations for conveying home his still unconscious daughter, and before they departed I contrived to have a private word with Genevieve. Her face was very tragic.

"I must see you alone—as soon as possible," I said hurriedly.

"I can't leave Belle," she whispered. "What is it?"

"My first request from my lieutenant," I chided, smiling down at her.

"Don't!" she pleaded. "I shall come Where? When?"

Dear me, no. I'll do the coming; it's only 'when'?"

"To-morrow?" she suggested doubtfully. "You know, we're all so upset. And Belle—" The dear girl nearly broke down. Yes, do come," she murmured tearfully, "as early as you can; everything depends upon you, now."

I caught her hand. "Please don't worry," I whispered; "everything will come out right. I can't bear to see you suffer. Will eight o'clock be too early?"

"No."

"I'll not say 'Be brave,' for you're the bravest girl in the world; but please don't fret and worry Here's your coachman. Good-bye."

She smiled wanly. "I sha'n't," she said. "Good-bye—till to-morrow morning."

She pressed my hand and ran lightly out.

Maillot now came over to where I was standing. He was very pale, his face was drawn with lines of suffering (more for Miss Belle than on his own account, beyond doubt), but his manner was quite composed. In fact, his demeanor was more subdued—chastened, as it were—than I had seen it at any time during our brief acquaintance.

"Well, it's over," he remarked bitterly.

"Don't be an ass," I returned. "If you are innocent, nothing worse can happen."

He smiled whimsically, quickly taking me up.

"And if guilty, the worst is yet to come, eh? Well, at any rate, I'm your prisoner."

"Not necessarily mine," I said.

"By preference. I can't stand for those rough-neck cops, and Stodger as a custodian is a joke. I'd be too strongly tempted to dump him into the first handy snow-drift, and cut loose. I don't suppose you'll insist on any rot about handcuffs and all that sort of thing?"

Notwithstanding his pretence of humorous indifference, there was a question in his tone, and he peered at me a bit anxiously. I grinned.

"I don't know," I said. "I won't take any chances on being dumped into a snow-drift."

"Rot! You know I couldn't if I wanted to."

"Mr. Fluette could have helped you, Maillot."

I looked at him narrowly. He shrugged his shoulders, merely, and produced and lighted a cigarette.

"Let's go," he said, flipping the match away.

Stodger was left on guard at the Page place. My prisoner and I walked to a car and proceeded to police headquarters.

His attitude, naturally enough, was one of extreme dejection; nevertheless I tried to cheer him up—vainly—and when opportunity offered I also tried to get some light upon the ring episode.

"It doesn't do for me to express an opinion one way or another as to your probable guilt or innocence, Maillot," I said at one time; "but I can tell you this much for your encouragement.

"Since the murder, several developments have turned up which convince me that there's a deal more in the crime than either you or I can at present conceive. You can keep it in mind that I see more work ahead than I did immediately after quizzing you and Burke Wednesday morning. . . . By the way, that ring you slipped upon your finger this morning, whose is it?"

For a second he frowned with an air of trying to recall the incident. Suddenly his face cleared.

"Did you notice that?" he returned, with perfect composure. "It's mine—was my mother's wedding ring."

I was watching him intently. He met my regard with a level look.

"In the habit of wearing it?" I asked.

"Sometimes."

"See here," I came to the point with abrupt directness. "You appreciate quite as much as I do the significance of that broad band of gold on the middle finger of your right hand. Why did you put it there at such a time?"

He sat silent.

"You've become mighty close-mouthed all at once," sharply urged.

He gave me a little half-smile, and glanced away.

"By advice of counsel I refuse to talk," said he, quietly.

"If you are the counsel, you have a fool for a client—and vice versa," I retorted. "I suppose, too, that you refuse any assistance that I—"

Instantly his assumed indifference vanished.

"By no means," stopping me with considerable warmth. "If there's any way out of this rotten mess it's you that must get me out. My hands are literally tied, now. And—Swift," he hesitated; his face clouded and his voice suddenly dropped, "I—I simply can't say anything more, old chap."

"So," I quietly observed, "you, too, are worried about Fluette."

He started as if stung.

"My God, Swift!" he began, and stopped. He sat staring at me a moment in utter dismay, then his disturbed look wandered to a window.

"You're too devilish sharp," he muttered.

"Lucky for you that I am," retorted I, cheerfully. "This is a bad tangle that we're caught in, Maillot."

WILD DUCK PLENTIFUL

Large Quantities in England and the North of Ireland

Wild duck, which have entirely avoided many inland spots where a few are usually seen at this season, have appeared in very great quantities along some of their seaside haunts, especially on the east coasts of England and the north of Ireland.

The pursuers of the strange sport of punt gunning have had remarkable experiences. Slipping along in their punts at dawn they have come upon flocks so great that a single shot from the great swivel gun, which is almost a cannon, has bagged more than the 'longshore sportsman could get in a week. Fifty and sixty have been killed at a shot, though the manoeuvres of the shot may have taken a week or so.

Numbers of duck again have been killed in the more formal, artificial shoots of Lincolnshire, Bedfordshire, and other places where the birds are now bred almost as scientifically as pheasant.

A sportsman's bird that seems to increase in numbers and to widen its range is the golden plover, of which numbers are now to be seen in the poulterers' shops of the West End. These plover, which are held by some to be the best bird that comes to table, are seen frequently all over the country. They have been observed in swarms over grass fields in the home counties, as well as in their more normal haunts among the wild places of the coast.

Another bird that appeared at one moment in great quantity was the black duck, of which large numbers were shot over the coast of Norfolk from boats. But he is a brave or very hungry man who would dare to face the bird at table.—London Daily Mail.

FREAK SURGERY

The Vital Organs of Animals Transplanted by Americans.

Some remarkable experiments on the grafting of limbs on animals to which they did not originally belong, and the transference of vital organs, such as the kidney, from one animal to another, are reported, says the "Standard," from Harvard University. Most of them have been carried out by Dr. Carrel, under the direction of Dr. E. E. Tyzzer.

His first successful grafting—or, at any rate, the first that he placed on record—was for the benefit of a fox terrier. This he described before the American Philosophical Society. The terrier, owing to an accident, had to have its leg amputated. A small dog that had just died was pressed into service. Its leg was removed, and grafted on to the stump of the leg of the living dog. Arteries, veins, and nerves were connected by suitable means, and the bones were placed in juxtapostion. As the bones knit the other tissues grew together, and the dog remained perfectly healthy.

But this is only a minor triumph in surgery when compared with those which have come later. From the grafting of limbs Dr. Carrel has moved onward step by step until it would appear that he can transplant and replace almost every organ in the body. He says himself:—

"A dog whose abdominal aorta was replaced by a human femoral artery is still alive in a normal state. The thoracic aorta of another animal was replaced about the same time by a large artery that had been kept several months in cold storage, and the operation was a complete sucess."

In the transplanting of kidneys Dr. Carrel has been attended with the greatest success in the case of cats, and he has said that possibly the results would have been much better in experimenting with dogs if he had used dogs of the same breed. While he has taken organs from one animal and replaced them in another, he has been uniformly fortunate in reversing the kidneys. In this work he has taken a cat, and, removing the kidneys, has replaced the left kidney in the cavity of the right side and the right kidney in the left cavity.

When one thinks of the complex structure of the kidney, with its nerve supply, its three great connecting vessels—vein, artery, and ureter—and its intimate relations with other organs of the body, such operations as these are truly amazing. Their value in the saving and preservation of human life, if such a thing as the renewal of a kidney should be found possible, will be enormous. The removal of a single kidney is a fairly common operation. After it has been performed the patient usually recovers his health, but sometimes in after life the increased demand made on the single remaining kidney may lead to serious trouble.

It is only a month since a wealthy widow, Mrs. Reginald Waldorf, of Philadelphia, offered a small fortune to anyone who would sell her an index finger to be grafted on to the stump whence hers has been removed. It would be curious if such advertisements as this went further, and public requests were made for the supply of kidneys, spleen, or even for a new liver. But it is difficult to see where the organs of which persons only possess one each are to come from.

ELEPHANT PULLS TOOTH

Unusual Operation Witnessed by Visitors to Riverdale Zoo

The elephant at the Riverdale Zoo, Toronto, acts as his own dentist. A few days ago it pulled a tooth which had been bothering it, the operation being witnessed by a number of persons who were watching the animal at the time. It appeared to be in pain, and worked it strunk around in its mouth as though to dislodge something unpleasant. At last, after moving its trunk frantically, the animal drew something from its mouth. It cast the tooth thus extracted out of the enclosure. The molar was large, and had evidently broken off in the gum, as all the root did not come out. The crown was in a good state of preservation, but there were signs of decay lower down.

Mayor and Aldermen

The question of Mayor and Alderman for the year 1912 is not at the present moment creating much interest or excitement. Whoever are chosen should be selected from a class of men who have at least a faint idea of what principle should guide and govern those intrusted with the responsible position of trustees of public affairs, and not from a class of citizens, who, when opportunities offer, seize them and take advantage of the trust their fellow citizens have given them to feather their own and friends' nests.

The experience of the past should be a lesson for the future, and as a public journal The Intelligencer is desirous, in the interests of the taxpayers, of having the city honestly governed. It has no sympathy with any class of public men intrusted with the affairs of a corporation, or, in fact, any public trust, who abuse that trust to benefit themselves. There has been too much of it during the past few years. So flagrant has it been that public sentiment has been aroused, until it revolted, and crushed out of existence the perpetrators of these wrongs. Occasionally people, through sympathy, and in other cases for less worthy motives, tacitly give their approval, through their votes, to such wrong-doings, which, upon reflection, they repent, leading them in good time, to treat the culprits as they deserve, by relieving them of positions which they have used in their own interest and not in that of those who intrusted them with important interests.

What is Belleville going to do in the coming contest? is the question now asked. If it does its duty to itself, it will reject every man who used his vote and influence to prevent a full and searching investigation into the manipulations of the sale of city property, by which officials and their friends profited, at the expense of the taxpayers. True, an investigation was ordered by a majority of the City Council, but only by a majority, which investigation the public hesitated not to denounce as a gigantic farce and the judgment rendered as an insult to the common sense of every one who heard or read the evidence. If the city requires a repetiion of such municipal government, it will re-elect those who are and were responsible for the acts to which reference has been called.

Under Secretaries

The adoption of the plan of Under Secretaries as followed in England is being seriously considered by the Government, says an Ottawa despatch. It is felt that the appointment of under secretaries would relieve the ministers, divide the work, and lend general efficiency in conducting the country's business. The under secretaries, as in England, would be members of Parliament, but would not be members of the Cabinet. It is suggested for the present there be under secretaries to the Ministers of Interior, Militia, Marine and Fisheries, Public Works, Railway and Canals, and Agriculture. While it is doubtful if anything will be done this session, when the general reorganization of the departments takes place, the plan will be thoroughly discussed and investigated, and inquiries will be made as to how the English plan works. It may be remembered that this system was partially adopted by the late Conservative Government under the Right Hon. Sir John Macdonald, by the appointment of controllers, but abandoned by the Laurier Cabinet, the Controllers rebelling until they became full fledged Ministers with full pay.

"Our new Member"

Under the above heading the Tweed News has the following kindly reference to Mr. Sandy Grant, the member elected by East Hastings to the Ontario Legislature:

> We congratulate our esteemed townsman and Reeve, Mr. Sandy Grant upon his newly acquired title of M.P.P. And we congratulate the riding upon its selection and we believe Mr. Grant will render creditable service to the riding.
>
> We also congratulate our village upon the distinction that has come to it in having the electors of this splendid riding unanimously select one of its citizens as their representative in the highest legislative chamber of the province.
>
> This is the first time in the history of the riding when a local member has lived in the northern portion, and it is the first time a candidate has been elected by acclamation.
>
> Mr. Grant is one of our best citizens, we are proud of him as such, and we believe he will worthily represent us in Toronto.
>
> This district lies adjacent to, and has within it natural reservoirs of power and these it has been shown may be quite readily and cheaply developed, and we see no reason why our town should not profit from this development. We are within the power zone, and with a good practical business man like the present member representing us, we believe we can rely upon something being done.

FORTUNE FROM A SHOVEL

The Shovel Used by Navvies on Canadian Road Making an Invention of a Labourer in England.

The simplest labour-saving device may quite possibly be worth a fortune. Eighty-nine years ago a number of men were at work on the road-bed of a line of railway in course of construcion between Birmingham and Manchester, England. They were cutting through a hill and moving the material by loosening it with picks, shovelling it into barrows, and wheeling it away. The shovels they were using were known as Irish shovels, with a square-cornered blade about 15 in. long. The work progressed but slowly, and the sub-contractor in charge rebuked his workmen for not making quicker progress. One of them replied that if he would grind off the corners of the shovels it would be easier to get them into the earth, and consequently they would be able to work more quickly.

The contractor ridiculed the idea, which he considered a piece of insolence on the part of the workman, but the navvy was quite in earnest and not easily discouraged. When the work was completed he discussed the matter with a friend of his at Sheffield, who persuaded an ironmonger he knew to make a dozen or so as an experiment. The tools were offered to a large contractor, who promised to let some of his men use the new shovels and report results.

About a week afterwards the contractor returned with the information that his men were fairly quarrelling as to who should use the new tools, some arriving to work a quarter of an hour before time in order to be there first when the tool-box was opened. The navvy's suggestion had proved a good one; a patent was secured, and an agreement made between the navvy, the manufacturer, and the contractor. When the navvy died he left a fortune of over $335,000 the proceeds from royalties on the manufacture of shovels under his patent.

FAMOUS SNUFF-TAKERS

The eighteenth century was the age of snuff-taking "par excellence." The custom was general among all classes of people, it was an act of politeness for well-bred men to offer their snuff-boxes to well-bred women. Women themselves carried their own boxes, and interchanged pinches with the gentlemen and in Canada it was fashionable amongst the officials.

At fashionable dinner-parties after the cloth was removed snuff-boxes were passed around. Pope and Bolingbroke, Swift and Congreve, Addison and Steele, all indulged in the pleasures of snuff. Dr. Johnson carried his snuff in the capacious pockets of his waistcoat, and would convey it to his nose without stint. He could not abide the narrow confines of a box. Frederick the Great resembled him in this respect. Both Napoleon and Wellington were prodigious snuff-takers, but Washington indulged only moderately. Jefferson was fond of snuff, as his waistcoat and frill often showed. Henry Clay was another famous snuff-taker, and often needed the stimulus of a pinch when making a speech.

English-Speaking Italians.

A correspondent, who has been at Tripoli, says that one of the curiosities of the Italian army of occupation is the large number of men in the ranks who speak broken English. This is a jargon learned in the lower sections of large American cities. It has been picked up by Italians who had been resident in America for a time, and have then gone home again in the ordinary course of events, or who have been called home to take part in the war now on.

SEEKS LABOR SUPPORT

Whitney Goes Into Allan Studholme's Constituency.

He Has Nothing to Say Against Labor Member as a Man, But He Has Never Had Any Help From the Unionist Representative When Labor Questions Are Under Development—Gets a Big Reception.

Hamilton, Dec. 9.—Into the constituency Sir James Whitney came last night and by a whirlwind summary of the Government's record sought to throw the sentiment of the electors in favor of Controller Cooper, the candidate of the Conservative party.

Sir James did not in any way attack Allan Studholme as a man, or as a politician. The Premier admitted that he could not and did not want to say anything against Mr. Studholme.

"But in the interests of good government," said Sir James, "I would urge you to support my colleague, the Hon. Col. Hendrie, and to support Mr. Cooper that you listened to a few minutes, ago, whom no sane man will ever excuse you people for refusing to elect as your representative."

It was a big meeting. The large rink of Britannia Park was crowded with upwards of 3,000 people, and the galleries were also filled.

Sir James got a cordial reception.

"I must refer to Mr. Studholme," was the Premier's remark, "but I do not want to say anything against him. And, indeed, I hear that Mr. Studholme is saying kind things about the Government and myself. A good many people are saying the same thing, in fact nearly everybody in the province, being sensible men and women, are saying kind things about the present Government." (Laughter.)

"I merely want to say that I never received any help from Mr. Studholme in the Legislature as regards labor matters. I thought when he was elected by the intelligent and clear-thinking mechanics and artisans of East Hamilton that he would be able to give the Government valuable assistance with regard to the interests of labor. He didn't do it and at last I stopped expecting him to do it."

Sir James has splendid visions of what the Ontario act for compensation to injured workingmen may develop into. "I am looking forward," said he, "to the time when workmen will be compensated for injury no matter how the injury is caused, and when this expenditure for compensation will be regarded as part and parcel of the expenditure of the enterprise where the men are employed, just as the expenditures for coal, lighting, taxes, etc., are regarded."

The Real Trouble.

The real trouble with Britain is thus stated by a writer: "We cannot repeal the food taxes, nor adequately finance our schemes of relief, because the money is mortgaged to Dreadnoughts, and the money is mortgaged to Dreadnoughts because we are entangled in the schemes of alliances which divide Europe into two camps."

PYROMANIA IS THE LATEST DISEASE TO STRIKE THE CITY

Ex-Fire Chief Says One Fire a Day Caused by this Illusion—Middleman a Necessary Evil—Is a Turtle an Animal?—Local Judge Seeks Instruction in Natural History—Moving Pictures to Reduce Tyranny

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

MONTREAL, Dec. 8.—That at least one fire is started in this city every day because of the curious outburst of the strange disease known as pyromania is the statement made by a former fire chief. The pyromaniac, as the derivation of the word indicates, is a person with a mania for fire, whose activities in the field of incendiarism have of late become so widespread that a more thorough study of this peculiar disease will shortly have to be undertaken. The pyromaniac almost never has any financial incentive for setting fire to buildings, and rarely does so from a motive of revenge. So far as can be discovered the pyromaniac simply starts fire for the fun of seeing it burn. While it is difficult to capture these pyromaniacs the city, nevertheless, has considerable information concerning them because of the peculiarities of the disease. Each, for instance, has his own particular method of starting the fire which practically never varies, and by means of which the identity of the incendiary can often be established. One of the best known cases was that of an individual known simply as the "bottle man," who was caught after a long career of fire starting because of the fact that he always took a bottle of kerosene to start his fire and always left the bottle behind. In addition, the pyromaniacs work on schedule, each seeming to prefer some particular night each week and never varying from it. As the result of the charge, however, that pyromania costs a life a day in this city, it is hoped that a more careful study of this disease may lead to the discovery of a cure for it.

The Middleman Necessary.

That the elimination of the middleman as an end to lower cost of living is not such a simple matter after all is the conclusion growing in the minds of those who have been investigating this subject since the recent visit of a delegation to Mayor Guerin asking him to advocate such a step. It is now pointed out that for the handling of many classes of goods the middleman is a necessary good, or evil, according as to how one looks at the matter. Although President Taft of the United States has been credited with saying that the middleman must be eliminated, there is considerable doubt as to whether he ever said anything of the kind. For the distribution of nearly everything necessary for the household the middleman, lacking a better means, seems to be necessary. The parcels post has been suggested as the natural means of supplanting him, but whatever conveniences it might work it is not looked upon as the solution of the issue of high prices. Rather it is believed by many investigators that it would result in still further increasing the influence of the great mail order houses, a possibility which is not likely to receive very hearty support from the small country merchants. Whatever happens, somebody's ox is certain to be gored, so that the middleman seems to be safe in his field of activities—that is until someone discovers a substitute which will be more acceptable to everybody. And then at the next turn of the wheel the middleman, deprived of his usefulness, would probably raise another cry of protest at increase in the task of existing.

Animal or Reptile.

Any person having authoritative knowledge as to just what a turtle is will be gladly welcomed by a local judge who is endeavoring to administer justice in a queer case here involving a charge of cruelty to turtles against the captain of a vessel which arrived last week from the south bringing as part of her cargo sixty-five live green turtles. To prevent their escape during the voyage their fins or flippers were pierced and tied together on each side by means of a rope passing through these holes, and as a further indignity they were made to endure the entire passage reclining on their backs. As soon as this condition of affairs was discovered a local magistrate promptly ruled that it was clearly a case of cruelty to animals, whereupon the lawyer for the captain of the vessel promptly pointed out that the turtle is not an animal, being classed by naturalists as a reptile. The prosecution then endeavored to show that the intent of the law prohibiting cruelty to animals was to include all living creatures except man. This served only further to complicate matters, since it is obvious that what would be cruelty to turtles would be cruelty to human beings. Furthermore, the lawyer for the defence argued that the indignities sueffred by the turtles were unavoidable and to be classed with those endured by the lobster when it is thrown into boiling water, and he pointed out that he had never heard of a charge of cruelty to lobsters. At present the case is a pretty tangle, needing the wisdom of an aquatic Solomon. Meanwhile the capitain is being held. So are the turtles, for although they cannot appear as witnesses they can at least be their own evidence.

Teaching by Moving Pictures.

A novel experiment in the educational field by which it is hoped truancy will be reduced to a minimum is shortly to be tried here by the introduction of moving pictures into a number of public schools at instructive evening sessions. The Board of School Commissioners has granted the necessary permission and the programme so far arranged will cover a wide variety of geographical, literary and historical subjects, by means of such graphic instruction it is hoped the youngster who finds history, for instance, but dull reading, under the present system may be aroused to take special interest in his studies. The attendance of whole families will be encouraged since this new form of education is meant as much for adults as juveniles and it is hoped that attendances will prove that the masses are ready to take advantage of this novel experiment. Instead of gazing at objectionable and sensational moving pictures the new method will supply educational films, which at the same time will be a source of recreation. It is hoped that the experiment will prove so successful as to warrant its more general use for the purpose of really interesting the youngster in the subjects which he is studying.

Proverbs of Tripoli

Some proverbs of the Tripolitan people which have lately been published in a Turkish paper show what a refreshing fountain of wisdom is about to be stopped up by Italian aggression.

"You cannot," says one of the proverbs, "escape your fate, even on a horse."

"Whoever," says another, "has maize will soon find one who will lend him flour."

"If a dog has to be beaten," says a third, with a familiar though perhaps more elegant ring, "there will be no lack of sticks."

A fourth proverb points out that "Whoever is seeking pearls must go to the depths of the ocean." Yet another shrewdly remarks that "Even a sooth-sayer cannot foretell his own fate." A very cynical proverb says that "Whoever trusts a woman has been smitten by God, and God punishes everybody according to his deserts."

Kitchener a Stage Manager

An interesting incident in the life of Lord Kitchener was recorded some years ago by Mr. Hermann Klein. Refering to the rehearsals of "Human Nature" at Drury Lane, in the days of the late Sir Augustus Harris, Mr. Klein says: "Actively assisting in arranging an African fight was a gentleman in a frock-coat and tall hat, of undeniable military appearance, who impressed me both by his quiet, masterful manner and the impertubable patience with which he directed manoeuvres to be repeated over and over again until they were satisfactorily executed. After the rehearsal was concluded I went upon the stage. Augustus Harris was talking to his military adviser. He beckoned me to approach. 'Klein, I want to introduce you to my friend, Major Kitchener, who has been kind enough to come and help me with this "soldiering" work. What do you think of it? Did you ever see such fighting and marching on the stage before?"

Ten Years Ago.

It was just ten years ago that Argonauts defeated Ottawa and won the Ontario championship. The Argo team that day was as follows: Full-back, Irving Ardagh; right half-back, Hardisty; centre half, Percy Darling; left half, Henderson; quarter, Russell Britton; scrummage, Phil Boyd (right), Joe Wright (centre), Bauty Russell (left); wings, Langton (inside right), Bill Brant (left), Leslie Wilson (middle right), Pud Kent (captain, left), Chummy Hill (outside right), Chadwick (left); flying wing, Parmenter. Banty Russell and Pud Kent are the only two who have played in this season's games.

D. M. Waters, druggist, backed up by the manufacturers of SALVIA, the Great Hair Grower, guarantees it to grow hair.

SALVIA destroys dandruff in ten days.

The roots of the hair are so nourished and fed that a new crop of hair springs up, to the amazement and delight of the user. The hair is made soft and fluffy. Like all American preparations SALVIA is daintily perfumed. It is hard to find actress who does not use SALVIA continually.

Ladies of society and influence use no other.

SALVIA is a non-sticky preparation and is the ladies' favorite. A large, generous bottle, 50c. The Scobell Drug Co., St. Catharines, Canadian distirbutors.

BY-LAW NO.

A BY-LAW RESPECTING THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE.

Passed the day of 1911.

WHEREAS by Sub-Sec. 3 of Sec. 71a of The Consolidated Municipal Act of 1903 the Council of any City having a population of 15,000 or less may by By-Laws provide that the Council of such City shall be composed of a Mayor and one Alderman for each 1,000 of population, to be elected by general vote, the population to be determined by the last census of the Dominion of Canada,

AND WHEREAS, by said last census of the Domiinon of Canada taken in the year 1911 the population of the City of Belleville was determined at the number of 9,850.

IT IS THEREFORE ENACTED by the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville:—

1.—THAT the Council of the City of Belleville shall be composed of a Mayor and one Alderman for each 1,000 of the population of the said City as determined by the last census of the Dominion of Canada to be elected by general vote.

2.—THAT the first nominations to be held under the provisions of this By-Law shall be the last Monday of December, A. D., 1912, and the first elections the first Monday of January, A. D., 1913.

3.—This By-Law shall come into force and effect immediately on and after the final passing thereof.

4.—THAT the votes of the qualified electors of the Municipality of the City of Belleville shall be taken (in accordance with the Statute in that behalf made and provided) upon this By-Law on the same day, at the same hour and at the same places at which and by the same Deputy Returning Officers, by whom the next Municipal Elections for said Municipality are held.

5.—THAT the Clerk of the Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville shall attend at his office in the City Hall in the City of Belleville on Tuesday the 2nd day of January A. D. 1912 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon to proceed to sum up the number of votes given for and against this By-Law in accordance with the provisions of the Statute in that behalf.

6.—THAT the Mayor of the Corporation of the City of Belleville shall attend at the City Hall in the said City on Tuesday, the 26th day of December 1911, at the hour of 2 o'clock in the afternoon for the purpose of appointing and shall appoint in writing signed by him two persons to attend the final summing up of the votes given for and against this By-Law and for the purpose of appointing one person to attend at each polling place upon the day of polling of the said votes, on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of promoting the passing of this By-Law and a like number on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of opposing the passing of this By-Law which place and hour are hereby fixed for said purpose.

Clerk. Mayor

NOTICE.

To the Municipal Electors of the City of Belleville:

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of the proposed By-Law which has been taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville which will be finally pased by said Council (in the event of the assent of the electors being obtained thereto) after one month from the first publication in the Daily Intelligencer and Daily Ontario Newspapers of Belleville, the date of which first pub. was 2nd day of December 1911 and that the votes of the electors of the said Municipality will be taken thereon and at the hour, day and place therein fixed for taking the votes of the Electors the Polls will be held.

Changing Habits in Britain.

One who served as manager of a leading hotel in London for twenty-five years, tells in a recent publication of the changing habits of British business men. He says when he first assumed the management of the hotel in question, business men made it a practice to go to their offices by eight or nine in the morning, and thought nothing of staying until until seven. At that time, however, they spent two hours over luncheon in mid-day. Now the usual practice is to start the day at half-past ten and quit at half-past five, but to take a hurried lunch in mid-day, and to keep under high pressure from the time they start until the time they actually quit.

An Evidence of Chinese Awakening.

G. Davidson, who for 25 years has been engaged in educational work in China, gives this typical incident as illustrating the viewpoint of the modern Chinaman as aroused by the revolution. A British teacher in one of the schools of Chengtu, we are told, was pointing with pride, before his native geography class, to the many red colored possessions of Great Britain, when he was stopped by shouts from the little Chinese pupils of:

"You stole them."

We are further told that in connection with the propaganda of the revolutionary party there has been circulated a poster depicting the swallowing of Egypt by Great Britain.

STOCK EXCHANGE EXPRESSIONS

A Peep at the Bulls and Bears and Meaning of Shorts and Profits and Settling Day Accounts.

In "boom" times newspapers tell us that "Bulls" are having it all their own way. In bad times it appears that the "Bears" are getting an innings. What, then, are "Bulls" and "Bears."

Let us first glance at the customers to the Stock Exchange. There is the genuine investor, who is content with anything up to 4½ per cent. and sound security. Next comes a little more difficult man to satisfy. For he wants 5 per cent. on his money and a chance of capital appreciation in his stock or share. Lastly — and this is the client we are dealing with more particularly — there is the speculator who swarms in the mining, rubber, and oil share markets in active times. He pays but little regard to any of the questions that are all important to the other two classes. The speculator delights in possibilities, probabilities, rumours, prospects, in fact all the varied ingredients that go to make an appetising meal for a healthy, robust "Bull."

A Peep at the "Bulls" and "Bears"

A "Bull" is a speculator "for the rise," a purchaser who hopes to sell at a profit, if possible before the settling day comes round, and not one who intends to take the shares off the market. He is known as a "stale bull," when after waiting wearily for the rise that never seems to come he sells in disgust. The "Bear" is the speculator who comes along when he thinks money can be made by selling; he fattens, of course, on the stale bull. When a successful "Bull" sells he differs from the "Bear" in that he takes his profits or cuts his losses, whereas the "Bear" is, only just setting out to make them. Thus a "Bull" taking his profits does so by selling at a higher price what he bought at a lower one. The "Bear" sells not because he has shares in his possession upon which he desires to realise a profit, but because he thinks he can sell you or me some shares now at, say, $15, which before setting day he can go into the market and secure at, say, $10; the difference between his selling and buying price is his profit. In effect he has sold us something at $15 which he has bought at $10. But he sold it first taking the risk of "covering" himself at a lower price before [illegible] is called upon to settle up. Settling days on the Stock Exchange [illegible] round every fortnight, when everybody, investors, speculators, "Bulls" and "Bears," settle their transactions.

Ottawa, Dec. [illegible]—The Department of the naval service has been advised by the National Radio Telegraph service at Berne that wireless messages to Italian coast points are accepted only at sender's risk and must not be written in code. This notice is issued on account of the conditions of war between Turkey and Italy.

Three prisoners and four weary pilgrims were last night occupants of the police cells.

CURES OLD FOLKS' COUGHS

DOESN'T DISTURB THE STOMACH; EASES AND CURES PERMANENTLY

"CATARRHOZONE" A BOON TO MANY THOUSANDS.

Because you are old is no reason for suffering with everlasting coughing—those terrible chest troubles and difficult breathing can be thoroughly cured with CATARRHOZONE. You simply breathe the healing vapor of Catarrhozone, and instantly its rich balsamic fumes are carried by your breath into the tiniest recesses of the nose, throat chest, bronchial tubes and lungs.

Just think of it—a direct, breathable medicine, full of soothing antiseptic pine essences that reaches every sore, congested membrane in two seconds. No drugs to take—nothing to harm or sicken the stomach, because Catarrhozone is the purest, safest cough, catarrh and cold remedy ever devised.

"For many years," writes Richard McCallum, Stirling, Ont., "I have suffered from Catarrh, and continually hawked and coughed, so that my throat was always in an inflamed, irritable condition.

"Doctors' medicine did not help me in the least, and all other remedies I used were quite useless. In one case it was time wasted snuffing powder up the nose; in another using a greasy ointment and so on. Not one of them was the least bit of good.

"I heard Catarrhozone favorably spoken of, and tried it. Really it benefited me more in a few hours than years of treatment with doctors' and other so-called remedies.

"Receiving such immense benefit, I continued using Catarrhozone, and in a few weeks I was completely cured of Catarrh and throat trouble."

Get Catarrhozone to-day. Large size costs $1.00 and lasts two months Smaller sizes 25c. and 50c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

BIG CROWD SAW A CLOSE GAME

Marsh & Henthorn Team beat the Hardware Company by Two Runs

The indoor league baseball match between Marsh & Henthorn and the Belleville Hardware Company team at the Armories last evening drew the largest number of spectators ever seen at a similar match here. It was an evidence that much interest is being taken in the game by the supporters of the various teams. The game resulted in a victory for the Marsh & Henthorn team by a score of 19 to 17. In the early part of the game the Hardware Company team had a slight lead, but the foundrymen proved to be better at the finish. It was one of the best games of the series yet played. Every member of both teams was alert during the entire game. Mr. Wm. Cochrane was umpire and Mr. A. P. Allen judge of bases. Connell and Connolly were the battery for the victors and Clarke and McGuire for the losers. The line-up of the teams was as follows:

Marsh & Henthorn—Smith, Brown Gerow, Connell, Kelleher, Hogan, Connolly, Campbell, Draycott.

Hardware Co.—McGuire, Clarke McKenna, Stewart, Doran, Westover Barnum, Stark, Barton.

Jumping Jack Tars

The rhythmic jumping of three hundred and fifty bluejackets saved H. M. S. Commonwealth from the fate of the Montague when she ran aground in a dangerous place.

The battleship Montague was abandoned as a hopeless wreck off the Cornish coast, but her sister ship, the Commonwealth, was safely got off by the muscular exertion of her crew.

The Commonwealth ran on to an uncharted rock when returning from target practice, and was badly damaged. She was so nicely balanced in her lodgment, however, that it was decided, after reversing the engines had failed to extricate her, to try the experiment of mustering all the available hands on the extreme aft, and setting them to jump in unison. The regular jumping of twenty-five tons of solidly-built seamen had the effect of making the huge vessel rock sea-saw fashion until she gradually floated off with the rising tide. In fifteen minutes she was afloat, and saved.

FINAL DAY IN THE COUNTY COUNCIL

Proceedings were Wound up at a Special Sitting Held Last Night

December 8th.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Council resumed at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Nugent spoke in reference to the Agricultural Department of Ontario making a grant to all fairs on the same basis as grants are made to fairs held in the northern part of Ontario. The delegation that goes to Toronto might bring the matter before the proper authorities.

Council went into Committee of the Whole on by-laws, Mr. White in the chair.

The by-law to assume a portion of McGill street in Mormora village as a County gravel road caused some discussion.

Messrs. Hubbell and Maloney spoke in support of the passage of the by-law. Mr. Hubbell said the street was not in bad condition, and the village would not ask for any further appropriation.

The County Superintendent, Mr. Bleecker, stated that the piece of road contemplated to be taken over was about 1,800 feet in length.

Mr. Ketcheson thought this was a matter which was helping the village of Marmora more than the county at large.

The by-law was read a second time

The blank in the by-law to appoint County Auditors was filled in with the names of Messrs. C. W. Thompson and W. C. Farley.

This by-law received its second reading.

The Commitee rose and reported. The report was received and adopted.

Mr. Tummon, as chairman of the special committee on reforestation, presented a brief report adopting the principle of reforestation in certain portions of the County.

After some of the members had spoken in support of the report it was adopted.

The Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means resumed. Mr. Mather in the chair.

A peddler's license free of charge was granted to Mr. Hamilton, of Madoc on account of disability.

Mr. H. Howie asked the Council to reimburse him to the extent of $20.75 on account of injuries to his horse, thereby compelling him to hire another horse for some time. His horse was injured on the Tweed and Bridgewater road by falling through a culvert.

A motion prevailed to pay same after Mr. Newton had made an explanation of the affair.

A motion was passed to pay to the Belleville Hospital Board $100 per quarter towards maintenance of same.

The Committee rose and reported. The report was received and adopted

Mr. Nugent moved, seconded by Mr. Farrell, that when the deputation visits the Provincial Government that they interview the Agricultural Department in reference to making the grants to fairs in the northern parts of this and other counties on the same basis as grants are made to fairs in northern Ontario.—Carried.

Council adjourned until 7.30 in the evening.

AMUSEMENTS

"THE THEATRICAL TIP."

Mr. J. N. Doyle writes: Though it was not my intention to "tip off" every play, I again state emphatically that those who enjoyed "Aunt Mary" will find the same excellence in "Billy" and the star Mr. Wm. Hawtrey is perfect in artistry and surpassingly clever in character drawing as was Miss Robson. The comedy, of course is different, having less of the homey touches of nature, and more of the side-splitting situations—more on the style of "Charley's Aunt." Mr. Hawtrey may be remembered by those who saw "An Englishman's Home." Those who saw Mr. G. P. Hawtrey when he was here will be equally delighted with the equally clever Englishman.

CARUSO'S DISCOVERER DIES AT HIS DINNER

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Eduoardo Missiano, baritone at the Metropolitan Opera House, but of more importance as the man who discovered Enrico Caruso's voice, fell dying last night of heart disease at the dinner table of his friend, Ciro Liguori, at 84 Sixth Avenue. The tenor was notified of his friend's death, and later, when seen by a Times reporter, he explained how Missiano had led him into the operatic world.

"When I was 18 years old, and living at Naples," said Mr. Caruso, "I went to a certain bath every day, where I met Missiano, who was at that time a member of a wealthy family and never had sung in public. He had a good baritone voice, but he sang only for his own amusement. I used to sing about the bath, and one day he remarked that I had an unusual voice, and said he would take me to the teacher, which he did.

"This teacher was a certain Guglielmo Vergino, and when I first went to see him he said he didn't think he could do much with my voice. Missiano, however, took me away, and taught me to sing an air from 'The Parl Fishers' and the Siciliano from 'Cavalleria Rusticana.' Then Vergino accepted me and taught me to sing.

"Missiano became my great friend. When I returned to Italy a few years ago I found that he had lost his money. He asked me to help him and I got him a place at the Metropolitan Opera House. He has been there ever since. He was more than a brother to me—one of my closest friends."

Mr. Caruso connects two superstitions with the death of his friend. One was a dream which Missiano related to Mr. Caruso and several other of his friends on Monday, that some one had given him five pieces of iron wire. He was told to give three of them to Panezza, an Italian tenor, who has been dead three years.

"Two pieces were left," said Mr. Caruso, "and we discussed the matter freely. We all thought that it meant something, but whether it meant that he would die in two years or two days or two weeks we did not know.

"There was another very strange thing that happened. I made a plaster cast of Missiano, which I had mounted on a placque. This stands on my desk and for three successive days it has fallen over."

Mr. Caruso had been asked to go to the Winter Garden last night, but he said he felt a premonition of evil and refused to go. Sometime later he received a telephone message announcing Misiano's death. Missiano had attended a rehearsal of "Tosca" at the opera during the afternoon, and his death was entirely unexpected.

He had just seated himself at the table and was in an especially jolly mood, laughing and talking with Mr. and Mrs. Liguori, when he fell forward on the table. Liguori called a doctor and also a priest from St. Joseph's Catholic Church in the neighborhood. The priest administered the last rites, but before the doctor arrived Missiano was dead.

He leaves a wife and three children in Naples. Mr. Caruso will pay all funeral expenses and has given orders to have the body sent back to Italy on Saturday on the Duca d'Abruzzi.

THE TURF.

The 2.10 Trotters.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—With fifty-one additions to the list in 1911, the number of 2.10 trotters now is 507.

It was in 1884 that the first 2.10 trotter appeared in the little black gelding, Jay-Eye-See, writes J. L. Hervey. He was followed next day by Maud S. and for years these two horses remained the only 2.10 trotters. It was not until 1891 that any others appeared, and then they began looming up in numbers, no less than five—Sunol, Palo Alto, Allerton, Nancy Hanks and Nelson—coming to the front.

In 1892 the pneumatic-tired sulky-wheel was introduced, and its efficacy as a speed accelerator was made manifest by the large number of new 2.10 trotters that the season produced. Nancy Hanks lowered the world's record to 2.04 over the "four-cornered" track at Terre Haute, Ind., and heats in 2.10 or better began to be so frequent that they no longer created a sensation, as was formerly the case.

FORMER RESPECTD RESIDENT DEAD

S. F. Armistead, Former City School Teacher Passed Away at Vancouver

This morning Mr. E. T. Cherry received the following telegram:—

Vancouver, Dec. 8.

Father died here this evening after brief illness.

A. F. ARMISTEAD.

This refers to the death of Mr. F. S. Armistead, who was for years a resident of this city engaged in the teaching profession, and for some years was Principal of Grier Street School. About 5 years ago he left for the west. He was in the city about two months ago and was apparently in the best of health. The cause of death is not known. Mr. Armisteed was about 55 years of age and was born in the western part of the Province, but spent the greater portion of his life in this city, where he was well known and had a host of friends. Deceased was a member of Belleville Lodge A. F. & A. M. and also a member of the Chapter. He had worked himself through various chairs in the society up to the position of Senior Warden and for some years was Secretary of the Lodge. Mr. Armistead was, while in the city, a member of Bridge Street Methodist Church. He was a successful teacher and a man beloved by his pupils. His demise will be sincerely regretted by all who knew him. A widow and three sons, Bert, Fred and Cecil, survive. As to where the remains will be interred is not known.

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY

Princeton University is led by Capt. Hart, who last year played with a special head gear. His neck was supposed to be broken, but it wasn't. Some of the ligaments were torn. Hart tore the Harvard line to pieces and downed the backs for losses, repeatedly.

Playing beside Hart, at left guard, is Wilson, who played with his right arm strapped to his side as the result of torn ligaments. He was mighty effective.

Bloomenthal is the Princeton center. He is built close to the ground and is fast. Phillips, at right tackle, has been one of the powerful men in the remarkable defense that stopped Harvard's rushes and forced the crimson backs to kick, time and again.

LIQUOR WEAKENS NERVOUS SYSTEM

Nerves Demanding the So-called Sedative Effects of Alchol Are "Alcoholic Nerves."

The Gatlin Treatment, in Three Days, Cures Appetite for Liquor and Restores Nerves

When a man's nerves are in a condition which demands alcohol as a sedative—in other words, when he must take a drink to overcome nervousness, the more quickly he comes to the Gatlin Institute, or sends for the Gatlin home treatment, the better. Mental decay soon sets in where the nerve forces are impaired. No poison is as destructive to the nervous system as the slowly-acting poison of alcohol.

An appetite—the physical necessity for liquor—is the greatest health liability one can possess.

In three days, without hypodermic injections or any other disagreeable features, the Gatlin treatment drives all accumulated alcoholic poison from the system, does away with liquor craving, strengthens the nervous system to normal, restores appetite for food, and brings back healthy digestion. In short, the Gatlin treatment cures the liquor habit in three days.

Gatlin Institutes are now established all over the United States, Canada and Europe. The treatment is no experiment—there is twelve years of success back of it. Positively no dangerous, cumulative or poisonous drugs used.

Call or write for books of particulars. The Gatlin Institute, 428 Jarvis street, Toronto. Phone North 4538, A. Hargrave, Manager.

POINTS OF LAW IN HEBERT CASE

MONTREAL, Dec. 8.—Judging by the scope of the questions set forth for argument when the hearing in the Hebert marriage case is resumed on Monday, and the many phases of civil and religious law referred to, a much wider field will be covered than had been anticipated. Four points are set forth in the opposition by Mrs. Hebert to the annulment of her marriage. Mrs. Hebert claims that the marriage of two Catholics by a Protestant minister is valid. Her former husband claims that by the tametsi decree, promulgated before the cession, and reinforced by the ne temere decree, the marriage of two Roman Catholics must be solemnized by a priest of their own religion. Another claim of Mrs. Hebert is that the ecclesiastical tribunal which pronounced her marriage null was without jurisdiction, and that the Church has no right to annul a marriage. On the other hand Hebert claims that the marriage in the eyes of the Catholic church is a sacrament, and that, therefore, the Church should control it, because the church is the custodian and administrator of all sacraments. The church claims it has a right to legislate on marriage and of interpreting what legislation it has brought into effect.

Mrs. Hebert claims that her marriage was performed before a competent officer, appointed by the Lieut.-Governor of the Province, and still is a valid marriage. To this the opposition replies that the only competent officer to perform a marriage is a Catholic bishop or a priest. In this respect, it is set forth, the civil law supports the tametsi decree. There have been many precedents, even marriages performed by priests, having been declared irregular. French law, it is declared, lays great stress on the competency of the officiating clergyman, and French law, it is pointed out, is still in effect in the Province of Quebec.

It was stated on behalf of Hebert, the husband, that an article of the civil code provides that the only competent officer before whom a marriage of Catholics can be performed is the parish priest or bishop. Lawyers representing Mrs. Hebert, reply:—"There is no such article in the civil code. If there were we might just as well throw up the case. What they probably mean is article 127, which says that the impediments to marriage recognized by different religious persuasions will still have effect."

HATS GO OFF AND ALSO ON

"One may see at the theatres this fall," said a playgoer of an observing turn of mind, "the beginning of what may be an attempt on the part of New York women to circumvent those masculine dictators who long ago decreed that all hats should be removed in the theatres.

"Many New York women hate to give up their hats and would wear them all the time if they could. Indeed, so devoted have they become to their hats that even hostesses at afternoon receptions and bridge parties now entertain their guests arrayed in their choicest millinery.

"But until this season these hat-loving women have been helpless in the theatre. Hats had to come off, and the beautiful creation, foaming with paardise plumes, was no better than the home-trimmed shape, so long as it had to repose in the owner's lap all evening.

"The first step in rebellion was the theatre cap, a bit of gold or silver, a frill of lace and a flower or two, to which no one could object. This little head covering is unusually pretty, sometimes becoming, and is no more obtrusive than the usual arrangement of puffs and braids that women wear to the theatre.

"But what of the woman to whom the theatre cap is not becoming? Must she sit with uncovered head while it is undeniably the smart thing to have the hair concealed? Never!

"What does she do? Why, she puts on her hat, of course. She keeps it on until the curtain rises for the first act, when she must of necessity remove it. But the moment the curtain begins to descend back goes the hat again, to remain until the house is once more dark.

"Naturally, by the time a hat has been put on and off three of four times in an evening the wearer is apt to look a little disheveled. But she is sustained by the consciousness that the piquant person with a bit of gold, a lace frill and a flower or two has nothing on her in the way of headgear.

"It goes without saying that a woman who is wearing a last year's hat or a home-trimmed shape still holds it in her lap."

Beware of the knocker and his hammer; you may be wanted to pose as an anvil.

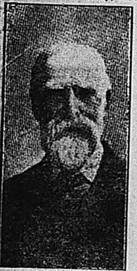
New York, Dec. 9.—Hon. Robert L. Borden, Premier of Canada, and Hon. James Bryce, the British Ambassador to the United States, were the leading speakers at the fifteenth annual banquet of the Canadian Society of New York at Delmonico's, last night. In addition to these two, Governor John A. Dix of New York, R. C. Smith, K.C., of Montreal, and Rev. C. A. Eaton, D.D., of New York, third vice-president of the society, spoke. Dr. A. C. Humphries, president, was chairman of the dinner, while about 400 guests assembled.

Among the old members of the society present were Dr. Wilfred Nelson, and Dr. J. J. McPhee, former presidents. At the guest's table besides the speakers were: Justice W. R. Riddell of Toronto, Maj.-Gen. F. D. Grant, Rear-Admiral Leutze, U.S.N.; Courtenay Walter Bennett, British consul-general; Recorder Weir of Montreal, Justice John J. Delaney, Bishop Courtney, formerly of Halifax; Darwin P. Kingsley, president of the New York Life; while among others at the tables were D. Lorne McGibbon, Montreal; Frank W. McLaughlin, treasurer of the society; Julius M. Mayer, former attorney-general of New York; Wm. Loeb, jr., collector of the port of New York; Senator Howard R. Bayne and many other men distinguished in the business world of New York.



HON. JAMES BRYCE.

The banquet hall was bountifully decorated with British and American flags with the Canadian ensign, an occasional Irish and Scotch flag adding variety to the scene. While no provision had been made in advance for the presence of ladies, it developed that a number of fair Canadians wished to be present and among those in the gallery were: Mrs. R. L. Borden, Ottawa; Mrs. W. R. Riddell, Toronto; Mrs. R. C. Smith and Miss Smith, Montreal; Mrs. Wilfred Nelson, Mrs. J. J. McPhee, Mrs. Frank W. McLaughlin, Mrs. Courtenay Walter Bennett, Mrs. Alfred Downing and several others.

Hon. R. L. Borden received a right royal welcome as the leading citizen of the home land of the great majority of those present. His declarations of friendship for this country, and his explanation of Canada's attitude to the late election were well received.

Hon. Mr. Borden, after a declaration that the constitution of Canada was as democratic as that of the United States, pointed out that the powers of self-government conferred upon Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa were so extensive that the Parliament of the United Kingdom had in one sense ceased to be an Imperial Parliament and the chief tie which bound together the Motherland and the great dominions was a common allegiance to the same sovereign. The strength of that tie had increased with its importance and Canada yielded not even to Britain in her attachment to the crown.

"I have the opportunity," he said, "merely to hint at problems that are common to the English-speaking democracies. There are others which may be regarded as in some sense peculiar to the United States and Canada. I do not pretend to deal with these, but merely to suggest them. Both countries are endowed with enormous and abundant resources. The tendency is naturally toward wastefulness and prodigality. On the other hand the vast accumulation of wealth in the hands of a few men confronts us with the possibility that great national resources may pass into the hands of an oligarchy of wealth and may be used for the oppression rather than for the benefit of the people. We, in Canada, are not insensible to this danger and in this as in other respects we hope to profit by your experience. Our natural resources have not been very appreciably diminished by waste but we are approaching the danger line and already we have taken precautions."

Referring to the defeat of reciprocity as in no sense a manifestation in Canada, of an unfriendly spirit towards the United States, he pointed out that from 1878 to 1897 Canada had kept open an offer to exchange natural products but the United States, as it had a perfect right to do, had declined to accept. He continued: "For thirty years and more we have followed certain national ideals and policies which we firmly intend to pursue and continue in the future. We reached the conclusion that the recent proposals were inconsistent with those ideals and policies. Moreover, we entirely disbelieve in the framing of tariffs by diplomatic methods. That system has been tested between different states under the British flag, notably in South Africa and the results have been far from satisfactory.

"May I be permitted to express my personal conviction that in the interests of good relations between our countries it is better that each should maintain and preserve unhampered to the fullest extent the control of its fiscal policy. And assuredly good relations between the two countries do not depend upon the existence of any particular form of reciprocal trade relations. No press, however prejudiced, can lead me to accept any such conclusion."

Hon. James Bryce was the next speaker.

In matters relating to the internal questions of Canada, in which it became necessary to represent the wishes and interests of Canada, he said he was at the service of the Dominion for the time being, as an intermediary conveying their wishes (subject to His Majesty's instructions) to the United States. In matters, which, while Canadian, were also of imperial concern, the British Home Government communicated directly with Canada through the Colonial Secretary. In neither case has he anything to do with the policies adopted, but only with the communications between the British and Canadian Governments and that of the United States. But his visits to Canada had been of the greatest interest to him, by enabling him to understand more fully than he could otherwise have done, what were the views and ideas of the Canadian Government, so that he could better secure a perfect understanding between them and the United States, and endeavor to help in solving any difficulties that might arise in a way just and satisfactory to both.

WILL BE SILENT.

They Have No Revelations For Grand Jury, Say McNamaras.

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.—The scope of the investigation undertaken by the federal grand jury here and the one in Indianapolis, Ind., so far as could be learned last night, has not been sharply defined. Government officials, it is thought, will be able to determine only after the testimony of witnesses has practically been finished, whether to return indictments here or in Indianapolis against these persons alleged to have been implicated in a conspiracy unlawfully to transport explosives from one state to another.

Both James B. and John J. McNamara remained in their cells yesterday, reiterating that they would tell nothing even if called before the grand jury. Oscar Lawlor, the Government's special prosecutor, saw them but obtained little satisfaction. It was suggested that perhaps after the McNamaras had a taste of prison life and are visited by labor leaders who are anxious to cleanse organized labor of alleged charges of lawlessness, they might be prevailed upon to give the desired information.

Ortie E. McManigal, confessed dynamiter, continued to tell the grand jury his experience, and he was followed by William Kaiser of Muncie, Ind., a nitro-glycerine manufacturer, who says he sold explosives to J. B. and J. J. McNamara, as well as to McManigal. The latter corroborates Kaiser's story. Though the proceedings of the grand jury are kept secret, it is assumed that Kaiser, who identified J. J. McNamara in the courtroom recently, told of the persons to whom he sold explosives.

Ironworkers' Books Seized.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Dec. 9.—The books of the Ironworkers' Local Union here, seized by U. S. deputy marshals and held by them yesterday to await instructions from federal officials in Los Angeles, are wanted, it is said, on high authority, to trace to their ultimate disposition large sums of money sent by the secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Union (J. J. McNamara), in the local union, ostensibly for "organization in the west."

Potato Famine In United States.

New York, Dec. 9.—Importations of potatoes from abroad are beginning to arrive in this part, the main bulk of them coming from Ireland. Up to date this fall about 25,000 sacks have arrived.

Wholesalers quote Maine potatoes in the market here at $3 a sack, and say this price is just about double the price of a year ago.

Since early fall the price had risen steadily and $4 a sack is expected by February.

Not only is there a scarcity of potatoes in this country, but from practically all the potato producing countries of the world reports show slack crops.

Farmer Shot Through Heart.

Tillsonburg, Ont., Dec. 9.—While out inspecting his mink traps yesterday, Archie Barham, a young farmer of Middleton Township, was accidentally shot and killed as he walked through the woods. He stumbled and the gun exploded, the bullet piercing his heart.

Fourteen Sailors Drowned.

London, Dec. 9.—The Belgian steamer Van Dyck, bound from Valencia, was wrecked off the Cornish coast on Thursday. Fourteen members of the crew were drowned. The vessel, which is owned in Antwerp, was 1,132 gross tons. She was built in 1904.

Killed on Way Home.

London, Ont., Dec. 9.—Antonio Simonsky, a young Pole on his way to Poland to spend Christmas, fell from a Grand Trunk train near Watford yesterday morning and was instantly killed. He was from Chicago.

Artist Fleury Dead.

Paris, Dec. 9.—Tony Robert Fleury, the painter, died yesterday. He was once president of the French Artists' Society.

8,000 MANCHUS SLAIN

First News Received of Outbreak at Sianfu.

Several Mission Houses In the Province of Shensi Have Been Destroyed and Eight Foreigners Killed —Some Were Children and Four Were Americans—Terms of Settlement Include Retention of Emperor

Pekin, Dec. 9.—The first direct and uncensored news received from Sianfu since the recent outbreak there was brought here yesterday by messenger. It consists of letters to the British and American legations and the director of posts. The letters say that 8,000 Manchus were slain by the Chinese, and that there was much looting. Several mission houses in the province were destroyed and eight foreigners, some of them children, were killed. Four of the dead were Americans.

According to the letters most of the foreigners in the Province of Shensi, of which Sianfu is the capital, numbering 75, 17 of them being Americans. A majority of these are now in Sianfu, the others having fled to the Province of Kansu, where trouble is expected.

"We apparently are safe now," says one of the letters, "but the lawless reign. He had hoped to escape down the Han River, but the road is dangerous. The Kansu missionaries may have a hard time. Twenty-two of them, including children, are Americans. Money cannot be sent them as all the mails have been stopped, and the banks were robbed and burned."

This letter is signed by V. J. Plymire of the Christian and Missionary Alliance at Taochow, Province of Kansu. It is dated Nov. 26.

The terms which the imperial delegates will take to Shanghai or Nanking in an endeavor to settle the question in dispute between the Government and the revolutionists are believed to provide, first, that the Emperor shall be retained, though he will be entirely without power; second, that a president and cabinet shall be elected by the nation and the president shall possess the same authority as the president of the republic, and, third, if the foregoing conditions are accepted, the Government will grant provincial autonomy.

These terms are considered largely a bluff. Yuan Shi Kai still controls a substantial army, but is unable to pay the soldiers, and, desiring to save the nation, he must accept the republican demands.

Steerage Neglected.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Penalties aggregating $70,960 were yesterday imposed by the Department of Commerce and Labor upon the British steamer Orteric, charged with what the Department characterized as the worst case of neglect of steerage passengers ever brought under the Passenger Act of 1882.

The penalized vessel was employed to carry Spanish and Portuguese immigrants through the Magellan Straits to Honolulu. Among the 1,242 passengers there were in the eight weeks of her voyage 58 deaths, 57 being children. The births numbered 14.

The investigation further revealed that the sexes were not properly segregated, and that inadequate ventilation increased the mortality. The general sanitary condition of the vessel, including the hospital quarters, was found to be almost beyond belief.

Rebuke For Judge.

Montreal, Dec. 9.—Practical censure of a judge was the unusual course taken by the council of the Montreal Bar Association at a final meeting over an appeal by a young advocate from sharp censures passed upon him by Judge Leboeuf last May. Not only did the council exonerate Joseph Jenkins, the appealing lawyer, from all blame attaching to him by the judge, but they added a clause expressing regret that Judge Leboeuf, during the hearing of the appeal, should have borrowed the dossier and altered a document therein.

It is understood that a copy of the council's decision will be forwarded to the Minister of Justice. An appeal from the finding of the council lies with the censured judge to the council of the Provincial Bar Association.

Job For Major Herron.

Ottawa, Dec. 9.—Major John Herron, who went down to defeat as Conservative candidate in Macleod, Alta., is likely to get a place on the commission which is to investigate the needs of agriculture preparatory to the granting of federal help to the provinces. Andrew Broder of Dundas, who almost got the portfolio of agriculture, is sure to go on this commission.

Only a few far westerners are still here, intending to spend Christmas in the capital. Premier Borden will not return from New York till Monday.

"Maine" Really Blown Up.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 9.—The battleship Maine was blown up in Havana harbor by an explosion from the outside.

This is the gist of a short statement issued by the U. S. Navy Department yesterday, based on findings made by the joint army and navy board which spent several months in Havana harbor investigating the wreck.

"Holy Ghost" Leader Indicted.

Portland, Maine, Dec. 9.—An indictment, containing six counts for the death of six of his followers in the cruise of the yacht Corona, was reported yesterday by the grand jury of the United States District Court against Rev. Frank W. Sandford, leader of the Holy Ghost and Us Society. The trial of the Shilohite leader was begun immediately.

Father Bressel Drowned.

Quebec, Dec. 9.—A despatch received in town yesterday from Bersimis brings news of the drowning of Rev. Father Bressel, who went through the ice at that point. No details are given.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock— Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—Storms damaging crops in the Argentine had a bullish effect to-day on the market for wheat. The close here was firm with prices varying from the same as last night to 1-4c to 3-8c above. Corn showed a net decline of 1-4c to 3-8c to 1-2c, and oats a fall of 1-4c to 3-8c. In hog products, the finish was irregular, ranging from 2 1-2c loss to 2 1-2c to 5c advance.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ¼d to ⅜d higher than yesterday on wheat, and ¼d to ⅜d higher on corn. Berlin closed ⅝c higher on wheat, Paris unchanged to ¼c higher, and Antwerp ⅝c higher.

ROWELL AT PALMERSTON.

Liberal Leader Reiterates Complaints Against Whitney.

Palmerston, Dec. 9.—"This is our charge against the Government: that it lies down in face of difficulties, instead of courageously grappling with them," said Mr. Rowell in the course of an address before a large meeting held here last night.

"If a man is lacking in courage, statesmanship, and vision, but will lie down in front of difficulties, he is not worthy to retain the confidence of his fellow-men. The Government appears to be a spent force, a burnt-out volcano, unable to initiate progressive legislation."

Dealing with the so-called bilingual schools, Mr. Rowell charged the Government with vacillation, indecision, evasion, and once more enunciated his own policy of solving this vexed question, not by trifling with the matter nor by wiping out the schools, but by securing through proper training schools an adequate supply of competent teachers, able to give every child a thorough English education.

Mr. McEwing, M.P.P., went on with an indictment of the retiring administration for the giving away of money to the Bruce Mines and Algoma, Central Ontario, and Manitoulin and North Shore Railways, and said the only reason that scandal had not been spread about the Whitney Government was that its huge majority enabled it to out-vote the Opposition when they wanted an investigation.

J. Nelson Hay of Listowel spoke on behalf of Mayor John Brown of Stratford, the candidate of the North Perth Liberals.

Mr. James McMurchie of Harriston, president of the West Wellington Reform Association, was chairman. The Carnegie Library Hall, which is the largest hall in the town, was crowded to its capacity, with over 500 people.

Counsel Received $170,000.

Indianapolis, Dec. 9.—Hoping to dispel doubt and curb criticism of methods used in obtaining and distributing the McNamara defence fund, a report of all money collected and disbursed up to Oct. 25 was made public here last night with the consent of Frank A. Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, who is custodian of the fund.

The total amount received up to that date was $194,612.53, and the total expenditures were $184,850.93. No accounting is made of the sums received and spent since that time.

Clarence Darrow, chief of counsel for the defence of the McNamaras, had been paid the sum of $170,000. It is stated that Darrow was to pay his assistants from this amount. In this connection local international union officials stated that it is understood that Darrow will not continue his office in Chicago.

Local attorneys, who have been looking after the Indianapolis end of the case, have been paid $11,000.

Three Burned In Quebec.

Quebec, Dec. 9.—In a fire which destroyed a three-storey building on Champlain street shortly after eight o'clock yesterday morning three persons lost their lives and a fourth is likely to die.

The victims are: Mrs. Thomas Jones, aged 25 years, and her two sons, Charles, aged 5, and Alfred, aged 4, and still lingering between life and death is Mrs. Jones' two-months-old baby, who is badly burned about the face.

It seems that Mrs. Jones, after giving her husband his breakfast, and seeing him off to work, went back to bed and shortly after the fire occurred.

SPLENDID MEETING OF SIDNEY CONSERVATIVES

Officers were Chosen and Several Excellent Speeches were Made.

The annual meeting of the Liberal Conservative Association of the Township of Sidney was held in the Town Hall, Wallbridge, on Dec. 5, 1911, at 8 p.m. Chas. Ketcheson, president, was in the chair. Organization was proceeded with and Jno. Hesse was elected President for the ensuing year by acclamation; and Dr. Malone was re-elected Secretary, also by acclamation.

The election of the various committees of the different sub-divisions was then proceeded with, as follows:

No. 1, Frankford—Chairman, G. W. Ketcheson; Secretary, W. A. R. Milne; Committee, B. B. Ostrom, D. A. Vandervoort, Wm. Reynolds.

No. 2, Turner's—Chairman, Wm. E. Griffin; Secretary, Seymour Hamilton; Committee, Jas. Bird, Jas. Forgy, Robt. Campbell.

No. 3, Wallbridge—Chairman, Howard Ketcheson; Secretary, Fred R Mallory; Committee, Walter Scott, Bruce Oliver, Herbert Grey.

No. 4, Gilbert's—Chairman, Harry Ketcheson; Secretary, Samuel Traverton; Committee, George Ostrom, Barton Hogle and Wm. Juby.

No. 5, Harder's—Chairman, Walter Potts; Secretary, Wm. Reid; Committee, Christie Jeffery, Frank Jeffery, Frank Brooks.

No. 6, Glen Ross—Chairman, Clement Armstrong; Secretary, Marshall Bell; Committee, Frank Scott, Robert Armstrong, Edgar Morrow.

The retiring President, Mr. Chas Ketcheson, spoke of the interests of the township. There are 24 municipalities in the township which are not self-sustaining. The Provincial Government helps them, the County Council helps them; but the burden of these municipalities is becoming greater all the time. We have had to increase the grant. Last year there were 20,000 acres of land sold at an average price of 18 cents an acre. I brought this matter up before the County Council and we made a request to the Provincial Government which was granted, making it possible for us to buy land and re-forest it. If this is done these lands could be made as valuable as any agricultural section. There is another scheme which would also make it valuable, i.e., for the Government to buy it and make parks out of it. In this manner a great burden would be removed from the county, and unless something is done taxes are bound to go up. The representation of a county at the Municipal Association convention should be according to what is paid into the municipal treasury. We pay in $12,000 to the County Treasurer, and lots of the cities only pay in $300, and their votes are as good as mine at the Municipal Association convention.

Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., was then called upon and he expressed pleasure at meeting so many friends. He said: "I have been closely associated with many of the men of the Township of Sidney and have made many warm personal friends. I think that is a great privilege. It is not often that a man has the privilege of being elected to Parliament without a contest. When we three representatives from Hastings get to Toronto, they will be calling us not the Siamese twins, but the Siamese triplets. In 1874 we were licked to a finish, but Sir Jno. A. Macdonald was placed at the head again, and the fight began and finally victory came in 1878. It gives men a standing to go to Parliament by acclamation. I feel that going back in that manner gives one greater influence than before, although during the years I have been in Parliament I have nothing to complain of. Mr. Rowell has attacked the civil service in Toronto and has suggested a Royal Commission to investigate. We have no civil service in Toronto. All the clerks in the Parliament buildings in Toronto earn their salaries. They go to work about 8 o'clock and work hard. I have never seen any loafers there. It is not like it is in Ottawa. You do not see them in Toronto loitering in the lobbies or rooms smoking their pipes and lounging around. This Royal Commission would cost $35,000 a year and would be of no use. I shall endeavor to work not only for the interests of this riding, but for the interests of the country as a whole. There are men struggling along, ambitious men, in rural districts, who perhaps have obtained a third class certificate and are unable to go to Toronto or Ottawa to Normal School to further their education. I said to the Minister, you have no right to take away the Model Schools and deprive these men of the privilege of further education; and so they are again opening up Model Schools in out of the way places. They have opened one in Madoc.

The Reeve of Huntingdon wrote me and wants a grant for colonization roads. I'll have great pleasure in introducing their delegation to Mr. Hearst. To succeed you have got to follow it up, and not be satisfied with a promise of taking it into serious consideration. I think it would be a great thing for the people in the North to take them up to New Ontario. The great clay belt has a grand future in store for it. I do not mean the mines; we cannot grow mines, and when they are exhausted they are done; but the clay belt has possibilities of a grand future. We gave a bonus to McKenzie & Mann of $4,000 a mile to build their line from Port Arthur. It is the only way to develop that country. Colonization has been brought about by railroads. We must link the Government with railways, and when they have lands to sell, they will colonize the country. There is to be co-operation and co-ordination between the Borden and Whitney Governments which we did not enjoy under the late Federal Government. The engineers have just made a report as to what McKenzie & Mann were doing and they have started the railroad. They say that what is known as the height of land is a plateau covered with white pine.

They have discovered also, that close to the railway track, is land with a possibility of supporting 20,000,000 of a population. I did not come here to make a speech; so I will give way to some of the other gentlemen.

The following resolution was moved by Mr. Chas. Ketcheson and seconded by Mr. Clement Ketcheson:

We, the members of the Liberal Conservative Association of the township of Sidney, desire to express our confidence in, and appreciation of, the ability and character of both our representatives, Mr. E. G. Porter, K. C., M.P., and Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., and at the same time to express our unbounded confidence in both the Provincial and Federal Governments.

The resolution was carried unanimously and the meeting was closed with three cheers for Mr. Johnson, Mr. Porter and three cheers and a tiger for the King.

SLEEPING SICKNESS.

Twelve Cases Among Crew of Ship Antoinette.

SAINT NAZAIRE, France, Dec. 8. —The ship Antoinette has arrived here with her crew of twelve in an advanced stage of sleeping sickness. The disease broke out a hundred days after the Antoinette left Java. Three of the sailors died.

When the vessel was boarded to-day by health officers, it was a horrible sight. Most of the men lay in a semi-stupor. The ship was over-run with swarms of rats.

TRUSTED EMPLOYEES' ALLEGED THEFT

Three Men Employed by the St. Charles Carriage Company in Court Today

Edward Hubbard, Archie Green, and Vincent Asselstine, three employees of the James St. Charles Omnibus Company, of this city, were last evening placed under arrest. The charge preferred against them is that of theft.

It appears that for some time the company has been missing rubber tubing which is used for tires for vehicles. This tubing is purchased by the firm in considerable quantities, being wound around what is called a drum. It was surmised that the theft was committed by some party or parties who had access to the premises.

The affair was reported to the police and the credit is due to Officer Donovan for detecting the guilty parties. Hubbard, who has been an employee of the firm for 35 years, as a decorator and finisher was provided with a key, and it appears that at night, he, in company with Green and Asselstine would visit the firm's premises on Front Street and secure a quantity of rubber tubing, which would be taken to certain dealers and sold. All rubber taken by the parties has been disposed of.

After being placed under arrest Green appeared to be anxious to tell the whole story of the transaction and did so to Officer Donovan, who gave him the usual warning. Green and Asselstine claimed that Hubbard secured the rubber tubing and gave it to them to dispose of and Hubbard would give them but a small percentage of the proceeds. This, Green stated to the officer had been going on for 7 or 8 months. How much was taken can only be conjectured.

This morning the accused were brought before the Magistrate and Mr. Carnew who appeared on their behalf, intimated that he would waive reading the charge or an election. All that was necessary was for sufficient evidence to be taken to commit them for trial at a higher court. After the evidence of Officer Donovan and other police officers had been taken, the accused were formally committed for trial. Hubbard is 48 years of age, and married. Green is 19 years of age and Asselstine 17.

Later in the day the accused were brought up before Judge Deroche for election and elected to be tried by His Honor without a jury. The trial was fixed for Wednesday, the 20th inst. In the meantime they are out on bail of a substantial nature. Mr. Anderson, County Attorney, represented the Crown in the matter.

Synopsis of Canadian North-west Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion lands Agency or Sub-Agent for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

CANADA'S CHRISTMAS STAMP

The Campaign for 1911 is on, and Needy Consumptives all over Canada are Rejoicing

As Archdeacon Cody expressed it at a meeting of the Citizens' Christmas Stamp Committee in Toronto, a few days ago, the Christmas Stamp, now issued each year in aid of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, has become one of the institutions of the country.

Three years ago the movement was set on foot in Canada by the National Sanitarium Association, following the idea that first originated in Denmark, which was a year later taken up in the United States, and quickly spread to Canada.

The idea itself is very simple, though the results show how true it is that "great oaks from little acorns grow," $11,000.00 being realized from the sale of stamps in 1910, a sum sufficient to care for forty patients at the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives. This year it is hoped that $25,000.00 may be realized to assist in this great life-saving work which is ever becoming more urgent.

The cut in the corner of this article shows the design of the stamp for 1911, though the original is in three colors.

This stamp does not carry any mail. One wants to remember this, though, as it has been epigrammatically expressed, any mail will carry it. The idea is for everyone to use this stamp in their correspondence between now and the end of the year. This plan will serve the two-fold purpose of helping to realize the $25,000.00 for the aid of needy consumptives, and will besides possess an educational value that can hardly be overestimated.

The stamps are on sale to-day in book stores, drug stores, and elsewhere in almost every town and city in Canada. Clergymen, Public School teachers, Sunday School teachers, Bible Class workers, Daughters of the Empire, and organizations of many different kinds are assisting in the work of spreading the sale of this little stamp. Each stamp costs only one cent, so that it becomes possible for everyone to have some part in this great battle against consumption.

We have every pleasure in urging our readers to make much use of this little messenger of healing for the next thirty days.

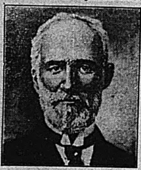
The end of love may be a quarrel or it may be a mother-in-law.

EFFECTS WERE MARVELLOUS

When I Tried "Fruit-a-tives"

HARDWICKE, N.B., Jan. 17th. 1910.

"I feel it my duty to give you a statement in respect to the wonderful cure I received by taking 'Fruit-a-tives'. Chronic Constipation was the complaint I suffered from for years. My general health was miserable as a result of this disease, and I became depressed and alarmed. I was treated by physicians without the slightest permanent benefit, and I tried all kinds of pills and tablets.



"I saw the strong testimonial in favor of 'Fruit-a-tives' by New Brunswick's 'Grand Old Man' Senator Costigan, and I knew that anything he stated was honest and true and given only to help his fellow-men. I tried 'Fruit-a-tives' and the effects were most marvellous, and now I am entirely well from all my Chronic Constipation that I suffered with for years." A. G. WILLISTON.

"Fruit-a-tives" will cure you, just as they cured Mr. Williston. Get a box today—take them—and begin to feel better. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

LADY CARD-SHARPERS

Investigation Show That Certain Women Make a Business of Attending Charity Card-Parties to Cheat.

Eleven women were refused admission recently to a charity card-party organized at the Church of St. Francis Assisi at Brooklyn, because they were believed to be card-sharpers. An investigation which was started unearthed the fact that a number of women make a business of attending such affairs of the gamblers who haunt Transatlantic liners. The women are not professional gamblers but members of respectable families who are unable to resist the temptation to cheat at cards.

It has become known that women band themselves together for concerted work, by lip signals, by marking cards with tiny pin-pricks, and otherwise, and, according to Father Kelleher, of St. Francis Assisi, who discovered the latest conspiracy, even know how to stack the cards.

Father Kellheer's discovery was due to an extraordinary accident. He was riding on a Brooklyn tram-car when he overheard two women seated next to him discussing how they intended to capture the prizes at the St. Francis party by cheating. Father Kelleher told the other priests of the church, and they watched the doorway of the 47th Regiment Armoury, where a card-party was being given. Father Kelleher detected the two women with nine others as they were endeavouring to enter. They were told that they could not get in. No explanation was offered, and the women did not demand any, but hastily disappeared. The churches and charity organisations are generally being notified of the discovery, with the suggestion that concerted effort should be made this winter to break up the practice. It is a disputed point whether the women are amenable to arrest on a charge of cheating.

GLORY OF THE MORNING

The Morning itself, few people, inhabitants of cities, know anything about. Among all our good people, not one in a thousand sees the sun rise once in a year. They know nothing of the morning. Their idea of it is that part of the day which comes along after a cup of coffee and a beefsteak or a piece of toast. With them, morning is not a new issuing of light, a new bursting forth of the sun, a new waking-up of all that has life from a sort of temporary death, to behold again the works of God, the heavens and the earth: it is only a part of the domestic day, belonging to reading newspapers, answering notes, sending the children to school, and giving orders for dinner. The first streak of light, the earliest purpling of the east, which the lark springs up to greet, and the deeper and deeper colouring into orange and red, till at length the "glorious sun is seen, regent of the day" — this they never enjoy, for they never see it. I never thought that Adam had much the advantage of us from having seen the world while it was new. The manifestations of the power of God, like His mercies, are "new every morning" and fresh every moment. We see as fine risings of the sun as ever Adam saw; and its risings are as much a miracle now as they were in his day — and, I think, a good deal more, because it is now a part of the miracle, that for thousands and thou[illegible] of years he has come to his ap[illegible]ted time, without the variation [illegible] millionth part of a second. Adam could not tell how this might be. I know the morning — I am acquainted with it, and I love it. I love it fresh and sweet as it is — a daily new creation, breaking forth and calling all that have life and breath and being to new adoration, new enjoyments, and new gratitude.

"I can't tell her she is the first girl I ever loved. She knows I've been engaged before."

"Well, tell her your'e glad you discovered your mistake in time."

NO LYNCHING IN THIS CASE

Texans Who Didn't Lynch Youth Who Murdered Defenseless School Teacher Are Now Wondering If It Pays.

(By special cable)

Pecos, Texas. — Reeves-co passed up an excellent chance for a lynching been last July, when hundreds of virile citizens were itching to string up a young Mexican who confessed insulting, then murdering a white school teacher.

The murderer isn't hanged yet.

Emma Brown, pretty and 25, left the general store at Saragosa last July 22 and drove out over the prairie with a supply of groceries for her sister's ranch, 10 miles away. Half an hour later Leon Martinez, a young Mexican clerk in the store, left on a pony. Later Martinez returned. Miss Brown never reached the ranch.

Next morning a stray horse and buggy were found. Four bullet marks were on the buggy. Pink Harbert, a cowboy deputy sheriff, was hastily summoned. Some distance from the buggy he found the corpse of Emma Brown, scarred with two bullet holes and six stab wounds. Worst of all, Emma Brown had been stabbed in the back!

Reeves-co heard the news and boiled. But it agreed with Dist. Atty. Will Brady before the murderer was discovered, that there would be no lynching. Reeves-co would let legal justice be done for this terrible murder.

LEON MARTINEZ

Then Leon Martinez was arrested and he confessed.

Race feeling and horror almost brought a lynching. But they held in. A telegram summoned Judge S. A. Isaacs from Midland, 70 miles away.

MOHAMMEDAN WITNESS

New York. — The Criminal Courts building was searched in vain today for a copy of the Koran, a demand for which arose when Mohammed Ali, a Turk, refused to be sworn on the Bible to testify in a grand larceny case. "To be sworn on the Bible means nothing to me," declared the witness, and court attendants searched high and low for a copy of the volume sacred to the Turk. When the book of Mohammed could not be found Ali was allowed to take oath after the fashion of those of his creed. holding up the index finger of his right hand, he said:

"I swear by the great Allah and by the beard of his only prophet Mohammed, to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing bu the truth. In failing, may I be swept off the face of the earth."

Ali was then permitted to give testimony favorable to the character of the defendant in the case.

NO DEFAULT ON LOANS

London. — The Pekin correspondent of the Times says that China's failure to pay the monthly interest on the Anglo-German loan need not cause anxiety. The half-yearly coupon is not due until April and all loans secured by the maritime customs will undoubtedly be paid punctually. The revolutionaries are as anxious as the Government to avoid foreign interference and are nowhere attempting to hinder the collection of the customs revenues.

However desperate China's internal finances, the foreign bondholders need have no fear of default in payment of any interest similarly secured.

REBELS HOLD THEIR OWN

Hankow. — The rebels are holding their own on the banks of the Han river. Sharp fighting and bombarding are daily occurring. The revolutionary forces are now awaiting the fall of Nanking, which will permit the fleet to come to their assistance. In such event, the Imperialist forces certainly will not be able to hold Station Kilometer Ten, which can be covered easily from the river.

Never judge by appearances. Sometimes a man's nose is naturally red.

Never send a friend on a fool's errand. Go yourself.

BERESFORD AND BRITISH NAVY

Lacked Efficiency in Many Ways at Time of Scare—McKenna Replys that there is No Foundation for Allegations.

(By special cable)

London. — Lord Charles Beresford, speaking at South-sea with reference to the Moroccan situation, said that he had availed mentioning the naval crisis recently because under the conditions that then prevailed all should forget party and support the Government. He felt that so strongly that he had refrained from publishing his book setting forth the real state of affairs.

Now the crisis was past, but it had been a blessing in disguise, because it would result in placing the services on a right footing.

At the time of the crisis, continued Lord Charles Beresford, the British fleet was divided. It had no reserve of coal or oil fuel; there were no guards over the magazines or dockyards, or on those parts of the railways which might have been destroyed in a few minutes, and in many other ways the navy lacked efficiency.

PAUL THOMAS
Who critizes Beresford

"All might be remedied," continued Lord Charles, "by having a war staff at the Admiralty. Every other nation has one and they must all be amazed that we, who owe our national existence to the sea, have none."

The German foreign minister's revelations have caused a great sensation in London, as showing how Europe was on the brink of war over Morocco, and Sir Edward Grey's version of the transactions next Monday in the House of Commons is awaited with intense interest.

The London newspapers are reserving comment until they have heard the British side. The Telegraph, in an editorial, remarks that Europe looked into the abyss and recoiled with horror.

That war was so narrowly averted gives a fresh impetus to every movement directed to the attainment of a permanent basis of peace between Great Britain and Germany, the paper adds.

Lord Charles Beresford's speech is regarded in some quarters as an attempt to justify the recent removal of Reginald McKenna from the Admiralty. Mr. McKenna, however, asserts that there is no foundation for the allegations respecting the unpreparedness of the navy

CHINA'S PREMIER SPEAKS OUT

Yuan-Shi-Kai's Answer to Message Advising Abdication of the Throne—Says China Not Yet Prepared for Republic.

Peking. — Yuan Shi Kai, the Chinese Premier, says:

"I am sure that the most enthusiastic Republican, if familiar with conditions in China, would doubt the wisdom of the adoption of such a regime here. The form of government suitable to America, where all the people understand the governmental problems, would be a serious experiment in China, where through centuries of a crude patriarchal monarchy, whose very slackness has developed in the people little respect for government, and less understanding of their responsibilities toward the government, has existed.

"It has been already demonstrated that agitation for a republic has conveyed to the masses only the idea that popular government means no taxes and no government.

"It is the vast majority and not the small minority, which must be considered in determining the most workable form of government for any country. While a republic might suit a modern, educated people, such a class, it must be remembered, is comparatively a small fraction of China's population.

"In this element the spirit of nationalism has grown up, wiping out in some measure sectional and provincial prejudices, but among the masses these prejudices are strong.

"I fear the embarkation of China on republican experiment would only lead to the dissolution of the Empire, foreign intervention and partition of the country. Therefore I believe a constitutional monarchy is the best.

"While the Manchu dynasty has done nothing to draw to it the hearts of the people, yet I cannot see any better hope in anything that could now be substituted."

IRISH HOME RULE TO GO THROUGH

It Is a Foregone Conclusion that the Irish Bill Will Be Passed Next Parliament.

(Special Cable Service.)

When parliament assembles again the last battle for Home Rule will be on. For it is a foregone conclusion that Home Rule will win.

For now all liberal England has been won over to the side of the Irish. Indeed Ireland and the Irish have become actually popular with the English majority. Not since the days of Gladstone and Parnell has the cause of Ireland been accorded such sympathetic support among English people. Wherever the Irish Home-rule speakers, Redmond, "Tay Pay" O'Connor and the rest have spoken in their recent campaigning in England they have been enthusiastically received.

The recess will be devoted largely to informal discussion of the proposed home rule bill. The Liberal and Irish leaders will get together and go over the tentative draft of the bill in detail with a view to solving some of the major difficulties before the bill finally goes before parliament.

The measure has already been roughed out. A cabinet committee has been working upon the bill in general while a committee of financial experts has been working on the specific question of the financial relation between Ireland and England—one of the knottiest problems to be solved.

Just what form the bill will assume can't well be forecasted. Some of the papers are publishing what purport to be outlines of the bill, but none of these is regarded as more than a guess.

GRANDSON OF EMPEROR WILLIAM

PRINCE OF PRUSSIA

BERLIN. — This is the latest and most unconventional photo of royalty ever taken and not intended for publication, but your correspondent was able to secure a copy for the Canadian people.

Looks like a live Canadian boy, doesn't he? Might belong to your neighbor, just around the corner? But he isn't, and doesn't. He's the grandson of William Hohenzollern, better known as Emperor of Germany to whose throne the boy will succeed some day — if he lives and the throne survives.

LUNCHES SERVED IN DRUG STORES

OKLAHOMA CITY. — Oklahoma City is dry and the saloon free lunch has disappeared. Now every drug store in town has a lunch counter in addition to a stamp, city directory and public telephone departments. Lunch signs are displayed prominently on drug stores. One drugist explains it this way:

"When the saloons closed, folks tried to get their drinks in drug stores. But these went dry, too, and there was a boom in soft drinks. In cool weather, crackers were served with hot drinks. Folks found this a substitute for free lunch. Finally the free lunch became too elaborate and we put in lunch counters. Now every drug store in Oklahoma City is selling sandwiches, chili con carne, cake and pie."

RIOTING IN MEXICO.

Striking Mill Hands Clashed With Rurales.

TORREON, Mex.—Rioting at Gomez Palacio, six kilometres north of here, was reported. Striking mill hands are said to have clashed with rurales in the streets. No casualties have been reported. Fifty cavalrymen and forty rurales were sent from here to assist in restoring order.

Strike conditions in this city appeared to have improved. Many of the employers have agreed to the eight-hour day, but the strikers refuse to return to work until all have adopted it.

The city water supply is threatened through idleness of the electric power plant which operates the pumps, but it is possible that it will resume operations under military protection.

"Were you introduced to the count last night, Marie?"

"Yes; we talked together for an hour."

"What did you talk about?"

"I haven't the remotest idea. We spoke in French."

YUSSIFF MAHMOUT

Mahmout is the man whom Frank Gotch declares is the best heavyweight wrestler of them all. Gotch ought to know; he has beaten the bunch.

It is not strange, but interesting to those who keep tab on the rough work of the promoters, that Mahmout is not given another chance at the real stars.

Last year, it may be recalled, Mahmout met Zbyszko twice. The first was a handicap match, in which the Bulgarian was to topple the Pole in one hour. After working the public into a near-frenzy with the bluff that they were to meet in private, they consented to let the public give up good money to watch them.

Yussiff Mahmout

The result was that Mahmout didn't throw Zbysko. It is doubtful if he really tried. But the thing looked so exciting that when a return match was announced, the public was tickled. That's a weakness the public displays occasionally. The pair met and Zbysko won, although those who had seen Mahmout upon other occasions could not understand how he managed to let his huge opponent to turn the trick.

But Zbyszko was due to win. He was to meet Gotch later, so could not be defeated.

Later, when Gotch was talking retirement, the men near the top of the game decided Dr. Roller would be next champion. He had been with Gotch, and having a noodle, was supposed to have picked up a lot of inside stuff. Roller was so nutty over this championship thing that the squirrels barked every time they got near him, and he fell for the bunk.

But Mahmout settled the Seattle man's aspirations. A lot of people imagined Roller was due to beat Mahmout, and when the Bulgarian put on the work the fact that Roller had been crossed out was apparent to good judges of physiolognomy — The wise guys showed their surprise so plainly.

GOLF'S FINEST AMATEUR

Harold H. Hilton, who may fairly be rated as the finest amateur golf player the world has seen — and probably the equal of any professional either — is rather a small man. He stands five feet six inches, weighing about 155 pounds. He was born at West Kirby, England, in 1869, so is now 42 years of age.

Twenty years ago Mr. Hilton first came into prominence as one of the two final contestants for the amateur championship of England.

The following year he made a sensation by winning the "open" championship of Great Britain, beating all the best professionals and amateurs of the day. In golf there is no bar to amateurs playing against professionals. But prior to 1892, no amateur had ever won the open championship.

In 1896 he was again "runner-up" for the amateur championship.

A year later, Hilton repeated his extraordinary feat of 1892, winning the open championship of 1897 against such men as Harry Vardon, J. H. Taylor and a field of 70 others of the best players in England.

Hilton again came into the lime light in 1900 by winning the amateur championship, and repeated it the following year.

From that time his gold seemed to fall off and the experts supposed that he was past his prime, but this year at the age of forty-two Hilton reemerged by again winning the amateur championship of Great Britain and then coming over to America to win that of the United States.

Hilton thus has the remarkable record of having won the open championship of the world twice, the amateur championship of Great Britain three times, and the amateur champion[illegible] of America once.

In [illegible]r-writing, with men the greatest difficult is in beginning a letter; with women it is more difficult to leave off. Hence the feminine postscript.

NO DEMAND FOR RACERS

Failure of An Auction Sale at the Sheepshead Track.

The race horse is not so valuable an asset as in the days when the metropolitan tracks were running and anti-betting laws were not in force at eastern race courses, judging from developments at the Sheepshead Bay track, New York, when Sam Hildreth, the well-known owner of thoroughbreds, endeavored to auction off his string of good campaigners. Four horses were knocked down at what Mr. Hildreth declared were "miserable sums," and he ended the sale forthwith, and announced that he would take the stable to England and there dispose of it.

Wonderful Sprinting Feat

Sporting news from Australia contains the account of a wonderful sprinting feat by Jack Donaldson, the champion pro., in a match over 130 yards, against C. E. Holway, the American. Donaldson won by four yards in twelve seconds. To go ten yards inside evens is something that has not been seen since the palmy days of Harry Hutchens. English critics think the distance was 120 yds, but the account from Sydney are somewhat different.

Of the 440-yard race for the championship of the world between Holway and Trembath, the New Zealander, R. E. Terry, says in a letter:

C. E. Holway tacked Trembath's scalp to his girdle over 440, giving him the championship, for Trembath had beaten Postle some time ago. Trembath was favorite at 10 to 9, but there was not much betting. Holway drew the inside, but he allowed the New Zealander to take the lead after going 40 yards. They ran along for 160 yards with Trembath ahead; then the big fellow rushed past Trembath like a flash and put a gap of five yards between them. At 390 yards Holway was four yards in front of his rival, but Trembath kept plugging away in the hope of Charlie tiring, but it was of no avail, for Holway maintained his lead to the finish, and won by about four yards. The official time was 50 4-5 seconds, but I had my dog watch on, and made it 50 3-8. It had been raining hard and the track was bad."

Football Only Played by Nobles

"The Festival called Tanabata, of which the football game Kemari forms an important item, takes place on the seventh day of the seventh month. The football is presented in a forked twig of the Kaji (paper mudberry), and the game connected with it is always of a ceremonial nature, and played only by Court nobles in specially constructed enclosures and in ceremonial dress," says Mr. H. L. Joly, the well-known writer upon Japanese legends. Acording to the legend (as given in "Home Life in Tokyo") with which the Feast of Tanabata is asociated, the night of the 7th of July is the only one in the whole year when the Weaver (the star Vega) can meet her lover the Cow-herd (the star Altair) on the other side of the Heavenly River, as the Milky Way is called by the Japanese, and on that night magpies come and spread their wings across the river to bring the lovers together."

Captain Webb's Example

Captain Webb's great swim revolutionized the art of swimming in Great Britain. Before 1875 swimming was not regarded as an achievement of much moment. Very few schools taught their boys to swim, and most of those who did learn looked upon sixty yards in a bath as the maximum distance they could hope to attain. Gradually it was realized that long distances could be accomplished under the most trying circumstances. The hope of some day attaining to the fame of Captain Webb tempted many to practise long-distance swimming, and as years went by a new race of long-distance swimmers was created, men who essayed without fear the dangers of the Channel and made light of spending a day and a night in the sea.

Football Forecasts

New football, with forward passes and restrictions, have knocked all forecasts galley west. The small school of huskies is as likely to win as the big brother with an enrollment of thousands. Brains and speed offset beef and brawn and an educated toe in the backfield discounts weight in the line.

The coach with two good ends and a punter can develop a high class eleven. The balance of the team will come along as a matter of evolution

Soldier Swimmers

All German soldiers must learn to swim. Some of them are so expert that, with their clothing on their heads and carrying guns and ammunition, they can swim rivers several hundred yards in width.

PATRON SAINT OF FOOTBALL

The Patron "Sir Hugh" was Killed for Kicking a Ball Through a Window of a Jews-House.

Footballers may be interested in the following piece of folk-lore about the game. Although it is not generally known, football has a patron saint. In 1520 a boy named Hugh, who was one if the champions of his day, had the misfortune to kick a ball through the window of a Jew's house. Whether the ball struck the man or any member of his family is not known, but certain it is he was very much incensed about the affair. Determined on revenge, he enticed the unsuspecting Hugh into his home and plunged a knife in the youth's back. The English people were very much cut up about the loss of their champion, albeit not as much so as was Hugh. They severely punished his slayer, made the young football player a saint, and gave him a big and expensive funeral. They even wrote verses; bad verses, but still verses, describing the virtues of "sweet Sir Hugh" and his prowess as a football player.

Football was forbidden in Elizabeth's reign under pain of imprisonment, the reason being the extreme brutality of the game, we are told. And James I. debarred "all rough and violent exercises like football" from his Court. In spite, however, of the prohibition against the game, the London apprentices often kicked a football about the streets to keep themselves warm in winter, and it is on record that in the severe frost of 1665 the London streets were "full of footballs."

BOMBARDIER WELLS

The man who was to fight Jack Johnson recently in London but the contest was stopped by the authorities.

Long Distance Runners

Long distance runners require a great amount of stamina, wonderfully strong legs, a strong heart and powerful lungs; boxers must have strength and a supple constitution; football players, strength and the wearing activities that are distinctly antithetic to the ordinary companions of labor, or tasks or duties, as the term may apply.

Snugly ensconced in a soft cushioned chair, the public — that part of it which breathes the virulent vaudevillian atmosphere — claps its hands and thunderously applauds physical wonders.

The giants of the stage, wondrously developed with their coils of muscles transparently playing beneath whitened cuticle replenish the coffers of thought which revert to Atlas afoot with the world upon his broad shoulders.

The phenomenally strong man who tosses five hundred pound weights with the ease of the wind lifting a feather creates admiration, albeit not a little envy.

Man's Physical Strength

Man's capacity for work and sport varies with the temperament of the individual and the character of the task. For this very crystal reason students of physiology always will find it a puzzling problem to analyze the average man and produce authentic figures showing the amount of strength he requires in his daily duties or what he accomplishes from a physical standpoint.

One man may be a hustler, his fellow creature obviously latent in physical energy, but there must be a distinction in mental duties and those which sap brawn and muscle.

Man's physical strength generally undergoes the severest test in athletics. The more vigorous forms of sports necessitate action that will not be found in the revolving chair or, for that matter, in any class of labor that taxes the physical powers.

Dogs Go Wild.

Our tame dogs would all go wild if left to themselves for a few years. They tried the experiment once on Robinson Crusoe's island. They left some of their dogs there, and nobody called at the island again for about thirty years. And they found all the dogs had become quite wild. They hunted just like wolves, and they had forgotten how to bark; they could only now. It was not till they became used to men again that they learnt to bark. A few years ago two dogs near to Nottingham lost their owners, so they made homes for themselves in a field. They hunted sheep and lambs, and did a great deal of damage, just as the wild dogs of India and Africa and Australia do. They looked just like wolves—so much had they changed during the months they had lived the life of wild dogs; and, finally, they had to be shot.

The Time of Long Sermons.

Those who like long sermons should have lived in the seventeenth century. The manner in which the Rev. John Howe, Minister of Great Torrington, in Devonshire, conducted Divine service on a public fast day is thus described by a contemporary: "Mr. Howe said that upon these occasions he began about nine in the morning with a prayer for about a quarter of a hour, in which be begged a blessing upon the work of the day, and afterwards read and expounded a chapter or psalm, in which he spent three-quarters of an hour; then prayed for about an hour, preached for another hour, and prayed for about half an hour. After this he retired and took some little refreshment for about a quarter of an hour (the people singing all the time) and then came into the pulpit and prayed for another hour; and gave them another sermon of about an hour's length; and so concluded the service of the day . . . "

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

All Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo. — "For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl." —Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It is more widely and successfully used than any other remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed. Why don't you try it?

Cause and Cure of Headache

The cause of headache as you know, is the stoppage of the circulation resulting in pressure on the delicate nerves of the head. In time nature will start the blood going again, but meanwhile we suffer and are unfit for duty.

Assisted by two ZUTOO Tablets, which by the way are as harmless as the soda they contain, nature will remove the pressure and stop the headache in twenty minutes. Why continue to suffer? Why be unfit?

It is really remarkable how many people now use ZUTOO to cure their headaches. Do you? If not, why not?

In England the public men who favor woman suffrage and are willing to say so in moderate language are not pleased with the way their more energetic sister-believers demonstrate in the streets. They will probably be set down as old fogies by the suffragette leaders. Men who would move quietly to an end, cannot be appreciated by those who would burst into a polling booth through a broken window after climbing over a knocked-out policeman.

An exchange asks "Does music kill men?" That is a question to be answered, but there is no doubt that much good music is deliberately murdered by some men—and women, too.

Samuel Gompers Does Not Believe in Capital Punishment for McNamara's or Anyone Else. For Any Crime.

(Publishers Press News Service)

New York.—"I am not a hound. I am not a hound. I do not seek human life in punishment for any crime."

This was the angry exclamation of Samuel Gompers when shown a despatch from Spokane, stating that the Central Labor Council of that city is planning a country-wide movement to obtain the maximum punishment for the Los Angeles dynamiters. Mr. Gompers made an impatient gesture as he finished reading the despatch and vigorously shook his head.

"I do not believe in capital punishment under any circumstances," he continued. "I do not believe that the State has a right to take human life. This is a very unwise movement. I am against it. It is like the populace in the Roman arena demanding with its thumbs down that the victorious gladiator plunge the sword into his victim. I do not believe in thumbs down for these or any other men."

Los Angeles Typographical Union Passes Resolution.

Los Angeles, Cal.—The Los Angeles Typographical Union, a local of the international body, to which James B. McNamara belongs, have repudiated him and his brother, John J. McNamara, secretary of the international Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, in resolutions adopted here.

The resolutions instruct the officials of the union to make a statement, the resolutions themselves. The resolutions say:

"Now that they have confessed their guilt, having duped, deceived and betrayed us and our officers, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation Labor; and James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical Union, by commission of such a dastardly act, we repudiate all connection with them or their kind."

Washington.—Coats will no longer be a part of the uniform of United States troops in the field. The war department has decided that a light sweater will be more practical and just as comfortable.

THE PERSIAN QUESTION

London.—It is acknowledged here generally that the Anglo-Russian treaty is intended to preserve the independence of Persia. It is admitted also that the Russian officers of state are behind the invasion of Persia by the ex-shah whose cause St. Petersburg is virtually upholding in spite of the fact that he was deposed by the unanimous voice of the people. There is no concealment, even by sympathizers with the Government's support of Russia, that the real issue is whether it is to remain independent or be controlled by Russia and Great Britain.

The Daily Telegraph, while supporting the Government's attitude, expresses fear of already determined sacrifice of the independence of Persia, and puts the defence of the Government in a nutshell in this assertion, "by the terms of our agreement with Russia we are bound to take into consideration the wishes of our partner, even though she seems to have acted with peremptory harshness."

CONSPIRACY AGAINST PORTUGAL

He had been previously expelled from Portugal.

POWER OF CO-OPERATION.

Chinese Have Steadily Combined Together, To Arm Themselves with an Invisible Weapon for Protection.

In order to enforce their rights by the simplest and most bloodless means, the Chinese have steadily cultivated the art of combining together and have thus armed themselves with an immaterial, invisible weapon, which simply paralyses the aggressor, and ultimately leaves them masters of the field. The extraordinary part of the Chinese boycott or strike is the absolute fidelity by which it is observed. If the boatmen or chair-coolies at any place strike, they all strike; there are no blacklegs. If the butchers refuse to sell, they all refuse, entirely confident of each other's loyalty.

Foreign merchants who have offended the Chinese guilds by some course of action not approved of by those powerful bodies, have often found to their cost that such conduct will not be tolerated for a moment, and that their only course is to withdraw, sometimes at a considerable loss, from the untenable position they had taken up.

The other side of the medal is equally instructive. Some years ago the foreign tea merchants at a large port, in order to curb excessive charges, decided to hoist the Chinese teamen, or sellers of tea, with their own petard. They organised a strict combination against the tea-men, whose tea no colleague was to buy until, by what seemed to be a natural order of events, the tea-men had been brought to their knees. The tea-men, however, remained firm, their countenances as impassive as ever. Before long, the tea merchants discovered that some of their number had broken faith, and were doing a roaring business for their own account, on the terms originally insisted on by the tea-men.

OUR WONDERFUL LANGUAGE.

How Allah Fashioned a Tongue for the Englishman.

In spite of certain undeniable disadvantages, the English language steadily makes headway. There are few tongues so hard to master. One foreigner, who has had his troubles, but has won his way to a perfect command of the language, has presented some of the humors of the difficulties which belong to this richest of living languages.

As a boy, I heard a fantastic Turkish legend, which, to my mind, aptly illustrates the actual facts concerning the origin and formation of modern English.

After creating the first parents of each of the races, the story runs, Allah took a large piece of meat, and cutting it into slices, distributed them among all the people to serve them as tongues. For some reason the Englishman was absent when the others received their share. At last he came into the presence of his Maker, and in mute humiliation begged him to put a tongue into his mouth. But nothing was left of the meat. So Allah was obliged to cut a little piece from the tongues of all the others, and joining these pieces, he fashioned a tongue for the Englishman.

GERMANS STILL SORE OVER GREY

Consider Sir Edward Grey Held Out No Prospect of Improvement in Anglo-German Relations. in Last Speech.

(Publishers Press News Service)

London.—After the storm which followed Sir Edward Grey's speech, a calm seems to have come. The inspired official and semi-official organs of Germany, which last week adopted a tone of mildness, had a slight recrudescence of Anglophobia for a few days, but they are now silent. Similarly, the newspapers of France have repeated in practical initial terms that the Morocco question has been solved, so for the time it is Germany that has accepted defeat. It is unquestionable, however, that a very sore feeling remains in that country. "Sir Edward Grey has done Germany a service by not concealing his inability to hold out any prospect of an improvement in the Anglo-German relations," says the Tagliche Runduchau, voicing the popular view of the present situation, while an independent popular organ of French opinion, like the Paris Figaro, declares:

SIR EDWARD GREY, British Foreign Secretary

"From Sir Edward Grey's words it is seen that Europe is fated to be the theatre of a general war within two or three years."

This is unnecessarily pessimistic, but the words of both the German and French popular newspapers are valuable as indicating the continued delicacy of the situation, which, indeed, Sir Edward made no effort to disguise. Nevertheless, the situation for the present has been saved.

NO HOLD UP SAYS UNCLE SAM

The Butter Board of Chicago Operates Between Producer and Consumer and Makes Two Profits By Fixing Prices.

Chicago.—The government threatens to break the grip of the Chicago butter and egg board on the producers in the middle west by a suit to dissolve the concern. Records show that while only one per cent of the butter sold in Chicago has been sold on the butter and egg board, that organization, composed of the big commission men, practically fixed the price of every pound of butter the creameries in Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and adjoining states produced.

THE MAN WHO IS AFTER THE CHICAGO BOARD.

"The board prices are manipulated in the interest of the big commission houses without regard to supply or demand," says Albert G. Welsh, assistant United States district attorney. "The commission houses have contracts with producerts in western states for the year's butter and eggs AT THE CHICAGO BUTTER AND EGG BOARD'S QUOTATIONS. Then they go and fix the board's prices so that they can 'take' a profit of from 1 to 4 cents on the producer."

Not only have the big dealers bought from the producer at prices lower than the actual market quotations, but they have sold at prices which compelled the jobber to raise his prices to the grocer, who in turn has had to overcharge the consumer.

MARQUIS OF WATERFORD

Irish Nobleman Drowned in the River Clodagh.

Dublin.—The Marquis of Waterford who was drowned in the River Clodagh near his residence at Curraghmore in the county of Waterford, was one of the most prominent among the Irish nobility. Born in 1875, he succeeded to the title in 1895. He was educated at Eton and then served in the Royal Horse Guards, afterwards transfering to the militia, and more recently becoming Lieutenant-Colonel of the South of Ireland Yeomanry. He is succeeded by his eldest son, the Earl of Tyrone.

COUSIN MARRIAGES

Something of the Seriousness of the Risk Run by First Cousins Who Marry Is Told by Miss Ethel Elderton.

The seriousness of the risk run by first cousins who marry is emphasized by Miss Ethel Elderton, a co-worker with Professor Karl Pearson at the Galton Laboratory for National Eugenics, London University. Marriages between near kin, such as uncle and niece, aunt and nephew, or grandparent and grandchild, are forbidden mainly on the principle of resemblance. Miss Elderton therefore determined to see whether cousins are as much alike as any of these pairs of relatives. She studied the cases of no fewer than 6,000 pairs of cousins, with a view to endeavouring to measure the degree of resemblance in health, intelligence, success, temper, and temperament.

The conclusion she came to was this—that the general, resemblance between cousins is about half that between brother and sister, and practically the same as that shown by statistics of uncles and nieces and of aunts and nephews.

"If the undesirability of marriage within certain degrees is founded on the closeness of resemblance, says Miss Elderton, "the law which forbids the marriage of uncle and aunt with niece and nephew should also restrict the marriage of first cousins."

The offspring of cousin marriages appear to be particularly liable to be deaf mutes. "There seems little doubt," continues Miss Elderton, "that if there is any deaf-mutism in a stock, a cousin marriage, even when both parties are free from the disease, is most dangerous to the offspring."

STRANGE BUT TRUE

Fortunes Spent in Cinema Films Taken In All Part of the World. —Triumph of the Picture Playhouse.

After spending several months in the jungles of Africa, equipped with 10,000 ft. of film, a complete canvas dark-room, and a camera with a gyroscopic attachment which enabled him to take pictures from any position or angle without the use of a stand, that daring cinematographer and naturalist, Mr. Cherry Kearton, is returning home with some of the most amazing pictures of forest life ever taken. Such beasts as lions, tigers, ourang-outangs, and hippopotami are seen at close quarters, while another film shows a python making its way along a branch without any perceptible effort at locomotion.

Such an expedition in search of material for the ever-growing picture palace is naturally a somewhat costly affair. As a matter of fact, this enterprise has entailed a cost of over $25,000, although this is by no means a record, for the writer was recently told that to secure moving pictures showing "Buffalo Jones," the well-known cowboy, lassoing lions in the wilds of Africa $31,000 was paid by a London firm.

Demand for War Pictures

As a matter of fact, film-makers spare no expense in their efforts to secure unique pictures. One thousand dollars was paid for special positions along the Coronation route, while in United States it has cost as much as $5000 to stage a drama for photographic purposes. And as an illustration of the enterprise of the American film-makers, the writer might mention that he was recently at a private view of a series of pictures depicting scenes from Irish novels, the actors, numbering over twenty, being sent from America to Ireland to play the incidents among the hills of the Emerald Isle.

Picture Profits

The question naturally arises, "Is there much profit to be gained by securing such expensive films as those mentioned?" There is certainly not so much profit as when the industry was in its infancy, when the price of a film was 25 cents a foot, and a film was reported to be making a profit of $25,000 a month. The price of the film has dropped to 8 cents a foot, but, whereas in the early days there were only a hundred or so picture palaces in this country, today there are hundreds and they are rapidly increasing. Furthermore, the owner of a good film can sell the same several times over to picture palace proprietors. It might be mentioned, however, that the owner of a film is usually an agent, who buys from the maker and lets to the exhibitor.

SHOES OF SNAKE SKINS

From all reptiles the ordinary woman shrinks in disgust. Yet fashionable women are now being tempted to conquer their aversion to the extent of wearing snake-skin shoes. One of the smartest boot shops in the West-end of London is "featuring" these shoes; but up to the present it seems to be uncertain if the fashion will really establish itself on widespread lines.

Choice of quite a variety of skins is offered. There is the dark and heavily-marked skin of the deadly cobra, or the lighter skin, with its more delicate pigment markings, of the rapacious python. The skins of the wiper and the boa-constrictor have also been made up.

Snake skin is very soft, pliable, and durable. The shoes are expensive, of course, for the skins are not too plentiful, but this factor should rather commend itself to smart people, as it renders it much more difficult to copy the fashion on cheap lines.

The Golden Opportunity.

Among the persons who have recently made provision for old age when it comes are two sisters, aged respectively 33 and 34 years. They have purchased from the Canadian government a Last Survivor Annuity, that is an annuity which will give them together an income of $600 a year so long as they both live, and to be continued to the survivor so long as she lives. The cost of this Annuity, $3,643.65, has been invested at 5 per cent., and had brought in less than $185.00 annually, with the difficulty and annoyance of re-investment. The Annuity becomes payable when the younger sister attains the age of 55, and should both die before that time the purchase money will be refunded to their heirs with 3 per cent. compound interest. Each is now earning her own living and the sum paid is the fruit of their labors for a number of years. They were thus able the better to appreciate their splendid opportunity. A card of enquiry addressed to the Superintendent of Canadian Government Annuities, Ottawa, will secure for you any information you desire on the subject.

The Real Trouble.

The real trouble with Britain is thus stated by a writer: "We cannot repeal the food taxes, nor adequately finance our schemes of relief, because the money is mortgaged to Dreadnoughts, and the money is mortgaged to Dreadnoughts because we are entangled in the schemes of alliances which divide Europe into two camps."

Santie's Kiss

By Margaret G Hays

"I'VE HUNG up my stockin' an'
said 'Good-night,'
An' all my folks are sleepin' tight.
Now I'm goin' to watch closely, just because
I want to see ol' Santie Claus.
So out o' bed I'll sof'ly creep,
'Cause ever'body's fas' asleep.
I hanged two stockings up, 'cause, see,
The white one 'at belongs to me
Is far too small. I hope 'at he Will soon come down the chim-me-lee.
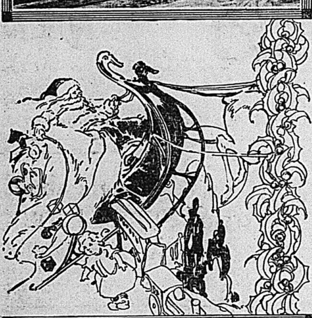
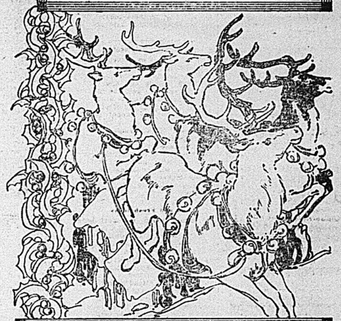
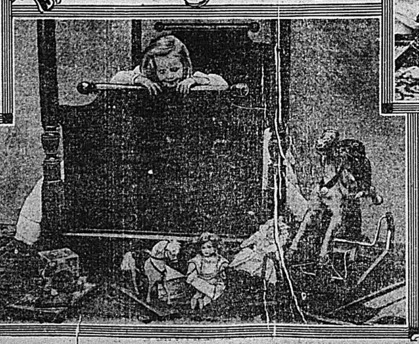
'Fraid Mother wouldn't 'prove o' this,
But I want to give him jus' one kiss."
Dear, dear! the sandman spoils the plan,
Soon fast asleep falls little Nan.
The fire glows cozily and warm
Upon the little night-gowned form
When down the chimney with his pack
Hops Santa like a jumping jack.
"Why, see who's here?" Old Santa said,
Then carried Nannie off to bed.
Tucked her in warm, dear little miss,
Then softly took one loving kiss.
"She waited up for me, dear tot,"
Laughs Santa, "So I'll leave a lot
Of all the best my pack contains
And take that sweet kiss for my pains.
"Merry Christmas!" Nannie cries
As she opes her sleepy eyes,
"Oh, see what Santie's left for me!
Both stockin's full as full can be,
An' round my bed, upon the floor,
Are toys an' dollies—more an' more.
Dear Santie Claus has sure been here.
Maybe I'll stay awake nex' year.
Now I'll get dressed an' have some fun
So Merry Christmas, every one!"



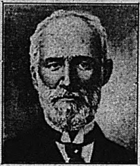




EFFECTS WERE MARVELLOUS

When I Tried "Fruit-a-tives"

HARDWICKE, N.B., Jan. 17th. 1910.
"I feel it my duty to give you a statement in respect to the wonderful cure I received by taking 'Fruit-a-tives'. Chronic Constipation was the complaint I suffered from for years. My general health was miserable as a result of this disease, and I became depressed and alarmed. I was treated by physicians without the slightest permanent benefit, and I tried all kinds of pills and tablets.



"I saw the strong testimonial in favor of 'Fruit-a-tives' by New Brunswick's 'Grand Old Man' Senator Costigan, and I knew that anything he stated was honest and true and given only to help his fellow-men. I tried 'Fruit-a-tives' and the effects were most marvellous, and now I am entirely well from all my Chronic Constipation that I suffered with for years." A. G. WILLISTON.

Woman's World

THE RUSH BEFORE THE WEDDING

Many Brides Attend Receptions Right Up to Last Minute.

Every bride should have the moral courage to refuse all social engagements for one week prior to her wedding; also she should refuse to shop or bother with any trousseau plants these last days. She should so arrange her fittings that all her clothes are ready at least two weeks before the date, and the last week should be given to quiet and rest, and certainly the bride that is not worn out with bother about clothes and a round of entertainments has at least some freshness and romance to take to the altar.

The elaboration of many a wedding, coming as it does upon the shopping, the house furnishing, the round of entertainments, and the packing, has caused many a girl, tired out physically, a nervous collapse that may argue ill-health all her married life, and certainly everything considered, the tired-out lines on the bride's face as she leaves her old home, amid the good-byes and confetti, for the first stage of her life's new journey does not argue a happy beginning.

Treating Nervous Infants

Intelligent people are beginning to understand the importance of protecting the nervous system in infancy, and the grave dangers consequent on a shock to an infant's nerves. As a rule, during the first year of its life, the more quiet a child is kept the better its chance of health and happiness. Overbright babies do not commend themselves to physicians, who know that the first year of a child's life should be spent mainly in sleep. All efforts to arouse the dormant mind of a child at this period are attended with danger. Specially to be condemned is the practice of tossing a child in the air, causing him to scream with delight and fright. Unantural excitements of this kind frequently lead to those mental diseases for which doctors have not yet found a cure.

The Best Helpmeet.

All men, as well as women, like to be understood. Sympathy is their greatest help, and no woman who is self-centred, who is vain and thinks only of herself will gain the highest regard of man. She may be exquisitely beautiful, have a crowd of admirers at her feet, but she cannot bestow that wonderful happiness a plain little woman full of sympathy gives to her husband. If she understands him, is interested in him and his life-work, whether it be planting vegetables, composing music, or building towers, she will encourage him to reach his highest aim. Being beautiful will not make up for selfish indifference.

Fun and Fresh Ideas.

To remain young one must have company and enjoy it. Not a big dinner party one day, an afternoon reception the next, a late card party the following, and so on. This, for the hostess, is hard work that will quickly bring the appearance of age in its train, and, indeed, no work is more arduous. To attend to the wants of guests, to anticipate their desires, to have the whole responsibility of the success of a party is an utterly differtn thing to the bright company necessary to the well-being of the woman who leads too monotonous a life.

The limiting influence of four walls is what so many women who are housewives and mothers have to fight against, and they need company as a recreation.

Worn-down Heels

There are some women who walk very awkwardly, and wear down the heels of their shoes on one side. This may be the result of badly fitting shoes or the heels may have been too high. As soon as the heel begins to wear in this way have it attended to at once; the cost will be but a few pence, but the result will speak for itself. If shoes are worn unbuttoned they quickly lose their shape, yet I have known many girls who seem ignorant of this fact.

Hard-and-Fast Routine

More and more, as we grow older, do we become the victims of routine and slaves of the hour.

The same round of duties lies every morning waiting for the coming of the mistress of the house as she takes up the reins of government with the best heart she may.

The woman who really rules her household and assumes the responsibility of wife and mother as her own, not to be laid on the shoulders of any deputy, gradually, in too many cases, lets go the opportunities of influence and blessing which would interrupt her prescribed order of accomplishment.

Round Steak Boiled

If properly cooked boiled round steak will be rare, tender and juicy. Plunge the meat into sufficient boiling water to cover, boil rapidly for fifteen minutes, then push the kettle over a slow fire where it will simmer at one hundred and eighty degrees Fahrenheit for fifteen minutes minutes to each pound of beef. Serve the beef with cream horseradish sauce, boiled turnips or cabbage and potatoes.

An old country woman and her daughter [illegible] into a shop in town to buy a [illegible]. When she had purchased the bonnet the milliner, turning to the woman, said:—"What about a sailor for your daughter?" meaning, of course, a hat. The woman turning to the girl, indignantly retorted—"What about a soger for yoursel'?"

TO HOLD HATPINS

Sticking one's hatpins into the pincushion generally results in the ruin of a dainty cover and very much detracts also from the attractive and harmonious effect of the dressing table. It is much wiser to have a special receptacle for them.

A very pretty and useful hatpin holder can be made by covering a glass tube with ribbon. These tubes can be bought at many of the large shops. They are just long enough to hold the hatpin, are closed at the bottom, and finished at the top with a liplike rim. After buying the glass buy ribbon to match the decorations of your room just wide enough to make a cover for the glass by sewing two pieces together. The cover may be either the length of the tube and put on smooth, or it may be longer and shirred on each side. The latter way is prettier, but it will catch dust and must be frequently brushed out.

At the bottom of the case the ribbon is gathered together tightly, and either a tassel sewed on or a bunch of bows of baby ribbon. At the top it is finished by hemming each piece of ribbon separately, not sewing the pieces together. The hem must be wide enough to come out beyond the rim of the glass. A long loop of the baby ribbon is sewed at the top of each seam to hang the case up or one piece of ribbon may be used, an end sewed at each side. In either case a small bunch of bows is used as a finish where the ribbon is sewed.

In this smart model the crown of the hat is of Burgandy velvet, with a little up and down frill of gold lace.

A Tasty Dish

The recipe given below treats of a method of cooking eggs for the breakfast table. Take three eggs and put them on in cold water and boil them for a quarter of an hour. After plunging them into cold water remove the shells. Then chop finely the whites of the eggs. Next melt in a stewpan one teaspoonful of butter, and mix with it 1 oz. of flour (1 tablespoonful), a shake of pepepr, and half a teaspoonful of salt. Gradually mix in half a pint of milk (1 breakfastcupful) and stir until it boils. Add to this sauce the chopped whites of eggs, and pour the mixture on to a hot plate (a dinner plate). Next grate the yolks of the eggs, or rub them through a sieve, over the contents in the hot plate. Make a pretty border of little sippets of toast around it, and serve very hot.

Curried Eggs.

Allow one egg for each person and put into boiling water sufficient to cover them. Cover the pan tightly and let stand on the side of the range for half an hour. Then put into cold water for a moment, remove the shells, and stand aside until needed. Put a tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan and when it begins to color add an onion cut into very thin slices and a tablespoonful of Chutney sauce. Stir all together until cooked to a delicate brown then add a cupful of good stock mixed with a tablespoonful of curry powder and let simmer for ten minutes. Cut the eggs in half lengthwise, place in the curry mixture, cover tightly, and let stand until thoroughly hot. Serve with rice cooked in a separate dish and pass Chutney sauce.

Good Eggless Doughnuts

Two cupfuls of warm mashed potatoes, two cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of sweet milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, five level teaspoons of baking powder, one teaspoonful of vanilla. Flour to make soft dough. Roll out half an inch thick. Fry in hot grease. The potatoes keep the doughnuts soft and they keep fresh much longer than those made with eggs.

Growth in Naval Expenditure.

Since 1902 the naval expenditure of the principal countries of the world has increased from £90,383,000 to £145,319,000. Great Britain is responsible for an increase of £13,000,000, Germany for $12,000,000, the United States for £10,000,000, France for over £4,000,000, and Russia for £3,000,000. In the last ten years the eight chief naval powers have spent the stupendous sum of upwards of one billion pounds sterling on naval defence.

THE BRAND NEW JERUSALEM

Dream of the Zionists Has Made Palestine a Productive Land — Rejuvenating the Country Which for Ages Has Lain Dormant.

(By special cable)

Jerusalem. — The dream of Zionists, the restoration of Israel as a nation may never be realized, but whatever the outcome or the agitation, one thing is certain:

Zionism is rejuvenating the country which for countless centuries has lain dormant. The rose of Sharon which for ages has been wilted and withered is blossoming as of yore.

The vine and fig tree of which the Bible speaks, but which, in the recollection of many generations have only been a memory, are again a living reality. There are orchards of olive, orange and lemon trees, and miles of vineyards.

The soil of Palestine is today the most productive in the Turkish empire and all because, something over a decade ago, an enthusiast, a dreamer, named Theodor Herzl, a Viennese journalist, wrote a book which he called "The Jewish State," and which was the origin of Zionism.

Take Jaffa as an example. Jaffa is the seaport city of Palestine. Ten years ago it was a typical Oriental town. Today it is beginning to rival one of your western American boom towns.

The principal suburb of Jaffa, which sprang up almost over night, has been named Tel-Abib. It seemed to have grown out of the sands of the seashore. In appearance it is like an American summer resort with a blending of Orientalism. The streets are laid out like streets of American cities in squares, they are paved and lined with trees. Every house has a garden. Water pipes and bathrooms are considered not a luxury but a necessity.

Hebrew is the language principally used in this suburb. Less than 20 years ago Hebrew was regarded as a dead language.

BRIDGE THE CHASM!

Kansas City. — Secretary of Agriculture Coburn of Kansas says that the cost to city dwellers of those necessaries which are products of the farm are outrageously high and severely oppresive is so patent that no one questions it. Where the blame for this should lie, and the remedy, are pertinent, unanswered, questions. The situation grows worse year by year, and prospects for its bettering never seemed less bright than now.

F. D. COBURN

The cause, as it appears to me, is the deep, wide chasm, peopled by an army of busy middlemen, separating the man who produces from the man who consumes, the grower from the eater.

PRESIDENT OF PANAMA

Panama. — Sheer nerve secured your correspondent interview today with Pablo Arosamena, president of the republic of Panama — and a ride by his side in the state carriage, too!

The president is a cultured, deep-thinking man of gracious manner and splendid education. He speaks English fluently.

PRESIDENT AROSAMENA

We talked of Canada and Panama and the canal.

AUSTRALIA WANTS RECIPROCITY

San Francisco, Cal. — Mr. Neil Nielsen, a member of the Australian Parliament, empowered by his government to negotiate the primaries of a reciprocity treaty with the United States, has arrived here and will proceed to Washington.

Other missions will engage Mr. Nielsen while in this country. One of them is to study the irrigation in the Western States.

"Australia feels the need of stimulation of trade with the United States," said Mr. Nielsen. "We have wool and hardwoods and other things that this country needs, and which will furnish a basis of ocean reciprocal traffic."

Husband: "You never kiss me except when you want money."

Wife: "Well, isn't that often enough?"

"I can't tell her she is the first girl I ever loved. She knows I've been engaged before."

"Well, tell her your'e glad you discovered your mistake in time."

Latest feature—burnished surface
The Pandora might truly be named "the range with a piano finish," for the smoothness, lustre and brilliancy of the new burnished surface rivals the finish of a high-class piano.
This new burnished surface polishes quickly and requires about one-third the black lead necessary for the rather rough surface of ordinary ranges.
Ordinary ranges need polishing once a day to look bright, while the marvellously smooth burnished surface only needs polishing once a week.
The burnished surface is a McClary invention—found on no other make of stoves—so if you desire to save time, polishing-labor and black lead, be sure you choose Pandora. 16

THE SOLDIER'S PRAYER BOOK

By John Marr

Showing how one Richard Middleton was taken before the Mayor of the city he was in for using cards in church during divine service, being an account of an odd affair that happened to a private soldier in a British regiment.

The sergeant commanded his party to church, and when the parson had ended his prayer he took his text; but this soldier pulled out a pack of cards, and spread them before him. As he sat, while the parson was preaching, he first kept looking at one card and then at another. The sergeant of the company saw him, and said, "Richard, put up your cards, for this is no place for them." "Never mind that," said the soldier, "for you have no business with me here."

The Arraignment

When the parson had ended his sermon and all was over the soldiers repaired to the churchyard, and the commanding officer gave the word of command to fall in. The sergeant of the city came and took the man prisoner. "Man, you are my prisoner," said he. "You have played a game of cards in the church." "No," said the soldier, "I have not played a game for I only looked at a pack." "No matter for that, you are my prisoner."

So he took him before the Mayor.

"Well, soldier, what have you to say for yourself?" "Sir," said the soldier, "I have been five weeks on the march, and have but little to subsist on, and have nothing but a pack of cards. I hope to satisfy your honour of the purity of my intention."

The Explanation

Then the soldier pulled out of his pocket the pack of cards, and began with the ace. "When I see the ace," said he, "it puts me in mind that there is one God only. When I see the deuce it puts me in mind of the Father and Son. When I see the three it puts me in mind of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. When I see the four, it puts me in mind of the four Evangelists that preached the Gospel — Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John. When I see the five it puts me in mind of the five wise virgins, who trimmed their lamps; there were ten, but five were foolish, and were shut out. When I see the six, it puts me in mind that in six days the Lord made Heaven and earth. When I see the seven it puts me in mind that on the seventh day God rested from all his works which he had created and made; wherefore the Lord blessed the seventh day and hallowed it. When I see the eight it puts me in mind of the eight righteous persons who were saved when God drowned the world —Noah, his wife, three sons, and their wives. When I see the nine, it puts me in mind of the nine lepers that were cleansed by our Saviour; there were ten, but nine never returned God thanks. When I see the ten it puts me in mind of the ten Commandments that God gave Moses on Mount Sinai on the two tables of stone."

He took the knave and put it aside.

"When I see the queen it puts me in mind of the Queen of Sheba — who came from the furthermost parts of the world to hear the wisdom of King Solomon, and who was as wise a woman as he was a man, for she brought fifty boys and fifty girls all clothed in boys' apparel to show before King Solomon for him to tell which were boys and which were girls; but he could not until he called for water for them to wash themselves; the girls washed up to their elbows, but the boys only up to their wrists, so King Solomon told by that [illegible] for her. And when I see the king it puts me in mind of the great King of Heaven and Earth, which is God Almighty.

The Palliation

"Well," said the Mayor, "you have given a very good description of all the cards except one, which is lacking.

"Which is that?" said the soldier.

"The knave," said the Mayor.

"Oh! I can give your honour a good description of that, if your honour won't be angry."

"No, I will not,' 'said the Mayor, "if you will not term me the knave."

"Well," said the soldier, 'the greatest that I know of is the sergeant of the city who brought me here."

"I don't know," said the Mayor, "that he is the greatest knave, but I am sure he is the greatest fool."

"I shall now show your honour," said the soldier, "How I use the cards as an almanack."

"You certainly are a clever fellow," said the Mayor, "but I think you'll have a hard job to make that appear."

"When I count how many spots there are in a pack of cards, I find there are three hundred and sixty-five; there are so many days in the year."

"Stop!" said the Mayor, "that's a mistake."

"I grant it," said the soldier, "but as I have never yet seen an almanck that was thoroughly correct in all points, it would have been impossible for me to imitate an almanck exactly without a mistake."

"Your observations are very correct," said the Mayor. "Go on.'

"When I count how many cards there are in a pack, I find there are fifty-two; there are so many weeks in the year. When I count how many tricks there are in a pack, I find there are thirteen; there are so many motnhs in the year. You see, sir, that this pack of cards is a Bible, Almanack, and Common Prayer-Book and a pack of cards to me."

Then the Mayor called for a loaf of bread, a piece of cheese, and gave to the soldier a piece of money, bidding him go about his business, saying he was the cleverest man he had ever seen.

A WOMAN BUILDS HER OWN HOME

Eight Years Ago Mrs. Kingebiel Started Out to Build a House on $10 Per Week's Wages — Which is Now Worth $5000.

(By special cable)

Des Moines.—Eight years ago Mrs. Nettie Kingebiel of Des Moines started out with a lot of courage and one bill.

She owns her own home today and a tract of land valued at $5,000.

Mrs. Klingebiel is a widow and eight years ago was working in an office at $10 per week.

One day when the future looked unusually dull she made a resolve. She took five dollars from her week's salary to a real estate man, bought a fifty-foot lot, and made weekly payments of $5 until the lot was paid for. She bought $40 worth of lumber in the same way.

To avoid paying rent, she then had a little shed built and lived in it until the lot was paid for. Then she borrowed $200 and put up a two-room cottage. Soon after there was a boom in another suburban section. She traded her property for a better lot and borrowed $400 to build a four-room cottage.

After office hours Mrs. Klingebiel slapped paint on her house, or cemented the cellar floor and the sun's early rays found her setting out trees and vines.

While she was paying for her home SHE NEVER EARNED OVER $10 A WEEK.

Again there come a boom in another suburban district. Mrs. Klingebiel looked at her neat little home, and plunged again. This trade brought her a beautiful property valued at $5,000. She built another cozy little home and vows she will never leave it.

LLOYD GEORGE'S MESSAGE

London. — The Chancellor of the Exchequer, David Lloyd George, has addressed a message to the National Union of Woman's Suffrage Societies, in which he says:

"The Premier's pronouncement on the attitude which the Government is adopting towards the question seems to me to make the carrying of a woman's suffrage amendment, on broad democratic lines, to next year's franchise bill a certainty. I am willing to do all in my power to help those laboring to reach a successful issue in the coming sessions next year, which provides a supreme opportunity and nothing but unwise handling of that can compass failure."

INDIAN CHIEFS PLEAD FOR ANCIENT DANCES

Oklahoma City. — Chiefs Cloud and Washee, representing the Cheyenne and Kiowa tribes, have successfully persuaded Gov. Cruse, of Oklahoma, to intervene at Washington to have the privilege of holding the gift and "willow" dances restored to the tribes.

Indian agents at Segar have threatened to forbid these ancient tribal customs. The willow dance marks the consecration of one of the men of the tribe to some particular mission. Only men take part. It lasts two days and there is a feast at the conclusion.

The gift dance is the occasion for a gathering of the tribes and the squaws join in it. Guests are loaded with gifts. The chiefs are indignant at the report that their tribal dances lead to trouble and lawlessness.

Don't cry over past opportunities; the tears may prevent you from seeing others that are coming.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS IN SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Nehemiah and His Enemies, Neh. vi.

Golden Text—The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? Psalm xxvii:1.

(1) Verses 1-2—When God is blessing us with great success in our work how does that generally affect those who are doing the same kind of work?

(2) Which are the worst enemies and why, those who outwardly declare their hostility, or those who pretend to be friends and are secretly working for our injury?

(3) Why, instead of being annoyed, did not Sanballat and his company admire and praise Nehemiah for his wonderful success?

(4) In a race it is fair for each to try to win, but what is the character of the one who puts out his foot and trips up his chief competitor?

(5) What would you say were the real motives of Sanballat, and his friends, in wanting to prevent the building of the wall of Jerusalem?

(6) When men have for years neglected, or failed to do a needed work how do they generally feel when others do that work?

(7) Verse 3—How would you characterize the answer of Nehemiah to the invitation to a conference with Sanballatt?

(8) What may be expected of business or professional men who neglect their calling, and spend much time in playing ball or other pastimes?

(9) Verses 4-8—Why are they so anxious to have this outside conference with Nehemiah?

(10) If a false report gets circulated about a man who is doing a good work, how much if any, notice should he take of it?

(11) What probably would have been the result if Nehemiah had gone to this conference in order to protect his good name?

(12) Why do people so often impugn the motives of those who are succeeding in doing a good work?

(13 How should we treat those who oppose us or speak evil of us?

(14) What arguments could or did Sanballat use to justify this accusation which he said the people were making against Nehemiah?

(15) Is slander of good people generally pure fabrication, or is it a perversion of actual facts, as in this case?

(16) Verse 9—There is a natural tendency for us to be more or less afraid of such devilish and persistent enemies as these; what therefore is our best method to keep our courage up and succeed?

(17) Verses 10-14—What would have happened if Nehemiah had been tempted to fear, and had shut himself up in the temple, as he was advised?

(18) In what class would you place the sin of moral cowardice?

(19) Which are the more vile and why, bad men in a pious garb or out-and-out sinners? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(20) How did Nehemiah discern the hypocrisy of Shemaiah?

(21) Verses 15-18—How long did it take them to complete the wall?

(22) What qualities did Nehemiah display that are still essential for success?

FACTS AND FALLACIES ABOUT TUBERCULOSIS.

A Child May be Born with a Tendency to Consumption, but if Proper Care is Taken It May be Overcome.

Although there are many things that we do not know about consumption or tuberculosis, there are some that we do and a few that we are in the act of learning.

We do not know, for example, what makes for susceptibility and what for immunity. Strong and robust persons are sometimes stricken down with it; invalids and convalescents from other diseases are no more susceptible to it than are other people, and it is possible to live for an entire lifetime in the condition known as "run-down" or "weak" without becoming tuberculosis.

People, says a writer, still speak of consumption as "inherited," but it is not inherited. A child may be born with a certain tendency to it, but if proper measures are taken early, and kept up steadily and long enough, this tendency can be overcome. A child whose parents before him, and their parents before them, perhaps for generations back have been poor breathers, will probably inherit a small, meagre chest, and will therefore be the natural victim of the consumption germ as soon as it reaches him. That child will have to be taught to breathe. The tendency to pigeon-breast can be overcome and a narrow chest developed to a normal capacity; but to do this, the child must be kept constantly in good air, and taught how to develop and use the lungs. A pigeon-breasted child who is being brought up on the coddling process—oversheltered, overfed and overclothed—is in as much danger as if he lived under the famous sword hanging from a hair.

WATER CARRIERS IN PARIS.

In the Modern Babylon Water is Still Brought in the Old-fashioned Way.

Paris is rich in contrasts, and sometimes the irony is charming. In the height of fashion to-day is still to be seen the picturesque water-carrier, and the scarcity due to the drought once more calls attention to his existence. On the heights of Montmartre are to be seen these robust Auvergnes, marching with their measured steps—and, by a fiction, the Parsi water-carrier must always be an Auvergnat—with his two buckets. The extension of the water system has gone hard with the "porter d'eau," who in days past made a fairly good living. In 1860 there were 1,253 porters; in 1880 the number had fallen to 800; and to-day there are few indeed. A barrel of water contains about 1,000 litres, and its market value is about five francs. Like most other occupations in France, the water-carrier was under State or police supervision, and each night he had to fill his barrel and place it in the district he worked, so as to [illegible] ready in case of war, but the supervision has fallen into desuetude.

Sword in a Plank.

A curious discovery has been made at Oakley Station, near Dunfermline, Scotland. In the course of alterations for the purpose of heightening the platform, it was found necessary to substitute a fresh plank of wood for an old one. The latter was being sawn up for firewood when a sword was found imbedded in the heart of it. The plank had formed part of the platform support for at least fifteen years. There was little rust on the weapon, which was an old-fashioned type, a short cross piece forming the handle. How the sword could have got where it was discovered is a mystery, as there was no indication from the outside of the plank where it had entered, and it is believed that it had been picked up by the tree at an early period of its existence and encircled with the growth.

A King's Retreat.

We often hear of Boscobel Oak, people pointing to it as the very tree which sheltered Charles II. after the Royalist forces had been shattered at the battle of Worcester. But the Boscobel Oak is not the original tree; it has grown from an acorn taken from the original tree. Boscobel House, near by, is, however, the very house in which he hid. He lay concealed in a hole beneath a trap-door [illegible] cheese-room, but as soldiers were everywhere about he had to crawl out of the chimney and make his way into a wood and hide in an oak tree. Returning when the danger was for a moment passed, he spent another night at the house, then, early in the morning, took food and drink with him to the oak tree, climbed up and stayed there for twenty-four hours. During that time Cromwell's soldiers passed beneath the tree searching for him, and he heard them saying what they would do if they caught him.

From Generation to Generation.

Grandfather Billings smiled covertly when Billings junior wondered where Billings third, aged seven, got his "trickiness." "If I didn't keep my eyes open," said Billings junior, hotly, "Billy would outwit me every time."

"This morning," he continued, "I promised him a whipping to-night. When the event came off just now, he never flinched or yelled. 'Pluck pure and simple!' said I to myself, mighty proud, for I wasn't sparing him in the least. But that wasn't it at all," he concluded, in disgust, "The young rascal had on three pairs of trousers."

"As I remember it," observed Grandfather Billings, reflectively, "you used to insert a small geography when a 'good sound one' was due you."

French Drip Coffee Pot FREE

So You Can Make Coffee As It Should Be Made

There are two reasons why many people do not drink Coffee every day. The first, is because ordinary Coffee gives them Indigestion and Headaches.

The second, is because ordinary Coffee, made in the ordinary way by boiling, is too expensive and too troublesome to make.

We are going to tell you about the Coffee that is wholesome and healthful—that you can drink for every meal and—that is the most delicious Coffee you ever tasted. We will also tell you how to make this Coffee.

The first trouble with ordinary Coffee had been a singular neglect in the roasting process.

The Coffee bean—like nuts and grains—is lined with a tough coat containing tannin and other bitter substances.

Ordinary Coffee is roasted and ground with this coat in, so that the bitter tannin comes to you in the ground Coffee and boiling only makes it worse.

Now, Dalton's French Drip Coffee is specially roasted and ground by a new and improved process. By throwing the Coffee through an intensely hot flame, we roast it so quickly that the essential oils—so vital to flavor and aroma—are retained. After this special roasting, comes a special cooling. A strong suction air-blast removes all chaff and dust. Then comes the grinding, in which another powerful suction air-blast removes every particle of the bitter, indigestible lining. Dalton's French Drip Coffee makes a beverage that is a joy to the palate, and a delight to anyone who wishes delicious, fragrant Coffee. It is wholesome and healthful and may be enjoyed at every meal, day after day, with the utmost satisfaction.

Dalton's French Drip Coffee

Few people know how to make good Coffee. Boiling drives off the flavor and destroys the delicate, aromatic oils. Boiled Coffee is also expensive, because it requires an unnecessarily large amount of ground Coffee to make a cup that has any taste at all

There is a method, however, by which anyone and everyone can make splendid Coffee, and make it right every time. This is the French Drip, or Percolator, method. In the past, percolators have been expensive and apt to get out of order. Now however we have secured the sole rights for a French Drip Coffee Pot that is durable, easily cleaned, perfectly simple and not expensive—because we know that people would drink Coffee in preference to anything else if we could give them wholesome, delicious Coffee and show them how to make it.

The MILD Blend is a delicious Coffee—the STRONG Blend has the full, rich flavor especially suited for after-dinner Coffee.

You really can't tell which one you will prefer for regular use until you try both. This is why we make it a condition that you get a tin of each.

Dalton's French Drip Coffee is not expensive. Two pounds of this specially roasted and ground Coffee used in Dalton's French Drip Coffee Pot will make as many cups as THREE pounds of ordinary Coffee.

DEFENDING ROCKEFELLER

Not Bright Enough to Do Business in New York, Better go Back to New York, According to the Hat Boy.

Some folks think that Percy Rockefeller is the rising hope of the Rockefeller family. He is credited with being wise and wary, equipped with a positive gush of conversation that doesn't commit, when that sort of chatter is needed, and to be so silent at other times that a dungeon in a deaf and dumb asylum would sound like the whispering gallery in St. Paul's Cathedral in comparison. He keeps a thumb on the public pulse, and knows a lot of things about popular sentiment that many other rich men do not know.

The other night he went to a restaurant with a party of friends. The restaurant is rather a favorite of his, and the immature pirate in charge of the hat-room had learned to know him. Mr. Rockefeller handed him his mushed and desiccated old brown hat as he entered. It was a good hat, —once. The hat pirate looked on Mr. Rockefeller with pity in his gaze. By and by Mr. Rockefeller's little supper ended, and he returned to the coat-room to retrieve his hat. Instead of that decrepit old brown lid, the boy handed him a brand-new one, of the same general form and bearing the label of America's most expensive maker. It fitted Mr. Rockefeller perfectly, but he handed it back. "That isn't my hat," said he.

"Get wise, boss," said the hat pirate. "Nudge by with it while you can. It's worth ten of them old kettles you been wearin'."

Mr. Rockefeller said that was undoubtedly true, but he did not want to rob an unknown of a new hat.

"Say," said the boy, in disgust, "I thought I was doin' you a favour, because you been a good feller. But you better go back where you come from. You ain't bright enough to do business in Noo York."

Complicated Census Work.

Census taking in China, it would appear, is a business complicated by Chinese customs. Thus the Chinese method of reckoning age is not the same as the European. A Chinese child at birth is said to be one year old, and after it has passed one New Year it is said to be two years old; so that if born in the last month of the year it may be said to be two years of age before it is 30 days days old according to European reckoning. Difficulties are encountered in China, as elsewhere, in regard to the ages of females. There was an old lady of Ching-tzu known to be over 100 who insisted on the enumerator entering her age at 99. This was because it is a customary term of abuse to call a person a "hundred years old donkey," or "ten-toothed donkey," which has the same significance. It is stated to be a common thing for a Chinese mother to give a son the name of a girl, presumably to deceive the fates, it being a common and true saying that a girl is easier to rear. This of course is another source of trouble to the enumerators.

Kingston, Dec. 8.—Archbishop Spratt has appointed Father Carson, Merrickville, to Picton, to succeed Father Killen, who was appointed to the archbishop's old charge at Belleville. Father Wm. McDonagh, Merrickville, has been appointed to Father Carson's place at Merrickville.

The body of Frederick Ruch, aged 45, was pulled out of the slip at the foot of Princess street yesterday. He was a deckhand on the steamer Prince Rupert and was walking along the wharf to his boat late Wednesday night and fell in. His wife lives in Toronto.

United States Banks Help Germany.

Vienna, Dec. 8.—The Berlin correspondent of Die Zeit says that during the height of the Anglo-German crisis, the French and English banks having withdrawn their credits from the German banks, the latter appealed to American banks for aid. This was forthcoming, adds the correspondent, after the American bankers were assured that there would be no war. This assurance, the Germans were able to give after consultation with the Government.

Kingsley Would Smoke.

Archbishop Benson, when headmaster of Wellington, was a great friend of Charles Kingsley, whose rectory of Eversley was but a few miles away. A. C. Benson gives many interesting reminiscences of Kingsley as he remembers him in those days:

"My father used to tell how once he was walking with Kingsley round about Eversley, when Kingsley suddenly stopped and said, 'It is no use; I know you detest tobacco, Benson, but I must have a smoke!' and he had accordingly gone to a big furze-bush and put his arm in at the hole, and after some groping about, produced a churchwarden pipe, which he filled and smoked with great satisfaction, afterwards putting it into a hollow tree, and telling my father, with a chuckle, that he had concealed pipes all over the parish, to meet the exigences of a sudden desire to smoke.

YUAN-SHI-KAI IS CHINA'S DICTATOR

The New Premier is a Manchu and a Militarist and Will Crush the Progressives If He Can. —But Can He?

(Special Cable Service.)

PEKIN. — Yuan Shi Kai, who has accepted the premiership is considered "the strongest man in China" since Li Hung Chang.

The return to power of Yuan-Shi-Kai, after two years spent in enforced retirement, is a matter of grave concern to the progressives. It may mean disaster to them.

For Yuan-Shi-Kai is a great man, —one whose very name is more potent with the people of China than an army. He is feared and respected throughout the empire.

PREMIER YUAN-SHI-KAI

And now the government, in despair at the spread of revolt, has summoned from obscurity this man who was so summarily dismissed and disgraced two years ago, and has put him again in supreme control of the army and navy. Which means that Yuan-Shi-Kai has virtually been made dictator.

That's just the sort of place Yuan is best fitted for. He is a Diaz-like individual, a man of tremendous energy and of big brain. In the days of the absolute monarchy he seemed like a progressive by contrast. He was associated with Li Hung Chang and did much toward untangling the mess caused by the Boxer outbreak. But Yuan is not a progressive. He is a militarist.

Indeed Yuan represents all that China is today in military standing. For Yuan MADE the present Chinese army. When he came to power on the death of the great Li Hung Chang he set about the reorganisation of the entire military establishment of the empire, and thanks to his effort China has now a thoroughly equipped and well drilled army.

Now he has been called to take the premiership. If any one in China can turn the trick he can. And that he will do his best to crush the progressive movement may be taken for granted.

For Yuan is a Manchu.

THE FOUNDER OF SUFFRAGETTE MOVEMENT.

Mrs. EMMELINE PANKHURST

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who is shortly coming to Canada, is one of the original suffragets. She is easily the most prominent figure among the English suffragets, with her clever daughter Christabel perhaps a close second. Just now she is touring the United States, speaking for the cause of woman's suffrage.

Mrs. Pankhurst is a little woman — but, Oh, my! She speaks like a house afire. Wherever she appears she awakens great enthusiasm by her simple yet dramatic telling of the story of the battles between the suffragets and the English authorities, and of how she and many others were thrown into prison for daring to stand up for woman's rights.

AMERICAN FORESTS

They Have No Timber Fit for Paper-Making.

NEW YORK. — South American forests will never yield pulp timber worth importing to the United States for paper manufacture, according to Louis [illegible]ble, representative of the International Paper Company, who arrived home lately. Mr. Chable said he had made an inspection of all the important forest lands of the Southern continent and found no pulp timber fit for paper-making.

Henry Renfrew was found guilty of being a vagrant and was remanded to jail for a week for sentence.

ON "THE CANNY SCOT."

Scotsmen Not Sentimental, But Deeply Romantic at Heart, Says a Well-known English Writer.

"I have been trying all my life to like Scotsmen," said Charles Lamb, "and am obliged to desist from the experiment in despair." There are still probably a few people who secretly or openly harbour similar antipathetic feelings towards the natives of Caledonia, but their number is decreasing daily. It would hardly be correct to say that the Scots are universally popular. Popularity is usually the product of leisure and luxury, and is seldom accorded to those who have had little opportunity for the cultivation of the graces and external beauties of life. For generations the Scots have been held fast in the grip of uncompromising realities. The poverty of the country, with its long stretches of bleak but beautiful moorland; the "Sabbath gloom" which so long reigned over the Lowlands, combined with the "Celtic gloom" permeating every "distant shieling" in the Highlands, has not been conducive to the development of a spirit of gaiety and charm. But what they have lost in one way they have gained in another. It is this very schooling in "strait and narrow" ways which has given the nation the grit and dogged determination it now possesses.

HUMOUR NORTH OF THE TWEED.

A sense of humor is not now denied Scotsmen by the Sassenach. "A Scotsman and therefore quick to see the humor of things," was the recent comment of so cosmopolitan a critic as Mrs. Annie Besant. What would Sydney Smith say if he could have heard it?

Meanness is another charge which seems to have been withdrawn in recent years. It probably arose in the first instance from the Scot's necessity for economy. Brought up in a country where money was unusually scarce, it was difficulty for him to develop suddenly an open-handed generosity. This fostered habit of economy, brought about by circumstances, must be carefully distinguished from the merely mean desire to hoard. Great generosity of heart is often found in the most economical person, while a certain cold selfishness not infrequently accompanies the most outrageous extravagance.

Another charge which has sometimes been levelled against the Scots is a lack of romance, but their history is an ample refutation of this charge. The Scotsman is not sentimental, but he is deeply romantic at heart."

Twixt Bull and Bear.

Lincoln stories are common, and the tellers of them are not as accurate in ascertaining their genuineness as they are prolific in producing them. The following tale may or "may not be a real Lincoln." It is, in any event, a good story:

Two farm-hands, Lincoln used to say, were set upon by a huge bull while crossing a rocky field. One managed to gain a tree. The other took refuge in a hole in the tree that proved to have an exit in the rear.

The man who had chosen the hole was no sooner in at one end than he was out at the other. With a bellow, the bull made for him. He turned and again shot through the hole. The bull once more bore down upon him, and once more he was in and out of his hole.

The strange pursuit kept up some minutes. At first it mystified the farm-hand up in the tree. Then it angered him.

"Hey," he shouted, "you idiot! Why don't you stay in the hole?"

The bull was dashing from one end of the hole to the other at great speed, and the man was bobbing in and out desperately. He heard, however, his comrade's shout, and found time before his next brief disappearance to shout back:

"Idiot yourself! There's a bear in the hole."

A New Use for Old Pianos

A Labrador tribe, it is said, made the barrels stolen from a wrecked whaler serve as chimney-tops; the West Indians utilised Timothy Dexter's warming pans for sugar ladles; and the Shans find no worse use for English beer-bottles than to stick them up as household gods to keep away evil spirits. But says a writer the drollest instance of converted usage occurred when that adventurous Frenchman, De Tounaut, while in Patagonia, gave an old chief a worn out grand piano which he had bought for eighty francs. A few days after making this generous present, De Tounaut went one morning to pay an early visit to the Patagonian. He found him sleeping peacefully with his wife inside the piano, from which he had carefully removed sounding board, strings, etc., and which, thus transformed, constituted a not uncomfortable bed.

PREMIER STOLYPIN'S ASSASSIN NOT DEAD

Rumour that the Wrong Man Was Hanged and that the Real Culprit Was Spirited Away.

(By special cable)

St. Petersburg. — News comes from Wilna, and it is generally believed here, that Dimitri Bogroff, the assassin of Premier Stolypin during a theatrical performance of Kiev, is not dead.

If this is true the report circulated shortly after the assassination that Bogroff committed the crime at the instigation of men high in power who promised that no harm would befall him.

The story goes that an execution took place at the hour named, but instead of Bogroff the man hanged was a revolutionist under sentence of death some time. This man was palmed off for Bogroff.

Meanwhile Bogroff, in disguise, was spirited out of Russia. Those who believe the story claim that Bogroff is either on the way to the United States or already landed safely and living in some American city under an assumed name.

TURKS IN FIGTING HUMOR

Turks Determined to Retake Tripoli If Possible.

Constantinople. — The newspapers here profess to have information which enables them to predict once more that Tripoli will shortly be retaken by the Turks. The Italians, they say, are in a deplorable position owing to the rain. The floods swept away a whole battalion with the exception of thirty men, and they are unable to land reinforcements and provisions because of the bad weather. An Italian cruiser is stranded at Benghazi.

TO MOBILIZE MORE TROOPS

GENERAL CANEVA

Italian Commander in Tripoli, Scene of Alleged Outrages.

Rome.—The Government has found it necessary immediately to mobilize another 25,000 men for service in Tripoli. It also authorized an extraordinary expenditure of $65,000,000 to cover the cost of the war until the end of December.

General Caneva reports that the Grenadiers atacked a horde of Arabs with the bayonet and killed forty-five of them.

Aeroplanes reconnoitred the desert and dropped a bomb in a Turkish camp. An Italian warship bombarded and burned the village of Amrass.

A general attack of Turks and Arabs on the Italian force is reported to be imminent.

PREMIER GIOLITTI,

Head of the Italian Government

TURKEY'S WARNING

Constantinople. — Turkey sent notices to all the Powers to-day, that if Italy resumes offensive operations in Turkish waters, as threatened, the Ottoman Government will be compelled to take defensive measures, which cannot but endanger neutral shipping.

EDISON'S ESTIMATE.

Declares the British Standard of Business Integrity the Highest in the World.

Moderty is an admirable virtue which may be with advantage cultivated by nations as well as individuals. But it must not be overdone. In these times of self-assertion, the inhabitants of the British Islands are familiar with comparisons which suggest that the Germans and the Americans are chief of the world's good and smart men, and that the Briton is now something of a back number. Faint hearts who permit themselves belief in this uncomfortable doctrine may find relief in Mr. Edison's latest pronouncement. It is not an invention this time. He declares that the British—he calls it English—standard of business integrity is the highest in the world, and that Germans themselves admit the soft impeachment. But that is not all. In the old world, says Mr. Edison, the British—again he calls them English—are the highest type, physically, morally, and mentally. These are grateful words. The only doubt left on the subject is caused by Mr. Edison's neglect to say how we stand in relation to his own countrymen. The omission cannot be due to modesty because he predicts that the business men of the United States will some day show the Germans how to hustle in their own country. It will be a fine sight.

His Original Sin.

In a country seat in one of the middle Western States dwelt a lawyer who, after a practice of thirty years, had accumulated a competence and retired. Being a man of much more than ordinary ability, an excellent speaker, entertaining decided political views, and enjoying the confidence of the community, he was urged by his friends to run for Congress. He refused. A man high in the political councils of the State came to see him, and added his persuasion.

"You ought to take that office," he said. "It might lead to something higher. You would make a national reputation."

"That's what I am afraid of."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Well," answered the lawyer, hesitatingly, "I will tell you, but it is in strict confidence. It must not go any further. Many years ago, when I was young and inexperienced, I published a small volume of original poetry. So far as I know, there is not a copy of that book in existence now, but one would turn up in some corner of the world if I were to run for office, and the papers would print extracts from it. I wouldn't have that happen for a million dollars. No, sir, nothing doing!"

Must Pay Italian $1,500.

Belleville, Dec. 8.—An Italian named Youne, employed on the Trent Valley Canal, received a verdict for $1,500 for the loss of a thumb and a broken arm from the premature blast of dynamite. It was alleged the contractors, Dennon & Rogers, were negligent in the matter.

The greatest kind of Christmas present

the greatest Christmas present of its kind, the Edison Phonograph

a gift for ALL the family, a gift for ALL the year, and for ALL the years to come

THINK of the money that is thrown away on trifles at Christmas time—the candy that is eaten, the toys that are broken, the Christmas cards that are merely glanced at and thrown away. What have you to show for last year's Christmas?

Now think of the Edison Phonograph—the gift of a lifetime, that brings to every member of your family all of the very kind of entertainment each prefers—not merely for a day or a year, but for always. That's what makes the Edison the greatest kind of gift.

The Edison brings you the four great advantages which you should look for in a sound-reproducing instrument, and which you will find only in the Edison—exactly the right volume of sound for your home; the sapphire reproducing point, which does not scratch or wear the records and lasts forever—no changing of needles; Amberol Records, which play twice as long as the ordinary records, rendering each composition completely, the ability to make and reproduce your own records, in your own home, just as true to life as the records made in our laboratory.

That's what makes the Edison Phonograph the greatest gift of its kind.

There are Edison dealers everywhere. Go to the nearest and hear the Edison Phonograph play both Edison Standard and Edison Amberol Records. Get complete catalogs from your dealer or from us. Edison Phonographs, $16.50 to $240.00. Edison Standard Records, 40c. Edison Amberol Records (play twice as long), 65c. Edison Grand Opera Records, 85c to $2.50.

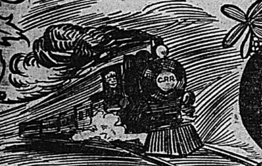
How a Big Railroad Keeps Xmas



THE SNOWSHOE CLUB AT THE CHATEAU · QUEBEC

The Grand Bounce Canadian Snow Shoe Club

IN the year of 1925, if you take up a daily paper of December 25th, you may possibly see a dispatch from the city of "Nowhere," reading somewhat like this:—

(Canadian Associated Press Dispatch.)

Nowhere, Dec. 24th. — Leaping lightly to the Engineer's seat at midnight last night, Santa Claus grasped the throttle of the big locomotive and quickly the huge special train hurled itself into the dark night carrying with it joy and the Christmas spirit to the people the wide world over.

We say possibly you may see a dispatch like the above, but of course there is also a possibility that you won't, because in the first case it is more than likely that after using them for so many years, Santa won't want to give up "the big sleigh and the eight tiny reindeer," and in the second case, it is just possible that with the big traffic over the railways at Christmas time that even such a very important personage as Santa Claus, couldn't command a special train.

Naturally Christmas is just about the busiest season with a big railway. Not only is there a big freight and express movement but the passenger traffic jumps into big figures. Everybody has a desire to visit the old home at least once a year, and at Christmas, when the snow is on the ground and the spirit of doing and giving is in the air, the desire takes root, grows and finally materializes. There is a wild packing of suitcases, a hurried scurrying to make the "last purchases," and then there is a rush for the station and the train. December is the time when the big rush on the railways first starts, and from then until the last sad obsequies are said over the dead body of the old year railway station officials and sleep are only on the faintest of speaking terms. Long special trains "puff, puff" their way out of the big stations. The colored porters go about on the run, the transfer men work overtime crowding Christmas parcels into the Express cars The mail men in the post office cars take off their coats roll up their sleeves and sort with twice their ordinary speed. The train despatcher stops going home for lunch, the station master likewise, and then as the December 25th draws nearer, things buzz faster and faster. The man in the information bureau, who ordinarily answers anywhere from 2,000 to 3,000 questions per day now answers 6,000. Extra cars are added to the regular trains. New trains are made up and dispatched within an hour and the station officials get their boots half soled and work harder and later than before. Everybody is going "home." The station is filled with a conglomerate assembly. Over there the fair Co-ed and the Varsity Captain of class '14 scan the pages of the time-table. They are going home to spend the holiday in Cushionville. To the right is the small shop girl who lives at Yorktown, just twenty miles out. She got off an hour earlier than usual to catch the train. On the left a fat man puffs a big cigar and coldly glances at the raging multitude. He wants you to think that he is not at all excited at the idea of getting home. He appears disinterested, but all the same the chances are ten to one that he is thinking of that rocking horse with the real mane that he shipped home to his grandson yesterday. Over there, touching elbows with a matron of sixty, is the young dry goods clerk going back to father and mother on the farm. On all sides are school marms, students, clergy, laborers, clerks, college professors, young maidens, maiden aunts,—all with beaming faces and prominent parcels, and all waiting for the grinding of the wheels and the clang of the bell, that will announce that they are off on their Christmas journey.

The freight and express traffic on a great railway at Christmas time is enormous. There was a time when the greater part of the C. P. R.'s freight and express traffic was from East to West, but with recent years the traffic from the West to the East has steadily increased. This is owing to the great influx of new settlers into Western Canada. The great majority of thees new settlers, of course, came from Britain, and at Christmas time they send home to their relatives and friends numerous presents. During the days preceding the sailing of the last Christmas boats the freight and express matter is forwarded from the West to Quebec and St. John in a perfect flood, and of a varied and interesting nature are the presents sent to friends across the Atlantic. Talk to Canadian railway men and they will tell you that the presents, which are perhaps the most popular with the new settlers are the souvenirs of life in Canada,—miniature snowshoes, toboggans, etc. These are transported from Canada by thousands at Christmas time.

But it is not the increased passenger and freight traffic alone that causes the hustle and bustle in railway circles at Christmas time. On a big railway there are thousands of Christmas dinners to serve, and there are all sorts of Christmas celebrations to prepare for. At Christmas time we happen to know that the C.P.R. orders the turkeys and plum puddings, etc., for its Christmas dinners by the thousands. When the morning of the 24th this year comes into view, all of the company's sixty-seven steamships will not be in commission, but there will be a sufficient number of them out on the broad bosom of the ocean to render necessary the preparation of enough meals to make the figures look pretty large. Then there are the guests at the C.P.R.'s seventeen hotels to feed and the passengers in the dining cars, and altogether the figures are startling.

Christmas is always a festive occasion on the Company's steamships. Over night Santa Claus and his invisible minions work wonderful changes in the appearance of the boats. When the morning of the twenty-fifth dawns, great streamers float in the breezes from the mast heads. Gay bunting and flags "flap, flap," from the lines and the big liners [illegible] quite captivating in their holida[illegible] clothes. During the day on shipbo[illegible] there are sports and concerts, [illegible] dinners and everybody, from the captain down to the smallest passenger, in the third cabin, joins in the celebration and is happy. First of all, there is a Christmas tree. Christmas Day would not be complete without a tree, so the passengers in the first and second cabins club together, and give the smaller children in the third cabin the time of their lives. The big tree droops under the load of presents. Everybody contributes something, toys, bundles of all sizes and shapes. There are dolls with real hair, and that open and close their eyes. There are toy rubber elephants that squeak in the most "unelephantic" fashion when poked in the right spot. There are toy aeroplanes, toy automobiles, and toy balloons, and occasionally, too, some big, jovial passenger from the first or second cabins will "dress up," and play Santa Claus. Not until the presents are all in their places and the preparations concluded, are the small children of the third cabin allowed into the sacred presence of the tree. Then when the doors are thrown back and the treasures displayed, what a happy giggling and romping there it. For some of them it is their first real Christmas. A couple of years ago on board one of the Empresses there was coming out from Liverpool, a father and mother and two small children. Life had been a failure in England, and the family was on its way to Canada to make a new start. One of the small children was a small girl six years old, who, owing to an infirmity, was unable to join in the play of the other third cabin children. It was lonesome sitting there all alone all day long, and while the little maid did her best to hide that fact, she did not succeed altogether. Then on Christmas morning there was handed to her from the tree, a great big life-size doll, contributed by a first cabin passenger. That marked a new epoch in the little girls' life. After that it did not matter that she could not build wonderful mud pies in the sand pit with the other children, or play shuffle board. It was her first doll, and she was perfectly happy.

Up in the first and second cabins there are equally stirring scenes. Under the influence of the day there is a general disregarding of the conventionalities. There are games of all kinds. At dinner time in all three cabins the tables groan under the weight of the turkeys, and plum puddings, the fruits, nuts and candies with which they are loaded. In the evening there is a big concert. It is really remarkable the amount of high class talent that is present at these functions—actors travelling between the two continents, amateur and professional singers, expert pianists, entertainers, and occasionally small companies of theatrical players. Outside the wind may be blowing a small gale, but inside the ship, there is warmth, gaiety, and the true Christmas spirit.

At the big railway hotels life on Christmas Day is just as gay as on the steamships. At the Chateau Frontenac, at Quebec; at the Place Viger, at Montreal; at the Royal Alexandra at Winnipeg; and at Vancouver and Victoria the fun runs high. Perhaps there is no hotel on the continent that is quite as renowned, for the festival spirit which pervades its halls at Christmas time as the Chateau Frontenac. The old city of Quebec is wonderful at any time, but at Christmas it is especially entrancing. This is the day when the gay snow-shoe clubs gather at the Chateau. All day long they tramp the parks and country of Quebec, gathering in the evening at the Chateau, tired, but with ravenous appetites. The Chateau is the centre for the festivities for the whole city. From here set out the parties for the toboggan slides. From here go the parties to the skating rinks and the curling rinks. From here leave merry sleighing parties, the bells on the cutters singing a gladsome song. In the evening there is more fun. There is a big dance in the ball room, where guests from the Chateau mix with their friends from the city. The hall is decorated with thousands of flags for the occasion, the big grate fires send up the open chimneys showers of sparks from the Yule logs, the orchestra plays dance music and another Christmas Day goes all too soon.

At Montreal it is becoming the fashionable thing for society to take the railway up to Ste. Agathe for Christmas Day. Here is situated the only bob-sleighing course on the American continent. This is a new sport for Canada, but it is one that bids fair to outrival even the toboggan. The sleighs are built on the same lines as those used in Switzerland. The runners are braced far apart and the hood at the front slopes back towards the steering wheel. On a course like that at Ste. Agathe these sleds travel at an enormous speed,—a mile a minute being often made, when the slide is in good condition. It is an exhilarating sport this, and on Christmas Day the scene at Ste. Agathe is a gay one.

Whenever possible, travellers through the Rocky Mountains at Christmas time try to arrange to spend December 25th at Banff. Banff is an ideal place to spend Christmas Day. Here is the whole big Canadian National Park spread out before one. The park is beautiful in summer, and it is no less attractive in the winter. The towering mountains all around give an air of seclusion and at the same time they suggest that the little village of Banff has been placed there for the sole purpose of pursuing winter sports. And what sport it is. One can drive around Tunnel Mountain, with the whole valley spread out in the foreground. One can explore on skis the course of the Spray, and pass beneath the shadow of Mt. Rundle. One can rush madly down the slopes of Mt. Sulphur on a toboggan, or tread on snowshoes the the mazy paths of the woods.

Even on its trains running on Christmas Day the C.P.R. endeavors to keep up the spirit of the day. In the sleeping cars in the moring the colored porter wakes you with a hearty "Merry Christmas to yu, suh." When you enter the dining cars you will find there a special menu for the occasion, and the car is nicely decorated with evergreens and bunting.

That's the way it is throughout the whole C.P.R. system. It is a big railway, but it is not too big to enter fully into the spirit of Christmas Day.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

A FRUITLESS SEARCH.

At 9.30 last night the police received a call to the telephone office, the young lady in charge alleging that some one was endeavoring to obtain an entrance to the premises by the back door. The officer responding made a search at the back of the premises, but could find no person about.

ALLEGED ASSAULT.

Edgar Stapley informed the police that last night he was assaulted while upon the street. He was advised to lay an information against the party whom he alleges assaulted him.

SAVED THE BACON.

After a downtown grocery establishment had been closed up on Saturday night a side of bacon was found by a police officer hanging outside of the store. It was taken care of and returned to the proprietors.

PROGRESSING FAVORABLY.

Mr .Douglas Holton, who injured his eye and is under special treatment with Dr. Reeve, in hospital in Toronto, is progressing favorably and there are great hopes for his getting back the ordinary sight of the optic..

COULDN'T PAY—JAILED.

On Saturday afternoon Hiram Barnhart was before Magistrate Masson on a charge of drunkenness. He was found guilty and a fine of $5 or 15 days in jail was imposed. Not having the five-spot, Barnhart was sent up to the County Jail.

A BROKEN WINDOW.

Some time during last night a large pane of glass was broken in the window of Benson & Sullivan's, tonsorial artists, who conduct business on Front Street. It is surmised that some one fell against the window, as there was no indication that any person had been in the place.

NOISY BOYS.

The police last night were called to Pinnacle Street to disperse some boys who were making so much noise near the Salvation Army barracks as to disturb the services, which were in progress. The boys had made themselves scarce before the police arrived upon the scene.

BURGLAR FOILED.

On Saturday evening it was reported to the police that some one had tried to effect an entrance to the residence of Mr. A. McBride, on the corner of Burnham and Dundas Streets, while the occupants were absent. The officer responding to the call found a window broken in the rear part of the house, but an entrance to the premises had not been effected.

CHARGED WITH RECEIVING.

Joseph Diamond, residing on Pinnacle Street, who is a dealer in junk, was at an early hour this morning placed under arrest on a warrant charging him with purchasing during the month of November a quantity of rubber tubing, knowing same to have been stolen. Diamond, it is alleged, is the party who purchased the rubber tubing which was stolen by employees from the St. Charles Omnibus Company. Diamond was this morning brought up before the Magistrate, and the charge was read to him. Through his counsel, Mr. Carnew, the accused made no election, and the case was enlarged for a week. The accused was subsequently liberated on bail, himself in $1,000 and $500 in cash, which was forthcoming.

POLITICAL MEETING.

On Saturday afternoon, at Napanee, a town and country rally in the interest of Mr. T. G. Carscallen, the Conservative candidate for Lennox, was held. There was a large attendance and much interest was taken in the proceedings. Mr. Hambly occupied the chair. Addresses were given by the candidate, Mr. E. G. Porter, K.C. M.P., Mr. J.W. Johnson, M.P.P., and Mr. J. W. Paul, M.P.

THEY WILL GO BACK.

Mervin Mackie, Fred Campbell and Edward Sweet, all young men, were on Saturday evening brought to the city from Trenton and lodged in the County Jail. The charge preferred against the accused is that they robbed a foreigner named Peter Michalek, who is employed on the Trent Valley Canal, of $60. The offence is alleged to have taken place on Thursday last. The parties were remanded to the County Jail until Thursday of this week, when they will be taken back to Trenton for trial.

A RAISED CHEQUE.

Wilfrid Young, who is a resident of this city, was arrested on Saturday evening on a charge of raising a cheque. It appears that Young had a cheque for $2.65 and he alleges that after he had endorsed the same he received $2 for it from a party he did not know. When the cheque reached the bank it was for $5.65 or $3 more than it was when originally made out. Young claims he needed the $2 and for that reason allowed the cheque to go for that amount. That it was raised is evident and Young must answer the charge. The case was called at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

FINED FOR STEALING.

A young man named John Wilson, who has been employed as a hostler, was this morning, before Magistrate Masson, charged with having taken and disposed of some brass hose couplings belonging to the corporation. Wilson alleges that he was given permission by Ald. St. Charles to dispose of the couplings and some other brass trimmings if he desired. The Alderman, when placed in the witness box, denied that he had given any such permission. The outcome of the case was that Wilson had to pay a fine of $5 and costs. Mr. Anderson for the Crown and Mr. Carnew for the accused. Vincent Asselstine was also brought into the case, and an enlargement in his case was granted.

DEATH IN THE JAIL.

On Monday last, at Trenton, an aged man, Joseph Lawlor, was committed to the County Jail on a charge of vagrancy. At the time Lawlor was in a feeble condition and on Friday last he was taken ill and died yesterday afternoon. This morning an inquest was held at the jail, being conducted by Coroner Dr. Tracy. Ald. Clarke was foreman of the jury. The evidence submitted showed that the deceased while in jail had been properly attended to and his demise was by no mans caused by any neglect.

The verdict of the jury was that the deceased came to his death from natural causes, namely senile decay; also that every attention had been given the deceased while confind in jail. The jury also added that in their opinion municipalities should provide a suitable place for such unfortunates and not have them sent to jail. Lawlor was aged 72 years and had made his home in the town of Trenton for some time.

THE CEMENT MERGER SUIT

Bank of Montreal Plaintiff—Trial May Result in Long-sought Enquiry

OTTAWA, Dec. 9.—There is a promise of somewhat sensational developments in the case of the Bank of Montreal v. Sir Sanford Fleming and J. S. Irvin, of Ottawa, an action for the payment of pomissory notes and interest to the amount of about $25,000.

It is understood that issues will be raised in the litigation that will necessitate a thorough investigation into the formation of a big Canadian cement merger, which was organized about eighteen months ago with Sir Max Aitkin as one of its chief promoters.

The suit over the notes is the outcome of the cement merger. It will be remembeerd that when this merger was formed there was some hitch in regard to the admittance of the Exshaw (Alberta) works, in which Sir Sandford and Mr. Irvin were interested. The merger was about to fall through when the Bank of Montreal saved the situation by guaranteeing the liabilities of the smaller units of the merger. Through a technicality when the deal was put through the Exshaw concern was frozen out, and was later bought in by the combine off the market for practically nothing. The real organizer of the merger was J. S. Irvin, who has been intimately associated with Sir Sandford.

"Organ grinder in a frock coat," is a head line in an old country contemporary. Why not? He had a handle to his name.

WOMAN OF 90 WAS ROBBED OF MONEY

One Man Held Her While His Companion Carried a Trunk Into Yard

TORONTO, Dec. 9.—Gagged and held prisoner by one man while his companion took possession of a trunk containing $26 in oe-dollar bills, was the experiece of Mrs. Bridget Donnelly, a woman over ninety years of age, who lived alone in a cottage on Dufferin Heights, at the head of Dufferin street.

The old woman had lived alone for some time, and the only protection she had was by placing the handle of a spade against the knob of the door and placing the spade on the floor.

About midnight two men drove up to the door and forced their way in, gagged her, then carried her trunk out into the back yard, broke it open and emptied it of its contents, after which they drove away.

About 12.20, Mr. Ballard, who conducts a grocery store close to the scene was attracted by the cries, and found Mrs. Donnelly in the back yard of her home. He immediately communicated with the county police. County constable J. McMullen was sent out to investigate and states that he has good information as to who the men are, but as the old woman could not identify them, he has nothing to go by except the stolen money.

Mrs. Donnelly was roughly used, and besides having several bruises on her body, she is suffering greatly from the shock.

DEATH'S CALL

MRS. A. KETCHESON.

On Monday morning, Dec. 4th, death claimed for its victim a very esteemed lady in the person of Mrs. A. Ketcheson, Moira. Deceased had been a sufferer for eight weeks from cancer, having been confined to her bed. Dr. Hill, of Roslin was the attending physician, and also Dr. Gibson of Belleville was called, but all medical skill could not save her through her sufferings. The friends that stood by her never heard her murmur or complain. She was so ready to meet her God and longed to be with her Saviour, where she knew she would be better off. In her last hours of suffering she was heard to say "Jesus, Jesus, how I trust Him." She leaves to mourn her loss, her sorrowing husband, two sons, Frank and Blake of Moira, one daughter, Annie, of Lisdale, Sask., one brother, and two sisters of Belleville, and one sister of Spokane, Wash., all of whom have the heart felt sympathy of their many friends. The funeral service was conducted in the church on Wednesday p. m. by Rev. E. A. Tonkin. The text was from Luke ii :29—"Lord now lettest Thy servant depart in peace according to Thy word," from which a very impressive sermon was preached. In religion she was a Methodist, and a member of the W. M. S. of Plainfield circuit. The pall bearers were Will Welsh, Ben. Sayers, Will Donan, Geo. Hollinger, David Thompson, Anthony Herity. Interment took place in VanTassel cemetery.

God hath given, God hath taken,
  But the fragments linger still
To encourage, cheer and strengthen
  Lives to all the Master's will!
As the star that led the Wise Men
  On that quiet, Christmas morn,
May the memory of our loved one
  Be to us new courage borne.

How she longed to see her Master
  And to see Him face to face,
Lord of Lords and King of Glory,
  Savious of the fallen race.
"Christ is all in all," she whispers,
  "All in all to me;
He'll take care of you my loved ones,
  He took care of me."

MAN WITH BIRD'S NAME TELLS OF FLUTTERINGS

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 9.—William Nightingale, who was brought here from Toronto charged with stealing two hundred shares of Porcupine mining stock and a diamond ring and pin from his brother was released today when it was discovered that the prisoner had already served timo in Toronto for the offence.

"I joined the Royal Order of Boobs and fell for those brunettes and blondes with the enchanting eyes and smiles," Nightingale said as he explained how he had spent his money around Toronto theatres.

CHURCH'S POWER IS AT STAKE

Before Montreal Court--Another Case in Which Ne Temere Will be Attacked

While the Hebert marriage case is before the courts another case is delayed. It is that of Gordon Dowden against Elmire Poitras. On the 13th of April last Dowden entered an action for annulment of marriage against Elmire Poitras, supposed married to him thirty years ago. The allegations were that when the supposed marriage had taken place Elmire Poitras was not yet 21 years of age, and she had not the consent of her parents, which, it was claimed, was enough to annul the marriage according to church law. The marriage had been solemnized by a Protestant minister, which is invoked as another cause of invalidity under the Ne Temere decree, and the third reason is that Dowden being not baptized, the church could not recognize the marriage of a Christian with him.

For these three reasons, he asked that his marriage be declared null and void and that he be declared free of the marriage tie. It was only on the 26th of June that the action was officially signified to the defendant in the case, and at the time Dame Elmire Poitras declared that she would fight the action.

Nevertheless, no defence was filed in court, and on the 15th of August inscription was made for judgment by default. Justice Laurendeau then ruled that the contentions made had to be proved before a judgment could be given.

The main difference between this case and the Hebert case is that the superior court was asked, not to give civil effect to a religious decree as in the Hebert case, but to interpret and apply canonical law, and for that reason the facts were referred to the religious authorities for verification.

It has now transpired that the Archiepiscopal authorities have refused to consider the case, claiming that the church is supreme in matters of marriage and the religious authorities could not consider a case that had been first submitted to the civil court.

The attorneys for Dowden are nevertheless still expecting that their case will be considered on merit when the Hebert case is settled.

A HEAVY WEIGHT COUPLE

DOVER, N. H., Dec. 9.—Samuel Chesley Drew, the pride of the New England Fat Men's Asociation, who weighs 457 pounds, is back at his home here to-day after a honeymoon trip with his bride, who was Miss Rose Lavigne, of Rochester, "a plump and pleasant person" of 278 pounds.

As there was no carriage in the town capable of transporting the happy pair, they were carried from the train to their home in a hay truck.

CURRENT COMMENT

The question arises, is the location of the C.P.R. final so far as the company is concerned? It is said that some surveying has been done since the map and book of reference was registered.

There are 53 Sundays in 1911. This will not happen again in 109 years. It has been suggested that all religious denominations celebrate the 53rd Sunday, which falls on December 31st, as a universal day of Thanksgiving.

"Misery likes company." While potatoes are selling in Belleville at prices higher than ever before paid on our market, they are importing the "murphies" from Ireland into New York, because of a potato famine in the northern States.

John D. Rockefeller is retiring from the Standard Oil Company, but in recognition of his long services the corporation is likely to allow him a small pension that will supply his few and simple wants for the remainder of his days.—Hamilton Spectator.

The Globe is comforting itself with the idea that "the Liberals forced the fighting." What else could an opposition do? And the Grits were lax in even that plain duty as, witness the election by acclamation of seventeen supportesr of the Government.

History in Britain takes a long time to repeat itself. King George is now in India, and the last time a British monarch left Europe was when Richard the Lion Heart left on his crusade to the Holy Land.—Ottawa Journal.

Scotland Yard, London, Eng., must surely be the grand limbo of lost umbrellas, no less than 27,681 finding a resting place there last year. But one does not need to travel that far afield to lose track of this most necessary adjunct of a rainy day, as many can attest.—Hamilton Spectator.

The effort to squeeze Mr. G. P. Graham into Parliament by a side door is so plainly an attempt to defeat the will of the people that the Conservative party cannot too promptly and too plainly disassociate itself from the affair. Mr. Graham has been fairly and squarely beaten in a contest on a big issue. If he still desires to enter public life let him fight for his place like the ordinary aspirant.—Brockville Times.

It is promised for the Ontario Government that the Workmen's Compensation bill shortly to be introduced in the Legislature will be one of the best in the world. This practically means that the charges on employers will be heavy. Workmen's compensation laws have as their purpose to put on employers the cost of insuring their employees against the effect of accidents. The employer may pay a premium to a casualty company to protect himself, or he may take the risk and pay the charges that accrue out of the profits of his business. In any case what he does is an increase of the workers' remuneration.—Montreal Gazette.

London financial circles are reported to be anticipating trouble between the Government of Canada and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway over the slowness with which the work on the line from Winnipeg to Moncton has been pushed. This was the political section of the G.T.P. enterprise. The idea of creating it was conceived by politicians for political purposes. Politicians helped to make it many times more costly than it was intended to be. In the end its political authors were ashamed of it, and in the late parliamentary election campaign hardly ventured to speak about it. It would not be true to its record if it did not cause more trouble.—Montreal Gazette.

Work on the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, the new $2,000,000 hotel, constructed by the Grand Trunk System is progressing very favorably. Nearly all the plastering of the hotel is now completed and there remains to be done only the lobby, bar and grill room ceiling. Most of the marble floors for the dining room corridor are laid, and after the plaster work of the lobby is completed work will be started on the marble work of the floor. Heat and light have been in the building for the last two months, and when the plaster is sufficiently dried in the various public rooms, the decorators will be able to commence the interior decorations. Some of the woodwork for the big rooms is in the hotel, and the erection of this is going on. The general appearance of the various rooms is beyond expectation, and when completed will be of the richest effect, artistic in design, and wonderfuly beautiful. 1td,wD11

THE BRITISH FLEET IN RECENT CRISIS

Narrow Margin by which War with Germany was Avoided

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Rather surprising evidence of the narrow margin by which war between England and Germany was avoided last July is supplied by the semi-official utterances printed by all British newspapers immediately after the astonishing declarations made by Captain Faber, an obscure member of Parliament and a not less inconspicuous military critic.

Captain Faber's declarations, which were made at a public dinner and promptly seized upon by the German British and French journals alike, amounted to the charge that in the most critical days in July, when war seemed unavoidable, the British fleet was scattered all about the British Isles, that the British Ministry was divided on the question of "sticking to France," and that the army alone was prepared to the extent of having 160,000 regular troops ready for instant despatch to France.

As to the first charge of Captain Faber, that the British fleet was so scattered that a sudden raid by the German fleet would have permitted the Germans to repeat the exploit of the Japanese in the Russian war and defeat the British fleet in detail, the answer of all the responsible British journals is identical, that the charge is false.

At the moment when the Moroccan negotiations seemed least hopeful there was concentrated at Cromarty Firth, in Northern Scotland, facing the German Ocean, seven Dreadnought battleships and four Dreadnought cruisers. A second squadron, consisting of six battleships, two Dreadnoughts, two of the Lord Nelson class, and two of the King Edward class, together with four powerful cruisers, were at Rosyth, separated only by three or four hours of steaming from the first division. The first squadron exceeded the fighting resources of the entire German navy and the second was sufficient to make a formidable fight alone.

In addition, Captain Faber charged that the intelligence department of the navy lost sight of the German fleet's movements for a whole day. This is similarly denied. With the two northern fleets were two flotillas of destroyers, the scouts of the navy, one of which was actually patrolling the German Ocean. The only thing actually lost sight of was one flotilla of German destoryers, and they turned up subsequently in the Baltic—that is, outside the field of operations. During all this time the two fleets were in complete readiness for war, with torpedo nets down and every preliminary preparation made for battle. Two other fleets were mobilized, one in the Firth of Clyde, the other on the Irish coast.

As to the preparation of the army, the inaccuracy of Captain Fabre's assertions is less clear. Apparently there was an actual disagreement between army and navy authorities over the question of sending the entire available regular establishment of Grea Britain to the Continent. That the 10,000 troops were ready is agreed—that the preparations on the part of the fleet to cover such an operation were made seems less certain.

The discussion in England which led to Sir Edward Grey's recent declaration in the House of Commons seems to have been provoked by the statement by Captain Faber that England was prepared to send its army abroad. Assertions were made immediately thereafter that French and British staff officers had prepared a complete programme, which the Admiralty rejected, and the Cabinet disagreed about. The subsequent changes in the Cabinet are declared to have been one consequence of this division of opinion.

All evidence seems to justify the conclusion that in July the British navy was ready for war, that preparations sufficient to meet attack had been made, that the British fleet facing German waters was overwhelmingly superior to the German naval establishment. As to the army preparations and the plans for coordination with the navy, necessary for sending troops to France, complete information, for reasons not hard to grasp, is still lacking.. So far as Sir Edward Grey's explanation was expected to clear up these details it failed to completely and deliberately.

In one week lately between 30,000 and 40,000 sheep and 20,000 cattle were sold in Stirling marts.

SPEECHES OF [illegible] KING GEORGE

Tribute to Men on the Outposts of Empire—Hard Service Required From the Sons of Britain.

Love of the Empire, a keen knowledge of the work needed to keep it intact, full appreciation of the devotion of those who do so much to that end without the public knowing anything of it, and a perfect faith in religion as the sheet-anchor of the nation—all these appear vividly in the volume of the King's speeches published by Messrs. Williams and Norgate under the title of "The King to His People."

Speaking of India at the Guildhall, His Majesty said: "With the King and Queen just finishing their preparation for their voyage to India for the Delhi Durbar a speech on our great Eastern dependency which His Majesty made at the Guildhall will be read with special interest. In the course of it he said:

I have learnt to appreciate the fact that India cannot be regarded as one country. . . . Quitting Bombay in tropical heat, my thoughts carry me from there over hundreds of miles, almost as far as from London to Constantinople, to the rigorous climate of the Khyber Pass. . . .

At Lundi Kotal, the further entrance of the Pass, five British officers and a regiment of Afridis—that tribe which only a few years ago was fighting against us—now garrison this lonely outpost. To the historic stronghold of Ali Musjid came the abiding Khans, each bringing offerings of goodwill in the shape of the pick of their flocks of sheep, and the finest specimens of their honey. . . .

But, among all these varied and striking impressions, none have stirred our hearts as did the Ridge at Delhi, and the grounds and ruins of the Lucknow Residency.

His Majesty added a tribute of thanks to Lord Curzon for his preservation of the priceless architectural monuments of the country.

The defence of Lucknow calls up memories of the defence of Ladysmith, where the banner of England was kept flying, as the King said on his visit, "heroically and with dogged resolve," adding:—

The sacrifices have not been in vain. Never in our history did the pulse of the Empire beat more in unison, and the blood which has been shed on the veldt has sealed for ever our unity.

Not only does King George show his appreciation of the men who have fought and bled for their country—he is equally mindful of the heroism of these who struggle not against their fellow-men, but against the forces of Nature. This it was that led him to express his sympathy with Lieut. Shackleton's "terrible hardships," when he handed him the Royal Geographical Society's medal, with pride in his achievements "as a brother sailor."

"Terrible hardships," yes, but, as King George reminded the Eton boys last July, "The British Empire requires at the present time hard services from all its sons," whether in carrying on the education of the metropolis, "never more efficiently conducted than at the present," or in fighting the White Plague, and teaching the patient in the sanatorium "how to live cleanly, soberly and healthily," or in encouraging rifle shooting throughout the Empire.

His Majesty's interest in the children, to whom we must look as future upholders of the Empire, was further shown in a speech in connection with the Waifs and Strays Society two years ago:—

"To those who treasure with affection the happy memories of childhood, it is difficult to realise how in our very midst there are little ones to whom the joy of home and the love of parents are unknown, and we thank God for the work of this society which finds for these young, ill-fated fellow-beings new homes, good influences, and gives them a fresh start in life."

All will remember, too, the kindly thought which resulted in the entertainment of 100,000 children at the Crystal Palace last summer, when Their Majesties walked among and chatted with their little guests.

The King's deep religious convictions are plainly shown in a speech on the "Perfect Standard.":—

"I am fortified by the belief that the ends which we pursue will be achieved only while we seek in faith and humility that perfect standard of conduct and sacrifice which has been revealed to Christian men."

These words show how fully His Majesty believes that the Church is the foundation on which all else must rest.

When a man is thirsty he is sure to admire another man who say the right thing at the right time.

THE Paternoster Ruby

BY CHARLES EDMOND WALK

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press Limited, Toronto.

He said nothing more. By the time we reached our destination he was prepared to enter philosophically upon his period of confinement, whether it should prove long or short. As I turned to depart I noticed that he was following me with a wistful look.

"I'll see that you are kept posted about the young lady," I told him; which elicited a deep sigh of relief and a fervent word of thanks.

Again I was preparing to leave him, the turnkey standing by and impatiently jingling the ring of big brass keys which was suspended from his arm, when the prisoner called me back. He searched my eyes earnestly.

"Swift," he began, "as I said before, I'm helpless now to fight for myself. But I want to warn you you against that devil Burke. I know nothing further than that he has been in the habit of visiting Mr. Fluette and of being closeted with him for hours at a time. The subject of those long conferences Mr. Fluette has kept strictly to himself, evading all of Belle's inquiries and attempts to make him talk about the fellow. Burke is repulsive to her—for which you can't blame her—and her curiosity over a man like him and a man like her father having anything in common is quite natural. It is odd, you know.

"That's not what I intended saying, though." He paused and eyed me keenly an instant. "If anything turns up that drags Mr. Fluette into this business, you will find that Burke's the one who has tangled him. Watch Burke."

Then the heavy steel door clanged to between us.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A Fight in the Dark

After the cell door closed upon Royal Maillot I returned at once to the house of tragedy, whose evil genius was promising to play havoc with the lives of so many of the living; and as I approached the bleak, austere old mansion something in its silent and inanimate exterior seemed to repulse my advance up the gravel walk. My steps lagged, and at last I drew to a halt.

Cold and clear and snappy as the day was, still there was something oppressive in the air that hung about the house of death. I looked at the lifeless windows. Staring vacantly, utterly expressionless of the swift-moving tragic drama that had been enacted behind them, failing to foreshadow what was yet to transpire here, they all at once brought forcibly to my mind Alexander Burke. Thus did his eyes hide, instead of disclose, the workings within.

That the mind of this man was secret and evil I could now no longer doubt. Felix Page had been a powerful man, physically and mentally; yet Alexander Burke, sly and impassive, soft-spoken and soft-footed, ever alert and observant and burrowing, like a mole, in darkness, had undermined him, and—the conviction grew—had brought about his cruel death.

In what way? What far-reaching machination was he so laboriously evolving? What snare was he casting unseen to bring down in ruin the lives of others? And why? Coward that he was, had he at no time worked in the broad light of day?

An unwelcome sense of depression was slowly weighing me down. It was as if the silent house were haunted. At the time, I was convinced that I was merely making a hodge-podge of the hundred and one clews that had come to my hands, though now I know that the whole vast scheme was gradually taking shape in my mind. I was bewildered by the wide diversity of the opposed interests, left powerless by failure to light upon a sure point of common interest defining the attitudes of the different actors. For to say that it was the ruby did not clear the fog any—unless I accepted the growing assurance that Alfred Fluette was the active instrument of death.

Still, every detail I had gathered was necessary to complete the circle. When finally I did have my case all in hand there was no single point that remained obscure.

My brooding inertia was dispelled by a shout from Stodger. He was standing on the front porch, regarding me with considerable curiosity.

"Hi! What you doing down there, Swift? Come here!"

I soon learned that he had something of interest to report.

"D'ye know, Swift," said he, with much seriousness, extending his chubby hands to the welcome warmth of the library fire, "it's an outrage—damme, if it isn't—that I'm so fat. H'm! Believe in ghosts?"

I was instantly all attention. Genevieve's terrifying experience was too recent and real for me to scout any supernatural suggestion of my colleague. I quickly asked:

"Seen anything aout the house?"

"Not in here. Outside. Couldn't chase 'em."

"I'm glad you are fat, then; who would have watched the house while you were chasing whatever it was you thought you saw?"

He clapped one hand on top of his bullet of a head, and stared at me in comical surprise.

"Say! You're right, Swift! You are, by George! First time I ever found a—ah—you know—a consolation in my—er my—my stoutness. [illegible] two shadows. Didn't get to see 'em [illegible]. All the time you were gone I could glimpse 'em now and then—first one place, then another—slipping and sliding through the bushes, trying to keep hid, y' know."

As may be imagined, I was profoundly interested.

"What did they look like?" I asked. Stodger shook his head. "Bushes too thick. No leaves; but they wouldn't come close enough for me to get a good look. H'm. Watching the house, all right."

The matter was serious enough, in all conscience. Our incessant vigilance [illegible] could [illegible] by the [illegible] of these [illegible] prowlers [illegible] long as [illegible] surreptitiously [illegible] to enter the house, my belief that the ruby lay hid somewhere beneath its roof was in a way confirmed.

Stodger was sagely nodding his head at me.

"To-night," he said, with meaning. "Bet anything you like."

"To-night," I thoughtfully echoed. "It would not surprise me in the least."

Although a close watch was maintained throughout the remainder of the day, we saw no more of the elusive "shadows." My arrival, manifestly, had frightened them away.

I put in a portion of the time until nightfall going carefully over the old house again, from cellar to roof. My purpose now was to ascertain whether there were any secret passages or concealed openings whereby we might be surprised; and my labors convinced me that there were none. The face which Genevieve saw at the alcove curtains could be easily accounted for, since, with the exception of Stodger, who was in the second story, and the officer in the lower hall, everybody in the house was assembled in the library, and, of course, completely absorbed in the inquest. It had been an easy matter to open one of the lower windows, or even one of the rear or side doors, and enter the house.

I found that the walls were all of an even, normal thickness, and there were no spaces between floors or walls for which I did not satisfactorily account. I also kept a watchful eye for the prototype of the designs on the cipher, but discovered nothing that was at all like them.

Otherwise the day proved to be wholly uneventful. I spent much time in consideration of my case, naturally; but this exercise yielded nothing more conclusive that that Alfred Fluette's place in it was assuming larger and larger proportions as time went by.

I was much impressed with Maillot's charge to watch Burke. But here again I was offered no new light. It was satisfying to know that another than myself was distrustful of the erstwhile secretary; but as for watching him—well, I knew that he was being subjected to a constant espionage that left nothing to be desired.

(To be continued.)

PRINCESS ZITA DUCHESS SOPHIE

A Struggle as to Which Will be Next Empress of The Austrian Dominions

The wedding of the Archduke Karl Franz-Joseph of Austria to Princess Zita of Parma, is the centre of a more elaborate web of romance and intrigue than any page of Dumas. The extremely plain-looking, but, one hears, gracious and pleasant bridegroom, is a pawn in a game in which the crown of Austria is the prize. The demure-faced little Princess Zita, young and smiling, is another. And everybody knows it.

When the famous Crown Prince Rudolph came to an untimely and mysterious end many years ago, the next claimant to the succession was Archduke Francis Ferdinand, a handsome and determined Prince. But his marriage with a charming lady-in-waiting, called Countess Sophie Chotech, stood in the way, because he refused to put her on one side as morganatic and, instead, insisted upon her right to share her husband's honors, and that of her children to succeed him. And long has the war waged between the Court and this most gallant husband.

Now they have married the young Karl Franz to a royal girl, and the old Emperor has declared this couple his successors. Meanwhile the charming Duchess of Hohenburg, as Francis Ferdinand's morganatic wife is called, is thought to have a tremendous hold over the affections of the people. Her very mystery aids her. She is named "The Invisible Duchess," as she keeps away regularly from all public functions and will not be trapped into doing anything committal of her dignity. Clever Duchess Sophie! Which pair will succeed? In the wedding photographs the old Emperor is looking most wickedly triumphant; if he were not a king one would say he was winking.

VICTORIA TUNNEL

Work on the Great "Bore" in Switzerland is Nearing Completion

Work on the Lotschberg Tunnel, in Switzerland, nine and a quarter miles long, is now nearly finished. Six years' labor have been spent upon it. The thousands of Italians who were employed on the work are already gradually departing, and one of their great colonies, Goppenstein, a forlorn village at the south portal of the Lotschberg will soon be deserted. The workmen who remain will be those engaged in constructing the great viaduct near the tunnel mouth. Not very far from the southern portal of the great tunnel is a small tunnel cut out of a huge boulder, which is supposed to bear a resemblance, somewhat fanciful, it is true, to the profile of the late Queen Victoria, whose name the tunnel bears. Originally it was intended to blast the boulder away, but as it was so well known as the "Victoria Rock" it was decided to bore through it instead, thus preserving its famous outline intact. At present the rock can be seen from the Rhone Valley, but when trains are running through the Lotschberg it will be much better seen from the carriage windows before passing through the Victoria tunnel. The finishing off of the great tunnel will be done by the Italian workmen in Kandersteg, at the north portal, so that in a month or two there will be no village of Goppenstein left. On the south approach line nothing more can be done except to complete the embankments. Next spring the rails will be laid, and the whole line will be ready for international traffic by the end of 1912, six months in advance of the contract time.

THE FIDDLE

by Joseph Jones

"You will go away from me, Constantia Morrow Vincent, and stay away when you get away, if that long legged lawyer pauper comes around here any more."

"I—I quite understand, Aunt Consyouth had married another woman

Connie, with her little basket half filled with the long-stemmed violets, a little way out from the town, suddenly come upon Sidney Olmstead, examining a high stone wall over which a suit was pending in court.

"Nothing will move her," she told him in answer to his eager question. "I—I've got to give you up, Siddie! If she knew I was speaking to you now she'd send me away forever. And —and—two miniature cataracts ran down her flushed cheeks—"I haven't any other home. I haven't anybody but Aunt Constantia!"

The young man's hazel eyes flushed. The map he was drawing fell in the grass as his arms went out and gathered up the white dress.

"You've got me," he asserted, "and I—just as soon as I get a little more work at the office I'll have a home for you, my sweet."

"I know," she sobbed again, "but you're forgetting your sister's three boys at college, Sid. They must come first, and it'll be a long time before— "Oh, Sid, if you were only Heath Bannister, she'd let us live with her."

In spite of herself Connie laughed at the ieda:Heath brings her accounts of buried treasure and old pictures and rare old violins and things that have made fortunes for these who found them. She really believes she's going to make a fortune in a 'find' some day. You couldn't make her believe otherwise. And Heath brings his best car too and takes Nugget, her Mexican dog, out riding."

Sidney ran his hand through his black hair. "And I—I have no poodle waggon! Never mind, Chickie, I'll keep out of her sight for a few weeks, and maybe something'll turn up."

But Connie turned her head. When she was out of sight Sidney's gay smile left him and he threw himself moodily down in the grass beside the stone wall.

"Those young spooners gone?" he heard an oily voice on the other side the stone wall. "Sert," another voice —a harsher one—answered. "Now while we're a restin' pard, put them educated wits of yours to work and think out somethin' to put two nigh deadbroke fellows on their feet again. Be careful how you kick them tan shoes out, in this ground ivy, too, while you're thinkin', or you'll bust my fiddle. Tain't much, but I guess we can get $3 for it to live on until somethin' else turns up after this five is gone. Think of somethin' not quite so risky as that game we played in the last town we stopped in. They come beastly nigh nabin' us back there, Doc. Good thing we shot out when we did."

The younger man, who was well dressed in a light gray suit, lay in silence for a few moments. "I've got it, Bill Seed!" Olmstead heard him say, finally, and the young lawyer listened to the details of an odd plan. When he finally slipped away there was a look little short of elation in his face.

The next morning Mrs. Morrow was interrupted in her study of a "book of valuable coins" that Heath Bannister had brought her by a strange caller named Addison Dockray, a young man, handsome, bland and with a tongue sweeter than honey. He explained that he was an agent of Myner & Allen, the great music house, He had heard she was a collector of violins. Perhaps she could put him on the track of the coveted instrument.

Mrs. Morris could not, but, when the agent was gone, her interest in the coins vanished and she lay awake half the night planning to make a personal search for the violin. Early next morning Heath Bannister stopped to call her attention to a paragraph in the morning paper, stating that a stone mason named William Seed, in a town in the next county, owned a fine violin, for which he had refused enormous sums.

At 9 o'clock a big framed elderly lady, with a suppressed air of excitement, appeared at the depot. A tall young man boarded the same train for Lombard the lady did. Before noon that day the cashier of the Whiting Bank received a telegram:

"Do not cash Mr. C. Morrow's cheque to William Seed. Fraud. Explanations.

"SIDNEY OLMSTEAD."

In less than an hour from the receipt of the telegram Sidney Olmstead stepped from an automobile in front of the bank. About 2 o'clock a plain, heavy-set man brought a cheque for $3,000, signed by Mrs. Morrow. The signature was genuine, but on a charge of swindling being brought against the man by Sidney Olmstead the cheque was laid aside and William Seed was remanded to the town jail.

That evening Mrs. Morrow, with eyes swollen from excessive weeping, burst into the parlor when Connie, her eyes shining, sat on a sofa beside a very bold and apparently happy young man.

"It's gone!" she moaned, "the three thousand I had in the bank is gone,.

She reeled and would have fallen had not Sidney's arms caught her.

"Oh, auntie," cried the girl, "the money's all safe. Tell her, Sid, tell her."

Mrs. Morrow listened to the young man's story of the overheard plot, and his subsequent proceedings.

"Why didn't you come to me first and warn me?" Mrs. Morrow reproached him.

"Would you have listened or believed me?" he asked.

"I might not," she confessed, wiping her eyes. "I—I hate to own it, but I'm an old fool, Sidney. I want somebody to look after me. Won't you come and live with Connie and me?"

"Of course," answered Sidney, with a boyish hug, and a kiss that brought a blush to the withered cheek.

Many a young man who starts out to become a self-made man makes a mistake in the selection of his pattern.

After a man has been married a few years he gets used to posing as a door mat.

The Naval Question

The hysterical outcry of The Montreal Star on the navy question, in which it accuses the press of Canada—irrespective of politics—of being "dishonest, unpatriotic and cowardly" because they do not urge an immediate contribution by Canada of two or more capital ships to the British navy, is unworthy of that great and powerful newspaper. The Star has evidently worked itself into a panic, which the great majority of Britons, whether at home or abroad do not feel, and its denunciation of those of its contemporaries who do not share its imaginary fears can have no result other than that of making of it a laughing stock to the sane people of this country.

To say, as does The Star, that the newspapers are "paid" to act the part of "sentinels upon the watch-tower" is a wholly gratuitous aspersion on its contemporaries, which reflects, if it will consider for a moment, upon itself. There are, possibly, among the many papers which are published in Canada, a few which are actuated in their editorial conduct by unworthy or even mercenary motives; but they are simply the black sheep of the flock.

True, the policy of naval defence upon which the Laurier Government had entered was wholly inadequate to the requirements of the situation, but that policy has been repudiated by the Borden Government, who will, before making a definite announcement on the subject, confer with the Imperial authorities; and their determination will, we having perfect confidence, receive the endorsation of the people of Canada.

The motive for The Star's frantic appeal we are at a loss to understand. Germany having no ally whose naval strength would enable her to cope with Great Britain alone for the mastery of the seas, is not likely to take any aggressive steps, more particularly in face of the alliance to which France and Russia are parties; therefore, nothing can be lost by a short delay. Indeed, all things considered, delay for a few months may be advantageous in view of the constant improvements which are being made in naval designs and in guns and armor, an highly instructive article on which will be found in another column.

The Intelligencer opposed the Laurier policy of a "baby navy" and the Bourassa programme of "no navy," but it is equally opposed to any attempt to embarrass the Borden Government by attempting to dictate what course they shall pursue on this highly important question. The Government have declared that they will be prepared, after conference with the Imperial authorities, to formulate a policy, and as that conference will be held at an early date, it is but right and proper that all who aided in defeating the Laurier scheme should await with patience the formulation of the Government's programme. Our rulers will come into possession of information, as the result of that conference, which cannot be gained by others, and every true British Canadian should refrain from embarrassing them by what, in the vernacular of the day, is called "butting in."

TAXATION INAUSTRIA

By Levying Higher Rates, State Employes Will be Better Paid.

A financial programme whereby taxes will be considerably raised is about to be introduced by the Austrian Government, in order to meet the increased requirements of the army and navy, and to give State officials and employes on the State railroads pay corresponding with the the present exorbitant prices of foodstuffs.

A progressive income tax to be raised is expected to yield $2,500,000. The tax on incomes from $250 to $2,000 remains unchanged, but on incomes exceeding this amount a tax from 2½ to 6½ per cent. is imposed, whereas hitherto 5½ per cent. was the maximum.

Bachelors, spinsters, and childless widows, who have to provide only for themselves will have to pay, beside the normal tax corresponding to their incomes, an extra 15 per cent., whilst taxpayers, who beside themselves, provide only for one person—for instance, a childless couple—will have to pay ten per cent. extra.

REWARD FOR INVENTORS.

The Dowager Empress of Russia has given a sum of $50,000 the interest on which is to be employed to reward inventors of the best methods of removing combatants from the field of battle to the camp hospitals in the rear of the army.

Pigs From All Quarters

Old prints, old books, old anything, postcards or paintings, are all fit subjects to form a collection. But one of the most curious, and one of the most interesting collections is a museum of pigs.

Not live pigs, mind you, but model ones. For some years now the wife of mine host of the Green Man Hotel, at Blackheath, London, has been gathering together a wondrous assortment of model pigs. There are pigs in pewter, china, and ivory, earthenware, silver, and gun-metal; pigs that stand a foot high, and pigs that measure less than half an inch over all; pigs in fancy-dress, and pigs in clover; as paper-knives, inkstands, or ash-trays. In every form and shape there are pigs.

They have come from all over the world, and practically every country is represented. People have stayed at the hotel, admired the collection, and later from some far-away spot has come a pig.

How many there are it would be difficult to say. Many a time has their owner begun to number them, but lost count.

ARABI PASHA.

When the late Arabi Pasha received his pardon ten years ago, and was permitted to return to Egypt, he was very grateful. He expressed a hope that he would be able to come to England to pay his respects to the King, and thank those who had helped him, but that hope was never realised. It is understood that it was on the recommendation of Lord Cromer that the exiled rebel was allowed to return to his native land, and the liberty accorded him does not appear in any way to have been abused. Arabi had sixteen children in exile with him in Ceylon, and the $250 allowance per month which he received from the Egyptian government he used to say was scarcely sufficient to provide for his large family.

How Garibaldi Died.

A book recently published thus describes the death of Garibaldi: "The end came in his white house at Caprera, on a June ev[illegible] in 1882. The old sailer, farmer [illegible] fighter was propped up on the [illegible]ws to watch for the last time the sunlight gliding the waves and the granite rocks. While his life was slowly ebbing out, two little birds whom he had taught not to fear him fluttered in from the moor, and sat chirping on the window-sill. The attendants were about to drive them away, lest they should disturb him, when that voice was heard once more by men, bidding them let the little birds come in, and always feed them after he was gone. And then the old warrior turned his face to the wall and quietly passed away."

LOST VITALITY
Caused by Kidney, Stomach and Bowel Disorders

St. John, N.B., Sept. 18th, 1911. —My brother was a great sufferer from kidney, stomach and bowel troubles and was given up by two doctors. He was advised to try your Fig Pills, which he did, and after taking five boxes was completely restored to health and is better to-day than he has been for years. You can't recommend Fig Pills too highly.

THE TIMID PENDULUM

Once upon a time a clock-maker was making a clock, setting each wheel into its proper place, and fitting the different parts together. The pendulum was lying on the table beside him, waiting for its turn, and it passed the time in making a calculation of how long it would be before the great wheels of the clock were worn out and its own work done.

"Of course, I shall go on ticking as long as these wheels last," said the pendulum; "I shall be expected to tick so many times to the minute and sixty times that to the hour. I shall never rest day or night, so that I must tick twenty-four hours instead of lying still and sleeping peacefully through a few of them. Then there are 365 days in one year alone, and the clock will probably last good for at least seventy years. If I had a pencil I would put it all down, but I can't do multiplication in my head. Millions of ticks, I'm sure, if not billions! I can never do it," and the poor unhappy pendulum sighed deeply.

"But surely you can do one tick at a time?" asked the clockmaker kindly.

"Oh, yes, that's a very simple matter," answer the pendulum.

"Well," said the clockmaker, "that is all you will ever have to do really," and he hung the pendulum in its place, taking care to make it quite comfortable, because it is more important to get properly settled on a hook than on a chair, and it sets to work steadily ticking.

"Now, if I were you," advised the clockmaker, "I should not count 'One, two, three, four,' because if you do happen to think of something else you'll get wrong. You will find it ever so much safer to say, 'Tick, tack, tick, tack,' that gets to be second nature in time and I can promise you will never go wrong." So the pendulum took his advice and went on steadily ticking one tick at a time, and it is ticking yet quite cheerfully, undaunted by any rows of figures either before or behind.

CHORUS GIRL SPRINGS CHARGE THAT STOKES WAS DANGEROUS MAN

Says Sister Told Her She Suspected Hotelman in Connection with Al. Adams' Death—Story will be Investigated—Says She was Afraid of Him when She Shot—Also that He had Threatened Her—Her Story of the Shooting

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—There was no marked change to-day in the condition of W. E. D. Stokes, the millionaire hotelman, although it was said at his home that he had passed a restful night. It is doubtful that he will be able to attend the trial of the two show girls whom he charges with trying to kill him, when it is resumed on Monday. The trial adjourned yesterday afternoon with Miss Lillian Graham under cross-examination on the stand, where she spent most of the day telling her story.

Miss Graham's assertion in the witness chair that she was afraid of Stokes because her sister told her she had good reason to believe that he murdered Al. Adams, the former "Policy King," who died at the Hotel Ansonia, was informally brought to the attention of District Attorney Whitman by his assistant, who is conducting the prosecution of Miss Graham and Ethel Conrad; and Mr. Whitman made this statement: "At the proper time an inquiry will be made to determine the truth of the statement and its bearing upon the verdict of the coroner's jury in the Adams case."

Stokes' attorney declared that the girl's insinuation was "pure tommyrot." The jury that investigated Adams' death on Oct. 1, 1907, brought in a verdict of suicide without leaving their seats.

The declaration yesterday came when Miss Graham was asked if her sister Mrs. Stella Singleton, has ever talked to her about Stokes.

"She told me that I should be very, very careful and not see him any more than I had to," replied the witness under oath, "because he was a very dangerous man, and not to trust him. She told me, too, not to enrage him because she had good reason to believe that he had murdered Al. Adams.

"On the same night that Mr. Adams was murdered she saw Mr. Stokes come out of a back entrance of the Ansonia between eleven and twelve o'clock. She said that Mr Stokes had said next morning that the had been in bed at eight o'clock the night before. She said that when she opened the door she saw Mr. Stokes rushing downstairs muttering something."

The point Miss Graham later made was that when she shot Stokes, while, as she alleged, he was choking her, the story about Adams flashed through her mind.

Prompted by the soothing, gentle tone of her counsel, C. L. Jordan, the young woman sobbed her replies to questions which covered her girlhood in California, and came gradually up to her relations with Stokes. These made up a story of her having been lured to Stokes' stock farm and of her having been detained there for two nights and forced to sign self-defamatory letters releasing him from responsibility in order to be allowed to go away in peace.

She declared the letters were written in Lexington before she left and that Mr. Stokes made her write them, on the threat that he would write to her wealthy brother-in-law and tell him that she had been there and forced herself upon him. The statements in the letter, she said, were not true.

She testified that during her acquaintance with Stokes he paid her $1,200, which, she asserted, fell $500 short of $1,700, which, she said, she had earlier given him for investment, and which he had reported did not turn out well.

She told of meeting Ethel Conrad last April, and that the Conrad girl bore tales of defamatory things that Stokes had said about her (Miss Graham).

The questioning then came as to the shooting itself. She told the story of this in rapid, tremulous phrases, denying positively that she had invited Stokes to her apartment on the night of June 7.

Miss Graham sought refuge in her handkerchief, and when she lifted her head she was asked what Stokes had said:

"He said, 'My God, I came here after my letters, and I'm not going to leave without them.'"

"Did he say anything more that you haven't told us?" continued her attorney.

"When he took me by the throat, he said: 'You won't have to commit suicide when I get through with you.'"

Miss Graham denied the very different circumstances which Stokes had previously related of their threats to kill him and demands for money.

With the cross-examination the witness seemed to regain her composure and Assistant District Attorney Buckner, in an inviting tone, asked:

"Miss Graham, are these tears that you have shed at this trial genuine tears of shame, or only tears of self-pity?"

"I don't think we will call upon this witness to characterize any tears she has shed," interposed Justice Marcus.

Mr. Buckner pointed out that she "laughed and giggled" at the magistrate's hearing, and continued: "Even during this trial when the jury was out of the room you have laughed and chatted, have you not?"

Justice Marcus sustained an objection to this, and declared an adjournment until to-day.

Dizzy Headaches Cured in One Night

IF TROUBLED WITH HEAD FULLNESS RINGING NOISES, SPECKS BEFORE THE EYES THE STOMACH IS AT FAULT.

"I had terrible pains in my head. My appetite faded away, and when I did eat anything it disagreed and made me very sick for hours after each meal. The active pains in my stomach and the dizzy headaches I had to endure almost set one wild. Sometimes attacks came on so severely that I had to go to bed. I would feel so worn, depressed and utterly miserable that for hours I wou'dn't speak to my family. My system was poisoned with wastes and nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Without this grand system cleaning remedy I would be sick but each day brought me better health and spirits. PELLETIER BANQUETED.

Postmaster-General Is Honored by Citizens of Quebec.

Quebec, Dec. 11.—Flashing from the large dining hall of the Chateau Frontenac on Saturday afternoon was the electric design of a letter. It bore the address: "Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General, Chateau Frontenac, Quebec." It bore the regulation postmark and stamp, and was surrounded with brilliant lights.

The dining hall presented a brilliant appearance and the assemblage of guests to do honor to Hon. L. P. Pelletier, who was the guest of honor at a dinner given him by his admirers in this district, was one of the greatest ever held in Quebec, over four hundred guests being present. The dinner was marked by the attendance of a number of Federal Ministers, including Hon. Messrs. Sam Hughes, Birrell and Nantel, and Mr. Tellier, leader of the Opposition in the Provincial House, besides many prominent Conservatives from all over the province. Hon. Thomas Chapais presided.

Referring to the naval question, Hon. Mr. Pelletier said that Mr. Borden's announcement had been made loyally and frankly to the House to the effect that Laurier's naval policy had been abandoned, that they would have to keep the Niobe and Rainbow, as the former Government had purchased them, but that the ten other vessels would not be constructed. There was no necessity of having a plebiscite to decide the question, as all the Cabinet agreed to abandon the policy of the Laurier Cabinet on that point.

Other toasts were those of "Canada," proposed by Armand Lavergne and C. H. Cahan, and responded to by the Federal Ministers. A. Sevigny, M.P., proposed the toast to the Province of Quebec, and Mr. Tellier, M.P.P., responded.

FALLS AS A FONT.

Niagara Is Scene of Christening of Indian Babe.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 11.—With America's greatest waterfall as the baptismal font, a little Indian princess was christened in the natural tunnel under the Horseshoe Falls on Saturday afternoon. The christening was the second that has taken place in the tunnel, the little princess' grandfather, Oghema Niagara, "Chief Thunderwater," being the first child ever to be christened beneath the mighty flow of water.

Although the parents of the child are pagans, the ceremony was performed by a christian minister, Rev. George Hares, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. Church, officiating. The eleven months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Keokuk Palmer, Cleveland, Ohio, was given the name Mahonicee, "Morning Beauty." Aupawchee kaupaw-qua, "Woman - whose - name-shall-never-die," Keokuk Palmer. The party including about fifteen Indians of the Sioux-Fox tribe, descended into the tunnel under the falls shortly after 4 o'clock. The little princess will be christened within a month according to the faith of her pagan parents.

After christening the child, the party went to a point overlooking the Horseshoe Falls and listened to an address by Oghoma Niagara, Chief Thunderwater, whose English name is Henry Palmer. He declared the child would be taught both christian and pagan religions, and would be allowed to choose for herself which she would follow when she reached the age of seventeen.

Must Help Britain.

Ottawa, Dec. 11.—"Canada to-day has world-wide interests and she must, in the interest of her own trade and commerce and to preserve her own prosperity, help to maintain the supremacy of the British fleet, which affects her commercial well-being just as much as that of England or any other part of the Empire."

So spoke J. Norton Griffiths, M.P., of the British House of Commons, and a celebrated British contractor and capitalist, who is in the capital en route from Vancouver.

While here he will interview the Government in regard to the construction of the St. John harbor, for which his firm tendered.

"We are ready for an immediate start and hope to get permission to make one from the Government," he stated. Another Canadian project with which Mr. Griffiths is connected is the scheme of the Duke of Sutherland to establish English people on Canadian farms while he has also an eye to and an interest in Canadian progress in general.

Robbers Raid Pool Room.

New York, Dec. 11.—Five masked robbers burst into a pool room on Broadway, Brooklyn, late Saturday, and at the point of revolvers lined up forty men whose pockets they rifled in real wild west fashion.

The intrusion of the men was without warning, and their gunplay immediately caused a panic among the pool players. With guns in both hands the robbers soon had control of the situation and in less time than it takes to tell it, they had made the men give up watches and jewelry and money to the extent of $200 or more.

While the robbery was going on, one of the men in the room managed to escape and gave a police alarm which brought the reserves from a nearby station. The officers surrounded the building and caught two of the masked men as they were bolting out of the front door. Three of the robbers escaping by plunging headlong through the glass sash of the rear windows to the backyard.

Italians Are Expelled.

Constantinople, Dec. 11.—The Constantinople papers announce that the Turkish Government has decided to expel most of the Italians from the Gallipoli Peninsula, the territory around the Dardanelles and Smyrna. It is understood that the expulsion will become operative first in all fortified places.

Smyrna, Dec. 11.—The police authorities have issued orders for the departure of all Italians from this district within five days.

OFFERED TO SELL JOBS.

Montreal Men Are on Trial on Charge of Swindling.

Montreal, Dec. 11.—Sensational evidence was given by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, K.C., ex-Postmaster-General and ex-Minister of Marine, in the police court before Judge Lanctot on Saturday, in the case of Lucien Jeannette and Felix Jette, who have been arrested charged with obtaining money under false pretences by selling Government positions at Ottawa.

Pierre Martel, 33 St. Ambroise street, St. Henri, appeared through his counsel, Severin Letourneau, K.C., against Jeannette and Jette.

Martel, in his disposition, states that he gave $115 to Jeannette and $145 to Jette, to purchase a good position in the Government at Ottawa.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, K.C., took the stand against the prisoners and was questioned by Mr. Letourneau. Mr. Lemieux swore that he did not know the prisoner, and so far as he knew, had received no letters from him. A number of telegrams produced were declared to be rank forgeries. The ex-Postmaster-General declared that they had neither been signed by him nor by any of his employes at Ottawa. The only persons authorized to sign correspondence, he said, were his private secretary, Mr. Evarette, and certain assistant secretaries in the Department.

Mr. Lemieux gave evidence to the effect that he had never authorized any party to offer positions under such circumstances.

The evidence showed that Martel got telegrams every few days from Ottawa, demanding money and assuring him that he would be placed by Mr. Lemieux in a short time.

Previous to the general elections, the telegrams were signed by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Hon. R. Brodeur, Minister of Marine, and other Ministers, as well as two fictitious names, L. Anorie, K.C., and Albert Laurenrau. As soon as the new Ministers were sworn in, telegrams were received in Montreal from Ottawa, alleged to have been signed by Hon. Geo. E. Foster and others.

Mr. Lemieux stated that the swindle had been conducted on the wholesale plan, but that many dozen men who had been duped, had succeeded in getting their money back.

Owing to the absence of several important witness, the further hearing of the trial had to be postponed until Dec. 21.

HOW THE BLIND READS

The System Was Brought About By An Act of Charity on the Part of Valentine Hauy To Beggar.

How did the blind learn to read? It was in this way.

A man named Valentine Hauy, who for a long time had wondered how he could bring happiness to these unfortunate people, was one day walking through an out-of-the-way boulevard, when he came upon a blind beggar.

Touched by the helpless sorrow of the man, he put his hand in his pocket and gave him a piece of money. But he had hardly taken a step forward when the beggar, an honest man, called him back.

"Surely, sir," he said, "you have made a mistake; you have given me a crown instead of a penny."

The astonished giver asked the beggar how he had been able to quickly to detect the different value of the money.

"Oh," said the beggar, "it is enough for me to pass my finger over it."

This was like a flash of light.

"If the blind," thought Hauy, as he continued his walk, "can distinguish at the least touch a piece of money, why should they not distinguish by the same means a letter, a figure, a mark — in short, any sign whatever so long as it is raised?"

On this foundation he set to work, and presently invented a method for teaching the blind to read. His first pupil was a blind boy whom he rescued from begging at a church door. This boy learned with astonishing quickness to read by means of raised letters. Very soon Valentine Hauy was able to show his pupil in public, and the sight of a child reading with his fingers excited the greatest surprise and admiration.

When his method was perfected, he appealed to the public for funds to carry on his work, and, thanks to the subscriptions which came to him from all sides, Hauy was soon able to open the first institute for teaching the blind to read.

SAVE THE BABIES

Sea Water Injection Is Cure for Infantile Cholera and Thousands of Children Have Been Saved By New Method.

A new cure has been found for infantile cholera, that dread complaint which wipes out so many young lives during the summer. The hot European summer, which has recently ended, claimed a toll of babies, and the new method was given an ample testing in London and Paris with what are claimed to have been excellent results.

Dr. Quintin, a Parisian philanthropist, was the discoverer of the new method, which is composed of carefully determined doses of modified sea water injected under the little infant's skin, and during the past five years thousands of children have been satisfactorily treated. The system was introduced into London by the generosity of Mr. Otto Beit, and a large Polyclinic was opened, at which the children were treated. So successful were the results that many of the provincial hospitals also introduced the treatment with equal satisfaction.

The preparation is not a patent medicine, and, it is stated, can be prepared by any chemist, and a number of local ladies interested in child welfare are now in communication with the London officials with the idea of getting the treatment established in Montreal ready for next summer.

RANGER, THE WOLVERENE

By Stanley Waterloo

Author of the Story of "Ab, the Night Hawk", etc.

How few there are who know the wolverene! It is a wild animal apart, defiant, wisest among the crafty and, above all, proudest among the proud. Read but the curious story of one of the stern race. This particular wolverene, as befitted his high lineage was born in a castle. The castle was the dead, leaning stub of a buttonwood tree, at least four feet across and had in it a great hollow some ten feet from the ground. There was an entrance to this hollow and at its bottom was a soft bed of all sorts of leaves which had blown in throughout the autumns.

It was warm and rudely homelike in the castle of the wolverenes. In this excellent retreat was born the cub who, for the sake of individuality, may be called Ranger, for a ranger of importance he certainly became.

And the cub flourished and became a brawny though agile creature and then the law of the woods exerted itself. He was forced from the protecting hollow and taught by his resolute parents all the secrets of the chase and ways of his daring, guileful kind. Next came the parting.

Had the mother been a human being she would doubtless have advised her son thus on this occasion: "Remember, always, who you are! Our blood is bluer than that of 'all the Howards' or the Hapsburgs or of any other living animal.

But who can foretell any sort of future! The Ranger, though strong and brave, was young. Within a month he had invaded a clearing, where he was assailed by two huge dogs, driven in self defense to shelter in the log barn and there finally overcome when beaten into insensibility by the settler and his hired man. A brass dog's collar studded with nails — placed there "to make the beast look civilized," the laughing settler said — was about his neck when he fully recovered consciousness and he found himself in a stout pen of logs.

The settler's buxom wife, always bearing a laughing baby in her arms, fed the prisoner regularly and, strangely enough the child seemed to attract him.

The fondness of the wolverene for the child was a puzzle to them for many weeks, and then they thought no longer! Tearing his way through a rotten log one night, the Ranger made his escape.

He was a gentleman adventurer at large again. He rioted among the rabbits. He found an admirable mate and lived althogether a gallant and daring liege. It was months later when he was somehow, attracted to the clearing again. Could the memory of the child have drawn him?

It was late in the afternoon when the Ranger and his mate glided silently across the clearing and by the house and reached the sheltering bushes between the house and barn. Then, by one of the strangest of strange happenings, they came upon a scene which checked them stiffly in their tracks! Toward a little thicket at the side of the yard a child — the child, a little older, of the Ranger's memory — was toddling happily, but that alone was not what had brought the wolverene to such sudden halt.

Crouched in the thicket was a great Canada lynx, and its glaring eyes were upon the approaching little one. The child came nearer; the lynx gathered itself for the spring, and then — the Ranger did not himself know why — the wolverene launched himself forward in leap after leap and was upon the savage beast — one heavier and as fierce as he.

There was a [illegible]dy grapple, the lynx seeking the [illegible]ger's throat, but the collar and steep spikes withstood it and the Ranger found his enemy's throat in turn. There was a rending of skin and flesh, a jugular vein was torn open and the great lynx weakened suddenly and sank downward, with the wolverene attempting to struggle from underneath.

Summoned by the wild clamor of snarls and growls the settler and his wife came rushing from the house, the man grasping his rifle. It was unraised in an instant and leveled upon the gasping wolverene, when the woman, who had seized the shrieking baby in her arms, cried out in protesting wonderment:

"Don't shoot, John! It's our own wolverene — and he has saved the baby!"

Suddenly revived, the Ranger leaped away, rejoining his alarmed mate, who has fled to the nearest wood. He could not understand nor explain at all to himself the cause of his late action, but he knew that he'd had a fight quite worthy of his kind. Then fast and far he went with his companion.

Such is the story of the Ranger of the Canadian valley. He had ways of his own. What better description could be given of the wolverene than that which a great authority has applied: "The animal is noted for its voracity, ferocity and sagacity." Could any one pay to a splendid race a greater compliment than that!

Many a man passes the age of discretion before reaching it.

HIS BRIDE.

The Romance of a Convent.

When Pastukhin, captain in a Russian cavalry regiment, heard that Irma Mazlenikoff had been placed in the Convent of the Passion at Simbirski, he vowed to effect her release. That he, her lover, should be debarred from entering the convent drove the captain nearly to distraction. However, he found consolation in the thought that Irma was ever thinking of him, and knew that sooner or later he would devise a plan for her escape.

One morning a buzz of excitement ran through the convent. From nun to nun and student to student it was whispered that the good Sister Superior had received an important letter from the Holy Synod at St. Petersburg. On the morrow, it announced, Father Solovieff would be pleased to pay the convent an official visit of inspection.

Many eyes peered at the good father as he drove up in a carriage drawn by three splendid horses. But if the good father was pompous in coming, he was charming in manner, and delighted the heart of the Sister Superior by his praise of the order and discipline that marked her regime.

In the afternoon Father Solovieff announced that he must examine all the students of the convent, so that he should be able to carry a thorough report of the convent to St. Petersburg, both as to its conduct condition, and learning. Naturally such an unlooked-for request created a flutter of excitement among the students. But everyone agreed, from the humblest nun to the Sister Superior herself, that there could not possibly be a nicer priest in the world than Father Solovieff; and, besides, there was no reason to fear that he would find the students lacking in lerrning.

So one by one the students entered the examination room and there were examined in their studies by the good father. And one by one each emerged full of the praise that he had bestowed on them. He was the most charming father who had ever inspected the monastery! After the examination Father Solovieff made his report to the Sister Superior. The teaching in the convent he declared was excellent. All the students had done well. But there was one who had far and away excelled all the others. This student was Irma Mazlenikoff. She, the good father informed the Sister Superior, was far too advanced for the learning of the convent, and he had decided to remove her at once, and to place her in the famous Convent of the Kremlin at Moscow.

Flattered by such praise, the Sister Superior bade Irma Mazlenikoff farewell.

A few days later the papers announced the marriage of Captain Pastukhin to Irma Mazlenikoff, and the good nuns of the Convent of the Passion nearly died of horror when they learned how they had been deluded by the charming "Father Solovieff."

But the other fellow's job always looks so much easier than ours.

THE AMAZING CAREER OF TWO FRENCH SWINDLERS

How French Koepenick in Gorgeous Uniform Fooled Granville—A Charmer of the Fair Sex—Son of a Nantes Schoolmaster, He Led an Adventurous Life in Many Lands Before His Capture

At Granville further particulars of the doings of the strange individual who has been arrested for playing the part of a Capt. Koepenick there are now to hand, and they show the facility with which simple-minded people can be ruled by means of a little assurance. When, on alighting at a quiet hotel with two girls, he presented his card to the landlady and her sister they were in a state of mind bordering on ecstasy. This was what the worthy women read: "Auguste Durand de Bellefond de Gourney, Colonial Administrator of the First Class, Doctor of Law, Knight of the Legion of Honor, charged with a mission en disponsibilite." They thought that their fortunes were made. Here was a piece of luck. One of the girls was 16, and her he introduced as his wife. The other was 14, and she was presented as his sister-inlaw. Two rooms were taken for the accommodation of the party, which was increased the next day by a couple whom the grand visitor introduced as his wife's parents.

It was on the afternoon of August 31 that the great Auguste arrived at Granville, and soon afterward he was strutting about in a marvellous uniform, and astonishing the natives. His fame spread rapidly all over the town, and groups gathered in the streets to admire him as he passed along. Soon he made the acquaintance of the principal inhabitants, and instructed a notary to purchase an estate for a colonial establishment, with, as he said, the fullest approval of the Government. Wonderful notices containing appeals for assistance in this grand enterprise were inserted in various newspapers, and after long negotiations an arrangement was concluded for the purchase of a farm for 80,000 francs. Not a sou was paid down, but the party took up their abode there on September 26.

Three superb saddle horses were seen in the stables pending the addition of cattle, for which an order was also given. Striking uniforms also were made. No suspicion that anything was wrong entered anybody's mind until various tradespeople who had been supplying goods on a rather large scale on credit expressed a wish to have their money. One of them, disappointed at having been put off several times, took it into his head to write to the sub-prefect of the district, with the result that a police commissionary was dispatched to the estate. He arrived there at the very moment when Auguste was returning from a ride. In the conversation which ensued the self-styled Colonial Administrator was utterly unable to give a satisfactory acount of himself, so his arrest followed promptly.

It must, however, be admitted that some of the people who were so easily taken in had some excuse after all. A couple of cars containing gunpowder had arrived at Granville addressed to the Administrator General. There was no such person in the town and no one knew what to do with the consignment until a postman bethought him of the great Auguste and took him the letter. Auguste eagerly seized the golden opertupnity and got a detachment of soldiers to guard the cars, and when the proper official appeared at the station he was there to receive his acknowledgments. This episode served as an introduction to the officers of the regiment, whom he joined while it was engaged on manoeuvres, and he actually rode in state by the side of a general.

A very respectable family in the district had lost a son in the catastrophe of the Liberte, and, attired in his gorgeous uniform, Auguste called to tender the condolence of the Government.

His record is a remarkable narrative of successful swindling. He was born at Nantes in January, 1876, where his father was headmaster of the local lycee. When Cognel had completed his military service he obtained an appointment as a clerk in the Prefecture of the Seine. This modest office was not at all in keeping with his ambitions, and after a few years he cleared out, leaving his wife and two children destitute. He next appeared at Mans, where he set up as a banker with funds supplied to him by the wife of a country lawyer. He bought a fine chateau, and, as at Granville, he forgot to pay for it. Here he set up a great establishment and gave splendid parties, which helped to bring numerous customers to the bank. Then one fine day he suddenly disappeared, leaving a deficit of nearly 2,000,000 francs. A warrant was out for his arrest at the time.

Unfortunately the police officers sent to apprehend him were not acquainted with his appearance, and, as luck would have it, the first person they asked for information was the man they wanted. He took the hint and drove away in his motor car. His next appearance was as a Count, under which title he bought a villa at Achees, near the forest of St. Germain. Here he resumed his splendid entertainments and soon had a number of wealthy people, including the usual foolish women with money, in his net. Presently suspicions were aroused, and M. le Comte, getting wind of what was afoot, fled with several hundred thousand francs that had been intrusted to him for investment by his dupes.

After this he transferred his activities abroad for a while and operated in Italy, Greece and Turkey with considerable success. The French police, however, at last got on his track and he was arrested on a steamer bound for Salonika and brought back to France, where he was tried and sentenced to a couple of years' imprisonment. Shortly after his release he managed to start another bank, combined with a life insurance and investment society in Paris. This enterprise brought in a fine haul, and with his pockets well lined he again disappeared. A few months afterward he was caught at Geneva and sentenced to another term of imprisonment.

Several similar escapades followed his release, and he was again apprehended. This time, however, he got off. He asked the police in charge of him to be allowed to go to his room to change his clothes. The process seemed to take a long time and when the simple-minded constables looked into the bedroom the bird had flown. His latest enterprise was his colonial scheme at Granville, where, among his other successes, he managed to wheedle an inspector of the detective department out of $3,000.

At the police court the magistrate remarked that the prisoner's face seemed to be familiar to him.

"Very likely," was the imperturbable reply. "I have met many people in my time." Then the prisoner pleaded that this time he had really intended to conduct an honest business in training young men for the colonial service, but the court expressed some skepticism on this point. Cognel was hurt at this harsh view of his conduct, and, turning in tears to his lawyer, exclaimed: "You, whom at least I can trust, tell me that Madeleine (his latest victim) still loves me, and I shall be happy." The lawyer, a matter-of-fact man, did not give him any satisfaction on this momentous point, but instead suggested to the court that it might be advisable to inquire into the mental state of the prisoner.

BASEBALL, CHECKERS, FOOTBALL

Baseball Expert Maintains that Football is the Greatest Game Known.

Christy Mathewson, the "Big Gun" of the Giants, is supposed to favor two pastimes in the realm of sport. The first of these is baseball, the next checkers, in both of which Christy is a champion.

But, on the other hand, neither baseball nor the game of checkers holds the highest spot in Christy's esteem. Despite the fact that he has achieved the highest niche in all pitching halls of fame, the Giant star picks football as the greatest game he ever played.

"I'd rather play one good game of football," Matty replied to a query along this line, "than a dozen games of baseball, checkers, or anything else. I'm not knocking baseball. It's a great old game, and has done more than its share for me. But for all that I've never drawn the thrill nor the pleasure from it I used to get in a moleskin suit while hitting a line or taking a shot at the goal in a tight pinch."

A cynic is surprised to find that an article in a contemporary, headed "What Woman Wants," only runs to a short half-column.

Cures While You Sleep

Men Go Back.

Berlin, Dec. 7.—The lockout of metal workers which began on Nov. 30 and affected between 50,000 and 60,000 men ceased yesterday. A majority of the strikers were opposed to a compromise between the masters and men, which was drawn up on Tuesday, but as a technical ruling of the trade unions requires a two-thirds' majority to reject compromise proposals and to refuse to return to work, and this majority was not obtained, the lockout has come to an end.

Turks Attack Bulgarians.

Constantinople, Dec. 7.—Serious rioting has taken place at Istib, a town in European Turkey, about 90 miles north of Saloniki, consequent on the bomb outrage in a mosque there on Dec. 4, when 12 persons were killed and 20 wounded.

The Turks in revenge attacked the Bulgarians, whom they accused of being the perpetrators of the outrage, killing 14 and wounding 157 of them in the affray.

Princess Pat at Halifax.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 7.—The steamer, Empress of Ireland, aboard of which is the Princess Patricia, is not likely to reach Halifax before seven o'clock to-night. In order to reach port at this hour the steamship must make 18 miles per hour, which she is likely to do. The Princess Patricia will leave by the eight o'clock train Friday morning. The car Cornwall will be reserved for the princess' use.

Fire In Gas Works.

Woodstock, Ont., Dec. 7.—Fire broke out in the gas works last night. Before it was extinguished by the fire department several hundred dollars' damage was done. There was danger from explosion for a time, and many barrels of oil in a woodyard nearby narrowly escaped burning.

Four Killed In Wreck.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 7.—Four men were killed and a score injured, a number of them seriously, shortly before eight o'clock yesterday morning in a wreck of two freights and an express train on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Devil's Bend, one-half mile east of Manor, Pa.

ONE HUNDRED PERISH

Mine Horror Takes Terrible Toll at Briceville, Tenn.

After Thirty-Six Hours' Battling With the Poisonous Gases, Eight Bodies Are Taken From the Pit of the Cross Mountain Colliery — Thousands Flock to Scene of Disaster—Rescuers' Heroic Work.

Briceville, Tenn., Dec. 11.—Somewhere in the depths of the Cross Mountain Coal Mine probably 100 men lie dead to-day, while their sorrow-stricken families keep vigil at the mouth of their tomb, hoping against hope that their loved ones may be alive when rescuers reach them.

Eight torn and mangled bodies had been brought forth at nightfall when search was abandoned for the day. Outside of the immediate families of the entombed men, no one in this little mountain village believes that any living thing in the mine has survived the terrific explosion of coal dust that wrecked the workings Saturday morning.

Seven of those removed were identified yesterday as follows: Lee Polston, Eugene Ault, Taylor Ault, Roland Early, W. A. Farmer, Herman Sharp, James Foust.

The eighth was thought to be Alonso Wood, a youth of 18 years, but his identity was not positively made.

For more than thirty-six hours every surviving miner in this region has toiled with no thought of food, sleep or pay, to remove the debris and force fresh air into the innermost recesses of the mine. Last night they practically had penetrated to the main entry head nearly three miles in. To-day they expect to be ready to work the cross-entries, in which the great mass of bodies undoubtedly were cast by the force of the blast.

Black-damp developed yesterday and stopped progress for a time, but soon the silent forces pushed dauntlessly on, some of them till they were carried out overcome by the noxious gases.

Thousands of the morbidly curious flocked into Briceville yesterday and crowded about the main entry of the mine. They saw nothing but the pitiable grief of the stricken families. There is hardly a family in the entire Coal Creek Valley that has not felt the touch of death. The problem of caring for the widows and orphans will be a grave one, requiring immediate solution. Certainly Briceville will be unable to care for her living with most of her wage-earners numbered among the dead.

Last night food was scarce, but plentiful supplies are promised by tonight from Knoxville. So far there has been little physical suffering among families of those who lost their lives.

It has been impossible to get any authentic figures on the exact number of men in the mine when the explosion occurred. Mine officials have given out no statement, and it is impossible to get any check on the men who went to work Saturday morning. That it is more than a hundred it seems certain, and that all are dead seems almost as certain.

Work of rescue moved slowly yesterday, partly because most of the entombed men are believed to be two miles from the opening, and because of the deadly black-damp. The latter caused all work to be stopped for a time yesterday afternoon, but by nightfall it was resumed. Electrical devices for moving cars in the workings were shattered by the explosion, and debris cleared away in the tunnels is being hauled away by mule cars to the surface. Mine experts last night said it would be days before each lateral had been penetrated, and stating when all bodies would be found was but guesswork. It is in the laterals that the most bodies are expected to be found.

At least 10,000 persons visited this hamlet yesterday, and willing workers were many. George P. Chanler, president of the Tennessee Coal Co., is in charge of the relief work. He divided the men into gangs of fifty and sent each shift into the workings for two hours.

The throng of visitors is largely responsible for the exhaustion of food supplies in Briceville. All stores are bare of eatables and many went hungry last night. However, hunger will not be a long added horror to relatives of the victims, as Knoxville and other cities are rushing food supplies. All will be provided for by to-night.

Straining on the ropes that keep the throng back from the mine opening, are the relatives of the victims anxiously awaiting some word of life within the yawning mouth of the death trap. The situation becomes more tense as each car of debris is brought to the surface, for its driver might bring some word or with the debris might be a body of some loved one. The shrill whistle of the special train bringing coffins at two o'clock Sunday morning, brought another horror to the already dazed inhabitants of the little town. The special brought 175 boxes, and they were piled near the mouth of the mine. Only eight of these boxes were opened yesterday.

Detective and Prisoner Shot.

Breeden, W.Va., Dec. 11.—John VanHoose, a detective, and Gideon Macrum, were shot to death in a fight here yesterday. VanHoose was shot by Macrum, when the former tried to arrest him for burglary and as Macrum ran he was shot down by Deputy Sheriff Crumm of Wayne County, who had accompanied the detective.

McManigal to Indianapolis.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 11.—Ortie E. McManigal will be taken to Indianapolis within a few days to tell the federal grand jury there what he knows of the alleged dynamiting conspiracies, the first chapter of which was closed yesterday with the placing of the McNamara brothers in the San Quentin State Penitentiary.

SERIOUS FOR BRITAIN

Russia Is Getting the Better of the Persian Affair.

Plans of Czar's Officials Are Veiled In Mystery, But Occupation of Teheran Is Believed to Be the Next Move—Tory Press In England Bitterly Condemns the Policy of the Government In the Crisis.

London, Dec. 11.—Details as to the advance of the Russian troops in Persia have been kept for several days completely in the dark. How large a force has been despatched by the Russian Government, and particulars as to its movements are unknown in London, but the public generally feels that the end will be the establishment of a Russian protectorate over the best ports of Persia, including the two northern capitals, Tabriz and Teheran.

Newspapers and politicians generally give expression to the skepticism, regarding it as unlikely that Russia once entrenched in Teheran will ever withdraw.

The Teheran correspondent of The Times predicts that Russia's first act will be to substitute a new form of government, for that of the National Council.

The possible damage to British commercial interests is absorbing much attention, but the blow to British prestige among orientals causes most anxiety.

The correspondent of the Daily Telegraph at Delhi, where the great Durbar of the coronation of King-Emperor George is being held, emphasizes this danger.

The Outlook says: "We are face to face with one of the gravest crisis in the history of British in Asia."

The Nation says: "It means the worst blow which our prestige could suffer in the east. We appear as the weak partner, who does not dare to check his powerful and unscrupulous associate."

W. Morgan Shuster, the American, who is acting as treasurer-general in Persia, and whose dismissal was demanded by the Russian Government, is held responsible for bringing the Persian troubles to a crisis. He has been one of the most discussed men in England during the past week. All officials, as well as the newspapers, credit him with efficiency and with good intentions, but they accuse him of lacking diplomatic tact.

Persia has found a strong friend in Lord Curzon of Kedleston, former viceroy of India, whose knowledge of the country inspires respect and whose speeches have done much to shake confidence in the Government's policy.

The British Cabinet is trying to induce Russia to abate her demands, but the crux of the matter is the tension with Germany which overshadows all other considerations.

England needs Russia's support in case of a war with Germany, and, therefore, she cannot afford to take a stand against her.

M'NAMARAS IN PRISON.

They Are Shaved, Bathed and Photographed at San Quentin.

San Quentin, Cal., Dec. 1.—The McNamaras yesterday entered San Quentin penitentiary, where James B. is condemned to spend the remainder of his life, for his confessed crime of murder, and John J., secretary of the International Bridge and Structural Ironworkers, is sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment for dynamiting.

Whirled from Los Angeles on a fast night train, the men were taken from it at sunrise yesterday, put on a little river steamer and landed two hours and a half later at San Quentin prison wharf on the shores of San Pablo bay. The shackles which bound them together on the boat were slipped off and they toiled up the prison hill beside Sheriff W. A. Hammel of Los Angeles county.

As the prison clock struck 10, John J. McNamara stepped over the threshold of the jail door, with his brother directly behind him. In five minutes James B. McNamara became convict No. 25,314 and John J. McNamara was No. 25,315. They were measured for jail clothing, photographed in two positions, given a carbolic tinctured bath, put into stripes, shavel and cropped and rephotographed within an hour, and turned over the John Murray, lieutenant of the yard, who took them to cell No. 18 in a stone tier looking out over the prison's upper yard, a great flower garden.

Brantford Children's Society.

Brantford, Dec. 11.—Lieutenant-Governor Gibson will formally open the new Children's Shelter in this city on Wednesday. The shelter was the gift of Mrs. Peter Wood to the Children's Aid Society, and is said to be the finest in Ontario. School children, cadets and scouts will assist at the opening.

The new two-storey house of Harold Creasser, Maple avenue, collapsed Friday night, and the structure was found on Saturday to be an entire wreck. A loss of about $1,000 falls on Contractor James Wright.

It is announced here that the new postoffice for Brantford will cost $200,000, and the Government will likely purchase the vacant city property on Dalhousie street as a site for the building.

Child [illegible] In Face.

Toronto, D[illegible]1.—Newell Philpot, the nine-year-old son of the pastor of the Gospel Tabernacle, was kicked in the face by a horse at his home yesterday afternoon, and was so seriously injured that he had to be taken to the City Hospital. His teeth were knocked out and his face was badly disfigured. He will recover.

Fire at the residence of P. C. Merrit, 135 Walnut street south, destroyed the upper part of the building yesterday and smoke and water ruined practically all the household effects, which the fire did not destroy.

BORDEN AND CARNEGIE

They Are Joint Lions at Banquet in New York.

Andrew Looks For a Great Improvement In Canada With Her New Scottish Premier — Mr. Borden Talks of Civil Service Reform and Promises Most Friendly Relations —Plans For Peace Celebration.

New York, Dec. 11.—Hon. Robert L. Borden, Premier of Canada, and Andrew Carnegie, were the guests at a dinner at the Hotel Astor Saturday night, given by the executive committee of the national committee for the celebration of the one-hundredth anniversary of peace among English-speaking people. The celebration is planned to take place in 1914-15. Mr. Carnegie is chairman of the national committee.

Speaking of Canada, Mr. Carnegie said that the greatest tribute that could be paid to ex-Premier Laurier was the fact that he, a Frenchman, had been able to govern the Scotch.

"The Frenchman that can do that," he said, "needs no other diploma. But now that Canada has a Scotch Premier I look for a great advance in that country. You, in Canada, and we in America, have grown closer to each other year by year, and that should be the way with the whole English-speaking race. I never did anything for the republic that I did not also do for Canada, both in the way of libraries and hero funds. I never found a man in Canada who was in favor of annexation to the United States, but I never found a man either who objected to Canada annexing the United States.

"When we were in trouble Canada sent us 40,000 men. If Canada is ever in trouble we will send you 400,000."

Here Mr. Carnegie, grasped Premier Borden's hand, and, holding it in his, nodded his head in emphasis of what he said. He added:

"Telegraph me when you want them. You know my address."

He closed by expressing a hope that the day would come when the whole world would be a brotherhood of man.

Mr. Borden talked of civil service reform in Canada.

"The example of the American civil service system," he said, "has been of great help to us. We intend to work from that plan in the establishment of our own civil service system. Canada and America will maintain the most friendly feelings for each other."

Oscar S. Straus was the only speaker who referred to the defeat of the reciprocity agreement by the Canadian people, which was the means of putting Premier Borden in office.

Mr. Straus said that the fact that the treaty did not go through would make no difference in the mutual feeling of good will between the two countries. He added that the laws which were bringing capital and labor together in Canada should be adopted by the United States, as they were fair all the way through.

John A. Stewart, chairman of the executive committee of the celebration, spoke of the plans for the coming observance. He said that the committee proposed to leave behind it as a memorial of the 100 years of peace, a building in this city dedicated to public uses and it was also proposed to erect a free memorial bridge over the Niagara River.

Before attending the dinner, Mr. Borden, in the afternoon, motored down to Oyster Bay as the guest of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, for luncheon. The Premier and the ex-President had a two-hour chat. It was their first meeting and both expressed considerable satisfaction at having met the other and expressed a hope of meeting soon again.

Mr. Borden, during his stay, also met Henry W. Taft, a brother of the President, with whom he had a pleasant interview.

Child Asphyxiated.

Toronto, Dec. 11.—Annie Pyne, seven years of age, living with her grandparents at 20 Leonard avenue, was asphyxiated with gas on Saturday night when her guardians were visiting friends on Ryerson avenue.

The child was adopted by her grandfather, Charles Landy, and brought to this country by him last May. They lived with Charles Landy, jr., and on Saturday evening the child was put to bed, after which the older people went out. When they returned about 12.30, the child was dead and a gas jet partly turned on. Dr. McCullough of Spadina avenue, was summoned, but could do nothing, the child being quite dead.

The jet from which the fatal fumes escaped was used for running a tube to a gas stove, and it is supposed the gas must have been turned accidentally when the tube was removed.

Crushed Under Roof.

Hamilton, Dec. 11.—George McGregor, 61 years of age, and a lifetime resident of Watertown., was crushed by the cave in of the roof of a building on which he was working Saturday afternoon, and died in the city hospital here shortly after being admitted to the institution. He was a brother of Dr. McGregor of Waterdown.

Waterloo For Church Union.

Waterloo, Dec. 11.—At yesterday morning's service in the Presbyterian church here, Rev. W. D. Lee announced the result of the ballot taken recently on church union, with the Methodist and Congregational bodies. One hundred and forty members voted on the question, of whom 125 were in favor, and only 15 against.

The Unlucky Thirteen.

Halifax, Dec. 11.—The steamers Victorian, Scotian and Megantic sailed for Liverpool and Glasgow yesterday, taking seven hundred and fifty passengers. The Megantic left thirteen people standing on the pier, who had been notified of the hour of sailing, but arrived a minute too late.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 9.—The market opened with shorts nervous and offerings lighter, and values ¼d to ⅜d higher, and following the opening further advance, with the undertone firm. Support was attributed to the firmness in Winnipeg, lighter and dearer Manitoba offerings, and the resultant advance in spot grades. There was an improved demand from millers, with the continent bidding and sellers few. This was brought about by the lighter Argentine offerings, advance of 3d in Plate steamers, and private reports here of damage in Argentine from rain and wind storms in the centre. Expectations of light world's shipments was further confirmed by Bradstreet's yesterday, and Australian offerings are smaller. There is generally a firmer feeling prevailing, with firmer Plate offerings. At the close the market was firm, ½d to ⅝d higher than yesterday.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—A sensational advance of 3 3-4c to 4 1-8c at Buenos Ayres alleged to have been caused by far-reaching storm damage to wheat led to a general covering here to-day on the part of shorts. The close was nervous and 1-8c to 1-2c to 5-8c higher than last night. Other leading staples all showed a net decline—corn 1-8c to 1-4c, oats 1-4c to 3-8c to 3-8c to 1-2c and provisions 2 1-2c to 5c to 12 1-2c.

U. S. Would Exclude Jews?

St. Petersburg, Dec. 11.—The Novoe Vremya declares that the days of the Russ-American commercial treaty evidently are numbered, because no country can grant more extensive rights to foreigners than to its own subjects. The paper says that from the Russian standpoint, the American regulations are incredibly cruel, for instance, the rejection of immigrants who are not able to comply with the money qualifications, and the exclusion of polygamists, which closes the U. S. to 16,000,000 Russian Mussulmans.

The paper declares that the logical development of the abrogation of the treaty would be the exclusion from America of hundreds of thousands of Russian Jews, and "the desire for such exclusion," adds the paper, "is the real motive of the Jews in the United States, who are driving American politicans with a pitiless whip."

THE BATTLESHIP OF THE FUTURE

What is it to be?—Interesting Discussion of a Highly Complex Problem

What is to be the battleship of the future? asks a contemporary. It is recalled that so long ago as March 7, 1889, Lord George Hamilton, then First Lord of the Admiralty, when introducing the Naval Defence Act, said he "had hoped some two years ago that the 'Nile' and the 'Trafalgar' would be the last battleships laid down in this country.' It was then the opinion of some of the chief naval experts that armor-clad battleships must go because of the appearance of the torpedo boat. Indeed, long before that in the 'Monitor' and pre-Monitor days, certain publicists inveighed against armor on ships as being only a repetition of the armor casing of men in the days of lances and swords which had through the operation of gunpowder entirely given way to lightness of movement. Speed and mobility were to take the place of unwieldy weight. But instead of disappearing armored battleships have doubled, and again doubled, in size. The "Nile" and the "Trafalgar" displaced only 11,940 tons, while ships of the King George class now under construction displace 24,000 tons. The menace of the torpedo was met by dividing the hull into small watertight compartments, so that if a torpedo should strike, the destruction would be confined to a small part of the vessel; while the heavier gun was met by an increase in the area covered by the armor. Rivalry between the armor and guns had be unremitting since the appearance of the battleship half a century ago. The invention of a more powerful gun incited the armor manufacturers to evolve a new type of armor which would baffle its attacks, and the victory was now with the one and now the other. But to-day the gun is ahead. In 1861 eight inches of the armor and guns has been unremitting heaviest shell at three thousand yards, while to-day, at the same range the 13.6 inch gun can penetrate twenty-six inches of the most effective modern armor. Not only that, but the accuracy of fire has increased fifty times, and it is realized that the battleship must greatly increase its defensive powers or go. The problem is further complicated by the airship.

It is said that there are already signs of the gradual submergence of the battleship. England is building sub-marine boats as large as a modern destroyer; Russia is considering the plans of a submarine of 5,400 tons which is as large as a second class cruiser of heaviest tonnage. Both the British and German submarines are armed with guns for use when the vessel is cruising on the surface. While it is not supposed that the battleship as we know it will ever become submersible, it is expected that even in the near future none but those parts which are absolutely essential will appear above the water. To escape gun-fire it is proposed that the vertical sides of the battleship shall be abolished and their place be taken by a turtle-back structure rising from the water line and extending over the whole exterior of the ship. No gun 'fired from the water line' claim those who favor this evolution, 'could go through that—its shape alone would suffice to deflect the heaviest shells; and the same would serve for protection from overhead attack, against which the Dreadnoughts and super-Dreadnoughts of to-day are practically helpless.' If these ideas are consummated, only a small area of this turtle back will show above the water; with internal combustion engines there will be no funnels, and the guns will be controlled by periscopes instead of, as at present, from lofty towers or masts. Already German ships are being furnished with periscopes. The periscope is an apparatus by which objects in the sea are reflected on a mirror within the ship in such a way as mathematically direct the gunnery. The prediction is that gun turrets will be so metamorphosed that there will be four guns in each turret, in pairs, and that when the ship of the future goes into action, there will be practically nothing else visible but these and a couple of periscopes. It 's a curious anticipation, but changes quite as startling have happened in the machinery of war, and such an evolution as this would practically eliminate what of the spectacular and 'glory' there may now be left in a possible sea fight, and reduce it to sinking matches at ten mile range. There would be only one kind of death at sea—going down in an iron coffin. There would then be no more deck of fame.

AMUSEMENTS

"DEAR OLD BILLY."

At Griffin's Opera House on Wednesday, Dec. 13, Mr. William Hawtrey and his company of London players will be the offering in a three-act farce by a noted English writer, W. H. Risque. The title of the piece is "Dear Old Billy," and concerns the dilemmas of a good natured and kindly old gentleman who has submitted for twenty years to being perpetually nagged by a domineering wife, but who, like the proverbial worm, at last turns, and decides to legally rid himself of the virago. The articles of separation stipulate that he is to pay her annually seven hundred and fifty pounds, and it is distinctly understood that should they be so unhappy as to meet she is not to speak to him, annoy or interfere with him, nor make known in any manner their relationship to each other. Through an oversight, however, there is no clause in the document of separation that prevents her being wherever he is, and this technicality she takes advantage of in most thorough fashion, never failing to be on the spot whenever an unkind fate places her husband in an embarrassing situation, which happens frequently, as Dear Old Billy, being a genial soul, has attracted the attention of numerous well-meaning females who all want to minister to his wants, and being loth to give offense, submits, with results that invariably place him in compromising positions. Plan now open at Doyle's.

SPORTING NOTES

THE WHITE HOPES.

Jim Corbett writes:—Jack Johnson is still in the "retiring" business. Haven't heard much of the ebony boy of late. Joining the Masons was his last bid for publicity. No telling, though, he may pull some new stuff any day. He is long over due.

I presume that just as long as the champion will have us understand he has quit the ring forever and ever we may as well look the ground over and see what kind of talent there is in sight from which we must select his successor.

On cold dope, past performances and all other methods of doing the Sherlock Holmes deduction stunts, the dusky fighters loom up much more dangerous looking that the pale faces. Even with Johnson on the retired list it is no cinch that the championship crown can be wrested from the Ethiopians in the near future.

Sam Langford is one stumbling block in the path of the aspiring whites. Joe Jeanette, hurdle number two, and if many experts are to be believed, he is even a tougher proposition than the "tar baby." Joe tells me, if you will take his word for it, that he made Sambo beat it to Australia, and that he alone is the logical successor to Mistah Johnsing. And difficulty number three (Sam McVey), is certainly a refractory person when he pulls on a pair of five-ounce gloves.

What have the whites to offer in opposition to the claims of the colored men? Al. Kaufman and Jim Flynn are the only ones who have been put through the fire, and both have been found wanting. Flynn in his bouts with Johnson and Langford and Big Al in his most recent startling form reversal against this same Flynn.

Between Kaufman and Flynn it stands an even thing. Another contest should prove conclusively the better man. There would be no chance for excuses of poor condition, etc., such as were offered in evidence after their last meeting. The winner could then box Joe Jeanette, the only member of the colored quartet in this country at present, and the result would give us at least an inkling of where we would stand on the heavy weight question.

Of the newcomers, Tom Kennedy and Al Palzer have shown the best. Carl Morris has not made a favorable impression in his eastern starts. Jim Flynn handed the large Westerner an unmerciful beating. The Geyer match was no test at all. Morris will shortly have another trial when he meets Kennedy in a ten-round bout. Palzer, too, will be sent against harder and more experienced game in Al. Kaufman. These bouts may help to simplify matters, though ten rounds are rather short for big, slow-going fellows. However, we must have patience and hope for the best. Rome was not built in a day.

DEATHS.

W. R. BABCOCK.

Mrs. W. R. Babcock, who resided near Rednerville, in the township of Ameliasburg, passed away last evening after being ill about three weeks. Deceased, who was 65 years of age, was born at Consecon, being a daughter of the late Mr. Samuel Bryant. All her life had been spent in Prince Edward County. Mrs. Babcock had been for years a member of the Methodist church and was a lady highly esteemed by a large circle of relatives and friends. A husband and one son, Barton, of Rednerville, survive.

DIED AT HOSPITAL.

A young man named Olmstead, died at the hospital here this morning. Deceased, who was engaged in mining was taken ill some days ago and was brought here for treatment. The remains, after being prepared for burial, were shipped to Maynooth.

NEW GERMAN LINER WILL CARRY 5,000

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Another 1,000-foot liner is projected and this time by Germany. It is stated by the Standard, that the Hamburg-American Line has placed an order with Harland and Wolff for a new steamer which will eclipse in size and magnificence the White Star giants Titanic and Olympic.

The new vessel will be an eleven storied floating palace, built to carry five thousand passengers and will have engines of 80,000 horse-power—that is, exactly twice as powerful as those of the new White Star liners.

WAS SICK THIRTY YEARS

BOWIE, Texas.—The remarkable case of Mrs. S. J. Embry, who lives near here is attracting attention, on account of her restoration to health after many years of suffering. She tells of it in a letter as follows:

"During the past thirty years I have suffered greatly from nervous troubles and my health was badly run down. Lately I learned of your cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol, and began taking it.

"I have used several bottles and improved so fast that I at once recommended it to two friends who were in poor health. My case was complicated but Vinol did wonders for me. Every woman who suffers from nervousness and weakness should take Vinol and recover her health."

It is plain that a remedy that will overcome a chronic run-down condition like this is just what weak and sickly men, women and children everywhere need. If you want to be strong and healthy again, take Vinol on our positive promise to give back your money if you are not satisfied. —Red Cross Drug Store, J. S. McKeown, Belleville, Ont.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion lands Agency or Sub-Agent for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.--Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties--Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties--Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.09.

What Water Can Do

No sooner are the London and Ottawa seasons over than we see announcements of various more or less great personages departing for some Continental or British Spa to take the waters, and allow their systems to recover from the fatigues of fashionable or political life. The drinking of the medicinal water is not the whole of the cure; change of scene, simplicity of diet, early hours, freedom from bustle and worry all play their part in the restoration of body and mind. It is quite possible, however, to have some of these benefits without the expense of going away from home, merely by the aid of pure drinking water. The human body consists of water in the proportion of about sixty per cent., and the water removed from the body by means of the breath, the perspiration, the urine and the bowels is the vehicle by which the body gets rid of the waste products resulting from the activity of its various organs. As a rule the more active a tissue is the more water it contains, and, therefore, within reasonable limits, an increase in the amount of water taken will lead to increased tissue change.

SUFFERED THREE YEARS

Till Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cured his Kidney Trouble

There are few diseases that cause more acute suffering than Kidney Trouble, and Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Sudbury Ont., is one of those who know it. He writes:

"For over three years I suffered from kidney disease. First I thought I had sprained my back, for suddenly the pain would catch the small of my back and it would be impossible for me to straighten myself up for several minutes. A dull ache across the kidneys was always present, my urine was thick and cloudy, and passing it caused a burning, scalding pain. Tried medicines, but they failed. I was advised to try Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, as they had cured my wife years before. A few boxes affected a complete cure. I now enjoy the blessings of good health, which is due to this remedy."

Don't neglect kidney trouble—it's too dangerous as well as too painful. That old, reliable family remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, has cured thousands and will cure you. It is equally effective in curing constipation and its attendant evils, biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches, and in purifying the blood. 25c a box at your druggist's. 10

Patriotism

The stomach is a larger factor in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" than most people are aware. Patriotism can withstand hunger but not dyspepsia. The confirmed dyspeptic "is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils." The man who goes to the front for his country with a weak stomach will be a weak soldier and a fault finder.

A sound stomach makes for good citizenship as well as for health and happiness.

"BROWNIE'S" PRINCESS

By Sheil Barry

The clock in the outer office had just struck nine when "Brownie" tripped into the chief's room with the keys. The great man looked up at him with a genial expression softening the usually severe lines of his face. Observant and far-seeing, almost to the point of genius, he knew — none better — that in the person of Philip Dodson the firm of Gates Bros., wholesale hardware merchants, Wingate Street, S.E., possessed a jewel of a cashier.

He was also well liked, for laughter was no stranger to the shining brown eyes, and the little, dun-coloured hands were quick to do a kindly service.

"One moment, Dodson! You will re-commence your duties on Monday next, at an increase of salary amounting to five shillings per week! and I should like to add what, I think, you will not be displeased to hear, that your services up to the present have given us the fullest satisfaction."

"Thank you, sir."

The cashier's voice was not quite steady. The chief nodded kindly, and pushed a small white package — one of many at his elbow — towards him.

"A trifle you will no doubt be able to make use of," he observed genially. "Something pretty for the wife, eh? and — or, I beg your pardon!"

A quick flush had dyed the thin cheeks of the little cashier, and his head moved negatively several times.

"I'm sorry," supplemented the chief apologetically. "But I was certainly under the impression that you were a married man, Dodson."

"No, sir, not yet — at least ——"

"Ah! I understand. Selected, but not yet acquired, eh? Well — hum! I wish you luck, Dodson, a happy Christmas, and — good-night!"

"Good-night, sir; and the same to you."

. . . .

At the corner of the street, "Brownie" overtook a fellow-clerk—a big, hulking man, with heavy features and a sullen expression.

"Going down by this train, Bob?" he queried briskly.

The big man nodded, and the pair walked on, side by side.

"Not half a bad sort — the boss," he said warmly. "What do you think? He's raised me five bob!"

"Humph!" commented the big man.

"Besides the usual half-quid for a Christmas Box," went on the other cheerfully; "I call it liberal!"

"Do you?" Mr. Robert Dredge was emphatic. "A mere flea-bite!"

. . . .

The little cashier rushed breathlessly on to the station-platform just as Dredge was in the act of entering an empty third-class compartment, and scrambled in behind him.

"Look!" invited the little man, twisting the paper wrapping off a gaudily-coloured china vase, in the shape of a Neapolitan shepherdess, and holding it aloft. "That's father pretty, don't you think?"

"Bob, old fellow," he communicated abruptly, "there's something I've got to tell you before it bursts me. The fact is, I—I've found my woman!"

"Well, I suppose that's better than finding somebody else's!" he vouchsafed grimly.

"I pulled her out from under a cab-horse's feet," went on "Brownie" quietly. "Of course I walked with her as far as the corner of the street, and there I left her. The following evening, I met her again at almost exactly the same spot. We walked the length of two streets this time, and the next night it was three. Then for two nights I missed her; but she came the next, and I got her to promise she'd meet me at the station this evening."

"And that's all, I think, except that I've named her 'the Princess,' and that I feel sure we were meant for each other from the beginning of things. She's very sweet and small, Bob, old man — and good. Oh, I know she's good! But scarcely so happy as she might be, I fancy."

"Chuck it, 'Brownie'!" he said with a short laugh, "you don't know anything about women, and that's a fact. You think they're first cousins to the angels. Wait till you've lived with one"

"By-the-by, Bob, you've been spliced a little over a year, haven't you?"

"Yes."

"And I've never met your wife!"

"Your fault," retorted the other. "I'm under the impression that I wrote, inviting you to the wedding."

"Right; and I stayed away. Shall I tell you why? You remember that girl from Snelgrove's that we used to travel down with every night in the train — the one we — er — quarrelled about? And that other one later on we met at Yarmouth during the holidays. Somehow or other we have always seemed to want the same things, haven't we? And I was awfully afraid to fall in love with the same woman, so—— Don't you understand?"

A minute later the pair stood side by side on the crowded platform.

Presently Dredge, whose weight had carried him on ahead, halted suddenly in front of a woman, conspicuously pretty and becomingly dressed, who was scanning the stream of passengers moving towards the exit with eager eyes.

"Why, Mary?"

The little man did not seem altogether pleased, and the woman — a small, frail creature — took a step backwards, her eyes dilating as if with fear.

"At last, Bob, old man! What a terrible crush! Oh, for a burly form and muscles of—— Why, what—oh!..."

The words died on the little cashier's tongue, as his eyes suddenly encountered those of the woman. Dredge stepped forward hastily.

"Allow me," he said, "to introduce you to my wife!"

The Neapolitan shepherdess crashed on the stone paving.

"Your—wife——"

"Brownie" had met his "Princess" according to appointment.

THE LITTLE BELL

For centuries it has been the custom to inscribe church bells with mottoes, sometimes in English, sometimes in Latin. If you have read Longfellow's "Golden Legend" you will remember the voices of the bells as they sing. These words are all taken from the mottoes on very old bells. As a child I remember seeing the enormous new bell for St. Paul's going by road to be hung in the Cathedral, and we could read the Latin inscription that was round it. When I was on my holiday I saw the bells in the tower of a beautiful old church, and looked for their inscriptions. Some of those only commemorated the date of the founding and the name of the giver or the founder; but one inscription was in rhyme:—

Although I am both light and small
I will be heard above you all.

I could not help thinking that motto would do for a great many people as well as for that small bell, if anyone ever thought of putting an inscription round a little girl's pinafore or a little boy's belt.

Quite a Difference

When Lawrence Barrett's daughter was married Stuart Robson sent a cheque for a thousand pounds to the bridegroom. The comedian's daughter Felicia Robson, who attended the wedding, conveyed the gift.

"Felicia," said her father, upon her return "did you give him the cheque?"

"Yes," father," answered the daughter.

"What did he say?" asked Robson.

"He didn't say anything," replied Miss Felicia; "but he shed tears."

"How long did he cry?"

"Why, father, I didn't time him. I should say, however, that he wept fully a minute."

"Fully a minute," mused Robson. "Why, daughter, I cried an hour after I signed it."

An "Ear Telephone."

Differing from the various kinds of instruments which are used, to aid persons of defective hearing, a new long distance hearing apparatus has recently been invented to assist the hearing of normal persons in much the same way that a telescope does the eye; that is, it enables one to distinguish sounds through a greater distance, besides amplifying those which would ordinarily be detected by the unaided ears. For this reason it has been facetiously called the [illegible]

Local Option in Brockville.

Brockville, Dec. 9.—At the instigation of the Ministerial Association of Brockville, the Protestant clergy of the town met with lay representatives from each congregation to discuss the advisability of starting a local option campaign here next year. Some of the delegates questioned the prohibitive effects of a local option law. Ultimately it was decided on account of divergent opinions to appoint a committee of members of the Ministerial Association and laymen to report to a big meeting composed of church organizations and secular bodies in town.

272

DO YOU USE COWAN'S COCOA?

EUROPE'S THIRST

Germans the Great Beer Drinkers and the French the Largest Consumers of Wine in Old World.

"The Dane drinks annually 104 quarts of beer, little or no wine, and 24 quarts of brandy; the Swede absorbs 56 quarts of beer and 9 quarts of alcohol, while the Norwegian, on whom sobriety is imposed by very severe laws, is content with 31 quarts of beer and 3 quarts of brandy. The Russian requires only 5 quarts of beer and 5 of brandy (vodka); the Frenchman must have 32 quarts of beer, 108 of wine, and 10 of brandy. The Englishman consumes 6 quarts of gin, or whisky, little wine (scarcely 2 quarts), and 152 quarts of beer, ale, or stout; the Dutchman, 38 quarts of beer and 8½ of brandy; the Belgian 221 quarts of beer and 9 quarts of alcohol. The Austrian absorbs 16 quarts of wine, 80 quarts of beer, and nearly 11½ of brandy; the Hungarian the same quantity of brandy and wine but only 11 quarts of beer. The Italian drinks little beer (scarcely 2 quarts), 98 quarts of wine, and 1.3 quarts of brandy; he is the least alcoholic of Europeans.

"As for the German, he has the right, from his astonishing capacity, to a prominent place in these statistics. It is hardly possible, in his case, to confine oneself to averages. To pass over the extent of the Empire, including the grand duchy of Luxemburg, the consumption per head amounts to 7 quarts of wine, 6½ of brandy, and 125 quarts of beer. But the Alsatian and the North German drink 98 quarts of beer, while the Badener drinks 158 the Wurtemberger 169, and the Bavarian 24. As for the dwellers in the great cities, some of them are veritable bottomless pits; at Berlin 200 quarts of beer are drunk by each inhabitant annually; at Nuremberg 325 quarts, at Frankfort 432, and at Munich 570. When we realize that there are in Munich, as elsewhere, children, women, old persons, youth, and perhaps even, among the adults, some drinkers of average thirst, we may ask ourselves with some trepidation what is the daily flow of the river of beer, rolling its tumultuous waves down the esophagus of a loyal disciple of Gambrinus.

CHARACTER BY FINGER-NAILS

Amuse your friends by telling them their characters by their finger-nails. Broad nails are said to indicate a gentle nature, and persons possessing them are inclined to be timid and bashful. Those who have red and spotted nails have a desire to command, show great delight in war, and have a disposition to be cruel. White spots on the finger-nails denote misfortune.

Those who have very pale nails are subject to much infirmity of the flesh. Melancholy persons, and those who have a desire to higher branches of knowledge, have pale or lead-colour nails. White nails denote a great love for the society of the opposite sex, very weak constitution, and feverish subjects.

Persons with narrow nails are ambitious, have a keen love for scientific knowledge, and are quarrelsome. Round nails show a great desire for knowledge in general and liberal sentiments; also that their possessors take great pride in their own accomplishments and are rather hasty. Those persons who lack confidence in human nature, and are decided in opinions have long nails. Small nails indicate a very small mind, obstinate and secretive nature.

Persons who have very good appetites and lovers of sleep have fleshy nails. Nails that grow into the flesh at the sides or points denote that their owners are given to luxury.

A TRAIN-LOAD OF MONKEYS

A plague of monkeys some years ago sorely troubled the officials at a small station on the Saran Railway, in North-West India. Trucks full of grain for export were often stored up in the station, and the monkeys came down in large numbers from a neighbouring grove to help themselves to the grain, picking holes in the tarpaulin roof of the wagons.

The officials were wearied out with keeping watch and scaring away the thieves, who daily grew bolder, till an ingenious guard hit upon a stratagem. For several days sweets and fruit were put on the roofs of the wagons, with the result that the whole of the monkey colony were attracted to the spot, and soon became perfectly indifferent to man.

One morning, when they were all busily feeding, an engine was stealthily attached to the wagons, and suddenly the train moved off. The monkeys were quite scared, and made no attempt to escape, sitting crouched together till the train had gone several miles and stopped at a jungle. Then they wanted no hint to leave. Every monkey leapt down howling and fled into the jungle, whence they never returned to trouble the railway.

A City of Salt

There is a city of salt sithated at Wieliczka, a little municipality some six miles from Cracow, in Polish Austria, and the centre of the Galician salt industry. It would take at least three weeks to visit ever portion of this marvellous citi, which dates back to 1044. Men have worked in its hollows for centuries. Horses have been brought to life and have died there, without seeing the light of day. It is virtually a city hewn in salt. The mines contain a wonderful ball-room, which is 216 ft. below the surface, and two remarkable chapels, on the walls of one of which is carved a view of Bethlehem. The mines contain twenty-five miles of railway lines, and there is a tempting buffet at the railway station.

Clorinda: "You can't keep a dog in your new flat?"

CITY FATHERS HAD THEIR USUAL LONG SITTING LAST NIGHT

Matters of Importance Brought up and Disposed of—Six New Hydrants will be Placed on West Side of Front Street Between Dundas Street and Upper Bridge—Fire Underwriters' Association make Recommendations re Fire Department

The city fathers were in session last night until after the midnight hour had struck. A number of matters of importance were brought up, discussed and disposed of. It was decided to have six additional hydrants placed on the west side of Front Street. The members present were: Mayor Ackerman, Ald. Panter, Vermilyea, Caldwell, McGie, Parks, Bleecker, Anderson, Adams, Gibson, Chown, Bogle, Lott, Canning, Riggs, Woodley, Sills, Marshall and St. Charles.

After the reading of the minutes of last meeting the Council went into Committee of the Whole on Reports, Communications, etc., Ald. Riggs in the chair.

The accounts recommended to be paid by the various committees were passed and the following recommendations adopted:

That Jack Roblin be engaged to do the necesary repairs to the hands and shaft of the east dial of the clock at a cost not to exceed $20;

That the personal bonds of F. D. Diamond for 1905-6-7-8 be returned to him, he having returned the rolls for those years.

The following were the recommendations from the Market and City Property Committee:

That the Market and City Property Committee be authorized to have the brick water closet near the market scales removed and in the same location erect a metal clad building, with a cement floor, for a repair shop for the Gas Department and Water Works Department at a cost not exceeding $100;

And clear out 30x70 feet of the east end of the basement of the City Hall building, partition it off, cement the floor, whitewash the ceiling, the same to be added to the butter market;

Also to put in a water closet in the basement near the entrance of the second door on the south side;

Ald. Panter considered this was an expense unnecessary. The Department of Gas was not asking for a change.

Ald. McGie said that the Market and City Property Committee seemed to have an idea that it wanted to make changes all the time. The committee had already this year spent a large sum of money.

Ald. Parks said there was nothing in the recommendation that the building would be changed this year. The Gas Department was occupying a part of the basement at present from which formerly a revenue was derived. The proposed change would mean a saving of $75 to the premiums on the fire insurance on account of the gas repair shop being in the basement of the city building. He claimed the market building had been robbed of its revenue.

Ald. Vermilyea—Who owns the city building, the Market and City Property Committee or the city? Previous to the gas repair shop being situated in the basement of the city building a rent had to be paid for an office on Bridge Street.

Ald. Clarke justified the recommendation of the Market Committee. What the committee desire is to place these departments in a place where a saving in insurance could be effected. The departments should contribute something in the way of rent for occupying the proposed new quarters.

Mayor Ackerman thought that if the insurance was to be lowered on the city building by the removal of these departments it was a matter to be considered.

Ald. Adams was of the opinion that this matter should be referred back to the Market Committee for further consideration.

Ald. Canning thought that the Gas and Water Department should pay a remuneration to the Market Committee for the apartments they use.

Upon a vote being taken the recommendations were not adopted.

The Market Committee recommended that the city clock be lighted by electricity instead of gas, at an expenditure of $45 per annum.

Ald. Clarke spoke in support of the recommendation, claiming that electric light would be more suitable for lighting the city clock than gas.

Ald. Adams thought that as the gas works was a city utility the city should burn the gas it manufactures. If the city commence to cut off the revenue from the Gas Department, the price of gas must go up. He moved in amendment that the recommendation be referred back to the committee.

The amendment was adopted.

A number of accounts were ordered to be paid.

FIRE APPLIANCES.

A communication was read from the Fire Underwriters' Association recommending that a paid department be employed, that more hydrants be placed in the business portion of the city, an electric fire alarm system installed, a new fire engine procured, and some automatic apparatus at the pump house.

The various suggestions in the communication were considered separately.

Moved by Ald. Canning, seconded by Ald. Woodley that six hydrants be placed on Front Street on the west side between Dundas Street and the Upper Bridge; at points to be selected by the chairman of Fire and Water and the Chief of the Fire Department.

Ald. Chown asked if the Fire Committee would pay to the Water Works more remuneration by the placing in of these extra hydrants.

Ald. Canning thought that the Water Works Department might be remunerated for the extra hydrants, but not for the water used, which would not be more in case of a fire.

Ald. Clarke contended that the expense of placing in the extra hydrants should be borne by the Fire Committee, but the committee not to be charged extra for water.

The motion of Ald. Canning prevailed.

The question of purchasing a new steam fire engine, as recommended by the Underwriters' Association, was discussed, also the other recommendation of the Association.

Ald. Canning moved that the recommendations of the Association be referred to Fire Committee.—Lost.

Ald. St. Charles spoke in favor of purchasing a new engine.

A motion prevailed that Ald. Canning and Clarke obtain a report as to placing the present fire engine in proper condition.

The other recommendations in the communication were, on motion, referred to the Fire Committee.

TAX COLLECTION.

Mr. Diamond, Tax Collector, presented a report, showing the collection of taxes since last meeting to be as follows:

	Collected.	Uncollected.
1909 roll	$377.88
1910 roll	740.12	$12,000
1911 roll	742.18	27,000

A communication was read from the manager of the Water Works Department recommending that debentures be issued to the extent of $14,000, being the cost of extensions made to the system.—Referred to Water Works Committee.

Messrs. Porter & Carnew wrote the Council on behalf of Mr. N. Allen, asking that the Council take immediate steps to have the roadway leading to the C.N.O.R. crossing on James St. made passable. If present condition was not remedied damages would be asked from the city.

SOVEREIGNS WERE CROWNED IN INDIA

King and Queen Proclaimed at Delhi—A Generous Royal Gift

(Intelligencer Special.)

DELHI, India, Dec. 12.—Amidst scenes of unsurpassed grandeur the King and Queen to-day were formally proclaimed Emperor and Empress of India. The King's gift, as made known to-day, consists of a million and a half dollars for popular education, release of hundreds of political prisoners and debtors whose imprisonment is due to poverty, and a half month's extra pay for every soldier in India. His Majesty also made the unexpected announcement that the Indian capital will be removed from Calcutta to Delhi in recognition of the magnificent Durbar reception.

STILL A MYSTERY

(Intelligencer Special.)

BRAMPTON, Ont., Dec. 12.—The "missing hired man" mystery of a Peel county farm was not cleared up by digging out an old well. Nothing of a suspicious nature was found. Further search will undoubtedly be undertaken.

TAXICAB VICTIM

(Intelligencer Special.)

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—Frank Hassell, taxicab chauffeur, who ran down William Stewart, was remanded for a week without bail. His victim died this morning.

CITY ENGINEER ON THE WATER WORKS

His Recommendations as to Extensions—Reductions of Rates is Possible

The following communication was submitted to the Council at last night's session:

Belleville, Dec. 11th, 1911.

Mayor and Council, City of Belleville.

Gentlemen,—In view of the fact that new mains have been laid and extensions made to the extent of almost $14,000 on Water Works development, I feel that I would be lacking in my duty if I did not urge the necessity of issuing debentures for this work instead of saddling the present water works users with an expenditure which should be spread over 10 or 20 years, especially when the opportunity is now ripe for a further reduction in the rates, which in view of the continued success of this utility is now possible.

As one instance it may be cited that whilst 160 services have been laid this season (double that of any former year) not one cent has been incurred in operating expenses.

A detailed report on the working of this, the most important of the City's utilities, will be on hand at an early date.

It is significant that the city of Berlin has taken strong action recently along the above lines in view of the pressure of public opinion which in these western cities is very much alive on municipal matters.

Yours truly,
JAMES G. LINDSAY,
City Engineer and Manager of Water Works Department.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

A SOCIAL EVENING.

The Guild in connection with St. Andrew's Church last night had what is termed a social evening. A programme, varied in its character, but entertaining, was rendered by members of the Guild. A large number were in attendance and from appearances all thoroughly enjoyed the proceedings. Refreshments were served after the programme.

BOYS HAD A ROW.

A number of small boys were today before the Magistrate charged with assaulting a companion. The affair took place on Sunday and as a result one of the boys alleged he was roughly used. The case was dismissed with costs to the defendants. The Magistrate gave the lads some timely advice about quarrelling upon the street and what it would lead to.

BADLY SHAKEN UP

Col. S. S. Lazier, Master in Chancery, was this morning the victim of an accident, which fortunately was not of a serious nature. He was proceeding down into the basement of Mr. H. A. Morgan's shop in the Robertson block, east side of Front street, when the steps gave way, precipitating the Colonel to the ground. He sustained some injuries about the face, and was severely shaken up. The victim was conveyed home and is expected to be able to be out again in a day or two.

COUNTRY CORRESPONDENCE

MADOC.

Diphtheria has again visited our village, but the cases are few.

Mr. Wm. Cox, who was so seriously ill for a time that his life was despaired of, is recovering. Two trained nurses from Kingston have been taking care of him.

While Mr. Bateman, of this township, was engaged in cleanging his gun, the weapon was discharged by accident and sent a bullet through Mr. Bateman's big toe, which had to be amputated.

We are in for a fight for the Reeveship. Mr. Thomas L. Nichol is opposing the present Reeve, Mr. Thompson. This, with a temperance battle, [illegible] make things lively.

We are having heavy rains and the roads are in a bad state, making business dull in all lines.

A large shipment of stock was made to-day to the Toronto market.

On Sunday afternoon there was a temperance rally in the Methodist church. Two gentlemen from Tweed were the speakers. The attendance was small. The temperance people are putting up a poor fight. There seems to be no great interest taken in the matter.

HAS RETIRED.

We learn that Mr. M. Grath, formerly of Belleville, has decided to retire from the mayoralty contest at Edmonton, Alta. Mr. McGrath's health is not of the best.

RAISED A CHEQUE.

Wilfrid Young was yesterday afternoon charged before Magistrate Masson with forgery. The accused, a young man, on the 11th of November, received a cheque from the canning company, where he was employed, for $2.62, for work performed. When the cheque, after passing through the bank, came back to the company it had been raised to $5.62. Young was arrested, charged with forgery. He alleges that he sold the cheque for $2 to a stranger and that he (Young) knew nothing about its being raised. The weight of evidence was against him and he was convicted. Sentence was deferred until Monday next in order that Young might be able to produce evidence as to previous good character. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown and the accused was undefended.

CURRENT COMMENT

A French citizen wanted to be a Senator, but couldn't "get there." "There are others nearer home."

The refusal of the McNamara brothers to make further revelations indicates just how much repentance is mingled with the confession that convicted them personally.—Hamilton Spectator.

Hon. G. P. Graham, of Brockville, who was defeated in the recent election, has filed a statement of his election expenses. This shows a total of $2,186.64—a pretty penny for a defeated candidate to pay. The biggest item was $459 for clerical expenses.

On the streets south of Bridge street where sewers were put down last summer, namely, William, Ann, Charles and John, the roads are in a dangerously bad condition. On Albert there are some holes and ruts where a conveyance is very liable to be broken if going any faster than a walk. If something is not done at once the city is very liable to some day have a damage suit to settle.

John Burns, head of the local government in England, has a scheme to do away with professional pauperism. He proposes to provide food and shelter for the homeless poor and to take them out of the street. The incorrigible beggars and tramps will be sent to prison, and all over London, if Mr. Burns' plan succeeds, will go the word that the obligation to work is imperative, and no man shall remain idle.

Andrew Carnegie has named for publication a list of the twenty greatest men in history—that is, in his opinion. Of the twenty, thirteen were inventors, two were scientists, two weer statesmen, two were poets, and one was a sailor and discoverer. One was an Italian, two Germans, four Americans, six Englishmen, and seven Scotchmen. The list thus contains interesting internal evidence pointing to Mr. Carnegie's own nationality.

The workers who helped to make up the fund of $190,000 for the defence of the McNamaras have the satisfaction of knowing that none of the money was diverted from the purpose for which it was subscribed. Mr. Clarence Darrow, chief counsel for the defence of the McNamaras has no complaint on that score, his own bill of $170,000 having been fully paid. The charge may seem high, but it must be a further satisfaction to the subscribers to know that the costly defence did not prevent the McNamaras from being convicted.—Mail and Empire.

AMUSEMENTS

"DEAR OLD BILLY."

A distinguished English comedian, who is decidedly in a class by himself and who will be seen at Griffin's Opera House to-morrow night, is William Hawtrey. He comes to us with his London players and his typically English farce "Dear Old Billy." Mr. Hawtrey is an accomplished character actor of the kind they know so well how to turn out in England. He plays a kindly, genial, much misunderstood old man in this piece, a man who doesn't want to offend anybody and who gets into all kinds of trouble thereby. The play seems to have struck America's funny-bone as decidedly as it did England's sufficiently so to detain Mr. Hawtrey and his associates through a long hot summer in Chicago to crowded houses.

Although in the main the company surrounding William Hawtrey in "Dear Old Billy" is distinctly English, there is one member of the company, Miss Jane Burby, who is an American favorite. Her work with the McIntyre and Heath Co. and with Miss May Irwin, with whom she appeared for eight consecutive seasons, will be favorably remembered by theatregoers. Plan now open at Doyle's.

In the last report received, the territory in the vicinity of the head waters of the Athabasca and Whirlpool rivers is touched upon, and are, Mr. Wheleer states, opening up a field for exploration and research, mountaineering and camping that is absolutely new, and of which practically nothing is known. This group of mountains is magnificent. It rises approximately to the height of 12,000 feet above sea level, and shows contours of the wildest and boldest possible forms. Immense snowfields and huge glaciers are everywhere. Boldest and most inaccessible rise the awful black precipices of Mount Geikie, the central point in the group. Again to the south are an endless array of peaks, towers, pyramids, domes, castles and ramparts in bewildering confusion.

KNIFE IN HEART ENDS QUARREL DUE TO MONEY

Pietro Calabro is Dead and Antonio Datolo is Held for Murder—Victim was Foster-Father of the Prisoner—Walks Into Hands of Police After the Crime is Committed

MONTREAL, Dec. 11.—A few violent words, interference on the part of the wife of one of the participants which resulted in her being assaulted by the other and promptly resented by her husband, a quick knife thrust though the heart and the fourth murder which has shocked the city in as many weeks was perpetrated.

It was the culmination of an old feud.

Death came instantly to Pietro Calabro when the stiletto of Antonio Datolo reached the heart of the man who in the days of his youth had cared for him as a son.

Assembled at the home of Francesco Maduri, 82 Panet street, the family of Pietro Calabro, consisting of his two sons, his wife and himself were talking when Antonio Datolo entered the house.

In the city of Reggia, in Calabria, twenty-five years ago, Datolo was born. The house of his father was adjacent to that of Pietro Calabro and when a few months after his birth the mother died, Calabro, who at the time of the christening of little Antonio, had stood sponsor for the boy, took him into the family and the wife cared for him as her own child. Datolo was about the same age as the two sons of Calabro and together the lads would tramp along the sandy shores and frolic in the blue waters of the Mediterranean.

Datolo grew up as one of the family and when five years ago Calabro decided to emigrate to Canada, which in Calabria is known as the "land of plenty," Datolo was taken along.

It was shortly after being installed in Montreal, that bitter feelings grew between Datolo and his former benefactor. The expense of the transportation had been defrayed entirely by Calabro and soon after Datolo began to work, he was urged to reimburse the amount laid by his god-father for his fare. For a few months Datolo did so, but after a time he decided that he had paid back enough, told his guardian so in no measured terms and left the house.

This was four years ago. Since that time they have never spoken.

Yesterday afternoon, however, when Calabro was under the spell of happy recollections of the days when Datolo was a little child playing as one of the family, he greeted his godchild and favorite in a kindly way.

The conversation went along pleasantly at first, reminiscences of the days gone by being indulged in by all. Then Datolo brought the conversation around to money matters. Mrs. Calabro, who knew the violent temper of the man, pleaded with her husband to come home. She realized as soon as she saw the turn that the conversation had veered to, that there would be trouble. She walked over to her husband's chair and laying her hand on his shoulder said: "Do not mind the boy, he is excited."

"Excited, am I?" hissed Datolo, and making a lunge for Mrs. Calabro he tore her skirt.

The sight of this made Calabro angry, and he immediately jumped up and rushed for the young man. They were separated by Maduri, who was the only man in the house at the time, Calabro's two sons having gone to Sohmer Park for a short time after the arrival of Datolo.

The latter after a few minutes prepared to go away but just as he was leaving Calabro said to him: "You are a mean hound to strike your foster mother. I will remember you."

"Take this to remember me by," Datolo replied, as he plunged the knife to the hilt into the man's heart.

Without uttering a sound, Calabro fell off his chair and immediately expired in the arms of his wife and Maduri.

In the disorder that ensued Datolo made his escape. Just as he had made the turn into Craig street he met Frank Geoffrey, with whom he is acquainted. The latter noticing his haggard appearance and excited manner, asked him what was the mateer: "Calabro is bleeding to death and I am going for the ambulance," he replied.

Geoffrey rushed around to the house and met Maduri as he was emerging from his own home. In a few words he was made conversant with the events and he immediately telephoned for the ambulance. When it arrived from the Notre Dame hospital, the doctor ordered the removal of the body to the morgue.

It was fate that led Datolo walking blindly east on Craig street, into the arms of Constables Dagenais and Desjardins of the City Hall avenue police station as they were standing at the corner of Viger square and Craig street.

They noticed that he was bleeding freely from a wound in the right hand and had a few scratches on his face. He could not give a good account of himself, and besides saying that he had been in a fight over a bottle of beer, would say nothing else. The officers took him to the General Hospital and after being attended to, he was taken to the City Hall avenue police station.

He repeated the story about the fight over the bottle of beer to Capt. Belanger.

This is positively denied by Maduri and his wife. They state unreservedly that there was no liquor of any kind in the house, but that Datolo had taken a few drinks before he had arrived at the house.

Mrs. Calabro was totally overcome with grief when seen at her home this morning. She had several fainting spells during the night and when The Star representative, accompanied by an interpreter, entered the house, Mrs. Calabro was lying on a sofa weeping bitterly and moaning piteously: "A ucise mio sposo, A ucise mio sposo, Caro mio Pietro."

She was unable to utter another word and would not speak about the stabbing. When the name of Datolo was mentioned she shuddered and hid her face in her apron.

Antonio Calabro, aged 22, a son of the victim was not so reticent. "What fatality prompted me to leave the house," he said, gritting his teeth. "How I wish I had been here. No knife for mine. I would have knocked his head off."

The dead man was a respected member of the colony. His two sons lived with him and brought the whole of their earnings to their father.

Datolo had been employed at the wharf during the summer season, but lately had not done any work.

ARTIFICIAL DIAMONDS

A New Process Has Been Discovered By a German Chemist

The newspaper announces that a new process for the manufacturing of artificial diamonds has been discovered by Doctor Werner von Bolton, a chemist, in Berlin. The doctor observed that ordinary lighting gas decomposes when exposed to the vapor of mercury, and that if the gas is allowed to work on metallic amalgams of mercury, the carbon contained in the gas is liberated, both in a non-crystallised form and in crystals, or diamonds. As the diamonds obtained were infinitesimal in size, diamond dust was placed in a tube in which gas was dissolved to act as so-called mother crystals. The newly-formed crystals adhere to these and the result is a larger, but still very small stone. The amalgam used is natrium. It is placed in a glass tube containing a small quantity of diamond dust, and lighting gas is passed through the tube for four weeks. The inventor is now engaged upon the problem of increasing the size of the stones.

JUDGED BY THEIR PIPES

They Show the Characteristics of the Race That Smokes Them.

There appeared in one of the Paris newspapers some amusing axioms of M. Watteville, who has devoted many years to the formation of a collection of pipes of all nationalities. M. Watteville declares that while cigars and cigarettes are cosmopolitan, pipes show by their peculiarities the characteristics of the race which smokes them. The activity of a race, says M. Watteville is proportionate to the length of the stem of the pipe which it smokes. The longer the stem is the lazier are the people who smoke it, and, inversely, the hardest workers smoke the shortest pipes. Big bowls denote generosity, small pipe bowls prove economy. Critical readers have informed M. Watteville that he has evidently not taken into account the class of man who carries a pipe with a very large bowl and borrows his tobacco.

Growing Potatoes by Electricity

Miss Dudgeon's experiments with the electrical treatment of potato crops on Lincluden Mains Farm have proved highly successful. The electric discharge was applied daily for three months and a half, averaging during that time four hours per day. Weather conditions determined the application of the discharge. From the outset the advantage was in favour of the crop under the wires, and in the end the tubers treated with electricity were ready for lifting a week ealier than those grown on the control plots, while there was an advantage also in the weight.

CAB CALLS IN PARIS.

The small conveyances of every day life in Paris are curiously lacking, and the latest Parisian complaint relative to this fact is that they suffer great inconvenience through the cab stations not being fitted with telephones, as those in London are. It is no unusual sight in Paris, particularly on a wet night, to see servants running about for a long time looking for cabs, or women in evening dress wandering along the streets in the hope of finding them.

A man may be able to dress well if his family doesn't.

DRS. SOPER & WHITE,
25 Toronto St., Toronto, Ont.

It was, doubtless, the emphasis which Maillot had laid upon Burke's secret visits to Fluette that engaged my interest. I would have liked very much to know what they portended. If the slippery secretary had been carrying on negotiations with the millionaire for the Paternoster Ruby, then the latter's position relative to the murder stood out quite clearly. With knowledge of those interviews in my possession I would be in a position to lay my case before the State's Attorney, who, beyond question, would procure a warrant for Fluette's immediate arrest.

What a sensation that would create!—Alfred Fluette charged with the murder of his rival and bitter enemy, Felix Page! It would be particularly startling inasmuch as a coroner's jury had already fastened the crime upon another man. I believe the reader will unhesitatingly admit, by this time, that the Page affair presented many remarkable aspects.

There was one discordant element in such a theory, however: namely, how could Fluette hope to retain possession of the gem, once he had secured it? How could he defend his title to it? Although the stone was immensely valuable, any person save the rightful owner would have an exceedingly difficult time disposing of it.

But this objection was in turn offset by the possibility that Page, although he had purchased the ruby openly, had actually acquired no just title to it. I admit, considering that Felix Page was never the sort of man to obuy a pig in a poke, that the possibility was rather far-fetched; still, it was a possibility, and a very pregnant one, too. For if such were the case, Burke might have obtained, in some underhand manner, authority to dispose of it.

And this brought me to the, as yet, unaccounted-for Japanese—I call them such for lack of a more definite characterization. How otherwise was their obscure connection with the case to be explained? Why, the very word "ruby" instantly calls up a picture of the East. How often have priceless gems been filched from Oriental potentates! How often have mysterious murders been committed to recover some jewel stolen from an Eastern temple, the murderer driven forth by religious zeal—or fanaticism, call it what you will—to a relentless search for the fetich, and to wreak a dire vengeance on the plunderer! Admitting that the present intricate problem involved a similar instance, I could not see how the fact might tend to aid me any.

After supper, which was brought in to us, Stodger and I divided the night into two watches—I taking the first until two o'clack in the morning, and he assuming responsibility from that time on until he chose to awaken me.

I arranged the two watches thus because I imagined that if an attempt should be made to enter the house during the night, it would occur at some time near the hour mentioned when both of us would more than likely be awake. My guess, you will see, was a poor one.

I also wanted to devote the fore part of the night, when my brain is always clearest, to an exhaustive study of the cipher found by Genevieve in the jewel-box. Until Stodger was ready to retire I could concentrate my whole mind upon it, I told myself, without fear of being disturbed. After my companion turned in I would have to remain alert, keeping pretty constantly on the move so that no marauder might steal in upon us unawares, or from an unexpected quarter.

If the place was bleak and dreary in the daytime, what words will describe its dispiriting influence at night? There is a silence that is soothing and restful, which imbues one with a sense of comfort and a pleasant desire for sleep. Then there is another sort of silence; one that magnifies every trifling sound, sounds that could not even be detected during the day; the sort of silence that hints at uneasy stirrings and movements all about one. The distant cockcrow rings clear and high, floors creak, the very timbers of the house complain, and mice scurry in the walls.

It was such a stillness that enveloped us. Even Stodger's irrepressible good-humor failed to cheer. The old mansion was possessed of a thousand voices, strange, indefinable noises that kept our attention constantly divided; yet the night was so still that I could hear our watches ticking in our pockets.

The result was that the cipher received only scant attention from me. I would get only fairly absorbed in my task when Stodger would startle me with a sudden "Ssh!" or a no less startling command to "Listen!" Whereupon we would both sit straining our ears to hear—nothing.

Every few minutes one or the other of us, or both together ,would go over the entire house, examining doors and windows and making sure that no one had entered since the last tour of inspection.

This was repeated so many times that Stodger himself grew glum, and at last signified a determination to turn in. He made himself comfortable on the big library divan,—the same divan which had held Belle Fluette's motionless form only a few hours previous,—wrapped himself in a heavy blanket from Felix Page's bed, and was soon fast asleep; or, at least, he offered audible evidence that he was Again I tried to fasten my attention upon the cryptic parchment; but it was of no use. In spite of myself, my head would jerk up to a listening attitude every time a board creaked or I fancied I heard a door somewhere in the house being cautiously opened. Time after time I would be sent stealthily to some remote corridor or chamber, only to return again to the library no wiser, than before.

I finally thrust the cipher back into my pocket-book and resigned myself to a lonely vigil. The great library was a place of shadows and dark recesses, as well as of silence; and had it not been for the regular, stertorous breathing of the sleeper, I might have wished myself well out of it.

The hours dragged along—midnight, one o'clock, two, half-past, and still I did not rouse Stodger; I never had less desire to sleep. During one of my excursions through the empty, echoing rooms I set down my lantern—we had provided ourself with this convenience—and looked out into the night. The pleasant weather of the past few days had ended; it was dark—very dark—and an occasional flake of snow, materializing ghostlike within the square of light from the lantern, scraped along the small diamond panes with a feathery touch.

Presently I entered Felix Page's bedroom. And here, for the first time that night, I was sensible of an absolute stillness. Not even a board creaked. Not a breath stirred the leafless boughs outside, nor rattled the withered vines on the walls. Then of a sudden I grew rigid, tensely alert, and and watchful. From somewhere a breath of icy outdoor air struck upon my face and hands.

Now whatever else might be said of this old house, it was not a place of drafts. Its walls were thick and solid, its doors massive, and the doors and windows were snug-fitting; therefore, the fact that I now felt a perceptible rush of air could signify but one thing—that an outside door or window had been opened.

During a brief pause I hesitated over whether I should rouse Stodger; but so slight a warrant decided me not to. A shout from any part of the house, should he be needed, would accomplish the purpose quite as well.

So I merely stood motionless and listened. The circumstance that my straining ears could now hear nothing whatever was in itself ominous. The hush which had fallen upon the place was the sort that heralds an advance through a forest of the most cautious of hunters. Danger might be creeping upon me from every side and in any imaginable guise; if so, here was my warning.

Then it was that I smiled and reached a decision. With infinite caution I sank to the floor, removed my shoes, and draped a rug over the lantern. Only the dimmest points of light showed through the weave of the fabric; merely enough to serve as a guiding beacon in case I wanted to find it in a hurry. Next, with my revolver in hand, I stole to the hall door, which had been left ajar purposely, and peered out.

The darkness was fathomless, the silence complete. The spacious lower hall was the Dionysius' ear of the house; if there was any movement about the place, here if anywhere it would be detected and its source determined.

The floor was of hardwood, and my feet were soon numb with the cold. Then, too, bravery is a relative term, when all is said and done. A coward may be always a coward, but it is not an inevitable corollary that a brave man is always brave. To know a possible antagonist, to walk boldly up to him in the broad light of day, is one thing; to stand in a hyperborean hall in the dead of night, surrounded by the darkness of the pit, ignorant alike of the nature of your peril and the point from which an attack may come—that is quite another.

So I freely own that my jaws ached with the effort of keeping my teeth from clicking together like castanets.

In the course of a long and not uneventful career, I have been in a good many tight places and under all sorts of conditions where I had to hold myself to the matter in hand with every grain of will power that I could muster; but never since that night in the old Page hall have I experienced precisely the same unnerving feeling that possessed me then. I came perilously close to an ignominous retreat—and before ever I had an idea of what I was running from!

Fortunately for whatever status I may hold in this chronicle, the movement was checked at its inception. In a flash my momentary panic was forgotten. I caught a sound that I recognized and, moreover, located on the instant. It was the long, unmistakable creak of a loose stair plank such as follows the gradual shifting of a person's weight from one foot to another. Somebody was slowly and cautiously ascending the rear stairs.

I could smile once more and breathe normally. Instead of retreating, I was in the next few seconds stealing up the front stairs. Nor did I move very slowly, either. I knew by experiment that its steps were all solid, and that I need not fear the betrayal of any complaining board.

At the stair head I became cautious again; I did n't want to risk a collision with the étagère. What must I do, however, but stumble against the topmost step and plunge head foremost right into the thing.

(To be Continued.)

NEARLY CHOKED.

The children soon get choked up with a cold. Mrs. Fred Howe, of Newcastle, N.B., says: "My little 8-year-old son, Arthur, contracted a heavy cold. He coughed all night, and although he coughed up great quantities of phlegm, the breathing passages did not clear, and I had thought he would choke for want of air. Our druggist recommended Hyomei. In less than half an hour it stopped the coughing, the choking sensation gradually died away and there was no further trouble."

Hyomei is the Australian dry air treatment and is guaranteed to cure Catarrh, Cold in the Head, Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, and Croup. Money back if it fails. A complete outfit includes hard rubber inhaler and costs only $1. All druggists or postpaid from the R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. Extra bottles of Hyomei, if afterwards needed, 50c. A GRAFTED BOY.

(Belle V. Chisholm).

(Copyright by Publishers' Press, Ltd)

It was David's first visit to Ohio, and he had come all the way from Kansas alone. The doctor had ordered mamma to California, in the hope that the change would cure her, but he vetoed 'that boy' accompanying her when he learned her intentions of having David as one of her travelling companions.

"Might as well stay at home as take that perpetual motion machine along," he grumbled. "What you want, madam, is rest—perfect rest, and everybody knows that with a boy of eight tagging at your heels, you would get less rest away from home than in your own house."

"But what will poor David do without his mother, doctor?" the sick woman asked. "He has never been away from me for a single night."

"Better do without you for a few months than forever," said the doctor, significantly. "Ship him east for a visit to his grandfather's, can't you?"

The doctor's suggestion was followed, and a few days later David was tagged and expressed to "Springdale, Ohio." Upon his arrival grandpa receipted for him at the station, and took him out to the farm, where he did his share to help grandma and the two young aunties tried to make him forget his loneliness and homesickness.

It was David's first visit to the beautiful country, and he had a jolly time running races with old Gip, riding the horses to water, and having lots of good things to eat.

But bright and cheery a little chap as David proved, he was a bit too selfish for his own good or other people's happiness, and often made trouble for those who loved him best. He did not like to work, and when asked to bring a bucket of water or an armful of wood into the kitchen, or to do any little thing to save older people steps, he pouted andgrumbled so much that the folks about the house hated to ask any little favor of him.

One day in October he followed grandpa into the orchard, where he was grafting some fruit trees. He had never heard of such a thing before, and after watching awhile in silence, asked, "What do you mean by grafting, grandpa?"

"I want a better kind of apples to grow on this side of the tree, and so I cut off the big limbs and put new sets in their places," explained grandpa. "You see that I fasten these little cuts in place with wax."

"And will they stick and grow big like the ones you cut off?" asked David, much interested.

"Yes, indeed," answered grandpa; "Here, taste this apple, and this," he added, plucking two apples from opposite sides of the tree. The first was small and knotty from the old tree; the second large and mellow, from a graft of a few years before.

"O-o-h Sour and bitter," exclaimed David, with a wry face, flinging the little apple away. "But this big one is sweet and juicy," he added, smacking his lips contentedly over the second sample. "The grafting helped it, I guess."

"I've been wondering if grafting might not make some folks pleasanter to live with," said grandpa, soberly. "I know some little boys sadly in need of kinder tongues and more accommodating hands and feet."

"You couldn't cut boys up like trees," argued David, opening his eyes very wide.

"I don't see why," replied grandpa. "If it helps trees, it ought to help people too. I think it would be worth trying," he went on, looking at David as if about to try the experiment on him.

The boy shied off, and a little later went to the house and lay down in the hammock swinging across the porch. He was tired and kept very still, certain that grandfather was only funnin'.

Directly he saw a big man bending over him, with a grafting knife like grandpa's in his hand. "I'm a surgeon," he said, "and have brought new arms and legs to graft into you, instead of these lazy ones you have now," and when David began to cry, he took a new tongue out of his case, saying, "This tongue is to go into your mouth first of all, as that whimpering, cross one is making every one about the house wretched, and must be cut out at once."

He reached for his knife, and then David began to scream, bringing grandma and Aunt Patty in great fright to see what was wrong.

"A man, was trying to cut my tongue out," cried David, trembling like a leaf.

"You've been dreaming, dearie," comforted grandma, rubbing David's cold fingers until they tingled with warmth.

"Maybe I have," said David, "but I didn't know I was asleep."

That evening David filled the woodbox and water buckets without a hint from anybody, and when grandma told him how happy his thoughtfulness made her, he smiled back, saying, "Aren't there some errands you want done? You see I'm a grafted boy now, and I want to find out how fast my new feet can run."

"What do you mean by a grafted boy," inquired grandma, looking puzzled.

"Ask grandpa," answered David. "He knows," he added, as he started on an errand for Aunt Patty, "and he can tell."

Very Appropriate

They sat at the edge of the wood gazing dreamily at the reapers toiling in the sunny fields, at the scarlet poppies that glanced amid the golden grain, and at each other.

"Darling," he cried, "I swear by this great tree, whose spreading branches shade us from the heat, that I have never loved before."

The girl smiled faintly. "You always say such appropriate things, Bertie," she murmured, "This is a chestnut tree."

The Result

The expected happened in connection with yesterday's election to the Ontario Legislature, the result being the return to power of the Conservative party by a practically undiminished majority. It is a splendid tribute to the honesty and capacity of the Whitney Government that, after seven years in office, they still command the confidence of a vast majority of the constituencies, despite the most unworthy and, in most instances, unfounded appeals to passion and prejudice—religious and national. Two, at least, of the net gain of three seats by the Grit party—namely Prescott and Glengarry—were won by arousing the prejudice of the French people in those counties in favor of bi-lingual schools, against the establishment of which the Government had strongly pronounced. Otherwise the contest was virtually featureless, excepting that the Conservative majorities in the constituencies previously held by them were in general largely increased.

It is highly gratifying to note that all the members of the Government were re-elected. A dead-set was made against Mr. Foy by a combination which was hard to overcome, but that capable and worthy gentleman was returned by a substantial majority, which must be as gratifying to himself as it is to his host of friends, personal and political, in all parts of the province.

The Intelligencer congratulates all concerned on the result, as the effect of the popular verdict will be a continuance of honest and efficient administration of our public affairs for four years to come.

Inexcusable Blundering--An $18,000,000 Bridge

The Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General, has been banqueted in the City of Quebec, and in a speech, in reply to his health, let a little light into the manner in which public business was transacted by the late Government.

Every movement in connection with the construction of the Quebec bridge proved a fair example of the manner in which the money of the people was recklessly squandered by the Laurier Government. The whole bridge scheme was conceived in iniquity and has resulted in the enriching of many at the expense of the country, and the end is not yet.

In reviewing past affairs in Ottawa, Mr. Pelletier called special attention to the construction of the Quebec bridge across the St. Lawrence at Quebec. On this question he said:

> "On the whole, the bridge question will stand as a most improvident piece of statesmanship. The legacy of the late Government in this respect is as follows: $3,350,000 for the substructure, $8,650,000 for the superstructure for a rather narrow bridge, and $6,000,000 already sunk and wasted, which makes a total of $18,000,000 for a bridge to be ready four or five years after the Transcontinental has been completed, and Quebec sidetracked in the interval, except inasmuch as we can provide for car transportation as they do in Detroit."

That is, by large ferry boats, which will add an additional sum to the cost of the structure.

The end, as already intimated, is not yet. Mr. Pelletier added:

> "The contract as awarded has shut out tramway and vehicle transportation, and the late Government has decided that in consequence of that change, which I understood was a condition sine qua non, the Province and the City of Quebec should be refunded the amount which they had subscribed. I suppose it is too late now to change that, and we had better let the city and province get back their money. However, I understood that with a slight change tramway communication can yet be secured. On the whole, the bridge question will stand as a most improvident piece of statesmanship."

Was this omission to provide a tramway designedly done to enable the City and Province of Quebec to make demands upon the revenue of the Dominion for a refund of the sums subscribed by them in aid of the construction of the bridge? It looks very much like it.

An $18,000,000 bridge is an expensive luxury.

A Western Example

The city of Vancouver, under Mayor Taylor, was the first Canadian, and very probably the first city of North America, to adopt an assessment based wholly on land values. The innovation has proved a big success, says the Ottawa Journal. Now the Vancouver City Council is working on the details of a new civic charter, which provides future government by a commission of five men, and which introduces the recall, the initiative and the referendum. The new charter will be submitted to the people next January, and will be introduced, if carried, which seems extremely likely, on January 1st, 1913.

The new charter provides for the abolition of all wards and the election at large of a mayor and four councilmen at the January election in 1913, the mayor and two councilmen having the highest number of votes to hold office for four years, the other two councilmen to hold office for two years, and thereafter two councilmen to be elected every two years, the mayor and councilmen to have the same qualifications as now prescribed.

The various affairs of the city's administration are to be divided up among the five members, each to be the head of a department, or a number of departments, for which he is responsible, and to devote their time and attention to the city work.

Daily executive sessions are to be held taking up the work now done by the council committees, and weekly legislative sessions, taking up the work now done by the council in session.

men at $7,500, each to give bonds in a surety company for $25,000.

Nominations for mayor and councilmen are to be made at a mass meeting to be held at the city hall, any number of candidates being allowed. On the ballot, first, second and third choice is provided for.

The initiative, referendum and recall are provided for. A petition signed by 25 per cent. of the electors voting for mayor at the last election, proposing any law, shall compel the council to pass that law within forty days or put it to a referendum vote of the people, but not call a special election for the purpose, the matter being taken up at the regular election.

By-laws passed by the Council shall not take effect for ten days after passage, and if within the ten days a petition signed by 25 per cent. of the voters protest, then the matter shall be submitted to a vote

A Time of Change.

We are in one of the great crisis of the world's history; the era of transition is full upon us, and there is no people which is not rocking on its waves. International relations are changing. Empires are being broken up, immemorial systems are passing away, struggles are threatening that will involve half the human race.

Ladies of Culture and Refinement Use Salvia Hair Tonic. It Makes the Hair Beautiful

At last a remedy has been discovered that will positively destroy this pest.

That Dandruff is caused by germs is accepted by every sensible person.

Dandruff is the root of all hair evils.

SOME IMPORTANT THINGS FOR INVESTORS TO KNOW

Interesting Financial Compend by James B. Clews—The First Thing to be Considered is the Safeguarding of One's Principal—Experienced Bankers Should be Consulted [to Avoid Mistakes—Difference Between Strong and Weak Companies

From the Journal of Commecre & Commercial Bulletin, December , 1911

James B. Clews, of Henry, Clews & Co., has compiled the following interesting compendium or epitome of "Some Things Investors Should Know." It will be observed that he has compressed a great amount of information and sound advice in his hundred or more epigrams. He says:

The first thing to be considered is safe-guarding one's principal.

Remember that principal comes first and that everything else is of a secondary nature.

It is said that when nothing is risked, nothing is gained; nevertheless,

A doubtful bond for investment is a source of worry and annoyance and often begets loss.

Never leave a bad bond to your heirs, lest they question your judgment.

As a wise man goes to his lawyer for legal advice, so it is well for an investor to consult an experienced banker to avoid mistakes.

To become familiar with investments requires years of deep study.

Do not expect to find an absolute safe bond paying an excessive rate of interest, for the two do not go hand in hand.

In making investments, high grade means low rate, and low grade means high rate, but the terms are not synomomous.

It is better to be satisfied with a moderate income than to jeopardize your principal.

Every person taking a real estate mortgage studies it carefully, but,

Few people take the trouble to read deeds covering railroad issues.

The title of a bond is often misleading, many so-called first-mortgage bonds being subject to underlying liens; but

A junior mortgage of a strong company is often better than a first mortgage of a weak company.

It is said that a chain is only as strong as its weakest link; it is equally true that

A company is only as strong as its weakest mortgage.

If a company can meet its interest charges regularly, it can be taken for granted that there will be no default in payment of principal; bear in mind that

A corporate mortgage is rarely paid off, being either extended or replaced by a new one; and that

A strong company experiences no difficulty in making renewals.

In times gone by sinking funds were in vogue, but the modern school of finance has put them out of fashion.

A company that earns double its fixed charges is a strong company, but

A company that cannot show a safe margin over its fixed charges is a weak one.

It should not be forgotten that all companies do well in good times, but that

A weak concern in bad times has difficulty in making both ends meet.

A bond guaranteed by a strong company is a good investment, but

A weak guarantor on a bond does not enhance its value.

Making an average on stock is frequently attended with good results; but

Attempting to average on a bad bond is usually throwing good money after bad.

On the principle that putting all one's eggs in one basket is considered risky,

It is a good rule for an investor to scatter his risks.

The average bond issue per mile of all railroads in the United tSates is $40,000, but

The average per mile of Eastern railroads is $67,546, and

The average per mile of Western railroads is $36,989.

The average fixed charges per mile of all railroads in the United States is $2,405; but

The average per mile of railroads in the east is $4,990; and

The average per mile of railroads in the West is $1,798.

The average net earnings of all railroads in the United States is $4,611; but

The average per mile of Eastern railroads is $10,108, and

The average per mile of Western railroads is $3,780.

It should be realized that the higher bond issue of Eastern railroads is equalized by their greater earning power.

The average per centage of fixed charges in net earnings of all railroads in the United tSates is 52.1 per cent.

The total mileage of all railroads in the United States in 1910 was 243,000 miles; and

The total funded debt of all railroads in the United States was $10,510,031,103, equal to $116.77 per capita; and

The total capital stock of all railroads in the United States was $8,380,819,190, equal to $93.12 per capita.

Bonds are issued in coupon and registered forms; but

Most people prefer bonds that have coupons attached.

Registered bonds are unpopular owing to the clue afforded to tax inquisitors; but

"Secured debts" can now be exempt from personal taxation in New York State by paying a registration fee of 1-2 per cent.

Registered bonds are considered less risky in the event of loss or theft; but

Coupon bonds usually obtain from 1 per cent. to 2 per cent. more value in the open market; besides

The principal of a coupon bond may be registered in the owner's name.

Practically all coupon bonds may be exchanged for registered bonds; but

Only modern issues provide for interchangeability between coupon and registered.

Ink writing of any kind on a coupon bond, except by an officer of the issuing company lessens its value from five to ten per cent.

Investing your principal safely is the first essential; but

It is equally important to deposit your securities where a fire cannot destroy and thieves cannot enter.

If a registered bond is lost, a bond of an indemnity company for twice the amount of the principal must be furnished before obtaining a duplicate; and

To replace a lost coupon bond requires a bond of indemnity for double the amount of both principal and coupons.

It is a bad proposition to be tied up with a security which cannot be readily marketed; therefore

A bond that is listed on a representative exchange possesses market advantages over one that is not listed; besides

A listed bond is a ready collateral in making loans; whereas

An unlisted security is not always accepted by banks.

Remember, a broad market for a bond will permit of it being disposed of at any time without unnecessary sacrifice.

Four per cent is the recognized ideal standard of income the world over;

The rating of bonds may be determined by their income yield; thus,

A railroad bond that returns appreciably less than 4 per cent. is an ultra-conservative investment; and

A railroad bond that nets about four per cent. is a very conservative investment; but

A railroad bond may yield 4 1-2 per cent, and be classed as a conservative investment; and

A railroad bond may yield returns of five per cent and be a fair investment; but

A railroad bond yielding 5 1-2 per cent would be a semi-speculative investment, and

A railroad bond returning six per cent would be considered a speculative investment.

Remember, the further one gets away from the 4 per cent, the greater proportionate risk.

The best class of industrial bonds yield 4 1-2 per cent to 5 per cent.

It is recognized that the element of chance enters into all mortal products; but

Having an eye to safety is one thing to a large income is another, and to the enhancement of capital is another, nevertheless

It is proper to select a bond embodying the features of a small risk, liberal income and prospects for advance.

If a bond offers greater returns than 4 per cent "opportunities" are not lacking.

Custodians of trust funds are rightly limited to conservative investments; but

The individual investor is accountable only to himself.

All bonds in the premier class, regardless of their fixed rate, sell on about a four per cent income basis; but

It is better to purchase a four per cent bond at par than to pay a large premium for one bearing a high rate; remember that

A bond when it matures is redeemed only at its face value; and that

The greater the income during the term of a bond is at the expense of the corpus to be reinvested; thus

A ten-year six per cent bond, selling on a 4 per cent basis, costs $1,163.50, whereas it brings but $1,000 at maturity.

Amortization is practiced by savings institutions, but

Individual investors make no provision for steadily vanishing premiums.

Good mortgages on city real estate bear 4 1-2 per cent. interest, but

A good railroad bond is more desirable than a real estate mortgage, owing to its marketability and its ready use as a collateral.

A bond and mortgage on real estate are usually held by an individual or by an institution, whereas

A railroad mortgage is held in trust and the accompanying bond is split up into numerous parts.

Bonds are issued in denominations of $1,000 each; therefore

The market offers as good opportunities for the small investor as for the large one.

69 per cent. of all railroad earn-in the United States is derived from passengers; and 8 per cent. of all railroad earnings in the United States is derived from miscellaneous sources.

About two-thirds of the gross earnings of railroads are consumed in their operation, leaving one-third for the fixed charges, dividends on stock, and for betterments and improvements.

The railroads of the United States employ about 1,500,000 persons, at a cost of about $1,000,000,000, equal to 35.7 per cent. of gross.

FIRE AT OWEN SOUND

Flames Destroy Two Big Canadian Pacific Elevators.

A Million Dollars Is the Estimated Loss In One of the Most Serious Conflagrations In History of Port—Dropping a Cigarette Butt on Dock Is Blamed—887,000 bushels of Grain Are Lost.

Owen Sound, Dec. 12.—One of the most devastating fires that has ever visited the port of Owen Sound, took place last evening, resulting in the total destruction of the two big C.P.R. elevators with their contents, consisting of 887,000 bushels of grain, of which 129,000 bushels was wheat, the balance being principally oats and barley. The loss will run over one million dollars.

The fire, which broke out at 8.45 o'clock, is believed to have been caused by the dropping of a cigar or cigarette butt on the dock close to the elevating leg of No. 1, the southern of the two elevators. The capacity of this elevator is 250,000 bushels, and that of No. 2, the northern elevator, 800,000 bushels. It was discovered shortly after by Harbormaster Maclean and Wm. Hartford, who promptly turned in an alarm.

Like a lightning flash the flames sprang up the main elevating leg, which furnished a great draft for their progress, and quickly spread over the entire building.

Then by means of the grain-conveyor, they spread to the other elevator, 100 feet to the north, which was soon enveloped in flames.

CAN'T CONTROL ISSUE.

Publicity Will Help U. S. Railway Security Problem.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 12.—The railroad securities commission, headed by President A. T. Hadley of Yale, has reported that it would be practically impossible at this time to place issues of railroad securities under federal control. The commission recommends that enforced publicity for all railroad financing is the most effective weapon against stock watering which the Government has at its command.

The commission was created in 1910, when the Senate refused to accept a House amendment to the pending railroad bill, providing that all future issue of stocks of railroad securities be placed under the control of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The commission's report is distinctly adverse to the legislation proposed in the railroad bill and President Taft, in transmitting the report to Congress yesterday, declared that he heartily concurred in the recommendations.

The commission's principal conclusions are:

That any attempt by Congress to adopt the policy of the federal regulation to the exclusion of state regulation would be premature.

That for the present, state authorities should make a concerted effort to harmonize existing requirements.

That Congress should prepare for the future by giving consideration to a federal incorporation act which would permit the interstate railroads to exchange their state charters for national ones.

The commission takes the ground that constitutional questions involving the scope and extent of federal authority are unsettled and will remain so for some time; and that while such a condition exists to superimpose federal regulation upon state regulation would add to the conflicts and complexities, which in the public interest, should rather be diminished than increased.

Indictment and prosecution of railroads which fail to refund promptly manifest overcharges on the transportation of freight, hereafter will be requested by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

LIQUID COUGH MIXTURES CAN'T CURE BRONCHITIS

BY THE HEALING FUMES OF CATARRHOZONE, WHICH ARE BREATHED TO THE FURTHEST RECESSES OF THE BRONCHIAL TUBES, BRING QUICK RELIEF AND SURE CURE.

Every sufferer from coughs, colds, bronchitis and all throat and chest ailments needs a soothing, healing medicine which goes direct to the breathing organs in the chest and lungs, attacks the trouble at the source, disperses the germs of disease, and cures the ailment thoroughly. And this medicine is "Catarrhozone."

The germ-killing balsamic vapor mixes with the breath, descends through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, and finally reaches the deepest air cells in the lungs. All parts are soothed with rich, pure medicinal essences, whereas with a syrup the affected parts could not be reached, and harm would result through benumbing the stomach with drugs.

"I have been a chronic sufferer from Catarrh in the nose and throat for over eight years. I think I have spent four hundred dollars trying to get relief. I have spent but six dollars on Catarrhozone, and have been completely cured, and, in fact, have been well for some time. Catarrhozone is the only medicine I have been able to find that would not only give temporary relief, but will always cure permanently. Yours sincerely,
(Signed) WILLIAM RAGAN,
Brockville, Ont."

For absolute, permanent cure use Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment costs $1.00; smaller size, 50c., at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

WAS A CONFIRMED DYSPEPTIC
Now Finds it a Pleasure to Enjoy Meals

Here is a case which seemed as bad and as hopeless as yours can possibly be. This is the experience of Mr. H. J. Brown, 384 Bathurst St., Toronto, in his own words:

"Gentlemen—I have much pleasure in mentioning to you the benefits received from your Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets and can cheerfully recommend them. I simply had confirmed dyspepsia with all its wretched symptoms, and tried about all the advertised cures with no success. You have in Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets the best curative agent I could find. It is now such a pleasure to enjoy meals with their consequent nourishment that I want to mention this for the benefit of others."

The fact that a lot of prescriptions or so-called "cures" have failed to help you is no sign that you have got to go on suffering. Try Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets and see how quickly this sterling remedy will give you relief and start your stomach working properly. If it doesn't help you, you get your money back. 50c a box at your druggist's. Compounded by the National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal. 141

Lynchers Were Hypnotized.

London, Dec. 12.—Auto-suggestion was the defence accepted by the judges at Agram, in Hungary, yesterday, when they acquitted six peasants who had taken part in a brutal case of lynching.

The inhabitants of the Village of Bibnik, in Croatia, had been greatly excited by a number of cases of arson in the neighborhood, and as the authorities failed them, they organized a police force themselves.

Armed with scythes and shotguns, they finally seized an itinerant brushmaker. He was dragged before the assembled villagers and tortured until he made confession. Then more than a hundred men and women beat him to death with flails, chopped up the body with scythes, and burned the fragments in a heap of straw.

Though the public prosecutor asked for death sentences, defending counsel succeeded in persuading the judges that the peasants in the common excitement had, so to speak, mesmerized one another, and were therefore not responsible for their actions.

Probing United Shoe Machinery.

Boston, Dec. 12.—The criminal pleadings in the Government's suit against the directors and officials of the United Shoe Machinery Co., were completed yesterday with the arrangement of George W. Brown of Boston, who was in South America when he and his fellow directors were indicted for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. Mr. Brown, who is a venerable-looking business man, pleaded not guilty in the United States court to the two indictments, and furnished $10,000 bail for his appearance at the trial, the date of which has not been fixed.

Boys Found Dynamite.

Los Angeles, Dec. 12.—A sack containing ten pounds of dynamite, about 200 feet of fuse and a number of triplex caps, was found early yesterday by two boys in a doorway leading to the engine-room of a laundry.

FACTS AND FALLACIES ABOUT TUBERCULOSIS.

A Child May be Born with a Tendency to Consumption, but if Proper Care Is Taken It May be Overcome.

Although there are many things that we do not know about consumption, or tuberculosis, there are some that we do and a few that we are in the act of learning.

We do not know, for example, what makes for susceptibility and what for immunity. Strong and robust persons are sometimes stricken down with it; invalids and convalescents from other diseases are no more susceptible to it than are other people, and it is possible to live for an entire lifetime in the condition known as "run-down" or "weak" without becoming tuberculosis.

People, says a writer, still speak of consumption as "inherited," but it is not inherited. A child may be born with a certain tendency to it, but if proper measures are taken early, and kept up steadily and long enough, this tendency can be overcome. A child whose parents before him, and their parents before them, perhaps for generations back have been poor breathers, will probably inherit a small, meagre chest, and will therefore be the natural victim of the consumption germ as soon as it reaches him. That child will have to be taught to breathe. The tendency to pigeon-breast can be overcome and a narrow chest developed to a normal capacity; but to do this, the child must be kept constantly in good air, and taught how to develop and use the lungs. A pigeon-breasted child who is being brought up on the coddling process—oversheltered, overfed and overclothed—is in as much danger as if he lived under the famous sword hanging from a hair.

A City of Salt.

There is a city of salt situated at Wieliczka, a little municipality some six miles from Cracow, in Polish Austria, and the centre of the Galician salt industry. It would take at least three weeks to visit ever portion of this marvellous city, which dates back to 1044. Men have worked in its hollows for centuries. Horses have been brought to life and have died there, without seeing the light of day. It is virtually a city hewn in salt. The mines contain a wonderful ball-room, which is 216 ft. below the surface, and two remarkable chapels, on the walls of one of which is carved a view of Bethlehem.

ELEPHANT PULLS TOOTH

Unusual Operation Witnessed by Visitors to Riverdale Zoo

The elephant at the Riverdale Zoo, Toronto, acts as his own dentist. A few days ago it pulled a tooth which had been bothering it, the operation being witnessed by a number of persons who were watching the animal at the time. It appeared to be in pain, and worked it strunk around in its mouth as though to disloge something unpleasant. At last, after moving its trunk frantically, the animal drew something from its mouth. It cast the tooth thus extracted out of the enclosure. The molar was large, and had evidently broken off in the gum, as all the root did not come out. The crown was in a good state of preser-

OUR WONDERFUL LANGUAGE.

How Allah Fashioned a Tongue for the Englishman.

In spite of certain undeniable disadvantages, the English language steadily makes headway. There are few tongues so hard to master. One foreigner, who has had his troubles, but has won his way to a perfect command of the language, has presented some of the humors of the difficulties which belong to this richest of living languages.

As a boy, I heard a fantastic Turkish legend, which, to my mind, aptly illustrates the actual facts concerning the origin and formation of modern English.

After creating the first parents of each of the races, the story runs, Allah took a large piece of meat, and cutting it into slices, distributed them among all the people to serve them as tongues. For some reason the Englishman was absent when the others received their share. At last he came into the presence of his Maker, and in mute humiliation beghim to put a tongue into his mouth. But nothing was left of the meat. So Allah was obliged to cut a little piece from the tongues of all the others, and joining these pieces, he fashioned a tongue for the Englishman.

The Golden Opportunity.

Among the persons who have recently made provision for old age when it comes are two sisters, aged respectively 33 and 34 years. They have purchased from the Canadian government a Last Survivor Annuity, that is an annuity which will give them together an income of $600 a year so long as they both live, and to be continued to the survivor so long as she lives. The cost of this Annuity, $3,643.65, has been invested at 5 per cent., and had brought in less than $185.00 annually, with the difficulty and annoyance of re-investment. The Annuity becomes payable when the younger sister attains the age of 55, and should both die before that time the purchase money will be refunded to their heirs with 3 per cent. compound interest. Each is now earni[illegible]er own living, and the sum paid [illegible]e fruit of their labors for a n[illegible] of years. They were thus able the better to appreciate their splendid opportunity. A card of enquiry addressed to the Superintendent of Canadian Government Annuities, Ottawa, will secure for you any information you desire on the subject.

Growth in Naval Expenditure.

Since 1902 the naval expenditure of the principal countries of the world has increased from £90,383,000 to £145,319,000. Great Britain is responsible for an increase of £13,000,000, Germany for $12,000,000, the United States for £10,000,000, France for over £4,000,000, and Russia for £3,000,000. In the last ten years the eight chief naval powers have spent the stupendous sum of upwards of

OBJECT TO TRIAL.

Hebert Does Not Want Ne Temere's Legality Tested.

Montreal, Dec. 12--There will be opposition to any hearing of evidence on the legality of the ne temere decree, or on the legality of the Hebert marriage when the case is called in Practice Court to-day for hearing of evidence on the inscription for judgment asked for by the attorneys for the wife, Marie Emma Clouatre.

This opposition is being raised by the legal firm of Beaudin, Loranger, St. Germain, Guerin and Raymond, who state they have been retained as counsel for L. J. Lefevbre, attorney of record for the husband, and who has conducted the fight single-handed thus far.

These attorneys state that their client had announced his intention of withdrawing from the suit because he has not the funds to carry it on. This, the attorneys claim, Mrs. Hebert and her lawyers duly took cognizance of, and moved for formal declaration in their favor, and there was no question of legality or illegality of the marriage to be decided.

The recent request for a hearing of evidence on the legal aspect of the marriage, which is to be heard today is illegal, they say, for there is no argument to settle. The husband has by default desisted ,claiming his rights in the first judgment, annulling the marriage and that settled it, his attorneys claim.

If by any chance the witnesses are heard to-day, they will not take part in it, but will take steps to have the proceedings declared illegal in the higher courts.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

A serious fire broke out yesterday afternoon in Luna Park, New York, one of the great show places of Coney Island.

Frost in the foundation caused the collapsing of a new two-storey house at Brantford. Loss $1,500.

George Keriages, a Greek, formerly of Toronto, was fined $50 at Windsor for having assisted two friends to evade the immigration officials.

Arthur deB. Tremaine, chief accountant and paymaster of the Nova Scotia Marine and Fisheries Agency, has received the appointment of inspector of agencies for Canada.

Chief Justice Wettmore of Regina is to retire March 1st, on full pay, having completed 25 years continuous service. It is understood he will be succeeded by F. W. G. Haultain, leader of the Saskatchewan Conservatives.

The murdered body of I. S. Vogel, a wealthy dealer in jewelry, was found in the engine room of a New York loft building. The condition of the room indicated that Vogel had made a desperate fight for life.

Sir Joseph D. Hooker, the eminent surgeon and naturalist, died yesterday in London. He was born in 1817, and was educated at the high school and University of Glasgow, where he took his medical degree in 1839.

Owing to a score of cases of diphtheria in Lindsay, the schools, churches and other public places have been ordered closed until Jan. 1.

The condition of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, who was operated upon for appendicitis a few days ago in Ceylon, is still considered serious.

A sentence of fifteen months in jail was imposed by the Criminal Court of Cologne, Germany, yesterday on a waiter named Friedrichs, who was convicted of extensive thefts of travelers' checks and baggage from tourists there, as well as in London.

Germany's Spy Scare.

London, Dec. 12.—A special Berlin despatch to The Daily Express indicates that the trial of Max Schultz at Leipsic, on the charge of obtaining information about German land and naval armaments for England, has caused a general scare throughout Germany.

The German newspapers bitterly comment on the liberal use of English gold to obtain coveted information.

It is reported that Germany has decided to establish a naval base at Emden, on the North Sea, and will build a harbor there for battleships and cruisers. It is said also that Germany is determined to establish a permanent garrison of 12,000 troops at Varley.

The Express correspondent says the German press is jubilant because, in the policy of fighting fire with fire, Germany has been able to obtain important information, but vigorously protests against members of English society taking part in spying, because their love of sport impels them to court danger.

The spy mania, however ,is not confined to Germany; a constant watch is being kept by the British authorities on Germans in important English garrison towns and naval ports.

Darrow Denies Bribery.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 12.—"Lockwood's testimony does not bring Clarence S. Darrow legally into the case," said District Attorney Fredericks. "It is hearsay and nothing more. We will proceed with prosecutions only on evidence which will stand in court of law."

"Will you say if you have such evidence?" he was asked.

"We have not," he said, and then corrected himself. "We have other evidence, but it is not sufficient," he said.

When apprised of the testimony in the Franklin hearing, Attorney Darrow said: "Whatever Franklin and Lockwood said, I know nothing at all about it. I had nothing to do with bribing any jurors in any way."

Lords Accept Insurance Bill.

London, Dec. 12.—David Lloyd-George's national insurance bill passed its second reading in the House of Lords yesterday without division. Lord Lansdowne said that the choice lay between the bill with all its defects and two or three years distracting controversy between the two Houses and he had come to the conclusion that acceptance of the bill was the wiser course.

Have You Got Your Coffee Pot?

Your grocer is only waiting for your order of 2 50c. tins of DALTON'S FRENCH DRIP COFFEE to deliver This Coffee Pot Absolutely FREE -:- -:-

We Give You All Of The Good Of The Coffee, and the means of Always Having Good Coffee.

Dalton's French Drip Coffee is not only the best in the world from the standpoint of health—it is also the most delicious. The special Dalton process of roasting and grinding—that makes Dalton's French Drip Coffee so good for you, also improves the flavor.

Nature covers the Coffee, just as she protects grains and nuts, by covering the kernel or heart with a tough skin or coat. This coat contains tannic acid and other bitter substances which are harmful to insects and not harmless to the human system.

Ordinary Coffee is ground with this tough coat, and boiling brings out all the rank, bitter flavor and indigestible fibre. No wonder ordinary Coffee, made in the ordinary way, upsets digestion and racks the nerves.

DALTON'S FRENCH DRIP COFFEE is free of these harmful substances and contains no chicory. After this Coffee is roasted and ground, a powerful air-blast removes the inner coating, leaving only the kernel or heart of the Coffee berry, rich in the essence which gives flavor and aroma to the breakfast and dinner cup. This is why Dalton's Coffee is never bitter—never upsets the stomach—never jangles the nerves—never is anything but the richest, most fragrant, most appetizing Coffee that ever came on the table. But Dalton's Coffee must be made right. This is why we give you this $1.30 French Drip Coffee Pot FREE.

Dalton's French Drip Coffee

Boiling ruins Coffee. Boiling drives off the flavor, instead of developing it. The French Drip Process is the only way to make really good Coffee. We have been on the lookout for a reliable, satisfactory, inexpensive percolator or Coffee pot for a long time and found just the right one over in Germany. Now you can have Dalton's French Drip Coffee made as good Coffee should be made.

We put up two special brands of Coffee — MILD and STRONG. You can't say which of the two you will prefer until you try both. Nor can you make good Coffee without this French Drip Coffee Pot.

SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER

We feel so sure that you will find either Dalton's Mild Blend or Strong Blend French Drip Coffee just the Coffee that you have been looking for that we have authorized your Grocer to give you one of these handsome pots (worth $1.30) absolutely Free with your first purchase of a tin each of Mild and Strong Blend. You buy two 50c. tins of our Coffee—one of each blend—to give it a fair trial and we give you the means of testing it FREE, satisfied that you will use nothing but Dalton's French Drip Coffee thereafter.

It costs 50c. per tin.

Pastor Russell's Sermon

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec., 10.—Pastor Russell preached twice here today to large audiences. We report his discourse from the text, "The wrath of God is revealed against all unrighteousness of men," Romans i: 18. The unreasonable teachings of our creeds has biased our minds to such a degree that the expression "wrath to come," carries with it to our deluded brains pictures such as Dante, Thomas a Kempis and others have conjured up for our minds, and which became impressed upon us in infancy.

How could we supose that He who taught us, "Let not the sun go down on our wrath," could Himself maintain wrath to a devilish degree for all eternity?

How could we suppose that He who directed us to love our enemies and to do them good who ignore His own teaching and torture and injure all of His human offspring?

The Bible tells what the wrath to come is. We will look at that in due time, but now let us look at our text, and at the wrath which it says is already revealed for six thousand years. If it is revealed, where is it, and what is it?

We answer that the expression of God's wrath against sin is seen in the sentence of death against the sinner—"Dying thou shalt die." This the Scriptures call the 'curse.' It has rested upon our race for six thousand years. It is visible to all, attested by the reign of sin and death. Do we not realize some of it on our own selves? If so, to that extent the wrath of God is revealed, and thus we see the operation of this reign of sin and death.

Do we realize that our race is dying, mentally, morally, physically? Do we realize that all this is the penalty of sin? If we do, then the wrath of God is revealed, as we see it manifest everywhere. Every piece of crepe, every funeral procession, every casket, every cemetery, every undertaker's sign, every physician's sign, all of weaknesses and those of others, —all these testify that God's wrath upon our race. Moreover the earthquakes and pestilence, the droughts and floods, all tell us that earth is not in a perfect condition, suitable for perfect man. It testifies to us convicts.

Does any one think that the wrath of God is thus revealed in heaven—that amongst the holy angels is weakness, imperfection, sin and death? Does anyone suppose that the doctors or undertakers or cemeteries or nurses are there? Why not? The answer is simple. The wrath of God is not upon them, because they are not sinners—they have continued to abide in God's favor, in obedience to Him.

Not only so, but amongst men the wrath of God, which attaches in a general way to the entire race, is more especially manifested toward those who sin against light and knowledge. The wilful violations of the standards of righteousness bring special degradation and hasten along the wage of sin, death. This was especially the apostle's thought in our text. In all mankind the wrath of God is manifested, but St. Paul declares it was specially manifested towards those who have turned aside from what they know to be right, turned aside from such manifestations of God as they have in nature, and have rejected Him and His laws of righteousness and gone deliberately into sin and have helped forward their own degradation. St. Paul declared that their foolish hearts became darkened until they worshipped sticks and stones. The extra degradation that came upon them is still witnessed by the degraded conditions of the heathen nations, as well as by the degraded elements of society in civilization. A reverence for God and for righteousness helps to lift up the race.

"Who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?" were John the Baptist's words to some of the holiness of the peoplexxfiflfffi xxfiflfffi fl ness people (Pharisees) of his day. To what wrath did John refer? We answer that he was a prophet and that he was thus telling the time of trouble with which the Jewish age ended in A. D. 70. There is nothing whatever to indicate that he made any reference to a wrath of God in the future that would come upon his hearers after they were dead. On the contrary, the scriptures everywhere teach that the dead are unconscious, that they can neither enjoy nor suffer anything that they must

Our Lord also corroborated the words of John the Baptist and declared that the wrath of God upon that nation was nigh! His words were:—"These be the days of vengeance upon this people, that all things written in the law and the prophets concerning them should be fulfilled." Luke xxi: 20-22; also from the apostle Paul, I Thess. ii:16. Some of the things written by the Lord in the law and prophets were fulfilled in the destruction of Jerusalem, and in the trouble which came upon the Jews at that time. But other things written have had a grander fulfilment for now eighteen hundred years; and not one jot or tittle can fail until all be fulfilled.

However, St. Paul (Ephesians v:6; Colossians iii:6) mentions a coming time of divine wrath; and Jesus urged his followers saying, "Watch ye that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all those things coming upon the world, and to stand before the Son of Man." This intimates that the wrath here mentioned is to be world-wide, and in the end of this age, even as the wrath upon the Jewish nation was nationwide at the end of their age.

This special wrath will be manifest in "a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation." (Daniel xii:1.) It will be especially upon those who fail to live up to the light and privilege which they enjoy. It will be upon all the selfish or covetous, and upon the unclean, and upon those who unduly prize all earthly things, wealth, honor, etc. God's people are warned, "Be ye not therefore partakers with them," otherwise you will have no part or lot in the glorious kingdom to which you have been called of God, as joint heirs with Jesus Christ, conditional upon your suffering with Him that you may also reign with Him.

POWER OF CO-OPERATION.

Chinese Have Steadily Combined Together, To Arm Themselves with an Invisible Weapon for Protection.

In order to enforce their rights by the simplest and most bloodless means, the Chinese have steadily cultivated the art of combining together and have thus armed themselves with an immaterial, invisible weapon, which simply paralyses the aggressor, and ultimately leaves them mas-observed. If the boatmen or chair-coolies at any place strike, they all strike; there are no blacklegs. If the butchers refuse to sell, they all refuse, entirely confident of each other's loyalty.

Foreign merchants who have offended the Chinese guilds by some course of action not approved of by those powerful bodies, have often found to their cost that such conduct will not be tolerated for a moment, and that their only course is to withdraw, sometimes at a considerable loss, from the untenable position they had taken up.

The other side of the medal is equally instructive. Some years ago the foreign tea merchants at a large port, in order to curb excessive charges, decided to hoist the Chinese teamen, or sellers of tea, with their own petard. They organised a strict combination against the tea-men, whose tea no colleague was to buy until, by what seemed to be a natural order of events, the tea-men had been brought to their knees. The tea-men, however, remained firm, their countenances as impassive as ever. Before long, the tea merchants discovered that some of their number had broken faith, and were doing a roaring business for their own account, on the terms originally insisted on by the tea-men.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

CONSERVATIVE GOVERNMENT OF ONTARIO HAS BEEN UPHELD

Sir James Whitney Suffers Loss of Four Seats.

Returns From Booths Throughout Ontario Show Seven Conservative Gains and Eleven Losses—One Laborite Is Elected—Bilingual Issue Had Little or No Effect In French Counties—Majority Will Be 60.

Toronto, Dec. 12.—Sir James Whitney has gone back to power with a majority big enough for all "practical purposes," in fact, a lot of his friends believe it is still too large, but a great many of them did not have the heart to help reduce it.

The Prime Minister will have a majority of 60, whereas, in the last House the Conservative majority was 68 including the Speaker.

At midnight, with the returns practically complete from every part of Ontario, the standing of the parties was:

Conservatives	83
Liberals	22
Laborite	1

The Conservatives made 7 gains, including North Renfrew, which went by acclamation. The Liberals made 11 gains.

Some of the Conservative members of the last Parliament who went down to defeat were: Phil Bowyer in East Kent, where local considerations entered largely into the fight; Charles Calder in South Ontario; A. Aubin in Sturgeon Falls, who was opposed by a very strong and popular man, Mageau, and where patronage did Mr. Aubin more harm than good; and Col. Craig in East Wellington, a valuable man.

On the other hand the Liberals lost such stalwarts as James McEwing, who was one of the strongest characters on the left hand side of the House; Daniel Reed, South Wentworth, and Valentine Stock of South Perth.

The bilingual question did not help the Conservatives much. In the French counties they lost Glengarry (formerly Scotch), Prescott and Sturgeon Falls, while on the other hand the Conservatives won in the French counties, Stormont and East Ottawa; the latter could be accounted for, by the candidature of L. J. Kehoe, an Irish Roman Catholic, from whom the French expected little.

HE IS STILL PREMIER.

The majority of Leader Rowell is 58. This is a little better than the late member, Dr. Andrew McKay did in 1908.

The ex-Liberal leader, Mr. A. G. MacKay has over 700 majority over his old-time opponent, G. M. Boyd. This should be specially gratifying to his personal friends who believe that his character was traduced without just cause. For this litigation, it is said, Mr. MacKay holds the Conservatives of North Grey blameless. It seems to be a personal affair wholly apart from political considerations. At any rate Mr. MacKay has got his vindication.

Owing to some of the northern sections being almost inaccessible returns were unavailable last night, and it is possible that there may be a few changes in the summary given this morning when complete figures are in. For instance, at Sturgeon Falls, the election of Mr. Mageau, Liberal, is expected by a majority close to 100. A later despatch from North Bay states that the election is close.

The Conservative gains are: Stormont, East Ottawa, West Wellington, East Simcoe, South Wentworth, South Perth, and North Renfrew (acc.).—Total 7.

The Liberal gains are: Glengarry, South Ontario, Monck, North Wentworth, Sturgeon Falls, North Norfolk, Prescott, East Middlesex, East Kent, Centre Bruce, and East Wellington.—Total 11.

The old members defeated are—Liberals; James McEwing, West Wellington; Daniel Reed, South Wentworth; Valentine Stock, South Perth. Conservatives: Charles Calder, South Ontario; James A. Ross, Monck; A. A. Aubin, Sturgeon Falls; George Neely, East Middlesex; P. H. Bowyer, East Kent; Col. Craig, East Wellington.

The new members in the House are—Conservatives: W. D. Black, Addington; J. W. Westbrook, North Brant; C. W. Jarvis, Fort William; A. M. Rankin, Frontenac; Sandy Grant, East Hasting; Robert Cook, North Hastings; Dr. A. E. Ross, Kingston; N. Champagne, East Ottawa; J. A. Ellis, West Ottawa; J. Benneweiss, South Perth; E. A. Peck, West Peterboro; Don. Hogarth, Port Arthur; E. A. Dunlop, North Renfrew; J. J. Hartt, East Simcoe; J. C. Mulligan, Stormont; C. McCrae, Sudbury; E. W. J. Owens, South Toronto; Dr. Vrooman, West Victoria; Col. Schofield, South Wellington; W. C. Chambers, West Wellington; J. T. Regan, South Wentworth. Liberals: W. McDonald, Centre Bruce; H. Munro, Glengarry; Chris. Kohler, Haldimand; C. Ferguson, East Kent; R. Sutherland, East Middlesex; Thomas Marshall, Monck; Col. Atkinson, North Norfolk; W. E. Sinclair, South Ontario; N. W. Rowell, North Oxford; G. Evanturel, Prescott; J. Mageau, Sturgeon Falls; Udney Richardson, East Wellington; Dr. McQueen, North Wentworth.

Foy's election in North Toronto was the event which excited most of the interest last night.

At nine o'clock last night Hon. Mr. Foy's majority was given at 684, which is a slight gain over that accorded John Shaw, the Conservative candidate at the previous provincial election. Mr. Shaw's majority was 632.

The members of the new Legislature with their majorities as far as can at present be ascertained, are:—

GRATEFUL TO ONTARIO

Sir James Expresses Heartfelt Appreciation of the Vote.

It Will Encourage the Government to Continue To Do Its Best For the People of the Province—Dr. Pyne Thanks His Supporters—Mr. Rowell Says Four Years Will See a Grand Change In Politics.

Toronto, Dec. 12.—Sir James Whitney, when asked last night to give an opinion on the election result, was in prime good humor. His brief statement was as follows:

"At this moment, it is difficult for me to choose proper language in which to express the heartfelt appreciation of my colleagues and myself, and our thanks for this magnificent endorsation by the people of Ontario of the course pursued by us. The endorsement is phenomenal indeed. It will certainly encourage the Government to continue its best efforts for the advancement and prosperity of the people of the province, who have given us such signal evidence of their confidence."

Dr. Pyne thanked his supporters for electing him to the Legislature for the fifth time.

"I am going to stick to you," he said, "because you have stuck to me. I hope we will never see a Liberal elected in Toronto. We did not get as large a vote as last time, but still there was a smaller vote polled, and the other fellows got almost nothing. In proportion this was just as great a victory as that of former elections. I thank you one and all for electing me, and I hope you won't regret it."

"I feel quite encouraged over the improvement of our fighting strength in the Legislature," said F. G. Inwood, provincial organizer, when asked for his opinion of the election results in the province. "The Liberals are now able to put up a better opposition than before," he continued. "Before we had only seventeen seats, to-night we are given twenty-two, with one Labor, Studholme of Hamilton. This will give us twelve more votes in the House, counting the Labor man, as a change either way counts two votes."

Rowell Is Sanguine.

Woodstock, Dec. 12.—N. W. Rowell, K.C., the Liberal leader, gave a press representative the following statement at 9.30 o'clock last night: "I look upon the splendid majority given me by North Oxford—a majority larger than has been given even a local man in years—as a great compliment to me. I look upon it as an endorsement by the electors of North Oxford of myself as the leader of the Liberals of Ontario.

"The returns so far received indicate a substantial number of Liberal gains, but there will also be several severe losses, the apparent net result being a gain of a few seats to the Liberal party. The Liberal party went into the contest more or less demoralized after their defeat of Sept. 21, without organization and without literature.

"I take the result as a clear indication that the tide has turned, and, if we continue, as we will, our propaganda in the interests of progressive measures are expressive of the best sentiments of Liberalism, both in the Legislature and in the country during the next four years, we have every reason to expect that the country will by that time have wearied of the autocratic and unprogressive character of the present administration and will endorse our progressive policy.

"I believe we may look forward with confidence to a great revival in progressive reforms and that in the next four years the province will return the Liberal party to power, thus giving effect to these progressive measures. I deeply regret the loss from the Legislature of some of the best members of the Liberal contingent. On the other hand, we will welcome those strong men who have been elected to join the Liberal ranks."

Studholme's Victory.

Hamilton, Dec. 12.—Allan Studholme (Labor), East Hamilton; Col. J. S. Hendrie (Conservative), West Hamilton; J. T. H. Regan (Conservative), South Wentworth, and Dr. McQueen (Liberal) North Wentworth, were the candidates elected in the County of Wentworth at yesterday's elections. Col. Hendrie is the only one of the four whose election was conceded before the polling yesterday.

The result in South Wentworth was a distinct surprise, as it was thought that Dan Reid, the Liberal candidate, would win out on account of the presence of Wm. Barrett, the Labor candidate, in the constituency.

The most important victory of the lot was, of course, that of Allan Studholme, the Labor man, who defeated Controller Cooper by a majority of 974. The Labor candidate had big majorities in three of the five wards.

The labor people were naturally elated over Studholme's splendid victory, and celebrated the event last night with a big parade through the principal streets of the city, led by the band of the 13th Regiment.

Dull In Toronto.

Toronto, Dec. 12.—Toronto yesterday refused to break through the hidebound conservatism with which she has clothed herself from infancy, and elected every candidate of the Whitney Government to the Legislature.

The election was remarkable only for one thing—its lack of interest, its apathy. Not one of the political organizers, who are in closer touch with conditions than anyone else, expected for one moment to get out a normal vote, because the indifference of the electorate was very marked from the beginning and until the close of the campaign. But when the dull, drizzling rain set in in the afternoon, to capsheaf the whole affair, it was known the vote would be extremely light.

Mr. McNaught's majority yesterday will approximate 1,815, something over half the majority given him before.

In East Toronto, Hon. Dr. Pyne also fell behind his last majority.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—Big receipts northwest, both sides of the International line, exerted pressure to-day on the market for wheat. Largely as a result the close was 3-8c to 3-4c under Saturday night. Corn showed a net loss of 3-8c to 1-2c, and oats a decline of 1-8c to 1-4c. At the end of the day hog products were down 5c to 10c to 12 1-2c.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ⅛d higher to ⅜d lower than yesterday on wheat, and ⅛d to ¼d lower on corn. Buda Pest closed ⅜c higher on wheat, Paris ½c to ⅝c higher, Antwerp ⅝c higher.
